A man by the name of Will Buck, working for N. M. Sutton, was the cause of no little excitement and some fright in the Sutton household Monday evening. It seems Mr. S. had in the tank house a barrel of cider for vinegar which Mr. Buck had been imbibing to such an extent that his powers of locomotion and speech were so effected that the feminine portion were greatly exercised thinking him crazy. Officer Thompson went up and got him, gave him a night's lodging and in the morning he was taken before Squire Frasier who fined him $5.00 and costs. He sobered up.

Harris & Hiteshu have a store full of beautiful dress goods and trimmings.

Saturday afternoon, while in the South part of town, we chanced into the Tiffany Iron Works building, where we were permitted to see the Lamb Bros. Wire Fence in process of weaving and it did not take long to satisfy us that they are manufactoring one of the strongest, as well as durable fences on the market. It is rapidly growing in favor wherever known, and their trade is rapidly increasing. Orders are coming in thick and fast, and the firm are making arrangements to greatly increase their capacity. Certainly Tecumseh has an industry, which she can point with pride, one that will ultimately do for this town what the Page Fence has done, for Adrian. These worthy gentlemen should receive the most hearty encouragement and cooperation of all public spirited citizens.

A Question.

The Lamb Bros.' fence which is now being manufactured in the Tiffany Iron Works is acknowledged to be equal to any fence made and there is a great question if it is not far superior to any other fence now manufactured. The machines invented and patented by the Lamb Bros. are no longer in an experimental state, but weave the fence perfectly and with all the speed necessary to make the manufacture a commercial success. A number of Tecumseh's best financiers have interested themselves in the enterprise with a view of organizing a stock company with $50,000 capital. It would seem that, in view of the great success of the fence business in Adrian, the investment, with proper management of the enterprise, would be a good one and it only depends on the organization of this company or not whether Tecumseh retains or loses the factory.

THE SOUND OF LITTLE FEET.

I listened in the morning
For the sound of the little feet
That patter'd along in the sunshine
Over the quiet street;
For the tones of the sweet voice singing
Some quaint lov'd strain of old,
As I saw the wee hands full of flowers,
And the sunny head crown'd with gold.

I watch'd when the noon was over,
And the clock in the tow'r struck four,
As the children came slowly homeward,
The hours of school time o'er;
And I heard 'mid the ripple of voices
The one that my heart lov'd best,
And I saw a smile like a sunbeam
Stray'd out of the glowing west.

And now, in the hush of gloaming,
I watch and I list again;
But the little feet come no longer,
No more do I hear that strain;
For the flow'rs and the tir'd little child-heart
Are hush'd into slumber sweet,
Tho' I know that in Heaven the angels
Hear the sound of the little feet.
—Augusta Hancock, in Lady.

ADVENTURE IN A CAB.

I will wager my chances for the throne of France against a box of cigars that there never was a marquis so diffident, so timid, so irresponsible, as Marquis Suetone Amentor de Longuerne. My hero possesses a heroine, that is to say, a legitimate heroine, a 24-year-old heroine, as beautiful as you might wish and as unmusical as you can imagine. From the rising of the sun till the last flicker of the nightlamp, she was constantly at the piano. She strummed with such untiring zeal that it was impossible to keep servants in the house. There were times when the marquis, surfeited with Schumann, tortured by Mendelssohn, and dead weary of Saint-Saens, even envied the good fortune of his servants, who could escape the instrument of torture.

"Will the marquis please settle my account?"

"Are you going to leave us?"

"Yes, sir, on account of—"

"The piano? I know—you have had enough of it."

"If it were only enough, I could stand it, but it's too much; it is driving me crazy."

"I understand."

"You are not angry, then?"

"The deuce, no! but how can I replace you?"

"I know a man who would suit the place—he is quite deaf."

"Lucky dog!"

Even the neighbors were driven to rebellion. Petitions and threatening letters poured in daily, until at last the poor marquis determined to move to some isolated quarter near the barracks, where the cornetists and drummers were sent to practice scales.

It is scarcely to be credited, but the marquis deeply deplored the absence of a better rival to his wife's affection than the piano. He hated it with a deadly hatred, and it is not surprising that he seized the opportunity to escape when the misguided virtuosa said to him:

"Can I count upon your escort Monday evening, dear? I have promised to play a fantasia from 'Henry VIII.' at Mme. la Marechale's. Are you fond of 'Henry VIII.?'"

"Yes—since I've learned to feel for him."

The intended sarcasm passed unnoticed his wife thought he alluded to the bold harmonies of the modern school.

The marchioness, however, was obliged to go unattended to Mme. la Marechale's. Monday evening at ten o'clock, she dropped her husband at his club, and, extending the soft little hand that was so soon to torture poor "Henry VIII.," she said to him:

"Will you call for me? I play at half past 11. No applause would give me so much pleasure as yours."

The marquis bent his head over the extended hand, and disappeared without a word.

He played at the club and lost, so heavily, in fact, that he soon found himself wishing he had gone to the reception, thinking that even "Henry VIII." would be preferable to this. From "Henry VIII." to thinking of his wife was but a short step, and he determined to go after her. For you will remember that Elizabeth Alida Marcelline de Longuerne, away from a piano, was a very charming little woman.

Hardly conscious of what he was doing, the marquis allowed himself to be driven to the house of Mme. la Marechale. Not caring to enter at once, he remained outside, listening to the hideous fantasie being performed by his wife. "It is half past eleven," he thought to himself. "It is she playing—those discords are unmistakable. Anne Boleyn and Catherine Howard are at last avenged. Henry the Eighth, go thou to thine execution!"

The noise of a passing cab momentarily drowned the sound of the piano, and the marquis forgot his wife's musical shortcomings in mental contemplation of her shoulder, her arms, her eyes, her luxuriant hair, and her other perfections. This vision appealed to his aesthetic side. He felt that he had been too exacting in the face of so many alluring charms.

"By Apollo! if a piece of ill-luck should come my way, I'd get no more than I richly deserve. What if her heart is wrapped up in those little black hieroglyphics with the long necks! She loves me with a constancy that is really touching. I can put up with a little music; at any rate, I shall not care the less for her on account of it. Poor woman, how abominably she plays! But they applaud her. And I—I have played the coward. I will wait outside here for her, if it takes an hour, to make up for it."

But his ardor was doomed to be dampened by a fine, cold rain that now began to fall. Suetone Amentor grew impatient and was conscious that he was getting tired. He had waited a full half-hour. Just then he noticed a coupe come out of the courtyard and draw up near the kerb behind a line of carriages. "This rain will not last long," he said to himself; "in all probability, the last guest to arrive will be the last one to go. I shall wait in her coupe and rest."

Taking advantage of the absence of the coachman, who had sought shelter in a neighboring doorway, he entered the coupe. It was a bijou little conveyance, upholstered in blue silk and exhaling an aroma of youth and elegance. The marquis settled back in the corner, which was still warm, and availed himself of a wrap that had been left behind, and in that blissful state of comfort he soon fell asleep. How long he slumbered I cannot say, but he suddenly awoke as the coupe drew up in Mme. la Marechale's courtyard.

The door was thrown open and a young woman of extraordinary beauty approached. When she saw that the coupe was not empty, she suppressed an exclamation, and, hastily divesting herself of her wrap, threw it in upon the astonished occupant.

"Are you mad, to throw off your cloak here in the court!" exclaimed the young man, who had escorted her to the carriage. "The air is freezing."

"I am suffocating," she replied; and, stepping hastily into the coupe, she closed the door with a bang.

"If you care to drop in at mother's, I will go with you."

"No, no; I have changed my mind. I am tired. Goodnight. I am going directly home."

The coupe rolled rapidly away. The marquis did not stir. Not a word was spoken until they reached a dark street, when the lady withdrew her mantle.

"Gaston!" she exclaimed, "what recklessness! You might have been my ruin!"

As the marquis was about to reply, she laid a little hand on his lips.

"No—not a word. I know what foolish excuses you will make. I will not, I dare not listen. My mind is made up. He is breaking my heart, but what is the difference? First take back this ring. I have no right to keep it."

The marquis was conscious that a ring was being slipped on his finger.

"And now kiss me, sweetheart—you deserve that much for your silence and devotion."

The marquis spent five ecstatic minutes, which, however, neither you nor I need dwell upon.

"And now leave me. In another moment I shall be home. Make haste—make haste!"

She let down the right-hand window and addressed a few words to the coachman, to divert his attention from the supposed Gaston, who alighted on the other side and disappeared, filled with regrets that he had not been able to follow up to the end this unexpected and delightful adventure.

The coupe drove off straight ahead, and was soon lost in the darkness.

A clock was striking two as our hero reached home. The marchioness was just alighting at the door. The marquis passed her without seeing her.

"Why, my dear, have you been asleep in the vestibule? You must help me upstairs whether you want to or not. They improvised a cotillion, and I'm simply exhausted."

As he offered her his arm she noticed the ring he had forgotten to remove from his finger.

"What a beautiful ring!" she cried. "Is it for me? I'm sure it was meant for a surprise."

The confusion of the marquis was only equaled by his wife's delight.

"Yes, it is a—a surprise. I shall tell you about it in the morning."

For the next three days the young wife was in the most affable of moods in expectation of the diamond. She didn't open the piano once.

While the jeweler was making a facsimile of the ring, the marquis endeavored to find his charming unknown.

"I'm a thief," he said to himself. "I'm a thief, and here's the ring to prove it. What will Gaston—the real Gaston—say to her? Poor thing, what a beautiful trinket she lost. Poor fellow, what kisses he lost. The recollection of them makes my head swim."

This little adventure cost my friend just 8,000 francs, and to help him out of his embarrassment, I am sending the following notice to the newspapers:

Lost, Monday, 8th, in a coupe with blue livery, a diamond ring worth 8,000 francs. A liberal reward offered to the owner.

—Translated for the San Francisco Argonaut by Grace Thorne.

What's in a Name.

A Sussex doctor writes to the London Standard to say that the common people in the rural districts in his neighborhood give their children such names as Gladys Irene Florence, Doris Alma May, Hilda Evelina Clementina, Ealeen Oenide, Dora Vinita, Winifred Emily, Olive Ruby, Margarette Lavinia, Gladys Elsie, etc.; Norman Archibald, Archibald Gordon Richmond, Cyril Granville, Douglas Dennis Richmond, Stanley Vernon, Albert Victor, Cecil Claude, Cyril Dudley, etc. He opines that those toplofty names will sound very funny "in our future scullery and other maids, grooms, gardeners, coachmen and so forth." What of it? Why should not a waiting maid or footman be just as good a servant if her name be Gladys or Cyril? Here in democratic America it is not uncommon to find an Earl Jones, a Baron Smith or a Duke Robinson, whose fond parents invested them at baptism with these resounding forenames, and James G. Blaine used to tell with glee of a Boston mother who christened her son out of a fashionable novel V. de C. Brown, the initials standing for Valet de Chambre, which surely looks mightily aristocratic. — Boston Pilot.

Good Living.

A Swansea gaol-warder used to tell the following story:

There is, or was, a bacon-and-beans dinner given periodically to the prisoners. One day an old gaol-bird, after gazing pensively on the moderate allowance of bacon compared with the beans on his plate, shouted to the warder:

"Hey! I've got no bacon!" As the warder turned, the prisoner corrected himself hastily. "Oh, yes! I beg pardon. It's got under one of the beans!" —Chicago Post.

GARDEN IRRIGATION.

A Science That Is Not as Well Understood as It Should Be.

Irrigation is being adopted by the successful gardeners and small-fruit growers throughout the world. The fact that water can be applied to fruits and vegetables at any time required is enough argument to convince anyone of the value of irrigation. Thorough tests in the rain belt regions have demonstrated that irrigation makes better-flavored products and more than doubles the yield. In this sense the application of moisture by the hand of man has become a science. Although practiced for the past 6,000 years, and a necessity in the production of crops in two-thirds of the world, irrigation is but little understood by many of the best farmers and gardeners in the United States. The science dispels droughts, and makes crops annual successes. At best, the rain dependence is only an uncertain substitute for independent soil moisture by irrigation.

The sources of artificial water supply are so numerous that there is no necessity for any section of the country suffering from a lack of rainfall. Running streams can be tapped by constructing gravity canals; springs may be easily developed, and their waters utilized; wells and cisterns can be pumped of their supply by windmills and other lifting devices. When once acquired, a water-right is worth more than the land it irrigates, even in the sections where rainfall moisture is depended upon for soil food. Gardens and small-fruit orchards and vineyards are especially benefited by irrigation, even though there is an abundance of rain for general field crops. The scientific application of water at the exact time needed solves the long-mooted problem of whether or not the garden pays for any except the professional market feeder. Many abandoned farms in the east could be reclaimed and made to pay as well as desert lands are redeemed in the west and converted into earthly homes of paradise.

Several systems of irrigation are practiced, but probably the most general method is the furrow plan. This consists in a main canal, which carries the water to the head, or highest point of the land, where it is divided into smaller laterals and conveyed by them to the furrows. These small furrows lead the water along near the roots of the trees or plants, and after passing through the entire lot, empties into a waste ditch, which carries it into a creek or other stream, to be used again by the farmers below. The time occupied in irrigating a given era depends upon the kind of crop and nature of the soil. In ordinary garden soil containing much manure and little clay a small stream may run from one hour to three times that long on a row eight to twelve rods in length. In most sections it is advisable to make irrigating furrows not more than 20 rods in length, as the ends next the ditch, or main canal, get too much water from soaking while the stream is finding its way to the lower end of the furrows.—Joel Shomaker, in Farm and Fireside.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

New land is best adapted to the growth of berries.

Fruit trees or plants will not take care of themselves.

Annual pruning largely avoids the necessity for removing large limbs.

Grapes thrive best in well-cultivated and well-drained land.

No fruit repays judicious pruning and trimming better than the pear.

Make quality rather than quantity the principal aim.

Having the orchard trimmed up keeps the trees bearing well.

Cherry trees must be grafted early if good results are expected.

Choose young, thrifty trees, with good roots and straight, clean tops.

All trees that have roots or tops bruised or mangled should be discarded.

In setting out a tree, save some of the top soil, especially to put around the roots.

It is not a bad plan to plant trees along the roadside the whole length of the farm.

By stirring the soil after every rain the weeds will be more easily destroyed.

The peach and plum are nearly enough related to be budded or grafted on each other.

In the spring is the best time to prune the peach. Cut back one-half of the new growth of wood.

Mulching prevents the early flow of sap by preventing the ground from warming up too soon.

Nectarines and apricots can be grown anywhere that the peach or prune will thrive well.

Either red clover alone or clover and orchard grass is best to be used in seeding down the orchard.

It is better for the trees while they are growing to raise hoed crops among them, so the trees will get the benefit of the cultivation.—St. Louis Republic.

AN ACCIDENT.

Mr. Quintus Hummel, of 118 Michigan Ave., Detroit, tells a War Story of his own Experience, and the Result.

(From Detroit News.)

Our representative called at 118 Michigan Avenue, the residence of Mr. Quintus Hummel. Mr. Hummel is a veteran of the late war, and received, in the campaign, an injury which has given him much pain and suffering since. He belonged to a Michigan cavalry regiment and his horse becoming frightened one day reared up, throwing him backward. In falling he struck his spine on a sharp stone, inflicting a deep cut over five inches long. The injury affected the kidneys. About two years ago the left kidney started to bleed, and has been doing so ever since. Mr. Hummel, in a few pointed sentences, gave our representative the following account:

"The accident of my 'war days' left me in bad shape; pain in my back and spine rendered me almost useless, and I was compelled to give up work entirely. I could not turn over in bed without assistance. I have spent hundreds of dollars in various ways trying to find relief. Physicians have told me my spine was honeycombed for 13 inches. I had given up in despair, never hoping for relief, when a friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills, and they have done me a world of good. The pains have disappeared from my back, and the bleeding of my kidney has almost entirely stopped. I know I can never be entirely cured, as I would have to be 'a new man,' but Doan's Kidney Pills have done more to make me feel like 'a new man' than all the other things I have tried during past years. I have not had any recurrence of the pain or bleeding since taking them."

SPAULDING IS POPULAR.

Experience Makes Him Familiar With His Work.

SOMETHING ABOUT MR. THURBER.

He Entered Washington as a Country Boy from Michigan and Left with the Good Wishes and Respect of All Who Became Acquainted with Him—Professor Harrington an Applicant for Reinstatement—Jobs for Michigan People.

Washington, May 4.—General O. L. Spaulding, assistant secretary of the treasury, is one of the most popular Wolverines in the national capital. During the past week, while the secretary of the treasury was in New York, General Spaulding has been acting secretary of the treasury. His experience in the position of assistant secretary during the Harrison administration made him perfectly familiar with the departmental work. He is as competent to act as secretary of the treasury as the man upon whom has been conferred the cabinet position. Secretary Gage has wealth and a political pull, but General Spaulding was appointed primarily because of his ability and experience.

John Addison Porter, secretary to the president, although a new man in the business of dealing with public men and affairs, is filling his high office in a creditable manner. Because he is a newspaper man, he has been very well treated by the newspaper men of Washington. He is doing no better, however, than Henry T. Thurber did at the beginning of the second Cleveland administration.

Country Boy from Michigan.

Mr. Thurber was raised in the little town of Monroe, and, barring his few years' experience at Detroit, was provincial in his political knowledge. He came to Washington, practically, as a country boy from Michigan. Several smart newspaper correspondents proceeded to make fun of him. He endured their gibes and quips without a tremor. When he left Washington last March he carried with him the good wishes and respect of all who had become acquainted with him; because they had learned to appreciate the high purpose and noble qualities of the Michigan man who had successfully and honorably filled a confidential position close to the president of the United States for four years without making a single mistake of moment, and without betraying a single trust. This little tribute to Thurber, who is a Democrat, comes from a writer who, for several years, represented the Detroit Tribune in Washington, before that paper became a political traitor to the party which created and nurtured it.

Applicant for Reinstatement.

Professor Mark W. Harrington, a good man who was dismissed from the chiefship of the weather bureau twenty months ago because he was charged with having failed to discharge his duties properly, is an applicant for reinstatement. After being removed from the weather bureau Professor Harrington was appointed professor in charge of the University of Washington at Seattle. Two weeks ago he resigned that position and is now in Washington to make an effort to succeed Professor Willis L. Moore, the present chief of the weather bureau.

Harrington's friends are on the ground and are quietly working in his interest. Mrs. Harrington arrived in Washington two weeks ago, and has been an active worker in her husband's behalf. She has, it is said, seen various senators and representatives, and has also paid a personal visit to Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department, with whom she earnestly pleaded in her husband's behalf. Secretary Wilson is favorable to the retention of Professor Willis Moore.

Thomas L. Wallin, of the Wallin Leather company, and wife are here on their return from Thomasville, Ga., and Pensacola, Fla.

Will Please Cigarmakers.

The cigarmakers and manufacturers of Michigan who have been petitioning the senators to have Havana fillers and Sumatra wrappers placed upon the free list in the pending tariff bill will be pleased to learn that Senator Burrows has become a warm champion of their interests. He has already appeared before the senate committee on finance and made an argument in behalf of this large class of union workmen in the state.

The Michigan representatives in congress are being flooded with requests for sugar beet seed. A gentleman from the southern portion of the state writes his representative that he has found at least forty farmers that are anxious to experiment with sugar beet, and has requested the congressman to send him seed enough from the agricultural department to plant at least one acre of ground for each farmer. The agricultural department has exhausted its small supply, and the members of the Michigan delegation are obliged to inform their constituents that they cannot meet their requests.

A new document has been published by the agricultural department known as the Farmers' Bulletin No. 52. It gives facts and figures concerning the culture, seed development, manufacture and statistics of the sugar beet. This can be had on application to any member of congress from Michigan.

Secretary of War and Mrs. Alger, Senator Burrows, and Congressman Crump and wife were among the Michigan people who went to New York to attend the Grant dedication exercises. Senator Burrows was a member of the senate committee of fifteen appointed by that body to represent the legislative branch of the government in the ceremonies.

Good Things for Michigan People.

Some of the good things that have fallen to Michigan people during the past week are the following: Burton Parker of Monroe has been named for his old position as special agent for the treasury department. James Wheeler of Detroit has been reinstated in his old position of secret agent for the treasury department. M. A. Watson of Flint, an old sailor who was discharged from the pension office under the last administration, has been reinstated. E. O. Shaw of Newago has been appointed postmaster of that city. M. M. Callahan was appointed postmaster at Reed City; Miss Jennie Andrews of Kalamazoo was promoted to the $1,200 class in the office of the secretary of war, and John Shaw of Big Rapids was appointed assistant in the office of General A. W. Greely, librarian of the war department.

Congressmen Hamilton, Samuel Smith and Crump are the only members of the Michigan delegation now in the city. The others are expected to return and place their names on record when the Dingley bill goes back to the house.

Among the Michigan visitors in Washington during the past week were Colonel John J. Sumner of the Orchard Lake Military academy; Colonel Frank J. Hecker and James C. Wheeler of Detroit; E. L. Walters of Ann Arbor; H. C. Howard of Kalamazoo; M. L. Fitch of Grand Rapids; Hon. Mark Brewer of Pontiac; Hon. A. O. Wheeler of Manistee; George W. Robinson, and F. H. Harvey of Detroit, and Hon. Henry M. Lour of Au Sable.

A new postoffice has been established at Tokio, Calhoun county, and Miss Carrie I. Otts is the first postmistress.

Ohio Colony To Be Increased.

There are two more Ohio men slated for good positions here in Washington. There are a good many candidates for solicitor general, but the place has been offered to ex-Attorney General Richards of Ohio, who is an intimate friend of the president.

The position of solicitor for the state department has also been promised to an Ohio man. This lucky Buckeye is Harry McDaugherty of Washington Court House. Mr. Daugherty is one of the Ohio Republicans who have managed to keep on excellent terms with both factions in Ohio. He was an enthusiastic McKinley man in the campaign of 1891, when the major was first elected governor, and was a member of the legislature elected that year.

In the contest between Sherman and Foraker for the senate Mr. Daugherty's support was sought for by both sides, and there was much speculation as to which camp would enroll him. On the test vote for speaker he voted with the Foraker men, and was set down as favorable to Foraker's election to the senate, but in the senatorial caucus he voted for Sherman.

He has since been looked upon as a follower of Sherman and Hanna, and is to be solicitor for the state department if he cares to leave his law practice in Ohio and join the Ohio colony in Washington.

Delay on the Tariff Bill.

There is little prospect for the presentation of the tariff bill in the senate for some days yet. The members of the finance committee held a lengthy session and talked over the proposition of the Republicans that the bill be permitted to go into the senate at once. It is understood that they got very little encouragement from the Democratic members of the committee.

It is not surprising that this was the fact, if the reports of what occurred inside the committee room are accurate. It is stated that the Republicans were almost as reticent with the Democratic members of the committee about the work they had done and the changes made in the bill as they have been with the other members of the senate, or with the public generally.

In view of this the Democratic members quite naturally declined the proposition to permit the bill to be reported to the senate at once. They indicated, on the contrary, that they desired to pretty thoroughly examine it not only themselves, but with the aid of experts, and that they should insist upon all the time that they might feel they ought to have, whether this should be one week or three.

This evidently means that the bill will not get into the senate before the end of the first week in May, or perhaps the middle of the month.

Ohio Senatorial Situation.

The present condition of the senate adds greatly to the interest felt in the coming election of a legislature in Ohio, which legislature is to elect a senator to fill the seat now held by appointment by Mr. Hanna.

Should the senate remain evenly divided, as it now is, the result in Ohio would determine whether or not the Republican president, chosen from that state, is to have a Republican or a Democratic senate to uphold or oppose him.

This renders the situation there an extremely interesting one.

In case of the election of a Democratic legislature and a Democratic senator to succeed Mr. Hanna, nothing could prevent the senate being Democratic, or at least anti-Republican, for the next two years, while with a Republican in that seat the members of that party might expect to control that body.

The election of Senator Deboe and his prospective assignment to committee duty will not make any change in the slate made up by the caucus committees on the assignment of committee places.

They had calculated upon a Republican senator from Kentucky and reserved certain of the committee positions to which he could be assigned if the result which has been attained should be realized.

Nelson's Bankruptcy Bill.

The success of Senator Knute Nelson in substituting his bankruptcy bill for the one before the senate and then securing its passage was a feature of the legislation of the present session. It was a decided victory for the Scandinavian senator, and as unexpected as it was thorough and complete. During the long discussion of the bankruptcy measure Senator Nelson has grown visibly in the estimation of his colleagues as a sound lawyer and strong fighter. The whole question of the bankruptcy legislation has been an apparently interminable and insoluble controversy for several years. Judge Torrey has given the subject of bankruptcy the most careful attention, and has for several years devoted himself ardently to the effort to pass a complete bill on the subject drafted by himself and advocated with great persistence. The Torrey bill was an involuntary bankruptcy measure. The Nelson substitute, which now goes to the house, provides instead for voluntary bankruptcy, the only exceptions being in cases where fraudulent transfers of property have been made by debtors. The house having already in a previous congress passed an involuntry bankruptcy law, it seems proper that the Nelson bill, or a reasonable modification of it which preserves the voluntary features, can become a law at the present congress. This is a consummation that is earnestly wished by many commercial institutions and business houses throughout the country. In the east a strongly involuntary law would have been more acceptable to creditors, while in the western states the Nelson bill will be more generally satisfactory. DUNBAR

GROWING OF BERRIES.

Eternal Vigilance and Work Is the Price of Success.

The growing of a berry calls into action some of the most wonderful laws of nature. In the growth of plants we find these laws in perfection. We also find in various forms a complete supply of every element required for the full development of both plant and fruit. Nature gives all these products without stint. She simply asks in return that we assist her in some of the smaller details of the work. She asks that the soil be made rich and well prepared; that the plants be of good quality and carefully set out; that frequent hoeing and cultivation be given; that plants be protected from winter frosts and summer drought; that no insect pest or fungus disease find an abiding place with them; that you treat them as a friend and love them as a brother. Both pleasure and profit come in greatest measure from closest attention to all these details. Nature furnishes almost every good with a prodigal hand, but she is a niggard to him who will not work in her ways. You cannot cheat her in farm or garden. You cannot get something for nothing. These are days of progress. Every line of business must advance with the times, or drop to the rear. The farmer has been the laggard. The safest, the surest, the most ancient and the most honorable business on earth should be in the most progressive ranks. An army of best newspapers are stationed all along the agricultural highway, to guard us from error and direct us to success. We cannot afford to be without them. Read them! Study them! Experiment in a moderate way, give extra preparation and cultivation to certain tracts, and mark results, as compared with ordinary tillage. Observe results of similar experiments on your neighbors' farms. Compare notes with them and reason together. Extend like experiments to the seeds you sow, the stock you grow, and trees, plants and shrubs you set. Such experiments are almost sure to lead to more careful selection of seed, stock and plants, and to a more thorough cultivation of the soil and better results every way from farm, fruit and garden.—M. A. Thayer, in Prairie Farmer.

CONVENIENT LADDER.

A Simple Contrivance Which Makes Fruit Picking Easy.

A little forethought during the leisure hours of the winter season will provide many a useful implement for the farmer and gardener. During fruit season it is almost impossible to have a superabundance of ladders for gathering fruit. The ladder portrayed herewith rests on five bearings, three of them adjustable as to length and position, and easily adapted to all inequalities of surface, perfectly secure and portable. A six-foot ladder weighs about 40 pounds. The crane, or basket and hook holder, rotates, or may be shifted to either side of the operator; will support 30 pounds of fruit in a basket with ease, and the legs all fold in when required. The object is to provide a safe stand, and at the same time increase the facilities of the operator in picking fruit, pruning trees, etc., giving him the full use of both hands and placing the basket within easy reach of the same, thereby saving time in transporting the fruit from the tree to the basket. The fruit can also be handled with less damage from bruising, and it will therefore bring more money.—Farm and Home.

Trimming Peach Trees.

I find it just as easy to raise good-sized peaches as small ones. We depend largely on pruning and try not to leave too many fruit buds or too much wood. As peaches only grow on the new wood it is necessary to prune heavily, especially on old trees, to stimulate growth of new wood. My trees are five years old. They yielded about eight tons per acre last year and six tons the year before. Last winter I cut them heavily. I cut out many limbs from two to three inches in diameter, besides thinning out the laterals and cutting back heavily all that I left. As a result I am forcing out new growths in the body of the tree, low down where I want it, which will bear fruit next year.—Farmers Union.

Taking Care of Fruit Trees.

The peach is propagated by budding on seedling peach trees. Generally the seed is planted in the spring and the plant budded in August. In pruning the peach, from one-third to one-half of the new wood should be cut off each year. This should be done in the spring before growth starts. By this treatment the fruit buds are thinned out and the tree takes on a compact form and does not easily break down. Cherry and plum trees may have light pruning done early in the spring. They no not need much pruning, but a little looking over each year to take out interlocking branches and shorten branches that grow too strongly.—Farm and Home.

Do the grafting before the buds swell. The stock and scion must unite before the buds need the stored-up nourishment.

FATAL FLAMES.

Two Lives Lost in a Recent Fire in Detroit.

Detroit, May 3.—Two persons were burned to death and two others very seriously burned in a comparatively small fire at five o'clock Saturday evening. The burned structure was a two-story frame building in Chene street, near Canfield avenue, occupied by E. H. Heidel's bakery. In the upper story lived the family of Nicholas Sinig, four members of which were quickly surrounded by the flames. Of these Lena Sinig, aged 17, and Nicholas, aged 9, were badly burned in getting downstairs and out of the building. Mrs. Sinig escaped by a ladder without injury. Lizzie Sinig, aged 20, and her brother Anthony, aged five, were caught in a back room, whence they could not reach any means of egress, and before help arrived they had been burned to death. A man living across the street heard the victims screaming, but before he could aid them the burning roof had fallen in upon them. From appearance of the bodies death was caused by suffocation before the flames had reached them. They had been supposed to be in the front part of the building, but in reality did not get out of the back room.

GOLD MINE AT ANN ARBOR.

Laborers, While Boring a Well, Discover a Vein of Yellow Metal.

Ann Arbor, May 1.—There is considerable excitement in this city over the discovery of an alleged gold mine. Laborers have been working for the past few days on the farm of Dr. Willard B. Smith, just outside the city, boring a well. Recently a quantity of yellow metal was thrown up which had the appearance of gold. Dr. Smith has taken several specimens to the university and has also sent some to the United States mint at Philadelphia. Several mining experts were on the ground and claim that the source of this metal is a vein, it being at first expected that perhaps it was only a pocket. The metal does not have the amount of sulphur and iron which is usual with ore of similar assay, if it were not gold.

Two Men Drowned.

Eagle River, May 2.—Frederick Nelson, Oliver Bearreault and Webster Beauchamp left Eagle Harbor in a sail boat for their home at Copper Harper on Wednesday night. Nelson reached there in an exhausted condition on Thursday night and reported that the boat with his two companions was lost in the storm. Beauchamp leaves a widow and family.

Will Accommodate Wheelmen.

Grand Rapids, May 1. — The Fountain street Baptist church realizes that the bicycle has come to stay. A neat brick shed is being built adjacent to the church for the accommodation of wheels and a watchman will be employed to guard them from being stolen or damaged during church hours.

Died of His Injuries.

Menominee, April 28. — Peter Stovek died of injuries received by colliding with a trolley car while driving home from market.

Barns Cost Money to build, and will cost money to replace. Paint 'em and save 'em. Paint of the right sort, carefully used, will give good returns on the investment. The barn will last longer and look better. Lumber that has become weather beaten, is beginning to decay. Good paint closes the pores of the wood, stops decay and preserves the structure.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS CREOSOTE PAINT is the best barn paint. It is made for use on coarse grained woods. It is good for barns, roofs and fences. The colors are right, the paint is right. It is economical.

If you are in doubt as to the best paints to use for bath tubs, chairs, cupboards, shelves, baseboards, buggies, boats, plows, wagons, floors, houses—for any paintable thing under the sun—send for "Point Pointers." It is a booklet for the housekeeper and house owner. It tells what is good paint and bad paint, when to paint, and how to paint. It is a handy book for any one to have. It is free. MATTER OF FINAL ADJOURNMENT.

It Is No Nearer a Settlement Now Than It Was Last Week—Vote on the Robinson Bill a Surprise—Senate to Act on One of the Most Important of the Railway Bills This Week—New Scheme to Pay Accounts.

Lansing, Mich., May 4.—The matter of final adjournment is no nearer a settlement now than it was last week. The house finally passed a resolution calling for a cessation of business, other than the engrossing of bills, etc., on Saturday, May 29, and for final adjournment at noon on the 31st inst. The senate, however, sent this resolution to the table, some of the senators being of the opinion that it was yet too early to set a date with any degree of accuracy or definiteness, while others do not believe that there will be time between the 29th and 31st for the engrossing clerks to dispose of the great number of bills that are always passed during the last hours of the session. It is probable that the two houses will get together on this question during the present week.

The vote last Thursday on the Robinson bill reducing the passenger rate on upper peninsula railroads from 4 to 3 cents per mile, was somewhat of a surprise to both the friends and opponents of the measure, neither believing that it would receive the number of votes that were recorded in its favor. It received 14 votes, while 15 were cast against it and three senators were not present when the roll was called. An attempt to bury the bill beyond resurrection by moving to table a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill failed to pass, was not carried, and another attempt will be made to pass the bill.

Speculation Indulged In.

Much speculation is now being indulged in as to whether this vote is an index of the probable action of the senate on other railroad and corporation bills now pending. If it is, this class of bills will come much nearer passing than has been expected by any one previous to the vote on the Robinson bill. It is evident that the railroad people are much more nervous just at present than at any time since the session commenced.

This week the senate will take action on one of the most important of the pending railroad bills. This is the Merriam bill providing for an increase of 1 per cent in the specific tax paid by railroad companies, which has been made the special order for tomorrow. There has been a feeling for some time that this bill might pass, thereby increasing the revenue of the state from this source by some $200,000 annually. The passage of this bill might have the effect of defeating other so-called anti-railroad bills, the argument being that this would be all the increased burden that should be heaped upon the companies at this time. Taking this view of the matter it would not be surprising if the companies turned in and advocated the passage of the Merriam bill in the hope of ending the matter there.

Two anti-express bills have been reported out favorably by the house committee on private corporations, but have not yet been acted upon by the house. One of these prohibits companies from making any extra charge for delivering packages anywhere within the limits of a city or village; and the other prohibits charging a greater rate for carrying packages which have to go over two lines than is charged for carrying a like package the same distance over a single line.

The farmers of the house scored a point the other day when the Graham game bill was under consideration. They succeeded in having it amended so as to prohibit the hunting of quail with dogs. It was conceded that the tendency of this provision would be to decrease the number of hunters and thus reduce the amount of trespassing on farm lands which has been the trial of the farmers for years.

New Scheme to Pay Accounts.

A new scheme for paying accounts contracted by state institutions has been advanced by State Treasurer Steel. It cropped out in the report of the committee on the Soldiers' home a few days ago, and may be made to apply to all other state institutions. Under the system which has been in vogue for years the resident of each board of control of a state institution has been the treasurer of the board. These treasurers draw from the state treasury such sums as they see fit, place the money in a local bank and check against it as the occasion requires. It is now proposed to do away with this plan so far as the Soldiers' home is concerned at least, the report referred to recommending that hereafter the board of control audit the accounts as usual, but, after they are audited, send them to the auditor general for payment by the state treasurer on the former's warrant. This plan will keep the money in the state treasury or its designated depositories, assuring to the state much more interest than is now received on daily balances, nothing being realized on the large sums of money which are lying around in banks selected by the treasurers of the several boards. It is not improbable that the change will be made to apply to all state institutions.

Case of a Monroe Man.

Much interest centers in the forthcoming decision of the supreme court in the case of a Monroe man who was convicted of a violation of the pure food law. His defense was, and the fact was conceded by the prosecution, that he supposed that the goods were pure when he purchased them and that he sold them in good faith. The trial judge was not disposed to find him guilty under these circumstances, but did so under protest in order that a case might be got before the supreme court. If the court holds that guilty knowledge is a necessary element of guilt under this law, even the friends of the law admit that it cannot be enforced as every person accused of violating it would plead good faith and there would be no way of proving to the contrary.

It is generally conceded that Governor Pingree disposed of the Professor Bemis bugaboo, which has been bothering a number of good people sorely for a number of months, most happily when he appointed ex-Mayor Joseph L. Cox, of Battle Creek, commissioner of labor, to succeed Professor Bemis. Mr. Cox is one of the most popular men in the state, a fact that was fully demonstrated when the senate confirmed the nomination by a unanimous vote the moment it was received, while all other nominations were sent to a committee.

Bill to Curtail State Reports.

Two years ago Representative Perry of Manistee, was a member of the Linderman committee which framed a bill designed to materially curtail the number and variety of state reports and documents issued. The committee put a great amount of work into the investigation which preceded the preparation of the bill, but it sought to accomplish too much and the measure was killed. This year Mr. Perry is at the head of a similar committee which has prepared a bill on this subject. The bill he has drawn is in the main meritorious, but he has embodied in it one provision which should be eliminated. This seeks to limit the number of pages which certain reports shall contain. For instance, it is provided that the report of the state board of health shall not exceed 300 pages. In the very nature of things this committee can have no adequate idea of what subjects should be treated of in a report of this kind or of how extensively they should be handled. The reports of the Michigan state board of health on the causation of sickness and other subjects are authority throughout the world, and will be just as valuable fifty years hence as they are now. The subject which the board proposes to treat in its next report relates to consumption and its causation and treatment.

Statistics Gathered for Years.

Statistics and other material for this report have been gathered for a long series of years in order that the deductions and results announced may be accurate and of value in the treatment of this disease, which causes far more deaths in Michigan annually than any other. If the Perry bill passes all this work will be rendered absolutely valueless and the board will be compelled to put out a report which will be worse than useless and a disgrace to the state. The folly of a committee of laymen saying what and how much or how little persons engaged to make special investigation shall publish in their reports is apparent. Not being informed on the subject it is impossible for them to intelligently deal with this branch of the subject, so whatever they might provide would be clearly arbitrary.

Another noticeable provision of the bill is one requiring that the proceedings of the numerous farmers' institutes held throughout the state shall be printed in sufficient quantities so that each member of each local institute shall have a copy. This would require the printing of a great many thousand copies, and while it would be clearly class legislation, farmers alone profiting by it, there can be no question as to its value. The inconsistency of the committee, however, is shown by its refusal to provide for the publication of but 2,000 copies of the proceedings of state sanitary conventions, which have to do with the lives and health of the people, and are of vital concern to all the people of the state.

If it is desired to do the greatest good to the greatest number of citizens of Michigan this bill will be radically amended before it becomes a law.

State Appropriation Bills.

It is doubtful if the senate committee on appropriations and finance will hear any objections to its announcement that it will be able to so scale the appropriation bills as to reduce the state tax levy for the years 1897 and 1898 at least $500,000 from that of the two years last past. The levy for the past two years was $5,082,458.14, and the committee proposes to keep that for the ensuing biennial period down to $4,500,000, and there is a chance of its going slightly below that figure. All appropriation bills have been carefully scrutinized and every dollar that could possibly be pruned from them was eliminated. Every institution has or will come in for a pruning at the hands of this committee, but those which will be cut the most are the upper peninsula hospital at Newberry, the Home for the Feeble Minded at Lapeer, and the state fish commission. The two institutions named are asking for very large appropriations for new buildings, and these will be badly slashed. The fish commission is asking for a much larger sum than in former years, but the members can congratulate themselves if they get as much as two years ago, to say nothing of any advance.

The passage finally of the resolution appropriating $7,500 for a Michigan exhibit at the Tennessee centennial exposition was a great surprise. The house has several times voted adversely on the measure, and even on the morning of its passage had refused, by a decisive vote, to take it from the table. The commissioners appointed by Governor Rich can be depended upon to get the best possible results for the state, but there are many who doubt the expediency of making such an exhibit.

Determined Warfare.

It has developed within the past few days that a determined warfare is to be made on express and telephone companies. One bill pending in the senate provides for the increase of the specific tax paid by express companies to 2 per cent. of the gross business in the state, and another increases it to 4 per cent. There is little doubt that the present revenue of the state from this source will be greatly increased. Senator Warner recently introduced a resolution instructing the attorney general to proceed against express companies to collect taxes, which it is claimed they have been avoiding for some years. This claim grows out of the fact that the companies have been paying on the gross collections within Michigan, instead of on their gross business in the state, all interstate business being excluded. The present rate is 1 per cent., and the amount paid has been about $3,000 per year. According to Senator Warner's resolution the revenue from this source should have been between $15,000 and $20,000, and it is this difference that he wants the attorney general to proceed to collect. His resolution went to a committee which is looking into the matter.

Representatives Molster and Elkhoff, the labor leaders in the house, will make another attempt to enact an anti-contracts convict labor law. They have revamped the bill defeated a few weeks ago, by striking out the provision that convicts shall be loaned to counties in blocks of twenty and employed with ball and chain at road-making. The new bill provides that all articles used in state institutions shall be made by convicts by hand, nothing more than hand or foot machinery to be used.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will discribe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery. It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: "I was sick for many years. My case was known, for miles around. Was helped to Dr. Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the Doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the Doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration."

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Wm. Redman says also, that he has been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vistage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast. She was a great sufferer.

Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $5,000.

Mrs. W. M.——, after being barren for ten years, says, "He cured me. We now have two little children. Suffice to say our home is a happy one.

Epilepsy (or fits) positively cured by a recent scientific discovery.

One of the most respected young men of Grand Rapids, Mr. C. H. Banks, has doctored with all the best physicians he could hear of and was finally given two weeks to live. Consulted Dr. Walker, took his treatment and is now a well man. He had chronic stomach trouble, weak lungs and constant cough, rheumatism and Bright's disease. He has gained 35 pounds and works every day. He advises all who are sick to see Dr. Walker.

Mrs. C. M. Stutzman cured of blood and skin disease of twelve years standing.

Mrs. L. E. Lambert cured of varicose ulcers on limb.

Miss Ella Crane cured of bronchial trouble and lung disease.

Miss B. H. cured of female weakness after being treated by many noted physicians.

Mrs. W. W. Bennett says also that she had lost her sense of smell and became partially deaf by catarrh in the head and could not sleep for constant coughing and pain through the lungs, also had female trouble. She says she will testify to anyone that Dr. Walker saved her life. She has gained thirty pounds and is well.

Miss Elizabeth Ball writes, after being a great sufferer for a number of years with neuralgia in the head and stomach: I am cured. I feel as though I have got into a new world. I cannot praise the doctor enough for his skill in my case.

Dr. Walker's specialties are diseases of Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs and all chronic, private and nervous diseases and deformities, as Granulated Lids, Cross Eyes, Deafness, Discharge of the Ears, Bronchitis, Chronic Cough, Goitre (big neck) Fever Sores and Ulcers, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Heart Stomach and Nervous Diseases; Chorea (St. Vitus Dance), Epilepsy (fits), General Debility, Scrofula, skin Diseases and all diseases due to bad blood; also rectal diseases.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the punctur , like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

RESOLUTIONS

Passed by the Duluth Bar Association on the Death of George L. Kelley.

The ranks of the Duluth Bar have again been broken. This time by the death of our younger brother, George. We should be able to express the hope that there will be a closer union of those who remain. Our profession is not one which is naturally calculated to encourage the highest fraternal feeling. Our daily work is most likely to be antagonistic to some one. A case presumes a contest. Success of one means the defeat of another, and in many cases the demolition of his work.

This is not so in any other peaceful occubation. And if we are not actually engaged in legal conflict with a brother we are at least preoccupied with matters intersting only to ourselves and our clients, and have no oportunity to know the man with whom we do not come in contact. For these reasons the best side of a lawyers character is frequently not brought to the view of many of his fellow attorneys, and his worth not appreciated.

We believe this was so with Mr. Kelley. Few members of this bar knew him so well as this committee. Two years of life with him in the University of Michigan, which two of us enjoyed, and five years of intimate acquaintance at the bar of Duluth, have given us a knowledge of the man of whom we speak.

He was a self made man and had attained his position as a lawyer by a struggle which would have discouraged a weaker character. He was the son of a Michigan pioneer farmer and alternately worked to earn money and then to spend it in acquiring useful knowledge. He was a man of high aspirations; full of hope and ambition to attain an honorable place in his profession and with every prospect and promise of a happy realization thereof when his young life was suddenly snuffed out. He was upright and honest with high ideals in his personal and professional life, and we may truthfully pronounce on him an encomium, than which no higher will ever be spoken of any member of this bar. We can testify that whatever he did was worth doing and he always did his best.

Pursuant, therefore to the order of the Court, your committe have the honor to propose the following resolution

Resolved: That the bar of Duluth and of St. Louis County, deeply sorrow at the untimely death of our brother George L. Kelley who was one of the most promising of the younger members of our profession.

That we commend to all and will ourselves emulate his steadiness of purpose, integrity and nobility of character.

That we extend to his stricken parents and friends our sincere sympathy and assure them that in our memory of the departed we have only grateful recollections of a worthy life, a pleasant acquaintance and an exemplary young man.

That these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of the court and a copy be sent to his parents

Dated at Duluth, Minn, May 1st A. D. 1897.

THE CROPS.

Condition in the State as Shown by the May Report.

Lansing, May 8.—The Michigan crop report for May gives the condition of wheat in the state at 82 per cent. The average for the state in 1896 was 92; in 1895, 80, and 90 in 1894. The condition in the southern counties, where most of the wheat is grown, is 84 per cent., or 7 per cent. lower than one year ago. Very little wheat will be plowed up in the southern and northern counties because winter-killed or otherwise destroyed. The proportion in the central counties is reported at 11 per cent. The amount of wheat reported marketed by farmers in April is 829,458 bushels, as compared with 468,634 bushels in April, 1896, and 810,226 bushels in April, 1895, and the amount in the nine months, August to April, is 8,364,329 bushels, as compared with 7,781,870 bushels in the same months last year.

The wet weather has been favorable for grass, and the area that will be plowed up because winter-killed or otherwise destroyed is estimated at only 7 per cent. of the total area in the state.

Apples promise less than two-thirds, and peaches less than one-half of an average crop.

One year ago apples promised 96 per cent. and peaches 84 per cent, of an average crop.

Accused of Fraudulent Banking.

Saginaw, May 6.—The people of this city were taken by surprise by the return of seven indictments against Clarence L. Judd by the federal grand jury at Bay City for criminal acts in connection with the failure of the defunct First national bank of East Saginaw. He is charged in general with making false returns to the comptroller of the currency and with fraudulent work. He gave bail in the sum of $3,000, and his case was set for the October term.

Begins His Work.

Washington, May 12.—Judge Day, of Ohio, has qualified and assumed his office as assistant secretary of state.

NO BIBLE READING.

Practice in Schools is Declared Illegal.

Detroit, May 9. — There will be no more "Bible readings" in the public schools of Detroit unless the supreme court shall reverse a decision made Saturday by Judge Carpenter in the Wayne county circuit court. The suit was brought by Conrad Pfeifer to compel the board of education to abandon the "readings." The "readings" were compiled in Chicago and were said to be non-sectarian in the sense that no particular form of religion is favored. Its advocates claim it is merely a text book on morality. Acting Mayor George Beck vetoed a resolution of the board to purchase 4,000 of the "readings" but the veto was not sustained and the books are now in use. Counsel for the board contended that it was the duty of every school board to teach the Christian religion. Judge Carpenter held that if that contention were sound, not only should the Bible be taught, but all other forms of religious instruction should be given in the schools. The judge quoted the sections of the state constitution that were relied on to support the board's position, and after an exhaustive analysis of them concluded that they did not bear out the counsel's contention. The judge summarized his conclusions as follows:

"Our constitutional provisions respecting religious liberty mean precisely what they declare. They forbid any legislative authority compelling a person to pay taxes for the support of a teacher of religion or diminishing or enlarging the civil rights of any person on account of his religious belief. Respondent's proposed use of "readings from the Bible" in the public schools is in direct conflict with these constitutional provisions, and the relator, whose constitutional rights are thereby violated, has a right to redress. A writ of mandamus should issue according to the prayer of the relator."

PRESIDENT FISKE RESIGNS.

Leaves Albion College After Twenty Years of Service.

Albion, May 7.—Lewis Ransom Fiske, for 20 years president of Albion college, has offered his resignation, to take effect when a suitable successor can be secured. At a meeting of the college board of trustees the resignation was accepted, with the request by the board that Dr. Fiske cooperate with them in the selection of the right man to assume the responsibility. Dr. Fiske's term of office of 20 years has been a period of marked prosperity for the college, and he has been universally loved by the students. Nothing can be said at present as to who will be his successor. President Fiske is 71 years old. He resigns because he is physically unable to continue his labors. The growth of the college under his administration has been wonderful.

RECEIVER WANTED.

National Dotaire, Fraternal Insurance Concern, in Trouble.

Grand Rapids, May 11.—Isaac Robbins and Joseph Rollinson filed a petition in the circuit court asking that a receiver be appointed for the Superior Assembly of the National Dotaire, and that President Andrew Harshaw, Manager and Trustee Alfred Terry, Secretary W. E. Beal, Treasurer F. B. Harper and Trustee Ebel L. Parker be enjoined from further disposing of the assets of the concern or interference with its concerns. The petitioners claim the concern is insolvent; that its liabilities are $90,000 and its assets less than $5,000; that $50,000 in policies have matured in the last 60 days, with no funds to meet them. A temporary injunction was granted and the appointment of a receiver taken under a consideration.

Farmers to Grow Beets.

Benton Harbor, May 10.—Considerable interest is being manifested in the beet sugar industry in this city this spring. A number of farmers will plant small patches to ascertain if the beets can be grown at a profit in this soil. They are taking advantage of the offer of Armour & Co., of Chicago, to furnish free of charge to all who apply sufficient seed for an acre of ground, and to give the use of their laboratory without expense to determine whether the beets contain a sufficient amount of sugar to make the growing of them profitable.

Malthouse in Ashes.

Detroit, May 10.—Fire destroyed the elevator and dry kiln of the H. W. Rickel & Son Malting company at the corner of Gratiot and Duquindre streets. The elevator and dry kiln contained in the neighborhood of 200,000 bushels of barley and malt. The loss is estimated at $60,000, fully covered by insurance. The company had a second plant on Hastings street, and there will be scarcely any stoppage to its business.

Bronze Statue for Marquette.

Marquette, May 9.—Through the enterprise of Peter White this city now possesses an exact copy in bronze of Trutanove's statue of Father Marquette, the original of which created a sensation when placed in statuary hall at the national capitol as the gift of Wisconsin. The bronze replica arrived here Saturday, and will be erected in one of the public parks.

Washington, D. C., May 9.—Henry A. Robinson, of Michigan, statistician of the agricultural department, has tendered his resignation to Secretary Wilson. Mr. Robinson is an ardent free silver man, and said he deemed it only right that the administration should have the office at its disposal. The office pays $3,000 a year, and is protected by the civil service law.

THE END IN SIGHT.

Terms Proposed for Mediation Accepted by Greece.

War Indemnity of $25,000,000 to Be Paid to Turkey—Greek Troops Already Leaving the Island of Crete.

Athens, May 12. — The diplomatic pour parlers, which have been proceeding all the morning, have been brought to a definite conclusion. Greece has formally adhered to the preliminaries of peace as agreed upon between the powers and the heads of the different legations have received positive assurances investing them with authority to treat with Turkey. The negotiations at Athens are regarded as concluded.

The Note of the Powers.

The following is the text of the note of the powers:

"The representatives of France, Italy, Great Britain, Germany and Austria, charge M. Onou, the representative of Russia, and the dean of the diplomatic corps, to declare in the name of their respective governments that the powers are ready to offer mediation with the view to obtain an armistice and smooth the difficulties actually existing between Greece and Turkey on condition that the Hellenic government declares that it will proceed to recall its troops from Crete, adhere formally to autonomy for Crete and to accept unreservedly the counsels which the powers may give in the interest of peace."

Active measures, it is further stated, were taken at Constantinople Tuesday to stop further advance of the Turkish troops under the command of Edhem Pasha.

Greece Readily Consents.

The reply of the Greek government was as follows:

"The royal government in taking the note and declaration of the Russian representative, acting in the name of the ministers of the powers, declares that it will proceed to recall the royal troops from Crete, adheres formally to autonomy for Crete, and confides the interests of Greece to the hands of the powers."

Ask for an Armistice.

As soon as the reply of Greece to the note of the powers was handed to the representatives of the powers the latter telegraphed the Greek decision to the representatives of the powers at Constantinople with the request that they obtain an armistice with the view of arranging for permanent peace.

There is a sense of relief in Athens at the prospect of an immediate end to the calamitous war. There is no excitement, and no popular demonstration is anticipated. The government has notified the Greek army of the mediation of the powers.

Will Pay War Indemnity.

Constantinople, May 12. — The expenses of the war with Greece are estimated at 5,000,000 pounds ($25,000,000), which Greece will pay as an indemnity, in annual installments, guaranteed by the Thessalian revenues.

Greeks Leaving Crete.

Canea, May 12.—The Greek troops are already leaving Crete on board three Greek steamers.

The Greek commissariat has collapsed. The only rations now received by the soldiers are bread and cheese. Not even coffee is procurable.

Rumors of Turkish Atrocities.

Athens, May 12.—M. Ralli, the premier, has dispatches and reports from Col. Manos and various civil authorities in Epirus stating that 14 villages between Toulour and Kastrosykia have been burned by the Turks, after all the women and children had been massacred, except a few who hid in the fastnesses of Mount Zalongos, famous during the war of independence, and a few more who concealed themselves in the marshes along the shore and managed finally to get aboard the Greek ships, half dead with hunger and fear. Not a stone of the village of Kamarina is left standing. The men fought like lions in defense of the women, who sought refuge in the woods and caves of Mount Zalongos, and when chased by the Turks jumped from precipices to avoid capture and dishonor.

Thousands Are Homeless.

London, May 12.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Lamia, dated Sunday, says that 80,000 Thessalians are herded there and in the neighboring villages after the successive flights from Tyrnavos, Larissa, Pharsalos and Domokos. The most pitiful scenes are witnessed on every hand. Thousands of women and children are lying exposed to the continuous heavy rains. Most of their carts and horses have been requisitioned by the military. Fires are of nightly occurrence and villages are burned wherever the Turks are to be seen. The Greek authorities have endeavored to supply bread to thousands of the homeless, but their efforts are almost unavailing.

Overcome by Gas.

Redfield, S. D., May 11. Frank Barz, his two sons and his mother, Chris Barz, prosperous German farmers here, were asphyxiated in a well on their farm near Grobe, this county, Monday morning. Each was overcome by gas as they descended into the well to rescue the others.

Disaster in a Mine.

London, May 11.—A terrible explosion has taken place on the Isle of Man in the Snaefell lead mine. A large number of miners were entombed and it now seems certain that at least 17 have been killed.

Shot by Her Lover.

Leadville, Col., May 8. — Miss Belle Walker was shot and instantly killed by her lover, George Ratliffe, after a quarrel. The assassin then took his own life.

A late issue of the Western Trade Journal contains the following relating to the business of a former Clinton boy that will give pleasure to his home friends that by natural aptitude and perseverance he has in the face of strong competition and single handed established a business worthy of such commendation:

"A correspondent of The Western Trade Journal asks us to give him the name and the address of some manufacturer making the best and most modern rubber stamp goods. As it has always been the policy of this paper to give attention to inquiries of its readers, and to answer through the columns of the paper what the result of our investigation may be in the line indicated, we devoted some time to an investigation of the various establishments in this city making a specialty of rubber stamp goods, and are now prepared to answer our correspondent and to make a recommendation. There is no house which is better able to supply the wants of the public in this respect than that of E. T. VanDeMark, located at No. 157 LaSalle street, Chicago. It would be almost absurd to say anything in eulogy of this establishment in Chicago, for it is as well known as the goods it specializes. It is known, too, as a house which has always kept abreast of the times, and on no occasion has it failed to come forward when it was expected to with rubber stamp goods that were up-to-date, and that met every requirement of modern conditions."

OUTSIDE AND INSIDE WEATHER.

In the morning, when our eyes pop open early, very early,
And we creep and peep to watch the sun arise;
If he's hiding, and a cloudy sky a-glowering, grim and surly,
Has no streaming golden beaming for our eyes—
Why, then, lightly as a feather,
Must our spirits dance together,
And our faces must be sunny all day long;
For as fresh as highland heather
We can make the inside weather
When the outside seems to be so very wrong.

But if with the outdoor sunshine all the happy birds are singing,
And the trees are budding in the glad, warm light;
And the arbutus is peeping from its brown leaves' tender keeping,
And the face of day is fresh and sweet and bright—
Why, then, why not all together
Make our faces match the weather?
Fresh and sweet and bright and sunny all day long!
For as fragrant as the heather
Is the charming outside weather,
And the inside cannot be so very wrong.

NERVE THAT HELD FAST.

Two Specimens in an Old Poker Player's Experience.

A Kentucky Colonel's Lucky Wagers of $5,000 on a Pair of Sixes—Four Jacks Against Four Kings in a Burning Building.

"There were some pretty stiff poker players around Trenton in the early days," said an old settler the other day in a discussion of the merits and demerits of the great American game. "A fellow could get about any kind of game that he wanted in those days, from a dollar limit up to the extent of his pile, and he didn't have to look very long for it.

"One of the nervy est players that ever put his legs under a poker table was Watt Williams, of Cape May county. Watt was interested in the oyster business and always carried a roll of bills in his inside pocket as big as your arm, and he didn't keep it idle, either. He would make it fly when he got started, and for that reason fellows who didn't have much money to travel on hung pretty close to Watt whenever he showed up in Trenton, which was as regular as the legislature sat.

"He would come up the second week of the session and never leave till the legislators went home. It was his annual picnic, and he enjoyed it from start to finish. As I was saying, Watt was a poker player, and when he got into a game he had it understood before the cards were dealt that there was to be no limit to stand in the way of a man's winning something worth talking about when he had the cards to do it with.

"When a fellow struck town that wanted to get into a good, stiff game, he began to inquire for Watt, and he was pretty easily located as a general thing. I remember that Watt once ran up against a man who had just as much nerve as he had. That man was Thompson, Col. Thompson. He hailed from Kentucky, seemed to have all the money that he wanted and was a pretty good fellow. He was here when the legislature sat, and had made a good many friends among the Trenton fellows who found out his mettle at the card table, and concluded to introduce him to Watt Williams just as soon as Watt showed up.

"The second week Watt came up, and in less than five hours he had met Col. Thompson. The two men didn't get together over the cards for a week. One night they came together in a North Warren street restaurant and, while eating, got to discussing cards and one thing and another. After awhile somebody suggested that the party go to a hotel and have a hand at poker. It was agreed, and in a short time there was a game going at full blast and Watt Williams and Col. Thompson were in it up to their eyes. Thompson was having a big run of luck. He was tapping everybody's pile right along, and Watt showed that he wasn't enjoying the way the cards were running worth a cent. After awhile everybody dropped out of a certain hand except Watt and the colonel. Watt drew two cards and the colonel took three.

"'I reckon,' said the colonel, after looking his cards over, 'that I can risk $500 on that hand,' and he shoved the chips into the center of the table.

"'I'll raise that $500,' says Watt, as he dropped chips and money worth $1,000 on the pile in the center of the table.

"'I'm in now and I reckon I'll have to stay,' said the colonel. 'I'll see your $500 and raise it $1,000.' He counted out $1,500 and tossed the bills on the pile before him.

"The men who were looking over the players' shoulders began to get interested, but they were mighty careful to make no break that would give the hands of the players away. But the raise of $1,000 didn't feaze Watt. He laid his cards down on the table and reached into his pocket for his roll. He counted the bills over and says:

"'I've got just $1,800 here. I'll play it.'

"He threw the bills down, and Thompson twisted his mustache, looked from his cards to the pile of money and then at Watt, who sat tilted back in his chair, with his thumbs in the armholes of his vest and his eyes fixed on the ceiling.

"'It'll cost me $2,800 to play, won't it?' says Thompson.

"'That'll call me,' replied Watt.

"'Will you take a check for that amount?' asked the colonel, eying Watt as a cat watches a mouse.

"'I'd rather not,' says Watt, leaning on the table with a peculiar look on his face. 'I don't want you to think, colonel, that I have any doubt about your check being good, but I've always made it a rule never to take checks when playing poker. I'd rather have the cash.'

"'I guess I've got it,' says Thompson, pulling a roll of bills out of his pocket. 'I'll call you.'

"He laid $2,800 on the table. Watt spread his cards out and he had a pair of fours. 'I've only got sixes,' says the colonel, throwing down his cards, 'but they're as good as gold. I wouldn't ha' called you, Williams, if you hadn't refused to take a check. You knew that my check was as good as cash, and I concluded you were bluffing, and wanted to force me out of the game in that way. I made up my mind I wouldn't be forced that way.'

"That pot cleared the colonel about $5,000, and if you ever saw champagne run in streams in your life you can imagine how things looked in that room an hour after the colonel laid down his pair of sixes.

"That was one kind of nerve," said the old settler, biting off the end of a fresh cigar, "but it wasn't the kind that I saw shown once away back in the winter of 1855. In those days there was a fellow who lived down in Atlantic county, John Staples. He was all the time trying to get into a poker game, and he never had much trouble finding somebody to accommodate him, because he always played in hard luck and, as the boys said, 'gave up his money easy.' He was a careful player and never insisted on playing big stakes, but somehow he couldn't get hold of the money. If he had a full hand some other person would hold four of a kind, and if he held four of a kind, some other fellow would hold four higher. And so it went, Staples always getting the worst of it.

"One night after the legislature had adjourned Staples ran across Jake Hibbs, who was about as unlucky about cards as himself. Hibbs told Staples that he had been in a game the night before and dropped about $500, which he would like to get back if he could. Staples felt inclined to play, and together they began to hunt for others. They struck a couple of fellows and went to a room over a cafe on Front street. There's a brick building there now, but then there were only frame buildings. It was a terribly cold night, and everybody snuggled up to a hot stove wherever he could get one. It got noised around about midnight that there was a pretty good game going on over the Front street cafe, and I went down there to look on awhile before going to bed. As usual, Staples was losing. Hibbs was doing better, but the money was gradually drifting over to the other two players, who had already scooped in a hundred or more each.

"I remember it was along about half-past two in the morning. The room was crowded, and everybody hated to think about going to his hotel, it was so cold. Hot applejack was the order of the hour, and everybody was filled up to the top notch. Suddenly a jack pot blossomed out on the table, and the cards were thrown around three or four times before anybody caught openers. Then Staples opened the pot for $50. Nobody came in excepting Hibbs.

"'I'm going to stay with you, old boy,' he said, and throwing down his hand, called for five cards.

"'Give me three,' said Staples, who looked at his hand and shoved up $100.

"'That don't scare me,' said Hibbs, 'I'll see that hundred and bet you another.'

"Staples fingered his cards for a minute or two, as if studying them to find out whether they would win or not. Then he said he guessed he'd better not lay them down, and raised Hibbs $200. Hibbs was in the act of pulling a roll of bills out of his pocket, when somebody in the street yelled fire. The next minute a fellow came running up the stairs and said that the back of the building we were in was burning. There was a general rush for the stairs, and by the time we had got out in the street the blaze was under full headway. Trenton didn't have the fire department in those days she's got now, and before the firemen got there we knew that the building was a goner. The bucket brigade got to work and the chemical engine did all it could, but the fire couldn't be stopped.

"The whole building seemed to be afire, when somebody hollered out that Staples and Hibbs were inside. There was great excitement then, and everybody began to look around for a ladder. Smoke was beginning to come out of the windows of the room over the cafe pretty lively when Staples and Hibbs stuck their heads out and yelled for a ladder. A ladder was put up to the window and the two men came down. They were all right, barring a little smoke in the lungs and eyes.

"Well, we had all gone to warm quarters at the hotel, Staples said:

"'That fire was the luckiest thing that has happened to me in a long time, because it has broken up the game. I'd been betting Hibbs now, if it hadn't been for the fire. You know we were up against a jack pot that I had opened on a pair of jacks, and I drew two more. Hibbs made a five-card draw, and I naturally thought that he was my meat, and I was tickled about to death when I found him willing to bet all kinds of money. We kept it going till the room got so full of smoke that we could hardly see the cards, when Hibbs called me as he said, to wind up the game. Think of that, being called with four jacks; why, I'd 'r played all night back of that hand, but I had to lay them down, and Hibbs laid down four kings and took the money. That fire saved me money, because I never would have stopped betting the jacks. But what's the use of going up against a man that can draw four kings in a five-card draw, anyhow?"—N. Y. Sun.

The Shakers have made a great hit. Their Digestive Cordial is said to be the most successful remedy for stomach troubles ever introduced. It immediately relieves all pain and distress after eating, builds up the feeble system and makes the weak strong.

The fact is, foods properly digested are better than so-called tonics. The Cordial not only contains food already digested, but is a digester of other foods. Food that is not digested does more harm than good. People who use the Cordial insure the digestion of what food they eat and in that way get the benefit of it and grow strong.

The little pamphlets which the Shakers have sent druggists for free distribution, contains much interesting information on the subject of dyspepsia.

LITERARY NOTES.

The May number of Harper's Magazine will consist of a variety of interesting contributions. Geo. W. Smalley, who for so many years acted as London correspondent for the New York Tribune, and has an intimate acquaintance with English society, will contribute a paper on "English Country-House Life." Dr. Henry Smith Williams will discuss the "Geological Progress of the Century;" and in "The Hundred Years' Campaign" Professor Francis N. Thorpe will present a study of American political history. The new instalment of "The Martian," by George du Maurier, will be accompanied by characteristic illustrations by the author.

Demorest's Magazine for May contains nearly 200 graphic illustrations, and there is not a dull page in it. "McKinley's Administration Told by the Cameras," is alone well worth the price of the Magazine, the photographs vividly depicting the whole pageant, and needing no verbal description.

The complete novel in the May number of Lippincott's, is "Jason Hildreth's Identity." It is a story of unusual originality and power, turning on an incident which has had precidents in real life, the loss of memory and personal identity; but the plot is so deeply and skillfully laid that the last pages will come as a surprise to almost every reader.

"Table Talk" for May sustains it reputation of being the "Ideal Housekeeping Magazine" Among the many articles that will delight the housewife is the second of a series of articles, the "Garnishing" of dishes, with several illustrations, showing how attractive they may be made. These articles alone, as well as others not mentioned, make this issue worth securing. Price 10 cents. Free copies, however, of numbers will be sent to any of our readers by sending their name and address to Table Talk Publishing Co. Philadelphia.

The only flying-machine that has ever actually flown—that is maintained and moved itself in the air by energy generated in its own mechanism—is one lately constructed, after years of laborious and disappointing experiment, by Prof. S. P. Langley, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. The first full and the only authorative account of this epoch-making invention will appear in McClures Magazine for June, in a paper written by Prof. Langley himself, and illustrated with diagrams and pictures made under his direction. This is probably the most important magazine paper ever published in this country.

The result was I released all other medicine and my wife procured a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine which I took faithfully and am fully restored to health. I write this hoping it may help others, for Dr. Miles' Remedies surely cure.

TECUMSEH, MICH., MAY 14, 1897.

The following from the Sunday Detroit Free Press, would strike the people of Tecumseh peculiarly unless it is the intention of the Lima Northern people to run their through train via Adrian and Britton until the road from Adrian to Tecumseh is completed:

The Lima & Northern is no more, and in its place is a larger railroad with a larger name. The old line ran from Lima to Adrian. A company was formed to build the connecting links to let the road have a Detroit terminal, and this company bought out the Lima & Northern, made arraogements for the Detroit connection and called the road the Detroit & Lima Northern. It will enter Detroit over the Wabash tract from Britton, and will use the Fort Street Union depot. Although traines will not run on the new line before May 16, the work of fitting up extensive offices here in progress, and already General Freight and Passenger Agent C. A. Chambers has a staff of clerks, including Chief Clerk Fred H. Turpen, at work at No. 120 Griswold street. A city ticket office is being fitted up, and a city ticket agent will be appointed some time this week. On May 16, the first passenger train will leave the Fort Street Union depot for Lima and on the following day the first freight train will begin the same journey. This gives Detroit a new road to the coal and oil fields of Ohio. Rates will probably not be affected, but the new road will increase facilities in that direction and freight will be more promptly forwarded than at present, because it will not be subjected to the delay of shunting at Toledo. Next spring the new road will be of great service to Detroit in bringing here more promptly than is now possible the early fruits and vegetables from Virginia. At present, such truck comes by way of Cincinnati, which makes the journey one hundred miles longer than the new route will be.

The headquarters of the Detroit & Lima Northern will remain for the present at Lima, but will probably follow the general freight and passenger agent to this city soon.

Jehiel Davidson.

Last Friday afternoon the people of Tecumseh were shocked to hear that Jehiel Davidson was dead. No one could believe the story true, but it was true, too true. He was about town all day till in the afternoon, started for home with a slight complaint of not feeling first rate. At home he grew worse, the doctor was summoned, came and left him easier, but the neuralgic condition of the heart caused quick relapse and ere help could be summoned he was gone.

Yes, good natured Jehiel Davidson is gone, and it can truly be said no man could be missed more than he will be. Always on hand to help with every public undertaking, always ready to assist anyone who needed assistance, his very presence was an assistance, for with it came good nature and quaint humor. Jehiel Davidson was a part of our village, he was a life long democrat and had held many offices of public trust. Many will easily be able to do his work but no one can fill the place in the community which he had moulded for himself. On the funeral day the church would not hold the people who desired to pay their last respects to this man, and as the procession passed through town on its way to the Ridgeway cemetery the remark was heard, "There goes Jehiel and his flag. 'Tis hard to see him go." Fifty-three members of the G. A. R. beside Co. C and members of the K. of P. attended the funeral and surviving members of his old Co. F carried him away, a true citizen, a good soldier, an honest man. Following are the statements of fact concerning his life:

Jehiel Davidson was born in Macon, Mich., May 19, 1836. He died at his home in Tecumseh May 7, 1897, aged 61 years, lacking 12 days. He was one of five children. Two brothers, Miner and Frank, still live. He was married Sept. 23, 1857, to Miss Sylvia DePuy, daughter of Samuel DePuy. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Co, F. 26th Michigan Infantry, and remained in the service till the close of the war. Three years ago he connected himself with the Methodist church and has lived a consistent Christian life. The funeral service was held in the Methodist church, conducted by Rev. J. P. Varner, assisted by Rev. H. Cansfield. The remains were buried in the cemetery at Ridgeway.

In my late affliction many friends have shown great kindness and sympathy, for which I am very thankful.
MRS. SYLVIA DAVIDSON.

ORDER EASTERN STAR.

Grand Meeting—Many Guests—Fine Banquet.

Among the many pleasant occasions of this popular Order, the meeting of last evening might well be called the banner one. The afternoon train brought fine representations from the chapters invited, viz. Manchester and Clinton, thirty one from the former and twenty from the latter who were entertained by members of Tecumseh Chapter at the Temple. Supper was served from 5 to 7 and was "par excellant," nearly 250 partaking. At 7:30 the chapter opened and the degrees of the Order conferred upon the following candidates: Rev. W. R. Blachford, Samuel Shuft, Mrs. W. B. Keyser and Miss Minnie Corey, after which the time was passed socially until the train came that would take the guests.

Not being able to obtain a full list of the visitors, we will not attempt to particularize and will only say that from Manchester M. D. Blosser, Geo. Hanessler and Mark Wallace were the only gentlemen present and, although Clinton did not send a single male member, she was represented by one sister in her 90th year, viz. Mrs. E. P. Felton, who undoubtedly is the oldest in any chapter in the state. This occasion will long be remembered by those who participated in its enjoyment

Mrs. Mary E. Meeker.

Mary E. Meeker died in Chicago, at the residence of her son, W. D. Meeker, Monday, May 3, aged 75 years. Mrs. Meeker was the widow of the late Dr. David D. Meeker and her home was in Tecumseh from 1866 till the death of her husband six years ago when she disposed of her interests here and has since lived with Dr. Louis Meeker in Brooklyn and W. D. in Chicago.

She is remembered by her many friends in Tecumseh as a woman of sterling Christian qualities and retiring disposition, loved by and a dear friend to all. Her death casts a gloom over two households which can never be fully lifted. The remains were brought to Tecumseh and interred in the cemetery on Saturday, May 8.

Change in Firm.

The firm of Orr & Temple has been changed by the retirement of F. J. Temple, which took place yesterday morning. The business will be continued by the senior member, John J. Orr, at the old stand. The Ridgeway branch store has been sold to Charles Culbertson, who has had the management of it. While this announcement may be a surprise to many, and losing Mr. Temple from the ranks of business men deeply regretted by all, it has been under contemplation for some time, owing to the fact that he is unable to stand the confinement necessary to such a business. We are happy to state however, that we are not to lose him from the community, as he will continue his residence here.

Geo. W. Stacy.

Wednesday morning the community was shocked by the second sudden death within a week. Tuesday afternoon Geo. W. Stacy, of Newburg, was in town transacting business and anticipated starting on a trip to Buffalo the next day. In the early evening he, in company with a little three year old grandson, went with horse and buggy to the field to attend to the stock. Their remaining longer than usual alarmed the family and Mrs. Alphonzo Stacy went to search for them. The old family horse had stopped at the foot of the hill and Mr. Stacy was stricken with apoplexy. Medical aid was of no avail and at five o'clock Wednesday morning, May 12, life passed away.

Geo. W. Stacy was born in Madison county, N. Y., Sept. 24, 1831, and came with his mother to Michigan when 10 years of age. In 1849 he married Angeline Keyser and to them were born 10 children, six of whom beside Mrs. Stacy survive him: Mrs. Ben Dove, of Newburg; Mrs. Harry Frasher, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. Walker, of Churchhill, N. Y.; Alphonzo Stacy, of Newburg; and Rufus and Geo. H., of Buffalo, N. Y.

With the death of Geo. W. Stacy is ended the immediate family of Dr. Consider H. Stacy, the oldest son of this family being the late Judge C. A. Stacy.

Mr. Stacy's younger days were spent on the farm. Twenty-two years ago he went to Buffalo and engaged in the stock business, continuing there until last spring, when he retired from business and came back to end his days on the farm.

"Uncle George" as he was always called by a host of nephews and neices, was a favorite with them all. He leaves besides them, a number of grandchildren and numerous friends and acquaintances who will never forget his many kindnesses nor cease to mourn his loss.

The funeral will be held from the family residence in Newburg this afternoon at two o'clock.

Alfred D. Hall.

Hon. A. D. Hall died at his home northeast of the village, Saturday morning, May 8th, after a long and lingering illness. Before old age crept upon him Mr. Hall was a prominent and active man in the locality; indeed he was known all over this county, as well as the state. While his death is much to be regretted, yet he leaves behind him a record that will linger long in the minds of the people of today.

Alfred D. Hall was born in Byron, Genessee county, N. Y., Jan. 6, 1824. His father, Stephen P. Hall, moved to Michigan in the spring of 1845, settling near Albion, where he died in 1861. Of his eight children the subject of this sketch was the oldest. He lived with his father till he was 21, receiving a good, common school education. For seven years he taught a district school and in the fall of 1845, he purchased a farm in Calhoun county, Mich., where he lived until 1853, when he purchased a farm in Tecumseh known as the Judge Hoag farm. In April 1862 he was elected president and treasurer of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance company of Lenawee county, holding the position for twelve years. He was president of the County Agricultural society for five years, member of the board of supervisors for six years and chairman of the board for the year 1876 In the fall of 1876 he was elected a representative of the legislature and re-elected in 1878, receiving honors in that body. He was married to Miss Emily A. Todd, of Byron, N. Y; in this union, Daniel T. of Tecumseh, and Sarah A. now the wife of W. H. Wiggins of Adrian. His first wife died in 1862, and in 1865 he married Miss Englina Heesen, of Cleveland, Ohio, to whom five children were born. She died in 1891. During his entire residence here he was actively connected with the Presbyrterian church and served for thirty-five years as an elder.

The funeral of Mr. Hall was held at the Presbyrterian church Tuesday, at 10:30 a. m; Rev. Mr. Brown officiating, and was largely attended, a long procession of carriages following the remains to their last earthly resting place.

Halleck.

The funeral of Mrs. Ann L. Halleck was held at her late residence in Brownville, Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, Rev. W. R. Blachford officiating. There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors. We can learn but little of her early history, as she and her aged companion have resided here only two years, coming from near Wheatland, Hillsdale county. Most of the time her health has not been good owing to her disease (cancerous condition of the spleen). Mrs. Halleck was possessed of many virtues and made strong friends of all who came in contact with her. She was 77 years of age and had no children. The remains were taken to Wheatland Monday morning for interment.

FARM & GARDEN.

CONVENIENT GRANARY.

Lumber and Other Material Required Will Cost $88.

This building is 14 by 20 feet, and 14 feet high to the eaves. The lower part is 7½ feet high. The bins are slanting as shown. Grain is put in above and drawn out at S S. The steps of stairway S W, are seven inches high, so that it is easy to carry grain up and empty it into the bins in each side. To get the grain out is always hardest, but in this granary it is the easiest work, as all you have to do is hold the bag under the spout (S), turn the shut-off, and the grain does the rest. It is only play to sack a load of grain. One man can do it as fast as two with a half-bushel.

There are three bins on each side in my granary, each of 200 bushels capacity. The space on upper floor between bins, back of the stairway, is five by eleven feet, and high enough for any man to walk and work in. Lower floor mostly used for storing seed and grain in sacks, such as flaxseed, clover, timothy, etc. They are packed under the slant of the bins, out of the way. The middle space is used for cleaning grain, and a good fanning mill is always in readiness, and good platform scales upon which everything is weighed.

The carpenter says this style of bin is easier on the building, as most of the pressure is on the inside, drawing the frame together instead of pressing it out. The weight is carried direct to the sills, resting on good stone foundation. The rough lumber and flooring were got out of our own woods; siding—cucumber and white wood—cost ten dollars per 1,000 feet on the stump, and is of better quality than I could have got for double the money in the lumber yards. Here is the bill of lumber needed:

Two pieces 8x8, 20 feet long.
Three pieces 8x8, 14 feet long.
Twenty-six studding 2x8, 14 feet long.
Four corner posts 8x8, 14 feet long.
Nine joists 2x8, 14 feet long.
Twelve joists 2x8, 10 feet long.
Twenty-four in studding 2x4, 8 feet long.
Twenty-two rafters 2x8, 10 feet long.
Fifteen girts 1¼ x4, 14 feet long.
One hundred ribs 1x3, 12 feet long.
Five hundred feet flooring.
Eighteen hundred feet siding and for bins inside.

The cash cost, beside my labor, is as follows, in round numbers:

Carpenter	$25
Saw bill	12
Siding	15
Stone and cement
Shingles	13
Window sash and glass	7
Nails, track and rollers for door	5
Paint, oil and brush	4
Planing and matching	4
Total	$88

Siding runs up and down, as it is better that way. At the gable ends the siding is scalloped, which adds but a few cents to the cost. This granary suits me perfectly. Paint it nicely, and it will be an ornament to the farm.—A. A. Singler, in Ohio Farmer.

SOME HELPFUL HINTS.

Scatter manure as fast as it is hauled out.

Get all of the manure out possible before planting.

Breeding from immature stock has a strong tendency to degenerate the offspring.

One object in pruning is to lessen the amount of fruit and increase its quality.

Feed the growing pigs a good ration of ship-stuff wet up with skim-milk twice daily.

Clean, well-fitting harness for the work teams will often save having sore shoulders.

In order that the horses may get the full benefit of their rest at noon, always remove the harness.

With pigs it is always best to push the growth and sell young, and in that way lessen the risk of loss.

Slops made of bran and middlings with skim-milk makes one of the very best foods for suckling sows.

The aim in breeding should be to build up vitality, standing and capability for rapid development.

Commence cultivating as soon as possible after planting. This is the easiest way of keeping in a good condition.—Farmers' Union.

For a Permanent Pasture.

When practicable a permanent pasture is desirable. Fields that are adapted to the production of tilled crops that are under a close rotation cannot be pastured with profit. If a crop of clover or timothy is removed in the rotation there is nothing gained by grazing the young grass nor the growth after the crop is removed. The soil needs more of this organic matter than it gets at the best, and this aftermath is worth more as food to the soil than to stock. The skinning of the tilled fields by stock and the tramping when the land is wet are responsible for many failures to get profitable crops. If less desirable land can be laid down to permanent grasses and stock be confined to this land, the plowed land of the farm has a better chance.

LIME ON THE FARM.

Its Effect on the Soil Should Be Studied More Closely.

Lime is a much used, and very often at the same time, a much abused material on the farm. It has a very important role to play, and, if handled in the proper manner, is a valuable aid to the farmer. There are many who use this material again and again with a mistaken notion as to its true functions in the soil. In time, however, their experience teaches them the true place of lime in agriculture, but often their lands have been almost exhausted before they gain their wisdom. While lime has a value as a plant food, yet its greatest worth on the farm is due to its physical effect on the soil itself. It is very seldom that a soil does not contain a sufficient quantity of lime to furnish this ingredient as plant food pure and simple.

Briefly described, the actions of lime are as follows: If applied on a sandy soil it fills up the openings, makes the particles adhere closer, causes them to retain moisture better, to absorb less heat during the day and to retain more at night. On clay soils it separates the particles, making the soil more porous, thus easier of the passage of water and air, and therefore makes the soil warmer and easier to work. Lime also hastens the decay of vegetable matter in the soil, which of course renders the nitrogen more available. If a soil is sour, an application of lime will sweeten it. If a green crop is plowed under, an application of lime will prevent the soil from becoming acid. There is one effect of lime that has no doubt frequently been noticed, although wrong conclusions have been drawn from it. It has often been experienced that an application of lime proves very beneficial to clovers of all kinds. It was formerly thought that the lime itself was the only fertilizer needed for the clover; it is now known, however, that the beneficial action of the lime upon clover is due to the fact that the lime liberates other plant-food in the soil, notably potash, which is of so much importance in successful clover culture. It will be seen, however, that the continued application of lime along would soon cause the soil to become exhausted of its natural supply, not only of potash, but also of phosphoric acid, and in time the land would become clover sick, which is a condition often met with.—Farmers' Review.

SCATTERING CLOUDS.

American Rainmakers' Plan Used to Prevent Storms.

Possibly it was from noticing the unsuccessful attempts made by the would-be rainmakers in the United States to bring down showers when wanted that an ingenious Austrian grape grower was induced to exactly reverse the American practice. An account of his experiment is reported by United States Consul Stephan at Annaberg. The Austrian owned extensive vineyards situated on the southern slopes of the mountains, in a locality often visited by destructive hailstorms. At first he tried galvanized wire, and he decided to install a battery and test the plan of causing explosions to drive off the hailstorms. He erected six stations on prominent mountain summits commanding a territory about two miles in extent. Each station sheltered ten mortars and a corps of volunteers handled them. The practical test is thus described:

Threatening black clouds made their appearance on the summits of the Bacher mountains. At a given signal all the mortars were fired off and the continuous detonations in a few moments caused a sudden reaction in the movements of the clouds. The cloud wall opened up funnel-like; the mouth of the funnel began to rise in the form of consecutive rings, expanding gradually until all the clouds scattered and entirely disappeared. No hail nor sudden downpour of rain fell. The same experience was gone through six times last summer, and without a single exception proved a successful preventive.

DURABLE FARM GATE.

It Gives a Substantial Air to All of Its Surroundings.

The illustration shows a farm gate that cannot sag, cannot "leave its moorings," and gives, moreover, a substantial and finished air to the surroundings. It is useless to make a gate that will not sag, and then hang it to supports that soon bend under the weight pulling upon them, or lose their footing and slide out of place. The gate and gateway here figured are braced from every point, as can be seen, and so must always remain firmly in position. It takes more time and lumber to build such a gate, but it is time and lumber profitably spent.—American Agriculturist.

Small Farms Pay Best.

Large farms are not the ones that pay best. A farm of 25 acres that produces 60 bushels of corn per acre will give a profit, when a farm of 50 acres, producing only 30 bushels per acre, is operated at a loss; yet the total quantity of corn is the same for both farms. The reason the smaller farm may pay is that less labor in proportion to yield is required. The larger farm will demand twice as much plowing, cultivating and harrowing as the smaller one, and the expense of hauling and spreading the manure, harvesting the crop, etc., is much greater.

HOPEFUL SIGNS.

Dun & Co. Find Cause for Congratulation in Trade Outlook.

New York, May 8.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"Nearly all will be astonished to learn that actual sales in April by leading houses in each line of business in the principal cities east of the Rocky mountains average only about 10 per cent. less than in April, 1892, the year of the largest business hitherto, and were 6 per cent. more than in the same month last year. Yet this is the summary of 337 reports, each covering actual sales of leading merchants in a line of business in one of 14 cities. They are especially encouraging in view of the great fall of prices within the five years and with exceptional floods and other retarding influences this year. While speculative business in nearly all lines is small, and does not swell clearing house returns, as in previous years, the volume of legitimate trade shows no corresponding decrease, and the fact is one of the highest importance in all business calculations. Moreover, returns of failures for April by branches of business, given only by the mercantile agency, show decrease in number, amount and average of liabilities in almost every branch of trade and in nearly all branches of manufacture except cotton, although failures of five New Bedford mills for $1,999,734 make the total defaulted liabilities for the month 40 per cent. larger than last year, 60 per cent. larger than in 1895 and 32 per cent. larger than 1894. The value of reports tracing failures to particular lines of business is impressively illustrated.

"Failures for the week have been 221 in the United States, against 238 last year, and 26 in Canada, against 26 last year."

Bradstreet's says:

"Favorable business features this week include the continued decline of water in flooded districts of the Mississippi river valley, in a portion of which planting has begun; better demand for staples at Baltimore, St. Louis, Omaha, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Sioux Falls; larger sales of iron ore to western furnaces, and a revival of activity among country merchants in some central western states.

GOMEZ STRIKES A BLOW.

Inflicts Severe Defeat Upon the Spaniards in Havana Province.

Key West, Fla., May 11.—There is rumor of an engagement near Guines, Havana province, between Gen. Gomez and the Spanish troops, in which the Spaniards were severely defeated. One hundred and fifty were killed and 90 wounded, who were taken to Havana. The town of Canai, in Pinar del Rio province, has been raided again. The insurgents, after cutting the wire fences, entered the town, passing before several of the forts without resistance from the garrison. The stores were sacked and 20 houses burned.

The Murcia battalion encountered the insurgents at Bamburanao, and after three hours of hard fighting the Spanish were defeated, losing 17 killed and 26 wounded. The insurgents attacked the garrison of the sugar plantation of Pastore, in Santa Clara province, killing several soldiers and the captain and capturing considerable merchandise, arms and ammunition. Gen. Gomez has captured the guerrilla forces of Vieja and Bermeja, Havana province, composed of 42 men, among whom were 32 Cubans, who were immediately executed. The rest, the Spaniards, were set at liberty.

SIXTEEN LIVES LOST.

Terrible Result of a Fire on the Ocean Steamer Leona.

New York, May 10.—The Mallory line steamer Leona, which left her pier on Saturday, bound for Galveston, took fire at sea, put back and arrived in port Sunday night with 26 corpses on board. The dead were 13 steerage passengers and three members of the crew, who succumbed to a terrible fire which occurred off the Delaware capes at an early hour Sunday morning.

The horror of the story can hardly be told. Those who are dead were penned up below decks, and although frantic efforts were made by the officers of the vessel to save them, the fire had gained such terrible headway before the danger was discovered that all escape was cut off.

A BACK BLOW.

The Weapon Small,—but None More Certain or Effective.

In these times when backs are lame, when almost every other one we meet has now and then, or all the time, a back that aches or pains—"a weak back," "a bad back," a back that makes their life a misery to bear—and still they go on day by day in pain and suffering. Now 'tis the easiest thing in the world to give this played out back "a blow" that will settle it, and put in its place a new one equal to any. It's just like this: hit at the cause; most backaches come from kidney disorders. Reach the kidneys, start their clogged-up fibres in operation; when this is done you can say good-bye to backache.

Here is a case from Battle Creek: Mr. Josiah M. Shoup lives at 51 Broad Street, he was a member of the Battle Creek police force for many years. As a member of the force he served the city well, but the rough weather he was often subjected to laid the foundation of kidney disorder, which has troubled him very much. Here is what he says about it:

"About three years ago, while on the police force, I contracted from exposure a kidney trouble, which has since given me no end of trouble. The pain was right through my kidneys and across the small of my back; if sitting down and I wanted to stand up, I had to arise very slowly and gently to avoid increasing the pain; I had such tired-out feelings all the time, and I was steadily getting worse. About two months ago, hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box. Their action and effect was most complete, they removed the old aching pains for good. I can now get around as quickly as anybody. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly as represented."

ALGER IS A BUSY MAN

The Secretary of War an Indefatigable Worker.

HIS DAILY LIFE IN WASHINGTON.

The Most Systematic Business Man of the Present Administration—A Newspaper Heading That Almost Caused Senator Burrows to Faint—President McKinley Giving Recognition to Wolverine Republicans—Other Interesting News.

Washington, May 11.—Secretary of War Alger is one of the busiest men in Washington. He works as hard in the office of the secretary of war as he ever did in his own affairs at Detroit or when he was governor of the state of Michigan. Although the executive departments in Washington do not open until 9 o'clock, it is the custom of Secretary of War Alger to reach his office not later than half-past 8 o'clock, and he is sometimes there even earlier than that.

The first thing that he does is to have his morning's mail opened and laid before him. Then as he reads the letters he rapidly dictates answers until the entire batch of mail has been attended to. This consumes at least an hour of time, and sometimes an hour and a half of the early morning is devoted to his correspondence. He not only has a great deal of mail from friends and business men, but a great deal of official mail is attended to. Having been a soldier and being familiar with the war department before he came to Washington, the new secretary is able to transact official business with a great deal of rapidity. When matters are laid before him requiring decision concerning army affairs, he immediately refers the letters to army headquarters or to the general in command of the bureau to be affected by the official inquiry; and upon each letter he places an indorsement requesting immediate action. That request is always complied with, so that a letter received one morning can be answered officially that afternoon, or certainly not later than the following morning.

Most Systematic Business Man.

As a matter of fact Secretary Alger is the most systematic business man of the present administration. The secretary of state, the secretary of the navy, the postmaster general, the attorney general, are not business men in the sense here intended; because they do not have such exact and systematic business methods of attending to affairs. The secretary of the treasury, Mr. Gage, is one of the most successful business men in the country, and so is the secretary of the interior, Mr. Bliss. Nevertheless these gentlemen have not taken hold of their high offices with the vigor and virility which has characterized the official conduct of Secretary Alger up to date.

It is strange how sensitive public men are concerning newspaper publications. Week before last it became apparent that Senator Burrows would become a member of the important committee on finance. It was so announced in this correspondence. The editor, however, put on a head line saying that Burrows was to be chairman of the committee; and when the senator saw that he almost fainted with astonishment and regret. It will take a great many years of constant service on the finance committee before Senator Burrows or any other of the younger senators can reach the chairmanship of that committee.

President McKinley has been giving recognition to the Wolverine Republicans during the past week. George A. Farr has been recommended and appointed collector of customs at the port of Grand Haven. James A. Coye has been appointed surveyor of customs at Grand Rapids. Both of these appointments were secured by the influence of Congressman William Alden Smith, who came here for the purpose of producing the result.

Producer of Great Men.

Bertram Parker of Monroe is again a special agent of the treasury department. He occupied a similar position during the Harrison administration and made a good record. Being an old soldier, he is eligible for reinstatement, in spite of the civil service law, and he is now "strictly in it."

By the way, that town of Monroe is a producer of great men. The late second assistant postmaster general, William B. Thompson, came from Monroe. The present chief clerk of the railway mail service, Alex Grant, came from Monroe. And then, last, but not least, was Henry T. Thurber, for four years the alter ego of the puissant and dominant personality of the chief executive of the republic. He was private secretary to President Cleveland; a man of wonderful and picturesque mold. Monroe is a great town. May be there are little presidents and boy orators running around the streets of Monroe today. Who can tell?

Senator Burrows has received a handsome sample case of Michigan wool, from the fleeces of Wolverine sheep. The sample will enable the senator to demonstrate to the senate the process of "skirting" fleece, in the speech which he is now preparing to deliver to the senate. Senator Burrows will also make an argument before the finance committee in favor of the wool growers. He is thoroughly in earnest about this matter.

By the way, there is a scandal brewing about the finance committee. Three years ago the Democratic majority was involved in a sugar trust scandal; and now the Republican majority finds itself environed with a woolen manufacturers' trust scandal.

Causes Criticism.

It seems that the engagement of S. N. D. North, secretary of the Woolen Manufacturers' association, by the committee, has caused a great deal of Democratic criticism. I don't care for either political party in my straight news work; but I happen to know that Mr. North is an honest man, and that he has been honestly employed. Therefore, you need not pay any attention to newspaper scandals in this particular.

Hon. P. J. O'Brien of Grand Rapids, who was recommended for appointment on the United States supreme court by the Michigan bar in February, 1889, is here for a few days. He is as tall and as distinguished looking as ever.

A. O. Wheeler of Manistee and Arthur Hill of Saginaw have been here for several days. Mr. Wheeler represents the $2 rate lumbermen, and is doing good work for his people. Mr. Hill represents the $1 lumbermen and is a busy worker in that Canadian cause.

Congressmen Corliss of Detroit and William Alden Smith of Grand Rapids, after drawing their salaries for April, took trains for their respective homes.

Congressman Samuel Smith is still here and he is the only Michigan statesman of the house of representatives now in the city.

Prominent Michigan men who were here during the past week were H. H. Everard and Dr. McNair of Kalamazoo, Frank Mellis of Mount Clemens, A. T. Kaiser and J. T. Weeks of Macomb county. Mr. Everard is looking for an appointment in the consular service.

A Great Gambling Place.

The national capital is a great gambling place, and poker is poked at everybody in every hotel and boarding house. One of the old men about town, formerly a leader in society, in politics, and in church, as well as a popular member of several clubs, says: "I have lived in nearly every large city of the east, but I really think that Washington is the greatest poker place I was ever in. They play at the clubs—that is to be expected—they play it in the rear of many barrooms and cigar stores, and they play it on the quiet in many home salons of our best people. Ladies there join and bet two pairs with as much pluck as though born gamblers. But probably the worst evil in this direction is in the club rooms—incorporated as literary and social clubs, but really for the purpose of gambling. I can point you out five on Pennsylvania avenue from Ninth to Fortieth street, where a man's money is only safe as long as he can outwit the cheaters. The commissioners, I understand, are powerless to remedy this thing as the law now stands, but it is certainly a great pity, for many of our brightest young men are wrecking their fortunes in these dives."

Peculiar in Many Ways.

That is very true. Washington life is peculiar in many ways, and its bright avenues and homes are strewn with as many social wrecks as a storm-ridden coast. A venerable looking gentleman, whose garb had the unmistakable stamp of shabby genteel, approached a group standing in front of Willard's this morning, and, calling one of them aside, poured into his ear a pitiful story of want and suffering. He stated that he had not tasted food for two days, except what little he could get at the free-lunch counters of restaurants. Scarcely eighteen months ago this same man was a $1,000 clerk in the treasury department, while in dress he was the picture of neatness and good taste. Those who knew him always looked upon him as a man of good habits, and the knowledge that he is in want of the necessaries of life, after having been in government service for nearly a score of years, is a marvel to most of them. He did not drink and gambling, in some form or other, probably used up the substance of the money which came easy and went easier.

Three Card Monte in Europe.

The devices of crooks are no longer used in Washington, or any eastern cities by gamblers, except away down in the basements of intelligence where newspaper light cannot penetrate. But three card monte went to Europe with Buffalo Bill, and prospered there. Of course, Buffalo Bill had no more to do with taking "monte" to Europe with him than he had with taking with him the Indian-loving vermin. But the game went along just the same. The British monte sharps have plied their trade on all the great lines running out of London, usually selecting Americans as their victims. A well-dressed, military-looking man enters a first-class carriage, takes no notice of his fellow passengers, and is absorbed in reviews and periodicals. At some station on the line there enter two other military-looking gentlemen, who fall to discussing army estimates and dynamite guns. The conversation turns at last upon a trick that one of them had seen played at the wild west show. Had any one in the carriage any cards? No, but the taciturn gentleman had three photographs in his pocket, including one of the Prince of Wales. Would they do? Certainly. Then in a bungling way the sharper proceeded to explain the trick, asking the others to follow the Prince of Wales.

Won from His Friend.

As he pretended to become more expert he won from his friend, who laughed heartily at the conceit. The Americans present, though, had seen the trick so often that they could follow the prince's photograph every time. At last they are led into the game, with the usual results. A United States army officer, who is one of the cleverest fellows I ever knew, told me he was "roped" in like this the other day on his way to Liverpool and lost $120 before he had the faintest idea that he was in the hands of sharpers. "And deuced agreeable fellows there were, too," he added sadly.

Room for Gambling.

To say that every hotel in Washington has a gambling hall would make every hotelkeeper angry, and it might be a slight exaggeration. Nevertheless, it is true that in almost every leading hotel and apartment house there is a room set apart for the men who gamble; and the majority, of them are men of national prominence and fame. There is a sable waiter at the door who permits no one to enter except the regular players. He brings the bottles for them, lights their cigars, and attends to all of their desires. Every night, or before daybreak, that black man gets a coin or a bill from each player, and during the last winter season he made between $150 and $200 a month out of the generosity of the gentlemen. Nobody could induce that old black fellow to give the name of a member of the poker club. He was raised in Louisiana, his master was a steamboat gambler, and the black man is himself an expert with cards. Early in the evenings, before he goes to wait on his "quality folks," he can be found down in the basement near the elevator shaft, gambling with hotel servants, and robbing them of their salaries. He can do fantastic tricks with cards that would make Herman and Heller howl with envy. Then, as a crap-shooter, he is the pride of negro society. He is worthy of a sketch concerning himself alone, and he shall have it one of these days.

DUNBAR.

Forest fires are raging in the mountains of eastern Kentucky and West Virginia, and are devastating a wide stretch of country. At least four farm houses are reported to have been burned on the Virginia side before the farmers could check the advance. A mountaineer died while fighting the fire with a flail.

THE DAY FIXED.

Legislature Decides to End Its Session on May 31.

The House, in Committee of the Whole, Agrees to Measures Increasing Taxes of Railroad Companies—Other Gossip.

[Special Correspondence.]

Lansing, May 12.—Both houses of the legislature have agreed to adjourn May 31.

Railroad legislation occupied the attention of the lower house of the state legislature Tuesday, with scarcely an intermission. The bill providing for the local taxation of railroad property in lieu of specific taxation by the state was discussed at length in committee of the whole, and was finally agreed to. The bill reducing passenger fares in the lower peninsula to two cents a mile was under discussion for several hours in committee of the whole. Col. John Atkinson led the anti-railroad forces and many arguments were made on both sides. The bill was finally agreed to without amendment, the vote being 37 to 33. It will, of course, require 51 votes in order to pass the bill on third reading, and this number, it is believed, cannot be obtained. Gov. Pingree is strongly in favor of the bills agreed to Tuesday, and strongly opposed to the Merriam bill, which increases the specific taxes of Michigan railroads about $200,000. If this bill is passed the governor says he will veto it.

Gov. Pingree has vetoed the bill to prohibit the sale of tobacco and cigarettes to persons under 17 years of age. Besides providing for the punishment of persons who should sell tobacco to children the bill contained a clause providing a fine and imprisonment for children below the age of 17 years who should be found guilty of using the weed. The governor does not believe in laws that will cause the arrest of children. He declares the habits of children to be a matter for parental correction and not the concern of the state. The governor would favor a high-license bill or one that would impose a heavy fine upon dealers convicted of selling tobacco to children.

The work on all of the appropriation bills for this session has progressed far enough to approximately estimate what the size of the budget will be. Two years ago the budget was $3,071,000. This year it will be at least $300,000 less and probably $500,000 less. Two years ago there was a large deficiency to meet which does not exist this year.

Chairman Baker, of the silver democratic state committee, sent to the legislature a communication in which he denounced the present election law as a law to "encourage fraud and deception at the polls," and claimed that the increase in the gold democratic vote this spring was due to errors in voting. He demanded a radical change in the law, and threatened, if this were not made, to contest the election of all republican congressmen chosen at the next election on the ground that the existing law prevents a free expression of the popular will.

Three important life insurance bills were put to death through the agency of adverse committee reports in the senate. One required every company doing business in Michigan to have a resident director. Another required that at least 40 per cent. of the gross premiums collected in Michigan be invested in this state, and the third required that two per cent. of the guarantee fund be deposited with the treasurer of this state as a guarantee for policyholders.

There was an interesting fight in the house between the Bell and Independent Telephone companies. The latter had a bill providing for a maximum rental of telephones which practically cut the prevailing Bell rate in half. Representative Billings, the author of the bill, offered a resolution taking it from the committee, where it was opposed by a majority, and placing it on the general order. There was a sharp conflict, but the Independent people were victorious, and the bill was taken from the committee by a vote of 37 to 32. It fixes the maximum rate in cities of 130,000 population or upward at $45 for the business 'phones, and $30 for residence 'phones; less than 150,000 and exceeding 50,000, $36 and $24; and in cities below 50,000, $30 and $20, with an additional allowance of two dollars per quarter for service outside a one-mile radius from telephone headquarters.

The liquor committee has reported a bill to give saloonists the right to sell liquor on New Year's, Fourth of July and Labor day. Chairman Moore and I. D. Dickinson, of the committee, threaten to make a minority report.

Gov. Pingree sent the following appointments to the senate, and they were confirmed: Charles R. Miller, of Adrian, member board of managers of Mackinaw Island park; A. B. Darragh, of St. Louis, member of board of trustees of Michigan asylum for dangerous and criminal insane at Ionia; Edward H. Doyle, of Wyandotte, and Otto F. Schmidt, of Detroit, jury commissioners for Wayne county.

Menominee, May 12.—In the circuit court William Cordes secured a verdict of $1,000 damages against W. O. and W. S. Carpenter. The action was brought to recover damages to crops and orchards done by fire running from the Carpenter farm on the plaintiff's land. The case will be carried to the supreme court.

LAST WEEK AT LANSING

It was as the Most Important of the Legislative Session.

PINGREE'S MESSAGE ON TAXATION.

It Was Replete with Facts and Statistics Culled from the Reports of This and Other States—Memorial from the Campaign Committee of the Silver Democratic Party—Another Setback for Corporations.

Lansing, Mich., May 11.—Last week was in many respects the most important of the legislative session. In the house the greater part of the week was devoted to considering important bills which came up on special order. Some of these measures were disposed of so far as the house is concerned, but have yet to be considered in the senate and may bear an altogether different appearance when the upper house has finished with them than they do at present.

Two unusual documents which were sent to the legislature helped make the week a notable one. The most important of these, of course, was Governor Pingree's special message on the subject of taxation, a very carefully prepared and exhaustive document. It was replete with facts and statistics, culled from the reports of this and other states, in favor of his proposition that the roads should be taxed on their capitalized value rather than on their earnings, as at present. Comparisons were made with the methods of dealing with railroads in the matter of taxation in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, to the great disparagement of this state, so far as the revenue derived from this source is concerned. The governor showed that while Michigan receives but an average of $750,000 annually from railroad taxation, Indiana, with over 1,300 less miles of road, receives $2,225,000.

The Governor's Contention.

He contended that the roads were not bearing within 60 per cent. of their just share of taxation in this state as compared with the rate paid by the individual property owners, and insisted that the fact that the roads were earning little or nothing just at present was no argument in favor of reducing or not increasing their tax rate. In support of this contention he cited the potent fact that there was no reduction in the tax assessed against store buildings or dwelling houses because they are without tenants. It was noticeable that the governor said little about his heretofore pet theory of the local taxation of railroads, but rather insisted that the lion's share of the taxes derived from this source should go to the support of the primary schools. Telephone, telegraph and other quasi-public corporations were included in the list of those whose taxes should be materially increased in justice to the balance of the taxpayers of the state.

The other document to which reference was made was in the form of a memorial presented by Fred A. Baker and Frank L. Dodge, respectively chairman of the state central committee and chairman of the campaign committee of the silver Democratic party. They denounced the existing election law as an act "to encourage fraud and deception at the polls," and were especially bitter in their criticism of the so-called anti-fusion law. The claim was made that under the provision of the law relative to vignettes over the party tickets thousands of silver men were this spring unwittingly led to vote the gold Democratic ticket.

Demanded Radical Changes.

The gentlemen mentioned demanded that radical changes be made in this law, threatening, if this were not done, to contest the election of every Republican returned to congress from this state at the next general election on the ground that the law is a "contrivance to defeat the free expression of the popular will." The memorial attracted attention because of its unusual nature, but it was referred to a committee and will probably never be heard of again.

Last week was not a good one for the corporations, although subsequent developments may prove that they were not so hard hit as present indications would warrant one in believing, they were. The most staggering blow they received was the action of the senate in passing the Merriam bill increasing the rate of specific tax paid by railroad companies by an average of nearly 1 per cent. The companies pay taxes on their gross earning, and on the basis of the earning of last year the increase provided by this bill will increase the revenue of the state from railroads by nearly $200,000 annually. There is no doubt whatever that the bill will pass the house, if indeed that body does not take a notion to make the increase greater than that fixed by the senate. The fact that all the railroad sympathizers in the senate voted for the Merriam bill, not a vote being recorded against it in the upper house is regarded by some of the opposition with suspicion. They profess to believe that it was given a unanimous vote in the hope that its passage would serve to kill off all the other so-called anti-railroad bills, the final consideration of which in the house is the special order for tomorrow. Time alone will tell if this suspicion is well-founded.

Setback for Corporations.

The corporations received another setback last Friday when the house took from the committee on private corporations the bill fixing a maximum rate for telephone service. This was a struggle between the independent and Bell telephone companies and, so far as this round counts, the former won, the committee having, by a majority vote, decided to pigeon-hole the bill. It may prove a barren victory, however, for there is grave doubt of the measure passing the house. It fixes a maximum rate graded on the population of the city, the rate in each case being nearly 50 per cent. below what the Bell company has been in the habit of charging. It was not such a bill as the independent companies most desired, however. The measure which they strenuously advocated fixed a minimum instead of a maximum rate. In other words it provided that if the Bell company, in order to freeze out an adversary, dropped to a nominal rate in any city, that rate should govern in all cities of the same class throughout the state, the cities being classified in the bill on the basis of population. The committee was unanimously of the opinion that his bill was clearly unconstitutional inasmuch as it would wholly eliminate competition. The Bell people are equally as confident that the maximum bill is constitutional.

Uniform System of Text Books.

Another bill of great public importance which went through the house last week and is now pending in the senate was the Graham-Forsyth bill to establish a uniform system of text books in Michigan. It is claimed that the bill will effect a saving of 50 per cent. in the cost of school text books. It is a significant fact, however, that the educators of the state are a unit in opposition to the bill. Last week the annual meeting of the state association of city school superintendents was held here and resolutions condemning the bill were adopted by a unanimous rising vote right on the heels of an hour's speech by Senator Forsyth in its favor. The resolutions says that such a law "would cause an expenditure by the parents of the state of over $500,000 with no material benefit; that it would not bring about any of the fancied blessings of state uniformity; that it would not materially cheapen text books; that it would open the way for vastly inferior books; that it would centralize too greatly the power of text book adoption; that it would stand in the way of a compulsory free text book law which would secure all the advantages claimed for this bill and avoid its serious and calamitous provisions." The association concluded by appealing to the senate to kill the bill and "save the state from the impending disaster attendant upon its passage." The impression prevails that the bill stands an excellent show of passing the senate in spite of the vigorous opposition that is being made.

Killed in the Senate.

A bill fathered by the state fish commission and designed to yield the state an annual revenue of about $25,000, was killed by the house a few days ago. This bill sought to inflict an annual license fee on commercial fishermen, the theory of the commission being that as these operators are the ones who get the benefit of the work of the state in stocking the great lakes with fry they should stand a portion of the expense of carrying on the work. A majority of the house could not see the matter in that light, however. The other commission bill passed the house. This makes the closed season for trout and white fish during November and December, and increases the size of the mesh in the various kinds of nets used by commercial fishermen, thus increasing the size of the fish that may be legally taken. In order that the fishermen may not suffer the loss of nets now in stock the bill provides that these may be used until 1900, but that all nets purchased after that date must be of the mesh designated therein. The provisions as to meshes are as follows: An increase of ½ inch in the mesh of a pound net, making 4½ inches as used, not as purchased; an increase of ¼ inch in the mesh of a gill net, making it 4¾ inches as used; prohibiting the catching of white fish that weigh less than two pounds in the round, providing, however, that white fish weighing less than two pounds which are caught in gill nets may be marketed; prohibiting the catching of sturgeon or rock sturgeon weighing less than fifteen pounds in the round. The commission is empowered to grant permits for the use of smaller meshes for bringing fishing. There appears to be a growing antagonism among the legislators to the bill making an appropriation for the fish commission, and the indications that it will be badly slashed are daily becoming more apparent.

Liquor Bill Acted Upon.

Two important bills have been acted upon by the house liquor committee lately. One of these sought to permit the use of screens to obstruct the view of bars from the street on Sunday and during other prohibition hours. The claim was made that the provision of the present law requiring an unobstructed view of the bar had worked gross injustice in several instances, saloonkeepers being heavily fined for keeping their saloons open during prohibited hours, when, in fact, they were in their saloons for purely innocent purposes. The committee decided to report the bill unfavorably notwithstanding this claim. A majority of the committee have decided to make a favorable report on the bill permitting saloons to keep open on New Year's Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day. Two members of the committee will make an adverse report and the bill will doubtless be defeated, the disposition of the members being to not lessen the restrictions placed about the liquor traffic.

Both houses have finally agreed on May 31 as the time for adjournment, although they are apart as to the day when all business except the enrollment of bills, etc., shall cease. This difference being but one day will doubtless be adjusted during the present week. It is evident that if the legislature is to finally adjourn on the day named a large number of important bills will remain unacted upon. Just what they will be cannot, of course, be known at this time, but it is a fact that there are at present a sufficient number of important bills, including appropriation bills, on the general order of the house alone to occupy every moment of the time of that body up to the last day of the month if they are to be given anything like the consideration which their importance demands. Aside from these there are several hundred bills still in the hands of the various committees. In view of this fact the slaughter to ensue if the legislature vanishes with the month is something frightful to contemplate.

To Prevent Diseases.

Both houses have now passed the bill appropriating $2,500 annually for carrying out the provisions of the law requiring that there be taught in the public schools of the state the best methods of preventing and restricting dangerous communicable diseases. This fund is handled by the state board of health, upon which devolves the duty of furnishing the teachers throughout the state with the required data. This information is compiled in pamphlet form and is corrected from time to time as conditions change so that it is always up to date. A canvass of the fifty or more superintendents of schools who attended the annual meeting of the city superintendents' association last week shows that both teachers and pupils have entered most heartily into this work, and that the results are, without exception, most gratifying in all the schools. It is looked upon as one of the most important features of the work.

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose, without questioning and will discribe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: "I was sick for many years. My case was known for miles around. Was helped to Dr. Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the Doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the Doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration.".

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Wm. Redman says also, that he has been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vistage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast. She was a great sufferer.

Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $5,000.

Mrs. W. M.——, after being barren for ten years, says, "He cured me. We now have two little children. Suffice to say our home is a happy one.

Epilepsy (or fits) positively cured by a recent scientific discovery.

One of the most respected young men of Grand Rapids, Mr. C. H. Banks, has doctored with all the best physicians he could hear of and was finally given two weeks to live. Consulted Dr. Walker, took his treatment and is now a well man. He had chronic stomach trouble, weak lungs and constant cough, rheumatism and Bright's disease. He has gained 35 pounds and works every day. He advises all who are sick to see Dr. Walker.

Mrs. C. M. Stutzman cured of blood and skin disease of twelve years standing.

Mrs. L. E. Lambert cured of varicose ulcers on limb.

Miss Ella Crane cured of bronchial trouble and lung disease.

Miss B. H. cured of female weakness after being treated by many noted physicians.

Mrs. W. W. Bennett says also that she had lost her sense of smell and became partially deaf by catarrh in the head and could not sleep for constant coughing and pain through the lungs, also had female trouble. She says she will testify to anyone that Dr. Walker saved her life. She has gained thirty pounds and is well.

Miss Elizabeth Ball writes, after being a great sufferer for a number of years with neuralgia in the head and stomach: I am cured. I feel as though I have got into a new world. I cannot praise the doctor enough for his skill in my case.

Dr. Walker's specialties are diseases of Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs and all chronic, private and nervous diseases and deformities, as Granulated Lids, Cross Eyes, Deafness, Discharge of the Ears, Bronchitis, Chronic Cough, Goitre (big neck) Fever Sores and Ulcers, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Heart, Stomach and Nervous Diseases; Chorea (St. Vitus Dance), Epilepsy (fits), General Debility, Scrofula, Skin Diseases and all diseases due to bad blood; also rectal diseases.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

TOO COOL FOR CROPS.

Poor Growing Weather Hinders the Farmers in Most States.

Chicago, May 19. — The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country, and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same, were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Ohio—Light frosts did no damage, farm work hindered by excessive rain. But little corn planted, ground too wet to plow. Oats mostly sown, some coming up and turning yellow on low land. Wheat, rye, barley and grass prospered; tobacco thriving. Peaches practically a failure; apples and cherries promising; other fruits fair. Raspberries and strawberries light in sections, but other berries show well.

Michigan—Field work progressed favorably during early part of week, but delayed by showers since Thursday. Much ground too wet for plowing and proper germination of oats. Corn and potato planting quite generally begun. Weather very favorable for winter wheat and rye and meadows and new clover and they are mostly in very good condition.

Indiana—Cool wet weather still delayed plowing and planting corn. Wheat improved, is jointing. Rye heading, clover blooming, oats growing slowly, fruit full of bloom except peaches.

Illinois—Week generally favorable for work, but too cold for good growth; corn planting continues slowly as soil requires much working; about one-third of the crop to plant yet; the early planted is coming up with good stand. Oats, spring wheat and grasses excellent; rye and little remaining winter wheat fair, both heading generally; chinch bugs developing. Gardens and early potatoes making slow growth; fruits very promising except peaches.

Iowa.—Cool winds and cloudy weather checked crop growth. Fair progress made in planting corn and bulk of acreage will be planted by the 22d. Fruit apparently unharmed by frosts.

Wisconsin—Week cool with light frosts Friday and Saturday, but no damage. Some corn planted, but farmers generally waiting for warmer weather. Frequent light showers, but warm rain needed. Oats, spring wheat and rye doing well. Fruit prospects only fair.

WASHINGTON'S MONUMENT.

Philadelphia's Tribute to the Father of His Country Unveiled.

Philadelphia, May 17.—Here in the city which first placed on his brow the laurel crown of achievement, the memory of George Washington, the soldier, the statesman, and the man, was honored in monumental bronze Saturday.

It was a notable gathering, and representative of the country, including the president, the vice president and the cabinet officers; its defenders in the officers and privates of the army and navy, and its best blood, in the direct descendants of the molders and makers of the nation. Maj. William Wayne, president of the Cincinnati, who formally presented the monument to the city, traces his lineage straight to Mad Anthony; and William W. Porter, the orator of the day, is a grandson of David Rittenhouse Porter, twice governor of Pennsylvania, and a great-grandson of Gen. Andrew Porter, who was on Washington's staff in the revolution. Thus no historic interest was wanting to stimulate enthusiasm.

The actual unveiling ceremony was impressively simple. Bishop Whitaker opened with prayer, and Maj. Wayne followed with an appropriate address. Then came the unveiling by President McKinley and the resultant clamor augmented by the national salute of 21 guns by the artillery and by the foreign and American war vessels in the Delaware. This concluded, President McKinley spoke briefly. The oration was then delivered by Mr. Porter. The formal presentation of the memorial by the society to the city was made by Maj. Wayne to Mayor Warwick, with short addresses by both, and then the mayor transferred it to the Fairmount park commission, which body exercises jurisdiction over the great pleasure ground.

PERISHED IN THEIR HOME.

Forest Fires Burn Three Children of a Wisconsin Farmer.

Milwaukee, May 18.—A special to the Wisconsin from Shawano says Martin Wicks and wife, who live near Gresham, this county, left their home Monday morning to look after some stock that had strayed away. During their absence forest fires spread over the farm and destroyed the house. Three small children who had been left alone perished.

Cost His Fortune.

St. Louis, May 19.—Something of the legal expenses of a fight for life were exhibited when an inventory of the estate of Arthur Duestrow was filed Tuesday. Duestrow was hanged some months ago for the murder of his wife and child. At the time of his death he was accredited a millionaire. According to the inventory there is only $8,742 and a handful of cents left of that goodly sum.

Tortured for His Money.

Dayton, O., May 18.—Sunday morning four men tortured James Dunlop until he told where his money was hid and then secured $1,000 and escaped. They bound him on the bed and burned his feet with a candle. When the pain became unbearable he told the robbers that the money was concealed in an old clock. The robbers took it and fled.

Dubuque, Ia., May 18.—Joseph A. Rhomberg, proprietor of the Dubuque street railway, died of paralysis while on the street in his carriage. He was one of the oldest and most noted residents of this city.

Entire Family Murdered.

Helena, Mont., May 19.—William H. Hamilton, a contractor, his wife, his son Lee, aged 19, and his daughter Elizabeth, aged 18, were murdered in a small village near here and robbed of $500.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in Senate and House.

Senators Discuss the Cuban Question—Americans Need Aid—The House Also Called to Act—Other Capital News.

Washington, May 13.—The Morgan Cuban resolution went over in the senate yesterday for a day to permit the committee on foreign relations to present a statement. Senator Gallinger (N. H.) presented an amendment which he proposes to offer to the tariff bill against goods which are the product of convict labor. Bills were passed as follows: For the relief of certain citizens of Montana claiming the benefits of the homestead laws; granting to Montana 50,000 acres of land in aid of an asylum for the blind; appropriating $174,000 to Charles P. Chouteau for extra work on the ironclad Etlah. The immigration and the kinetoscope bills were reached, but went over on objection.

Washington, May 14.—Senator Gallinger introduced a resolution in the senate yesterday for an appropriation of $50,000 to relieve the Americans in distress in Cuba. The sugar investigation and the tariff bill caused some agitation. The committee on finance announced that action on the tariff measure would begin on the 24th inst. Adjourned to Monday.

Washington, May 18.—In the senate yesterday a special message was received from President McKinley reciting that great suffering existed among American subjects in Cuba and asking for an appropriation of $50,000 for their relief. The request was granted unanimously. Senator McEnery (La.) gave notice of an amendment he will offer to the tariff bill striking out the senate amendment in the sugar schedule and reinserting the house provisions in regard to sugar. The nominations of Frank A. Vanderlip, of Illinois, to be assistant secretary of the treasury and Brig. Gen. Zenas R. Bliss to be major general were received from the president.

Washington, May 19.—Senator Stewart (Nev.) gave notice in the senate yesterday of an amendment which he would offer to the tariff bill providing that there shall be, at all times, a reserve fund in the treasury of $50,000,000. Senator Mason (Ill.) spoke in favor of recognizing Cuban belligerency and Senator Hoar (Mass.) spoke against it.

The House.

Washington, May 14.—In the house yesterday the Indian appropriation bill was disposed of. Mr. Castle (Cal.) introduced a joint resolution for the recognition of the belligerent rights of the Cubans. Adjourned to Monday.

Washington, May 18.—In the house yesterday Mr. Hitt (Ill.) asked for the immediate consideration of a bill to appropriate $50,000 for the relief of destitute Americans in Cuba, but Mr. Bailey (Tex.) objected, and action went over. Before adjourning until Thursday Mr. Cochran (Mo.) introduced a resolution for submitting to the legislatures of the states an amendment to the constitution, which follows:

"An income tax shall not be construed as a direct tax within the meaning of Section 2 and Section 9 of Article 1 of the constitution; but the congress shall have power to levy and collect a tax on incomes derived from any source whatever without regard to apportionment or enumeration."

Exports and Imports.

Washington, May 15.—For the ten months of the present fiscal year the exports of domestic merchandise exceeded those of the same period of 1896 by over $151,000,000. The imports were $66,000,000 less than for the same period last year. During the last ten months the excess of gold imports over exports was $58,482,106, and the exports of silver exceeded the imports by $42,313,692.

Immigration.

Washington, May 15.—The number of immigrant arrivals in this country during the nine months ended March 31 was 142,941, against 209,630 for the same period in 1896, a decrease of 66,689.

Population of Washington.

Washington, May 17.—A police census of Washington, which has just been taken, shows that the population of the capital is 277,483. Of this number 87,653 are negroes. No other city in the United States has so many.

Creditors to Receive Dividends.

Washington, May 18. — The comptroller of the currency has declared dividends in favor of the creditors of insolvent national banks as follows: Ten per cent., the Keystone national bank of Superior, West Superior, Wis.; ten per cent., the First national bank of East Saginaw, Mich.; five per cent., the National Bank of Illinois, Chicago.

Washington, May 18.—Elverton P. Chapman, the recalcitrant sugar trust witness who refused to answer a senate committee's questions as to whether he had acted as a broker for any senators in speculations in sugar trust, occupies a cell at the District jail, and will continue therein for 25 days. Chapman surrendered himself to United States Marshal Wilson at four o'clock Monday, in accordance with an understanding previously reached.

New Orleans, May 15.—While the river is still stationary, the dangers from its fall are already becoming apparent. The banks in the Fifth district are beginning to crumble as the waters recede. The alarm has been sounded and watchfulness will be exercised on all the levee lines.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE.

President Urges Congress to Aid Americans in Cuba.

The Senate Promptly Passes a Resolution Appropriating $50,000—Delay in the House—Calhoun Makes a Report.

Washington, May 17.—W. J. Calhoun, special commissioner to Cuba, has sent in his first report, not on the Ruiz case, which it was said would occupy his whole attention, but on affairs of the island. Mr. Calhoun says:

"I, of course, have not had time to make a thorough investigation, but the information I have obtained warrants me in saying that affairs on the island are in a deplorable state and that the reports you have received regarding the destitute condition of American citizens are by no means exaggerated. But I am not at this time prepared to advise immediate relief, as the means of successful distribution are doubtful. Will communicate later."

The President's Message.

Washington, May 18.—The president on Monday sent a message to congress urging that $50,000 be appropriated, to be immediately available under the direction of the secretary of state, for the relief of destitute American citizens in Cuba. Prompt action was taken by the senate, which passed without division a resolution in accordance with the recommendation of the president.

Mr. Hitt (Ill.) introduced a similar resolution in the house, but immediate consideration was blocked by Mr. Bailey (Tex.), who insisted that an amendment be added embodying Senator Morgan's resolution for the recognition of the Cuban insurgents. Mr. Dingley (Me.) objected to the amendment, whereupon Mr. Bailey objected to the resolution and the whole matter was sidetracked.

Following is the message of the president as read in the senate:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States: Official information from our consuls in Cuba establishes the fact that a large number of American citizens in the island are in a state of destitution, suffering for want of food and medicines. This applies particularly to the rural districts of the central and eastern parts.

"The agricultural classes have been forced from their farms into the nearest towns where they are without work or money.

"The local authorities of the several towns, however kindly disposed, are unable to relieve the needs of their own people and are altogether powerless to help our citizens.

"The latest report of Consul General Lee estimates 600 to 800 Americans are without means of support. I have assured him that provision would be made at once to relieve them. To that end I recommend that congress make an appropriation of not less than $50,000 to be immediately available for use under the direction of the secretary of state.

"It is desirable that a part of the sum which may be appropriated by congress should, in the discretion of the secretary of state also be used for the transportation of American citizens who desiring to return to the United States are without means to do so.

"(Signed) WILLIAM M'KINLEY.
"Executive Mansion, May 17, 1897."

Memorial in Behalf of Cuba.

New York, May 18.—Firms and individuals in this city who are interested in trade with Cuba and who desire peace in the island as soon as possible have sent to the secretary of state a memorial setting forth how their business interests are suffering and giving facts about the struggle in Cuba, in the hope that measures may be devised to terminate the war in the island.

MURDER CHARGED.

A Rich Sausage Maker in Chicago Accused of Killing His Wife.

Chicago, May 18.—Adolph L. Luetgert, a rich sausage maker, is a prisoner in the East Chicago avenue police station on the charge of strangling his wife, boiling her body in a vat of diabolical fluid and then throwing the few remaining bones upon the red-hot steam pipes of his big factory smokehouse. This is the story of the police. Luetgert maintains a stolid indifference, and says he is innocent, but the police have woven around him a chain of circumstantial evidence which they claim will convince any jury of his guilt.

Three Drowned.

Philadelphia, May 17.—By the overturning of a small pleasure boat Saturday afternoon on the Schuylkill river three persons lost their lives. They were Mrs. James Ewen and Misses Eleanore and Jessie Davis, aged respectively ten and eight years. The 12 other occupants of the boat were also thrown into the river, but were rescued by men who put out from shore in rowboats. The husband of the drowned woman was among those rescued, as was also the mother of the two unfortunate little girls.

Defiance, O., May 15.—Godfrey Ake, aged 34, made a small cannon out of a gas pipe and loaded it with nails and scrap iron. After fastening it to a bench he seated himself in a chair with his breast against the muzzle and with a heated wire ignited the powder.

Had Money to Burn.

Carthage, Ill., May 18.—Mr. Bissell, a farmer living east of here, had faith neither in his family nor in banks. He hid his money up a flue and the next day his wife put up a stove and started a fire, burning up $3,000 in bank notes and melting $500 in gold.

A Fast Gunboat.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 15. — The United States gunboat Nashville covered the 60-mile course on Long Island sound on her official trip in 3:35:29, averaging 16.7 knots, and making her the fastest vessel of her class in the world.

LITERARY NOTES.

HARPER'S WEEKLY of May 15, will contain an article on the bi-centennial of Trinity Church, New York City, with a drawing by A. I. Keller of the interior of the church on the occasion of the special services in celebration of the event, and with a portrait of the pastor, Dr. Morgan Dix. The Centennial Expostion in Nashville, Tenn: will be devoted to the big trees of California with a plan for their preservation.

A very intersting paper on ex-Queen Liliuokalani, of Hawaii, has been written by Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford, and will be published in HARPER'S BAZAR of May 15, together with striking portraits of the Queen, and of her beautiful neice, Princess Kalulani. Other entertaining features will be a familar talk on "Picturesque Dress for Elderly Ladies," by Ella Rodman Church; "Our London Letter," in which is described a brilliant reception given by the Japanese Minister and his wife on the Japanese man-of-war Fuji, at Tilbury Docks; and a peculiarly interesting instalment of club gossip and news in the already very popular department of "Club Women and Club Work."

When, more than a year ago, a short story, entitled "Bobbo," was first published in HARPER'S MAGAZINE, its originality and spirit won for it immediate favor, and its author, Thomas Wharton, received several offers for permission to dramatize it. It practically established Mr. Wharton as a writer, though he had previously published two clever novels, and had long been a contributor to the periodical and the daily press. His death, shortly afterwards at the age of thirty-seven, lends a peculiar interest and sentiment to the collection of some of his stories and verses, entitled "Bobbo, and Other Fancies," which the Harpers are soon to publish, with an introduction by his friend, Owen Wister. Mr. Wharton was a Philadelphian, a graduate of Harvard, and for several years before his death he was the managing editor of the Philadelphia Sunday Times.

THE RAILROADS.

Still Occupy the Attention of the Legislature.

Apparent Deadlock Between the House and Senate—Provisions of the Graham Game Law—Other Lansing Gossip.

(Special Correspondence.)

Lansing, May 19. — On Friday the senate killed the Merriam bill as amended by the house. The bill, as originally passed by the senate, increased the taxes upon railroad earnings by about $180,000. The house amended it so as to raise these taxes to upward of $700,000, and then passed the bill. Friday by a vote of nineteen to five the senate refused to concur in the house amendments. The author of the bill says that the bill as amended distributes the tax too unevenly to be equitable.

The senate has hung up the bills repealing the Michigan Central's special charter and increasing the specific taxes of railroad companies nearly two-fold, the former having been sent to the railroad committee, which is hostile to it to a man, and the latter being tabled. The increase made in the specific tax rate by the house is so much more than that fixed by the senate that there is grave danger of the bill dying between the houses.

Gov. Pingree has come to the aid of the house amendments increasing the raise made by the senate in railroad taxes by announcing that special appropriation bills for the relief of the Ontonagon fire sufferers and for improvements at Mackinaw island state park, which will reach him early this week, will be held up pending the settlement of the differences between the two houses.

Gov. Pingree is mailing hundreds of copies of his message on railroad taxation all over the state with a request that the person receiving it shall return his opinion upon it.

Telegraph companies came in for attention in the house Thursday, a favorable report being made on the bill requiring them to exchange business in Michigan. The companies have made a stiff fight against this bill, but it will probably pass.

The house agreed to them and tabled the insolvency bill. It provides for voluntary and involuntary assignments for the benefit of creditors without preferences, and has a bankruptcy clause releasing the debtor when he turns over his assets without fraud.

The senate passed the Mason tax lien bill, as perfected by Senator Hadsall. It provides that tax purchasers must give notice by registered letter to all persons having an interest in the lands on which they have purchased tax titles, and give the owner six months' time after the serving of such notice in which to redeem his property. In case the owner lives in the same county where the tax title was purchased, he must be given personal notice by the tax buyer.

The senate passed the Graham game bill. The bill needs now only Gov. Pingree's signature to make it a law. The measure covers the entire hunting field. The provisions of the bill, as it now stands, with a few trifling amendments, are as follows:

No deer or elk are to be hunted until November 10, 1899, anywhere in Michigan, and in the counties of Alcona, Lapeer, Huron, Sanilac, Tuscola, Macomb, Allegan, Ottawa and St. Clair counties, no deer are to be molested until January 1, 1903. When deer killing is to be resumed no more than five of the antlered animals are to be killed by any one person in any one year, and the only season for hunting them is to be from November 8 to November 30, inclusive. Deer in the red coat, or fawn in the spotted coat, are not to be molested, and any person having the skin of any such animal in his keeping is to be presumed guilty of illegal killing.

Deer are not to be killed in any of the waters of the state, and no pit, pitfall, dead-fall, trap, scaffold, snare, net, or similar device is to be used, or any chemicals, poisons or explosives. No artificial light is to be used in deer hunting, and any person having a light on his head is to be presumed guilty. Dogs are not to be used in deer hunting, and dogs pursuing deer are to be considered nuisances and killed.

The season for squirrel hunting is to be from October 15 to December 31, inclusive, and no ferrets are to be used in squirrel hunting.

No wild turkey is to be killed until 1905, and then only between November 1 and November 30, inclusive.

The season for partridges, grouse, colin and quail, prairie chicken and spruce hen is to be from October 1 to December 1, inclusive.

The season for wild duck and other wild water fowl is September 1 to January 31, from half an hour before sunrise to half an hour after sunset. In the upper peninsula the season is to be from September 1 to January 15.

Wild pigeon are not to be killed until 1905.

Wild fowl are not to be hunted with swivel or punt guns, batteries or mines, nor by pneumatic boats.

No cages, snares, traps, nets, explosives chemicals or similar devices are to be used in hunting any kind of wild fowl, though cages, snares and nets may be used to capture quail in order to keep them alive through the winter, and these are to be liberated in spring.

Robbing birds' nests is forbidden. Singing and insectivorous birds, such as robin, nighthawk, whip-poor-will, finch, thrush, lark, swallow, yellow bird, blue bird, brown thrasher, cat bird, wren, martin, oriole, sea gulls, woodpeckers and bobolinks, are protected. English sparrows and butcher birds are fair game.

No person is to have in his possession the body of an animal or bird mentioned more than five days after the close of the season for hunting the same, except it be for scientific purposes or home consumption. In trials for violation for this provision the burden of proof must rest on the defendant.

Permits to hunt game for scientific or propagatory purposes may be issued by the game warden.

Prosecuting attorneys are to prosecute offenders against the provisions of the bill and sheriffs and constables are to assist. Convictions are to carry with them a fine of from $10 to $125, or from 20 days to six months in jail or both fine and imprisonment. Prosecutions are to be begun within one year from the time the offense was committed.

Whatever agreement may be reached by the two houses of the legislature with reference to the increase in the specific taxes paid by railroad companies, the bill to be passed will not affect the aggregate of taxes which will be due July 1. The taxes to be paid at that date will be on the earnings of the last calendar year, the rates as fixed by the present law to govern. ...ania rate is 3 per cent on earnings of $2,000 or less per mile, 2½ per cent. on earnings of between $2,000 and $4,000, 3 per cent. between $4,000 and $6,000, 3½ per cent. between $6,000 and $8,000, 4 per cent. on all over $8,000. This tax was assessed by Railroad Commissioner Wesselius. It aggregates $740,898.78, the decrease from the total of last year being $509.99. The total earnings last year were $28,614,946.29, or $596,068.19 less than for 1895. Taking last year's earnings as a basis Commissioner Wesselius states that the specific tax bill passed by the house would increase the aggregate tax by $521,170.93 over the total to be paid this year.

Two important railroad bills were passed by the house Tuesday. One is to compel railroads to sell 500-mile mileage books at two cents a mile, these books to be good for any member of a firm or copartnership. The other is Donovan's bill, providing for the sale of an interchangeable and redeemable system of mileage books by all companies or corporations operating steam railroads in the state. The coupons of the interchangeable mileage books must be accepted for fare for any and all members of the owner's family or firm, and when they become invalid at the expiration of a year the unused part must be renewed for another year if presented at the issuing office. The railroad companies must file a bond with the state treasurer to guarantee the redemption of books issued.

The house also passed an insolvency bill, which renders invalid the preferring of creditors, a bill reducing from eight to seven per cent. the rate of interest that may be contracted, and the bill providing that where the violation of a condition of a fire insurance policy does not prejudice the company it shall not work a forfeiture of the policy.

A strong anti-liquor sentiment manifested itself in the house, that body defeating the bill eliminating New Year's day, Labor day and Fourth of July from the holidays on which saloons are required to be kept closed.

The commercial fishermen won a decisive victory over the state fish commission in the senate, securing the adoption of amendments to the fish bill so as to increase the size of the mesh of nets.

Conclave in Session at Detroit—Presentation to Hugh McCurdy.

Detroit, May 19.—About 200 masons of high degree are in Detroit attending the conclave of the Michigan commandry Knights Templars and the council of the deliberation of the Scottish Rites. The meetings are held in the new temple, which was erected and equipped at a cost of $360,000. Tuesday evening a reception for members of the grand commandry was held, followed by a banquet served to over 500 persons. A feature of the evening was the presentation to Commander in Chief Hugh McCurdy of a fine marble bust of himself by the grand commandery of the United States. The presentation address was made by Gen. John C. Smith, of Illinois, who is grand sovereign of the Knights of Roman Constantine and an exalted member of other divisions of masonry.

WON'T GO TO DETROIT.

State Medical Society Refuses to Make That City Headquarters.

Grand Rapids, May 14.—The thirty-second annual meeting of the Michigan State Medical society opened Thursday morning. Mr. McLean, of Detroit, desired that the society should make Detroit the permanent meeting place, but this was defeated. A resolution by Dr. Leonard, Detroit, that physicians convicted of criminal practice should be forever debarred from practicing in the state was referred to the legislative committee, and another resolution by Dr. Stockwell, of Port Huron, that the clergy be no longer given the benefits of free medical service was tabled.

Heavy Failure.

Detroit, May 15.—John B. Dyar gave bills of sale transferring over $200,000 worth of property and securities to a trustee for the benefit of his creditors. Mr. Dyar has been prominently connected with several large local enterprises. For the past year he has been securing franchises and arranging to build an electric railroad from Detroit to Port Huron. The latter enterprise is what is believed to have caused his embarrassment.

A Youthful Justice.

Lagrange, Ind., May 18.—The city of Dowagiac, Mich., claims the distinction of having the youngest judge in the United States. Clyde Ketchum, who is not yet 21 years of age, has been elected a justice of the peace and will enter upon his duties July 1. He was elected over a democratic justice who had held the office for a term of years.

It has been rumored about the streets that the C. J. & M. were contemplating the construction of a spur from Pentacost to Sand lake. It is not probable that this will be done but the contractors will soon begin work on a spur from Holland to Ottawa Beach, a distance of seven miles, which only leaves the link of 23 miles from Allegan to Holland to complete the line to the lake. This will either be leased or purchased of the C. & W. M. The first train on the Lima Northern to Detroit was run via Adrian and Britton Tuesday night, arriving in Detroit at 7 p. m. and returning at 11 p. m., and has made regular trips since. The road is graded, iron laid and work trains are now running as far north of Adrian as the Quaker meeting house, and it will not be many weeks before the trains will be running from Lima to Detroit via Adrian, Tecumseh and Britton. May 29th, the deal for the consolidation of the Michigan division of the Lima Northern and Michigan division of the C. J. & M. will be completed.

EDITOR HERALD:

Some weeks ago there appeared in the HERALD an editorial relating to "trusts and combines." The editorial called forth letters from several correspondents from different parts of the country who all advocated "single tax" as a remedy for what was considered an unmixed evil. It seemed to me that the worthy correspondents had mistaken one of the prime causes of industrial progress for an evil, and were attempting to find a remedy for what was an absolutely necessary law of progress. Men of all political faiths have agreed in denouncing combinations in restraint of trade, or for the centralization of control of the productive and distributive forces without, seemingly, considering the causes of their growth or their probable ultimate effects on our industrial life. The part that organizing and centralizing the forces of capital and labor has played, and is playing, in the economic world has been forgotten, and men have condemned as an evil that which is one of the most characteristic features of our modern industrial life—the centralizing and unifying the control of the forces of production and distribution, the bringing into play to a greater and greater extent the advantages of co-operation and combination in similar lines of industry and the placing in the hands of men of ability and long business training the control of great masses of capital and labor. The industrial development of the past thirty-five years revolutionized business methods. The early part of this period was characterized by a competition so keen as to threaten bankruptcy to large numbers of the competitors. The refuge was combination, and the trust became a recognized factor in our industrial life. The possibilities of combination increased with every stage of progress. Its advantages were obvious: It enabled the members to turn capital that was formerly employed in overcoming a rival to devising new and better methods and new and better machinery, and enabled them to regulate their output so as not to overstock the market. Combination and organization have extended to almost all lines of industry and business enterprises have grown up which in their scope are not limited by national boundaries. It has come to be a recognized principle that competition carried beyond a certain point ceases to be beneficial and if carried too far all progress must cease and retrogression begin. The trust is the protest against the refuge from the evils of unrestricted competition. "Law or no law," says Pres. E. B. Andrews of Cornell University, "The day of old time competition has set. Capital will henceforth march in solid phalanxes," and he might have added that all industrial forces must henceforth so march.

For combination—the trust is not confined in its operation to organizations in which capital is the chief party. It has permeated the whole structure of society. In every line of industry, in every profession and in almost every walk of life, it is taking the place of unrestricted competition. Despite the frequent assertion that trusts force up prices and levy a heavy tax upon the consumer, it would be hard to point out a single line of industry in which these combinations have existed for any considerable time, in which the cost of the article produced has not been constantly cheapening, and a vastly greater degree of perfection in the article itself reached. This taken with the fact that the value of the average wage has been constantly increasing, would not indicate the evil results claimed. Whenever a trust attempts to force up prices so as to gain a profit disproportionate to that gained by capital in other industries, capital seeks investment in this industry, competition is stimulated and the trust is destroyed or compelled to reduce its prices to the region of fair profits. The industrial history of the last two decades is crowded full of attempts of this kind and the combination trying to force artificial values has universally met with defeat and usually with destruction. It has invited the competition of the whole mass of capital, not only in America but the free capital of Europe, that is engaged in less profitable employment. It must inevitably be beaten. The trust, under those circumstances, has done more than violate the Inter State Commerce Act or the state anti-trust laws; it has violated a fundamental economic law, which does not need to be enforced by courts. "The really successful trust," says E. von Halle in Trusts and Industrial Combines, "Is one that attempts to gain profits by lessening the cost of production, by the invention of new machinery and new processes, thoroughly organizing the forces under its control and restricting production so as to avoid an overcrowded market." When the trust seeks to go beyond this it is inviting its own ruin. Capital ever seeking more profitable employment will turn to the industry offering greatest returns and the trust will have invited the very competition which it attempted to restrict.

The prime object of the trust then and the only one consistent with its long continued existence is to increase profits by lessening the cost of production and distribution, by centralizing and combining the forces controlled, introducing new machinery and better and more economical methods, and improving the character of the product. Whenever the trust has by this process rendered the profits disproportionate to those which capital receives in other lines of industry, capital is attracted to this industry and competition is again introduced to force down prices to the region of fair profits. The trust may withstand this force for a time but its coming is inevitable. The gains, then, made by the superior organization of the trust, its better methods and more useful machinery are brought ultimately to the consumer, to the public at large. Political economists speak glibly of the increment of capital: we may call these gains the increment of industrial progress. They form a permanent fund from which all mankind may draw, which is constantly being increased and which cannot be lost. The mission of the trust, then, is to work out along lines that tend to the material betterment of all classes a necessary law of industrial progress—that combination and competition mutually acting and reacting against each other are the prime movers of industrial advancement. The trust gains its power not by the control of natural or quasi-natural advantages but by controlling the best and most economical means of production and distribution. By far the largest part of the trusts and combines in the United States are organized in industries in which it would be impossible to control the production of raw material. Many have been the attempts to form combinations among the so-called monopolizers of natural advantages, but with very little success. The Standard Oil Co. gained power not by controlling the output of crude petroleum—it could never do that—but by its control of refineries, its admirable means of transportation and its ability to turn so much of the waste into by-products. Scarcely a single trust could be mentioned which gains its power primarily from the control of "natural advantages." The sugar trust, the steel trust in all its forms, the whisky trust, the Standard oil trust, the great packing houses that control the meat products of United States, the cotton seed oil trust, and hundreds of others that exist today could not be greatly effected by the "single tax of land values." The trust, then, let us repeat, does not, cannot gain power primarily by controlling raw material or so-called natural advantages. It must gain power, if at all, by controlling manufacturing and distributive forces. The regime of the trust, either of capital or of labor, of the corporation as representing the combination of individuals, of centralized and unified industry, of great masses of capital and labor alternately combining and competing so as to bring out the largest possible efficiency of the productive forces and the highest possible degree of perfection with the least ultimate labor cost, is here. We believe it is here for good and that its coming is a cause for rejoicing not for lamentation and pessimistic prediction of disaster and "coming slavery."

In Memory of Lulu Cook.

The following verses were written in memory of Lulu Cook, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cook, whose death occurred May 5th:—

Our darling little one has gone,
And our hearts are sad tonight:
She has gone to dwell in the beautiful (home
With angels so pure and so bright.

A tender flower so much we loved,
Our little Lulu dear;
But God has called her home above,
Where no winter winds nor winter
Our little plant can sear. (blast
We'll fold the little garments up
And lay them away with care;
With tearful eyes, and aching heart,
We'll put by the empty chair.

We'll set away the little crib;
She will need it not again;
For our loved and darling precious
Will suffer no more pain. (one

Thus God, we know, doth all things
To us a promise he's given; (right,
Jesus said, Suffer the little ones to (come,
For of such is the kingdom of (Heaven.

Junior Reception.

It has long been a custom here for the Juniors, some time during the last term of school, to give a class reception for the Senior's and High School teachers. So invitations were issued for last Friday evening at the pleasant residence of Miss Viola Shull one of the Juniors. The decoration committe consisting of Lester Heesen, Viola Shull and Edith Grey, had rendered the four reception rooms a bower of beauty, presenting a decided contrast to the scene without. Invitations were issued to the number of nearly sixty, a few of the former members of the classes being invited. Games and conversation were the program of the evening until supper, which was served at 10:30, small tables having been scattered about the rooms to accomodate the guests. This intersting occupation completed, a short musical program was announced which was opened by a piano selection by Miss Bullock, after which came vocal solos by Mrs. L. M. Kellogg. Miss Keavy and Miss Eva Camburn and a selection on the violin by Miss Jennie Gillespie, whose piano accompaniment was played by Miss Viola Shull. But there was a surprise in store, as the pretty waiters were taking their turn at the refreshment tables, a sound of sweet music was heard out side The serenaders on closer inspection, proved to be Mr. and Miss De Wolf, who yielding to the entreaties of the company, entertained them with a rendition of "Kentucky Babe," nor could they be pursuaded farther, but fled amidst the plaudits of the delighted company.

The entertainment was chaste, varied and pleasing. Mr. Griffeth demonstrated himself an accomplished hypnotist. The ease and rapidity with which he brought his subjects under his control was a wondor to all. Before the entertainment closed a young gentleman from Blissfield named Ballis was put to sleep, taken on a cot bed to the store of Jones & Hazlet and placed in the window where he will remain until tomorrow evening when he will be taken to the Opera House where he will be wakened before the audience. There will be new features presented tonight and tomorrow night that will surprise and interest all.

A Narrow Escape.

Isaac Wolcott came as near meeting a tragic death Monday forenoon and miss it as falls to the lot of man. As the 9.09 a.m. train left Chicago street for the station, Mr. Wolcott who was driving from the west on Shawnee Street, turned the Satterthwaite corner on the west side of the tract, intending to drive into the Central House yard. The horse seeing the approaching train before Mr. Wolcott, wheeled suddenly, throwing him violently to the ground, he striking on his head between the rails and stunning him for the moment, but for the presence of mind of engineer Dilla his prompt action and quick handling of the air break, he certainly would have been cut in two, as when the train stopped, the cow catcher was upon him. To much praise cannot be rendered for Dilla's heroic work. It was a close call and Mr. Wolcott realizes it. Although badly bruised, he feels thankful it was no worse. Little or no damage was done to horse or buggy.

Fortunately his cries were heard and assistance speedily rendered. He escaped with a few cuts.

The following clipping from the Detroit Free Press may be taken for what it is worth. The Herald has all regard for the word of Minor Davidson, but the Free Press man or hen might have lied, who knows!

Finally he asked the young lady to step into the house and as she did so he stepped out to the young men and gave them a great song and dance, threatening to chastise the whole company.

The friends of Al C. Paxon will be pained to hear that he was injured quite severely, while endeavoring to put on a belt in the mill last Friday. It was one of those cases that to explain how it was done is impossible. He was alone down stairs in the mill when it occured, and the first Robe Hosmer and others knew any thing was wrong, was when he appeared the blood flowing profusely from a bad scalp wound. A physician was summoned who fixed him up in good shape and Al is congratulating himself that it was no more serious.

RUN BY ARMY OFFICERS

General Alger Is Not a Real Secretary of War.

ONLY AN OFFICIAL FIGUREHEAD.

An Employe of the War Department Says Army Officers Advise the Secretary What to Do and He Does It—No Secretary of War Since the Days of Edwin M. Stanton—Army Officers Experts at Deceit—Senator McMillan Goes Home.

Washington, May 18.—"There has been no secretary of war since the days of Edwin M. Stanton," says an old employe of the war department. He continued: "The army officers have absolute control of the department, and they simply run the secretaries of war as they would fly kites. That is what they are going to do with General Alger. They have already got him in their meshes. No man can come into the war department and be a real secretary of war as things now exist."

"But General Alger is a business man and knows how to run business. He will be secretary of war."

"Not on your life. Alger is not in it. The fact that he is a good business man makes it worse for him. He has been accustomed to fair dealing and prompt methods. He knows only superficially the intricacies of the war department. He depends upon the army officers about him and takes the word of each officer on all subjects. They tell him certain things and he acts according to the information which they give him. They are playing into each others' hands as they have always done. General Alger is simply acting as their official figurehead. He is doing what they advise him to do. That is what all secretaries of war do, and what they will continue to do until the army officers are sent to their posts on the frontier and civilians officials are put in their places as they are placed at the heads of the various bureaus of the other executive departments of the government."

Under Domination of Army Officers.

"But the chief clerk of the department is a civilian."

"Yes, but he has been chief clerk for many years, and he knows that the army officers run the department, so that he will do as they bid him to do, or off goes his head. He and the assistant secretary of war are civilians, but they are under the domination of the army officers, and they will continue to be under such domination. General Alger cannot be secretary of war as long as he is surrounded and misdirected by the army officers. That tells the whole story."

It is a singular fact that General Alger, although nominally secretary of war, and perfectly capable of managing that department, is practically bucked and gagged by the army officers. They fawn and flatter. They are experts in deceit. They are trained to crook the pregnant hinges of the knee, that thrift may follow fawning." That is a part of their life and purpose. That man is lucky who can be secretary of war and go forth from the position without snarching.

There never was a better man in that high office than William W. Belknap of Iowa, who was secretary of war during President Grant's administration. He had been a gallant major general in the volunteer army. But he went forth from the war department with a cloud upon his record which was only dispelled when death placed upon his suffering brow the wreath of oblivion and the old soldier was buried in Arlington National cemetery.

A Keen Business Man.

General Alger is a keen business man, but he never before dealt with sharpers on their native heath. The war department man who told me the above story has been in the department for fully thirty years and he knows all about the department from cellar to attic roof. The army officers are running the place, and the great man from Michigan is simply following their lead by giving approval to routine business as it is laid before him by the army officers. He cannot do otherwise. No secretary of war could do otherwise. But if General Alger has his eyes opened, and can realize his environment, he will work a lasting reform by inducing the president to send the army officers to their regiments in the field, and in their places have civilians appointed to perform the clerical and executive duties.

Keep this item in your scrapbook and have it on hand for future reference, and you will find in a year or two that the statements herein made will be fully verified by forthcoming occurrences at Washington, for unless General Alger can get rid of the army officers who dominate the war department he will be only a figurehead secretary of war—and I, that tell you, am counted among his personal friends.

George Farr of Grand Haven has been appointed collector of customs for the Michigan district and James A. Coye of Grand Rapids has been made surveyor of the port at Grand Rapids. Thus the president has taken satisfactory action for the western part of the state so far as customs are concerned.

Vacancies at Port Huron and Marquette.

There will be a vacancy at the port of Port Huron Aug. 25 and at Marquette Sept. 28, but nobody has any idea who will pick the plums for these places. The senators are already being besieged and the officeseekers each believe that they must have success or make trouble.

Senator McMillan has done what the big man from Iowa, Senator Allison, has done. He has left the cares of legislation behind him and gone home for a season of rest. There has been a lull for a week, but the tariff battle will begin at once and it will wage and rage all summer. Hence, a timely little rest is a good thing for the statesmen. My individual opinion is that the congress will adjourn about Aug. 15, and no tariff bill will be passed. Now put that prediction in your pipe and smoke it. Of course, you don't believe it, and think I'm awfully mistaken. Well, I've been here long enough to get partially baldheaded. You watch the outcome and then give me a medal as a political prophet.

Resignation of "Hank" Robinson.

Congressman Crump is the only Wolverine statesman of the house of representatives who has been in Washington during the past week. He is working on the lumber schedule of the tariff bill.

"Hank" Robinson of Detroit has resigned his office as statistician of the department of agriculture. There is no politics in the office, but there is considerable politics under "Hank" Robinson's hat. He is a Democrat, a rantankerous Democrat. He wouldn't draw salary under a Republican administration. He gave up a place which pays $2,500 per annum. That took a good deal of political nerve. May be "Hank" will run for congress again.

Senator Burrows is now a full-fledged member of the committee on finance and is constantly engaged in studying the Dingley bill. He will be expected to make the principal speech for the Republicans in the senate when the bill is under final discussion. We Michigan men all know Burrows will acquit himself with credit to the state, for there is no better orator in either party now in public life than Senator Burrows.

The War in Cuba.

President McKinley is determined to know the truth regarding the Cuban war. The reports from Consul General Lee and other American consuls in Cuba, which were laid before the subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee, while withheld from the public, are admitted to present such a shocking picture of Spanish cruelty and suffering among the native and resident Americans that the president has been urged to take some decided action at once. But the president wants to know the whole truth and there have been messages sent to the consul general at Havana and to Consul Brice at Matanzas and other consuls, to at once forward by cable additional reports, which will lay before the president and the senate committee such information as will enable them to take definite action. The consuls will send their supplemental reports, answering definitely certain inquiries wired to them in cipher, and the state department expects to have this additional information very soon, that it may be presented to the foreign relations committee to govern its actions on the Morgan resolution in favor of granting belligerent rights to the Cubans.

Reports Were Startling.

It was, no doubt, the president's intention to have the Cuban question rest until Mr. Calhoun should return and report to him on the state of affairs in Cuba. But the recent reports from the official representatives of the government were so startling that when they were laid before the sub-committee of the senate they created a sensation which threatened to put the Morgan resolution through the senate without serious opposition. The president might have followed the policy of the Cleveland administration and held back these reports until ready to use them, but the condition of hundreds of American citizens in Cuba, who have been forced by General Weyler to leave their plantations and gather in the towns where they have absolutely no means of support and are without food and starving in the streets, presented the situation in a new light, calling for immediate action. It is this condition which has impelled the president to call for supplemental reports by cable, that the United States government may care for its own citizens in a foreign land, and whatever the situation as between the Spanish and Cuban forces, the president will first look after the starving Americans.

Engaged on a Message.

It is reported on good authority that the president is already engaged on a message, calling the attention of congress to this condition and urging some plan of relief. Such a message will, in all probability, be sent to congress, and there is little question about immediate action.

Senator Gallinger has introduced a resolution for an appropriation of $50,000 to relieve the Americans in distress in Cuba, and the senate will pass such a resolution when the facts are laid before it, as will also the house. The question as to how food shall be sent to these Americans has been discussed. One of the prominent members of the foreign relations committee said that, if necessary, the government would send a war vessel to Havana to enforce its right to relieve the Americans who have been cooped up in the towns to starve by order of General Weyler. He further added that if the Spanish authorities interposed any objections to such a plan of relief there would be war between Spain and this country, but he did not believe there would be any difficulty about relieving these Americans.

Have American Names.

There is said to be no doubt about the identity of these Americans. They have American names, and the reports give their former residence place in this country. One family of seven, by the name of Payne, were formerly residents of Illinois. The reports go into details in these particulars, so that the senators who read them have no question about the fact that there are several hundred Americans suffering for the necessaries of life and actually starving, because they have been driven from their farms and plantations, and compelled to take up their residence in towns, where they are under the surveillance of the Spanish troops, but are not granted any support.

While the president will only call attention to this suffering, and the necessity for relieving it, it is the general opinion that the presentation of these facts will add momentum to the Morgan resolution, and that before many days the senate will pass that resolution in favor of recognizing the Cubans as belligerents. The situation is regarded as very serious, and pushing to a crisis in the Cuban affairs.

Indian Warehouse at Omaha.

Despite the combined opposition of the Illinois members, supported by the chairman of the Indian affairs committee, the proposition for the establishment of an Indian warehouse at Omaha has been carried through the house. The question came up on the consideration of the report of the conference committee on the Indian appropriation bill. The amendment to the bill requiring the secretary of the interior to establish an Indian warehouse at Omaha was, it will be remembered, adopted in the senate originally, rejected by the house and sent to the conference committee, which reported in favor of retaining it in the bill. The last struggle in the house was on a motion to concur in the recommendation of the conference committee and pass the bill, as amended by the senate. On this the vote stood, yeas, 54; nays, 47, and the house thus concurred in the senate amendment. This settles it that Omaha is to have an Indian warehouse. DUNBAR.

MURDERED FOR HIS MONEY.

N. B. Clark, of Grand Rapids, Is Found Dead at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—The lifeless body of N. B. Clark, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who is well known in many cities of the northwest as the "tanbark king of Michigan," was found Saturday morning on Ivanhoe place, in the northern part of the city, under circumstances which indicate murder or suicide. There were two bullet wounds in his body, one near his heart and the other in the abdomen, and a revolver containing three empty cartridges was found on the ground near by.

The diamonds and jewelry worn by Clark were found intact, but there was only 25 cents in his clothing. The belief of Clark's friends that he met with foul play was strengthened when the revolver he usually carried was found in his valise at the Kirby house. The police, however, believe it is a case of suicide, as the bullets apparently did not penetrate either the spring overcoat or the undercoat worn by Clark at the time. The police think had he been shot by an assassin the murderer would not have had the forethought to throw aside the coats.

Grand Rapids, May 16.—N. B. Clark, president of the Michigan Bank and Lumber company of this city, whose dead body was found in a Milwaukee street Saturday morning, sustained a sunstroke several years ago, which affected his mind and from which he never fully recovered. His family, wife and three children, believe that he committed suicide, and the shock upon his wife is so serious that it is feared she will not survive. W. D. Sutton, of Milwaukee, who brought home the remains, is positive the dead man was murdered.

COULD DODGE THE TAX.

Authorities Not in Position to Compel Railroads to Pay.

Grand Rapids, May 18.—State Railroad Commissioner Wesselius holds that all taxes paid on earnings by foreign railroad companies doing business in this state are illegal and unconstitutional under a decision of the United States supreme court in the case of Fargo against the state of Michigan. Wesselius holds that the present tax on railroads is illegal, and that the railroads could at any time refuse to pay, and that they would refuse if the tax were increased as a bill now pending in the legislature proposes. The roads have paid in the past because the tax burdens have been very light, and they would rather pay than to have a new law which might hit them much harder. He says that if the bill now pending should be passed by the legislature Gov. Pingree would veto it on constitutional grounds.

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Related by a Keeper of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

(From the Jackson Citizen.)

Mr. A. E. Wing resides at 612 N. Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich. He is a keeper in the Michigan State Prison, a man of sterling integrity, and whose word is beyond dispute. He tells the following story of a wonderful escape, and the incidents connected with the dangerous position in which he was placed. He says, some months ago my attention was attracted by a swelling of my groins, which began to increase in size to such an extent that I was alarmed. It spread down my legs to my feet, and I was bloated from my waist down, so badly that I could not pull my pants, over my legs, and I had to open my shoes fully two inches before I could get them on. Even my face became puffed up; and my whole system seemed affected. I could hardly drag myself upstairs to unlock my men. I consulted a physician, one of the best in the city. He said the swelling was caused by an irritation of the kidneys, and I commenced treatment with him. But I seemed to be getting worse. I was strongly urged by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I finally consented. After the first week I commenced to see a change, and felt much better. This was encouraging, and I continued their use. I took five boxes in all, with the happy result that I was completely cured. I have never heard of any medicine which had such a pronounced and radical effect, and yet not affect the system generally and leave it in such a good condition. I feel better now than I ever did. After the effect was once established the swelling gradually disappeared until it was entirely gone. I regard Doan's Kidney Pills as a most wonderful agent in the curing of any form of kidney disorder.

LETTER FROM LEIPZIG.

Interesting European Letter from Claude VanTyne.

Concluded from May 7th.

This was the home of the long devout line of bishops, who sacrificed their lives to preach the gospel to the ignorant peasants—for a consideration. For such a humble life of devotion they only needed 283 rooms, a chapel and a theatre. The elegance of the theatre far surpasses the chapel, probably so that the good bishops might not be attracted from their duties by the beauties of the chapel. An extremely imposing staircase and a mirror saloon help to make the place inhabitable. In the huge cellars, the largest in Germany, are 200 casks of Franconian wine. The bishops need this supply to drown the sorrows of their ascetic life. We went out feeling sorrow for the bishops and viewed the superb garden where we suppose they used to hoe potatoes and weed onions. Then we visited the old Romanesque basilica, the cathedral, where they toiled to save the poor sinners who lived in huts and wretched tenements in the town. As we entered the ancient building (begun in 862) we saw one of the sinners, an aged woman, with huge loaded basket on her back, standing bent and trembling before a confessional. From our point of view we could see the priest whose elbow leaned lazily on a ledge and who regarded us with ill-concealed curiosity. He was screened from her and supposed to be tendealy hearing her woes. From the cathedral we crossed the street to the Neumunster church where we saw the burial spot and tablet to Walter von der Vogelweide. Crowning his tomb is a vase. The poet left money to be used in purchasing seed to be placed in this vase to feed the birds. The canons themselves have long since appropriated the money to their own use.

The gothic Mary's chapel with perforated spire; the Franciscan church and monastery; the Hofspital church and the St. Burkard church with Romanesque exterior built in 1168, whose gray towers point to the Marien chapel, a pilgrimage church high upon the Nicholas mountain; all these notable churches and a bridge actually lined with statues of saints, assure the traveler that he is in a very sanctimonious vicinity. There is a saint on every corner and a virgin or a saint over every doorway. I never was so sainted in my life. But grim War has his altar even in this sanctified city. Over the river on a bold hill sets the fortress Marienburg (1016 feet high.) From that lofty seat old Time tells his awe-inspiring history, how a Roman fort once held this site, decayed and gave place to a bishops' castle (for bishops must have grim battlements and walls for their work of peace). In 1525 the peasants failed to take the castle and sixty of the ringleaders were executed in the market place at the command of the kind hearted bishop. In 1631, Gustavus Adolphus captured the castle. Wurzburg has other war-like records. Archduke Charles defeated Jourdan here in 1796 just before Napoleon's course of victory began, and in 1866 the campaign of the Prussian army of the Main terminated here with the bombardments of the fortress. Yes, among all those saints and virgins we saw soldiers walking about with queer steel attachments at their heels, which we, at first, thought were to keep them from jumping fences but later discovered that they were cavalry men on foot. We staid over night in a hotel with a saint over its door, but nevertheless the landlord did not try to cheat us in the morning. We left Wurzburg with a sigh of relief, glad to get out into the wicked world again. The first town was Kitzingen famous for its beer. Once more the horrors of the Peasant War were impressed upon us, for it was here that the Margrave Casimer of Ansbach ordered seven citizens executed and many blinded for taking part in this lamentable war. Towns with walls and towers, furth with manufacture of goldleaf, mirrors and toys, and the Alte-Veste or Old Fort interested us. The latter was attached by Gustavus Adolphus in 1632, while Wallenstein was within. Six times the sturdy Swedes advanced upon it while their famous leader sat at the inn at the Green-Tree and issued orders, but at last he and his army had to retreat baffled. The train dragged us out of sight of the old ruin and running for a few miles parallel with the oldest railroad in Germany, drew us into the Nuremberg depot. Nuremberg, like Wurzburg, got its first start in life by its piety. When St. Sebaldus died, he left the little village his bones and a few other trinkets, and the inhabitants, not knowing anything better to do with the bequest, began doing miracles with the relics. That proved a drawing card and lured people from distant cities. When the people came to see the show, they brought things to sell and Nuremberg became a market. That was about 1050. Then the Emperors began to visit the city and as they could stop at a common hotel they had a castle built on a hill west of the town. During the Hohenstaufen dynasty the town grew apace and Conrad III and Frederic Barbarossa lived in the castle and priveleged the city. It was ruled at first by the swell families but about 1349 when the trades people grew powerful they drove out the Four Hundred and ruled for a time themselves. But the blue-bloods regained their prestige and used to elect one of their number as Burgrave. It was in this office that the Hohenzollern family got a start. Fred. I, who died 1218, had this office. They soon became princes and when in 1415 Emperor Sigismund gave Fred. III the mark Brandenburg, Frederick gave the city his castle. After this the city quarreled with the Margraves, but in general were very dignified as became citizens of a free Hanseatic town. When the Renaissance came along they wanted to trim up and look as handsome as the rest of the world, so Viet Stoss, a good woodcarver, Kraft, a stone-carver, Vischer, a first-class brass-founder, and Wohlgemut, who taught Albrecht Durer to paint, set about putting up images and painting up the churches until you wouldn't have known the old town. The old houses with high peaked gothic gables were prisked up with Renaissance facades, and then to keep out envious foreigners they built a great rampart about this odd town with huge round towers which look like coffee-pots with the handles knocked off. Outside of that they dug a moat 35 yards wide and 33 feet deep. This is the most picturesque city wall in Germany.

In this most medieval and artistic town in the Empire, we just settled down for a week and "did" it. Everyone has read Hans Sachs stories and we too; so we went to see his house. It is a meat market now and was a shoe shop. The old house is using up all the products of the cow in course of its history. Near by is a statue to the old poet. It represents him cobbling and thinking up spring poetry. Not far away was Peter Vischer's house. Peter is the man who took thirteen years with his sons' aid to make that unforgivable monument to St. Sebaldus over which the art critics go into hyperboles and to see which we squandered eight and one-half cents to enter St. Sebaldus church. Twelve apostles stand about the sarcophagus, on shelves, while twelve church fathers and prophets stand in equally precarious places keeping company with 70 genii mermaids and animals. Personally I prefer a prohibition paper's thrilling picture of the dreams of a delerium tremens patient.

We escaped and looked at the outside of the church, which was Romanesque in the 10th century, Transition in the 13th and Gothic finally in the 14th, running the whole scale of architectual freaks except the Renaissance. Turning our backs on the fickle church we surveyed the fine Renaissance Council House and ventured inside to see the Great Hall with a timber roof and a famous painting of Emp. Maximilian's triumph. Below are the dungeons with the subterranean passage leading away one-fourth of a mile to the deep well in the castle. Another time we walked down the river Pegnetz along whose edge the houses are built so close that the stream resembles a canal in Venice, and across which the old "Meat Bridge" was built to be like the Rialto. A suspension bridge, first in Germany; the Hangman's bridge and Chas. VI's bridge aid the good citizens to cross this wonderfully picturesque water course. On the latter bridge are two obolisks upon the tops of which sit an eagle and a dove with an olive branch. One's lip curls a little sarcastically at sight of this dove, symbolic of the "Peace Bringer," as Chas. VI was called, when the obolisk was erected. A few years afterwards his pragmatic sanction plunged all Europe into a terrible war. The evil he did lived after him.

There are several world-renowned fountains in Weremberg. One, the "Virtue Fountain" belies its name; another, the "Beautiful Fountain" is a Gothic pyramid 63 feet high and stands before the house where Pirkheimer, the great humorist lived before 1530. Most delighting of all is the "Little Goose Man" fountain. The quaint little peasant man holds a goose under each arm and looks at you half amused as you watch the water flow from the mouths of the geese.

While we were looking at the Gothic Mary's church, built in 1355 on the site of a synagogue, which the trades-people in their jealousy of the Jews had destroyed in 1349, we saw some children playing on the steps and asked them if they lived there. They looked at each other, their cheeks began to puff up and then with shrieks of laughter they all ran out of sight behind one of the great buttresses and had their laugh out. I consoled myself by looking at the "Little Men that Run" clock on the church front. Moving figures of seven German electors make their appearance at noon. Durer's house, whose chief attraction is the price of admission, and his monument, which is even finer than the soldiers' monument in the park at home, are two attractions as is also the dwelling of John Palm, "Victim of Napoleon's Tyranny," as the Germans are pleased to label him. In 1805 he rashly wrote an incendiary pamphlet against Napoleon's administration and was condemned as a treason-monger. The justice or injustice depends upon one's sympathies. Perhaps you are getting tired of famous houses; well so did we, but you will have to come along and see the house with the Golden Shield where, in 1356, Chas. IV drew up the first 23 articles of the Golden Bull, one clause providing that the emperors hold their first diet in Nuremberg. Now just come over and see the house where Gustavus Adolphus staid over night, and this fine old mediaeval house with St. Georg and the Dragon carved on the front by Kraft and—just one more— this line of houses with Lions, Unicorns, Bacchuses, Horses and Cows, fastened over their doors. Now this queer Italian Baroque structure, with a massive half sphere for a dom, isn't a house; it's a sort of Masonic lodge and is called the Deutschhaus, so you will pardon me if we just run over to this old gray Dominican Monastery while we look through the archives at the manuscripts written by Melachthon and Luther and a queer old letter written by Huss. I thought I had dragged you through all the churches but there is the Gothic St. Catharine where the Meistersingers had their school for many decades, and the fine new synagogue in Moorish style.

If I talk of graveyards I fear you will stop reading, but the old St. Rochus cemetery is really worth looking at. The tombstones are recumbent, which fact we explain by the proposition that the cemetery is so old that the tombstones got tired standing around waiting and watching for Judgement Day so they laid down. They look lots more comfortable. It is a shame to keep a tombstone standing nobody knows how long. I prefer one couchant.

Just take a little walk with me up to the castle where we can get a fine view of the city and I will let you go. It is a hard climb up this castle hill along the "Way to Heaven," as the road is called. There is the Mt. of Olives on the left and the old five cornered tower on the right is the Walpurgis Chapel, under which the Hohenzollern Burgraves had their torture chamber. Perhaps you think that it was unpleasant to be saying prayers and hear some poor wretch's shrieks of agony from the cellar. Yes, but you arn't used to such things, and Mr. Hohenzollern was. "Iron Virgin," as the hollow figure filled with spikes is called, has received many a victim to its terrible embrace. Here in the castle wall are two hoof prints of the horse which leaped with a captive robber knight over two hundred feet of moat to the earth one hundred feet below. You can use your own common sense about that story, I used mine. Let's look down the mysterious "Deep Well" and get a view from the tower of the history-haunted castle, looking perhaps from the very window from which Frederick Barbarossa gazed 800 years ago, and there in the distance is the Germanic Museum, the greatest attraction in Nuremberg. Yes, we will have to visit that, in spite of my promise. It was once (1400) a Carthusian monastery with "long drawn aisles and fretted vaults, but now makes an ideal museum for the treasurers of Germanic history. In a hundred artistic rooms are the relics of the life of the Middle Ages, a large Gothic bedstead in ebony a Mediaeval kitchen, which sent my wife into raptures, scientific apparatus used by the old alchemists, weaving, embroidery and musical instruments hundreds of years old, the earliest attempts at bookbinding, and even the treasures of Athanarich, the Visigoth, have been imitated and are exhibited. There is also a complete collection of instruments of torture and some ancient church pictures which are fully as painful. I wont ask you to come to the train with us for you must be very tired. I will promise a shorter installment next time. C. H. VANTYNE.

SIXTEEN LIVES LOST.

Terrible Result of a Fire on the Ocean Steamer Leona.

New York, May 10.—The Mallory line steamer Leona, which left her pier on Saturday, bound for Galveston, took fire at sea, put back and arrived in port Sunday night with 16 corpses on board. The dead were 13 steerage passengers and three members of the crew, who succumbed to a terrible fire which occurred off the Delaware capes at an early hour Sunday morning.

The horror of the story can hardly be told. Those who are dead were penned up below decks, and although frantic efforts were made by the officers of the vessel to save them, the fire had gained such terrible headway before the danger was discovered that all escape was cut off.

OUTLOOK PROMISING

For a Deadlock Between the Senate and House.

TAXES OF RAILWAYS THE CAUSE.

Important Developments in the State Legislature During the Past Week—Another Stroke of Railroad Business Done by the House—Governor Pingree and the Merriam Bill — Another Appointee Turned Down by the Senate.

Lansing, Mich., May 18.—The chances for a deadlock between the senate and house and a row with the governor in consequence are most promising. It is all due to the important developments of the past week in the line of legislation increasing the taxes paid by railroads. In my last letter I referred to the passage by the senate of the Merriam bill increasing the specific tax rate so as to make an aggregate annual increase of about $180,000 in the taxes paid by the railroad companies operating in this state, and at the same time stated that the house would probably see the senate and go it considerably better. The house did just this thing, and did it with a vengeance, too. The contest was a most exciting one and showed good generalship both on the part of the Pingree forces and the railroad people.

The battle opened up with the consideration of the Stoneman bill providing that railroad property shall be taxed locally just as other property is taxed. After amending this bill by taking the power of assessing railroad property from the supervisors and requiring that all of it shall be done by the board of state auditors, who shall apportion the assessment among the various townships and cities in which the property is located, and further providing that all the revenue derived therefrom shall be used for the support of the public schools just as the revenue from specific taxation is now used, the bill was agreed to in committee of the whole. This done, the Pingree leader, Colonel Atkinson, called up his bill providing for a flat 2-cent passenger rate on all roads in the state and succeeded in having that agreed to also.

Merriam Specific Tax Bill.

While all this was going on the Merriam specific tax bill, which had passed the senate as above noted, was in the hands of the railroad committee of the house, which had set a hearing on it for several days hence. The railroad men rallied over night after the action on the local taxation and 2-cent fare bills, and succeeded in having the hearing abandoned and the bill reported out bright and early the next morning and placed at the head of the special order so that it would be the first measure considered. Their object was to rush it through ahead of the other two bills, which they feared more than this one, and thus kill them off, for it was not possible that all would pass. On the other hand, the Pingree forces used the action on the two bills as a club with which to force an increase in the rates of specific taxation made by the senate. It was a case of dog eat dog and both sides claim to have secured an ample mouthful.

The present rates of taxation are as follows: On earnings of $2,000 per mile or less, 2 per cent.; $2,000 to $4,000, 2½ per per cent.; from $4,000 to $6,000, 3 per cent.; from $6,000 to $8,000, 3½ per cent.; over $8,000, 4 per cent. As fixed by the house the rates are as follows: On earnings of $2,000 or less, 2½ per cent.; from $2,000 to $4,000, 4 per cent.; from $4,000 to $6,000, 6 per cent.; over $6,000, 10 per cent. A careful computation of the amount of revenue the state would receive under the Merriam bill as it passed the house shows that it would be $1,246,193 annually, the computation being on the earnings of last year. This is an increase of $504,784.34 over the revenue received last year, as against the increase of $180,000 provided by the senate.

Senator Changed His Mind.

When the bill was sent back to the senate it was laid on the table without discussion, it being the purpose of Senator Merriam not to call it up until this week. The senator changed his mind, however, and on Friday morning had the bill taken from the table. On his motion the house amendments were not concurred in, but five votes being cast in favor of concurrence, while nineteen were cast against the motion. This decisive vote renders it practically certain that the senate will never agree to the increase made by the house. It is possible that a compromise figure may be agreed to, but the indications are that it must hover very close to the raise made by the senate if this is done. When the report of the senate was announced in the house, Representative Chamberlain moved that a committee of five on the part of the house be appointed to concur with a like committee from the senate with a view to adjusting the differences between the two houses. The motion was authorized and the houses will appoint them this week. All of their deliberations will be watched with interest.

Pingree leaders were somewhat divided in their advocacy of the Merriam bill and 2-cent fare bill, so that they did not hope to pass both and merely used the latter as a club with which to force the former. The tax rates became a law as the Merriam bill passed the house. Colonel Atkinson at once had the local taxation bill sent to the committee on judiciary, although there was nothing to send it there for. Later in the day the 2-cent fare bill came up on third reading and was defeated by a vote of 54 to 39. No attempt was made at that time to reconsider the bill and save it for another trial, but after the senate tabled the Merriam bill this was done, so that there will still be plenty of material with which to make trouble for the railroads should the senate prove to be a block in the way of the increase of taxes.

The Vote Was Forthcoming.

The house did another stroke of railroad business when it passed the bill repealing the special charter under which the Michigan Central railroad has been doing business for the past forty or more years. It required a two-thirds vote to pass this bill, but it was forthcoming, seventy votes being cast in its favor. The senate sat on this bill also as soon as it got its hands on it. It was promptly sent to the railroad committee, every member of which is bitterly opposed to its passage. An ox team will be necessary to get it away from the committee, or to be more exact, it will not to be yielded up unless a majority of the senate so orders.

Governor Pingree stands ready to sign the Merriam bill as it passed the house, but can be depended upon to veto it if the increase in taxes is made any less than fixed by that body. In speaking of the matter he said: "Of course, these companies ought to pay $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 in taxes annually, but these are pretty hard times and $500,000 would go a good ways. We might accept the bill and then go in two years from now and make the companies pay what they ought to pay. I would not approve the bill, though, if I felt that it would be a bar to our getting more tax legislation at the next session." When apprised of the action of the senate in refusing to concur in the house amendments, Governor Pingree remarked that no special appropriation bills would be approved just at present. He proposes to hold these bills up as a means of forcing votes for the Merriam bill. These special appropriations include $25,000 for the Ontonagon fire sufferers, and $5,000 for improvements at Macknac Ilsand park, with some to follow for improvements at various state institutions.

Merriam's Objection.

Senator Merriam's objection to the house amendments is that they are inequitable. He says that they make the main line of the Michigan Central pay an increase of $181,200, while the increase for all the other roads operating in the state would be but $292,685. With a deadlock between the two houses, and the governor threatening to hold up other important legislation until he gets what he wants in the way of increased railroad taxation, the prospects for an interesting and exciting week are the most promising, while those for the adjournment on May 21, as agreed upon, are just the reverse.

Another of Governor Pingree's appointees has been turned down by the senate. This time the victim is ex-Mayor Thaddeus C. Brooks of Jaskson, whom the governor nominated for a place on the board of control of the state prison to succeed Albert Stiles, also of Jackson. Just what the objection to Brooks was is not clear. Some think it was a desire on the part of the senators to block the scheme credited to the governor to remove Warden Chamberlain and give his place to Sheriff Judson of Ann Arbor. Then, again, it is asserted that Brooks' penchant for kicking on pretty much everything in sight compassed his defeat. Be that as it may, his chances for getting a place on the board while the present senate is in session are dead beyond resurrection.

Governor Pingree has already filed three vetoes, and promises another this week. The bill to which he objects this time is the Holmes lien law. He says that it is a clever scheme to prevent mechanics from getting a lien for their wages on new buildings. His other vetoes were of the Flint charter, curfew and anti-cigarette bills. The first named was passed over his veto, and an attempt may be made to pass the cigarette bill. The curfew bill is dead, its introducer making no attempt to secure its passage over the veto.

The Michigan Manual.

The Michigan Manual, that much sought after publication, which has usually been ready for distribution along in April, will not be completed until August this year. This delay is due to no fault of the state printer and binder, however. It is simply a monument to the penchant of the two houses for disagreeing. For several sessions the state printer has been in the habit of getting out an issue of the Manual as soon after the legislature convened as possible, and then after the April election, the legislators would discover that the statistics of that contest and other valuable information not available earlier in the year should be set forth in the volume, and so they would order a second edition printed. In order to save this extra expense the legislature directed the state printer not to proceed with the printing this year until it was definitely decided how many copies were to be printed, and also directing the publication held until after the April election so that there need be but one edition. This order was not made, however, until after 400 pages had been printed, most of which had to be printed over again. Then the two houses scrapped for a couple of months over the distribution of the volumes between them and the result is that work on the publication was resumed only last week. The people entitled to these valuable books will have howled themselves hoarse long before they are ready for distribution, but the solons alone are to blame for the delay.

Victory for Farmer Members.

The farmer members of the legislature have apparently won a decisive victory in connection with the bill to repeal the law taxing real estate mortgages. Early in the session a powerful lobby of Detroit real estate men showed up and succeeded in getting the bill through the senate and there was every prospect that the house would follow suit. Just then remonstrances began to be received from farmers' clubs throughout the state. These poured in so fast and numerously that the legislative farmers' club held a meeting and marked the bill for slaughter. It has since been on the table. A few days ago Representative Stoneman made a last rally in its behalf, but he was unable to pump any life into it, and the decisive adverse vote on that occasion indicates that it will be heard from no more this year.

The farmers, however, lost a point in connection with the game bill. Those in the house having in view the trespass and damage committed by hunters who roam over their farms had incorporated in this law a provision prohibiting the hunting of quail with dogs. This would have quite effectually disposed of any quail hunting whatever, but the senate struck out this provision and in order to save the other provisions the farmers of the house were forced to consent to the change.

At present all corporations organizing in Michigan are required to pay to the secretary of state a franchise fee of one-quarter of 1 per cent. on each dollar of their authorized capital stock, no fee to be less than $5. The revenue from this source amounts to a number of thousands of dollars annually. It is proposed however, to materially increase it, and to this end the house committee on private corporations has recommended a bill, which will doubtless pass, increasing the fee to 1½ cents on each dollar of authorized capital, no fee to be less than $20.

Mrs. Theodore Lewis.

Again we are called on to chronicle the death of one of our well known citizens, Mrs. Theodore Lewis who fought valiantly the battle of life, but after months of intense suffering yielded to the unevitable and passed away surrounded by her loved ones Wednesday morning at 7:30. Hers was an extreme case and excited the deepest sympathy of all in attendance. She bore pain with great fortitude but longed for the silent messenger. Death to her was welcome. The funeral services were held at the Methodist Church at 10:30, Rev. J. B. Varner officiating.

MENELIK GOING TO EUROPE.

Abyssinian Potentate and Wife to Visit Several Countries.

Among the items of information brought by the members of the Russian sanitary expedition to Abyssinia, who are now back none the worse for their journey, that which treats of the negus' intended foreign trips is among the most interesting, says a London exchange. Heretofore his martial majesty has not gone tripping aboard. Domestic wars with turbulent and ambitious Ras took up most of his time when he was not busy giving battle to the Italians. Now that military enterprise has become somewhat slack, the negus has conceived the plan of traveling and seeing the world for himself. He loves France and Russia, he is said to have declared, not merely at first sight, but before first sight. He has been cordially invited thither, and he and his consort have accepted the invitation. Negus Menelik and "Empress" Taitou will first honor Russia with their presence, coming to Odessa, and thence by rail to St. Petersburg. They will proceed to Paris to the exhibition (1900), and finally will call on the king of Italy and the pope.

A Wandering Lake.

The Swedish explorer of Central Asia, Sven Hedin, gives the latest information concerning the "wandering" of Lake Nor in the Gobi desert, a phenomena about which contradictory views have been entertained. He says that Tarim river, entering the lake from the west, brings down, during the period of high water late in summer, a great quantity of silt, which has the effect of driving the lake, lying on the level floor of the desert, toward the southeast. But the summer wind, drifting the surface sand and darkening the heavens with dust, blows generally from the northeast and it, too, tends to drive the lake before it. The combined effect of the urging by the wind and the river is to force the lake southward. Yet Sven Hedin thinks the migration of the lake is not constant in direction, but it shifts back and forth intermittently, according as the circumstances change.

Anatomy.

Hippocrates is looked upon by anatomists as the father of science. He died in 370 B. C. The modern science began in Italy in the thirteenth century. The first anatomical plates, designed to show the size and relative position of the bodily organs, were prepared and colored by Titian. All the great painters and sculptors have been careful students of anatomy. Michael Angelo, Raphael and Leonardo da Vinci were noted for their anatomical researches.

Lying on his chest along the boat's deck, the sponge fisher, with his water-glass—a pane set in a box fitted with handles—looks down 40 feet into the clear depths. With one hand he grasps and sinks a slender pole, sometimes 50 feet in length, fitted at the end with a double hook. The sponge once discovered, the hook is deftly inserted at the rock base, and by a sudden jerk is detached.

This curt description of what seems the simple work of sponge fishing gives no idea of the real skill and exertion needed. The eye of the fisher has to be trained by long experience to peer into the sea and tell the commercially valuable sponges from those that are worthless. He must have a deft hand to detach the sponge without a tear.

Above all, while doing this with one hand, he must manipulate with the other the water-glass, as the waves sway it sideways and up and down. The strain on eyes and body is most intense, to say nothing of the cramped position and exposure to wind and wet, which, first and last, make almost every sponge fisher a victim of acute rheumatism. Yet, with all his arduous toil, an expert sponge fisher earns not more than $15 a month, besides his "keep" on the boat, which barely deserves the name of existence.

We are pleased to announce that through the generous and substantial assistance of our business men and others a sufficient sum has been raised to guarantee the maintenance of a strong ball team for the season which will be under the management of Chas. Burridge and Will W. Hicks. It is their intention to have at least one game each week. The first game will be played tomorrow afternoon when the Adrian College nine will cross bats with the home team. Harris and Gillen will compose Tecumseh's battery. In this connection it might with propriety be said regarding batteries that some dark horses are being considered by the management although no definite arrangements have as yet been made. We trust our citizens generally will attend this game and encourage these worthy young men who are laboring so zealously to furnish our people fine exhibitions of the national game.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

THE TARIFF BILL.

Debate of the Measure Is Commenced in the Senate.

Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, Explains the Features of the Bill —Senator Vest, of Missouri, Replies.

Washington, May 26.—Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, went over the entire tariff ground in his exposition of the features of the senate bill yesterday. He said in part:

"Mr. President, the business of the entire country is in a state of suspension awaiting the action of the senate upon the bill under consideration. I believe that the anxiety to secure action upon this important measure at the earliest possible day is shared by every member of the senate. It is my purpose to keep the bill continuously before the senate, to the exclusion of all other legislative business, until it is finally disposed of, and in this I shall expect the hearty cooperation of senators on both sides of the chamber. In the discussion of the bill the members of the majority committee will confine themselves with such brief explanations as may be found necessary of the various paragraphs as they are reached."

Proceeding to give the views of the republican majority of the committee which framed the bill, the senator said:

"The rates suggested by the committee's amendments are considerably below those imposed by the house bill, and in most instances below those contained in the act of 1890. In suggesting these reductions the members reaffirm and emphasize their position as friends of the protective policy. Industrial conditions in this country, with very few exceptions, do not demand a return to the rates imposed by the act of 1890. Without relinquishing one particle of our devotion to the cause of protection, we feel that we have a right to ask that the cause shall not be burdened by the imposition of duties which are unnecessary and excessive."

House Estimates Erroneous.

"The framers of the house bill estimate a total revenue from the bill of $269,105,710 in normal years. This would be the largest revenue received from customs duties and an increase of $113,479,793 over the customs revenue of 1896 and of $70,732,264 over that of 1893."

After giving in detail the house estimates of revenue Senator Aldrich proceeded:

"It will be apparent from a critical examination of the provisions of the house bill that the estimate of $4,000,000 increase of revenue, if the bill should become a law by the 1st of July was excessive. To indicate the grounds upon which this judgment is based we may take the wool and woolen schedule, from which $24,000,000 out of $76,000,000 increase is expected. The fact is well known that there have been unusual importations of wool in anticipation of the reimposition of a duty—enough, according to the trade reports, to supply all the foreign wool needed by the domestic manufacturers for more than a year. This estimate of $14,000,000 increase from woolen goods is equally erroneous.

"The same condition exists, in lesser degree perhaps, with reference to other schedules. Instead of an increased revenue from tobacco, we may more safely count upon a decrease in the first year; the increase from sugar will be much less than the ways and means committee's estimate, owing to the fact that one quarter of the year's supplies of raw sugar will probably be imported before any new rates of duty can be applied to them.

"The secretary of the treasury estimates the expenditures for all purposes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, at $466,946,047.28. The finance committee estimates the revenue to be derived in the same fiscal year from customs, if the provisions of this bill should be enacted into law, at $182,744,000. This includes an estimated revenue from the temporary duty on tea of $8,000,000. The committee estimates the receipts from internal revenue for the same period at $170,709,000. If we add to this the treasury estimate for miscellaneous receipts, $20,000,000, and the receipts on account of the post office, $96,227,076, we have a total estimated receipts for the fiscal year 1898 of $469,671,076, or an estimated excess of receipts over expenditures for that year of $2,725,028. If the estimated revenue from the duty on tea and the additional internal revenue taxes should be omitted from the committee's estimates of receipts, there would be an estimated deficiency of $29,175,000, instead of a surplus of $2,725,028.

Must Prevent Deficiency.

"The committee believes it to be the imperative duty of congress to provide in the measure under consideration for a revenue which will certainly meet the requirements of the government for the next fiscal year. The adoption of a revenue bill which should fail in this purpose, and which should create an additional deficiency in the immediate future, and which would require a further issue of bonds to meet current expenditures, would certainly be fatal to the hopes of future success of any political party responsible for such legislation.

"Assuming that the necessity for additional revenue exists, and of this we believe there can be no question, there is no economic reason, and certainly none that affects the public interests, why beer and tobacco should not bear their share of additional taxation. The committee believes that the duty proposed on tea will not prove a serious burden upon the consumers of that article."

The Hawaiian Treaty.

The senator then took up the Hawaiian treaty and said: "The committee will also prepare and present an amendment to the house provisions in regard to the Hawaiian treaty. The existing commercial treaty between the United States and the government of these islands provides for the free admission of raw sugars, the product of the islands, into the United States. If this treaty should remain in force it would result in giving a bounty to the Hawaiian sugar producers amounting to more than $8,000,000 per annum. It was not contemplated when the original treaty was made, or when it was extended, that any possible advantage of this kind could ever result from its terms to the people of the Sandwich Islands. The effect of this bounty would undoubtedly be to stimulate the production of sugar in the Hawaiian islands. While we cannot fairly abrogate a treaty of this kind with a friendly country without notice, we believe that negotiations should at once be entered into looking to such a modification of the treaty as will reduce the bounty to be paid Hawaiian sugar producers to a reasonable sum, and the committee will present an amendment looking in this direction at an early day. There should be no difficulty in securing through the treaty-making power such modifications of the treaty as will be satisfactory to both countries without injury to either. It certainly cannot be expected that the United States will continue for any length of time to pay a bonus of $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 per annum as an inducement to any foreign country to trade with us. I assume there will be no difficulty in securing proper modifications of the treaty so that it will not be necessary for the government of the United States to give the one year's notice of its abrogation, as provided for by its terms."

Senator Aldrich Concludes.

In conclusion Senator Aldrich said: "The industrial system of the United States is growing more and more complex every year. It is becoming more difficult every year to satisfy, in a tariff revision, conflicting claims of sections, or to so adjust rates as to do no injustice to any of the varied interests of this great country. The revision of paragraphs and rates recommended by the committee are undoubtedly far from satisfactory in many cases to interested parties. The amendments recorded represent the consensus of opinion of a majority of the members of the committee. We have no pride of opinion or authorship in regard to any of the provisions reported. We have given careful consideration to the numerous important questions involved in the various schedules. We present to the senate the result of our labors, and shall cheerfully accept your judgment as to the wisdom of our conclusions."

Senator Aldrich, on behalf of the republican members of the senate committee on finance, gave notice of 32 additional amendments to the tariff bill, which will be offered as the bill progresses.

Vest's Reply.

Senator Vest (dem., Mo.) followed Senator Aldrich in a vigorous speech against the republican tariff policy. Senator Vest inquired why, if there was now sufficient revenue for the expenses of the government, the republican party should adopt the policy of its opponent and put a tax on tea. He argued that there was in the treasury more money than when President Harrison turned it over to Grover Cleveland. The policy of issuing gold certificates when there was more than $100,000,000 of reserve, Senator Vest asserted, had been abandoned by Secretary Carlisle and Secretary Gage. Every dollar hoarded was a crime against the people. He criticised Senator Aldrich for failing to give a statement of the revenue that would be yielded by the bill and for failing to present estimates that had been prepared by the chief of the bureau of statistics.

In reply, Senator Aldrich said the estimates contained merely an opinion that neither the Dingley bill nor the senate bill could supply sufficient revenue for the government in its first year. The bill would produce $50,000,000 more than the Wilson bill, he said.

WEYLER IS ANGRY.

He Accuses the United States of Impertinence and Hypocrisy.

New York, May 24.—A dispatch to the Journal from Cienfuegos, Cuba, says: In an interview Capt. Gen. Weyler, upon his arrival here from Placetas, in reference to Senator Morgan's Cuban resolution said:

"I am not surprised at the action thus far taken, nor shall I be if the house concurs in the senate resolution and sends it to the president. Your jingoes are in the saddle and evidently bent upon forcing the country in some foreign complications in order to distract attention from the fast approaching internal crisis.

"The few scattering bands of Cuban dynamiters, railroad wreckers, horse and cattle thieves, plantation burners and highwaymen now in the field here, who hold no port and possess no seat of civil government, have no right to expect recognition. Such distinction at President McKinley's hands, issued in the face of my own proclamation officially declaring the greater part of the island to be already pacified, would hold the Washington executive up to the ridicule of European powers and prompt a healthy outburst of sympathy for the Spanish cause, especially from neighboring old world governments also possessing colonies in the West Indies.

"Personally, I shall be glad. If recognition comes, our position will then be more clearly defined. It will work a virtual abrogation of our special treaty with the United States, place Yankees residing in Cuba in an identical position before the courts with other foreign residents, and I shall be troubled less by the constant complaints and often ridiculous demands from American consuls.

"For one I shall heartily rejoice that the emptiness and hypocrisy of the United States government's reiterated professions of friendship shall be finally unmasked. I have always had little confidence in the sincerity of its assertions. Each new declaration from Washington calculated to throw our marine officials engaged in patroling the Cuban coast off their guard, has invariably been followed by the departure of some new Cuban filibuster from an American port with arms and munitions for our enemy."

PLEA FOR ARBITRATION.

National Committee Urges United Work in the Treaty.

Washington, May 26.—The national arbitration committee has issued the following:

"The rejection by our national senate of the treaty initiated in accordance with the joint resolution of congress passed in 1890 and concluded by the representatives of the United States and Great Britain January 11, 1897, we believe to have been against the highest interests not only of the two nations immediately concerned, but also of the world. To our fellow citizens, accordingly, we make renewed and confident appeal. The wise advocacy of the great cause should be everywhere maintained. It remains, therefore, for patriotic citizens unitedly to labor until, with the sanction of our national senate, the intelligent will of the people shall be embodied in a just and comprehensive treaty for the accomplishment of that end."

SENT TO LONDON.

Gen. Miles Ordered to Take Part in Queen's Jubilee Ceremonies.

Washington, May 24.—By direction of the president, Secretary Alger sent a cable message to Maj. Gen. Miles, commanding the army, who is now at Constantinople, instructing him to be in London not later than June 15, to represent the United States army at the ceremonies in honor of the sixtieth anniversary of Queen Victoria's accession to the British throne. As has been stated, the United States navy will be represented at the queen's jubilee by Admiral Miller on the armored cruiser Brooklyn.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 24.—The strike of the American flint glass workers' union, which was inaugurated four years ago, has been declared off. The strike cost the union over $1,000,000, and during four years 400 strikers died.

A Banker in Jail.

Logansport, Ind., May 24.—President Johnson, of the bankrupt State national bank of this city and the State bank at Monticello, confessed to the wrongful appropriation of over $300,000 and was placed in jail at Indianapolis.

OUR LAWMAKERS.

The Work Being Done in Both Branches of Congress.

The Senate Passes a Resolution to Recognize Cuban Insurgents—House Adopts a Relief Measure—Other News.

Washington, May 20.—Another stirring debate on Cuba occurred in the senate yesterday. Senator Foraker (O.) declared his purpose of supporting the resolution recognizing Cuban belligerency when it should be reported by the committee. It was developed in the course of a colloquy between Senators Foraker, Morgan and Vest that the state department had withheld the names of United States consuls reporting on the serious condition of affairs in Cuba, because it might lead to their massacre. Senator Vest declared that this presented the most serious phase of the subject, as it was time to protect our officials with war ships if their personal safety was threatened for making reports to their government. Senator Hoar replied, contending that the senate should have authoritative fact set forth like a judicial finding of a court in an official report. The practical thing was to propose mediation, and if that was rejected to have the facts presented to the senate and take the action the facts warranted. No action was taken on the resolution. A bill was passed regulating the pay of noncommissioned officers of the army after July 1, 1898, as follows: Sergeant major, quartermaster sergeant and first sergeant, $30 each per month; sergeant, $23; corporal, $17.

Washington, May 21.—The long and exciting debate on the joint resolution recognizing the existence of a state of war in Cuba and declaring that strict neutrality shall be maintained by the United States passed the senate yesterday by the decisive vote of 41 to 14. The resolution as passed is as follows:

"Resolved, That a condition of public war exists between the government of Spain and the government proclaimed and for some time maintained by force of arms by the people of Cuba, and that the United States of America shall maintain a strict neutrality between the contending parties, according to each all the rights of belligerents in the ports and territory of the United States."

The senate then adjourned until Monday.

Washington, May 25.—In the senate yesterday Senator Tillman made the formal announcement of the death of Senator Earle, of South Carolina, and as a mark of respect the senate adjourned.

Washington, May 26.—Senator Aldrich opened the tariff debate in the senate yesterday, making an exhaustive exposition of the bill. Senator Cullom introduced by request a bill which provides for a complete revision of the interstate commerce law. The nomination of Edwin H. Conger, of Iowa, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Brazil, and of Brig. Gen. John R. Brooke to be major general were received from the president.

The House.

Washington, May 21.—Cuban affairs furnished the house with a day of bitter partisan debate yesterday. The resolution appropriating $50,000 for the relief of American citizens was adopted without a dissenting vote, but the democrats endeavored to force consideration also of the Morgan resolution for recognition of belligerency of the insurgents. They accused the republicans of endeavoring to evade this issue, but the dominant party, through its spokesman, Mr. Hitt (Ill.) made the important statement that the republicans desired not to embarrass negotiations which were being projected by President McKinley to secure the independence of Cuba.

Washington, May 25.—In the house yesterday Mr. McMillin (Tenn.) introduced a resolution providing for the consideration of a senate resolution recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents "from day to day until disposed of." The resolution was referred to the committee on rules.

Supreme Court Adjourns.

Washington, May 25.—After rendering final decisions in 36 cases and giving attention to other business incident to the last sitting of the term, the United States supreme court adjourned Monday until next October. When the court cryer announced the final adjournment for the term, there were apparently 380 cases on the docket undisposed of, but there were actually 359 cases, 21 having already been argued and submitted. This is a smaller number than the records of the court have shown for 30 years.

Benefits the Roads.

Washington, May 25.—The supreme court has by a decision rendered Monday knocked from under the interstate commerce act one of its strongest supports. It removed the power to fix railroad rates. The Sherman anti-trust law is about all that stands now between the people and the railroads. Without this law the shippers would be practically unprotected, for it is admitted that the interstate commerce act has lost its life.

The Mount Lebanon Shakers have recently perfected an ingenious cure for dyspepsia. Their Digestive Cordial consists of a food already digested and a digester of foods happily combined. The importance of this invention will be appreciated when we realize what a proportion of the community are victims of some form of stomach troubles. Thousands of pale thin people have little inclination to eat, and what they do eat causes them pain and distress. This Digestive Cordial of the Shakers corrects any stomach derangement at once. It makes thin people plump. Every one will be greatly intersted to read the little book which has been placed in the hands of druggists for free distribution.

PREPARING CORN SOIL.

A Homemade Appliance Which Does the Work Thoroughly.

The homemade appliance illustrated herewith is inexpensive and does its work more thoroughly and in a manner different from any similar device known for the preparing of land for corn culture. It consists of six pieces of 4 by 4-inch scantling, seven feet long, bolted together; the bolts run diagonally through the pieces, which brings the diagonally opposite corners together, making the top and bottom present corrugated surfaces. Three bolts are used to fasten the pieces together, which are made of five-eighths inch round iron. One bolt is placed in the center and the others one foot from either end. The outside bolts have an eye instead of plain head, by means of which a forked chain is attached for drawing the implement. The front cutting edges of the implement are protected and their efficiency aided by having them bound with flat iron two inches wide and one-quarter of an inch thick. This size rubber is found to be heavy enough and well adapted for ordinary work when constructed of oak wood, but if made of pine or any light wood it will require weighting.—Director R. M. Miller, Bulletin 46, Md. Exp. Sta.

GROWING SUGAR BEETS.

It Is Now Being Tried in Nearly All Sections of the Country.

One of the most promising signs of the times from the standpoint of agriculture is the awakening interest of the farmers of the country in improved methods of production, in diversified farming and in seeking out new fields for endeavor. In no other direction, perhaps, is there such marked evidence of the last-named tendency as in the growing sentiment favorable to the cultivation of the sugar beet, which seems to be in every mind, and which is likely to be tried this season in nearly every section of the country where it is believed the saccharine vegetable may succeed.

In no other direction is there such opportunity, at least so far as crop cultivation is concerned, for the demand awaits every pound of sugar which can be produced, while there is no danger that there will be too much of it for the next half-century. The figures are interesting. It is estimated that by all the beet-sugar factories of this country there were produced last year but 40,000 tons. The annual consumption of sugar in this country is 2,110,000 tons, and this amount will of course increase with growth in population. It is estimated that the average acre of sugar beets will yield one ton of pure sugar, or, in other words, that it will require more than 2,000,000 acres of the vegetable to supply the home demand!—Farmers Voice.

PIGS ALONG SHORE.

They Are Fed on Fresh Fish to a Considerable Extent.

Pigs like fish, and pigs raised along shore owned by fishermen get plenty of fish to eat. Sometimes fish is fed to the fish to clear them of scurvy. Horseshoe crabs are often fed to pigs, the crabs being cut clear of the shells so that the pigs can get at them easily; the pigs like horseshoes.

Often around salt water creeks minnows are caught and dumped into pig pens by the bushel. Many fish have hard, sharp, projecting spines that might stick in the pig's throat. When fish of this sort are fed the spines are first cut off, and only the bodies and tails fed. One of the names of the American sole is hog choker.

Other food is fed along with fish, and fish is never fed to the pigs before killing time; it would make the pork taste fishy. Pigs will eat soft clams. Down Bay of Fundy way pigs go out at low tide and root up mussels. There, where the tide rises 40 or 50 feet, and comes in with great suddenness, it is necessary for the pigs to be on the alert, and they are. They hear the first sound of the coming tide wave and turn and scamper for the shore, and even then they get there none too soon, occasionally.—N. Y. Sun.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

It might be well for you to change the variety of your corn. Think of it.

Broadcast sowing of ashes on plowed ground, before planting, is a good way of application.

Peas make an excellent green manure, but we would advise growing peas for the food they furnish.

In the new west, plant fruit trees and shade trees, even if you fail to grow them. It is worth the trial.

An advertiser who will cheat a newspaper on his advertising will cheat the customer on the goods sold him.

Perhaps there is, under ordinary circumstances, nothing better for pasture than clover, red clover, timothy and blue grass.

If you have a good farm and a good son, let him do the farming while you rest. A man who has developed both a good farm and a good son deserves rest.

Don't be afraid to buy a poor farm. If you cannot buy a good one. Brains, manure and management will make a worn-out farm good.—Western Plowman.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING.

Its General Introduction Is a Matter of National Importance.

The national importance of the question of growing our own sugar supply is fast being realized, both by the farmers who will most directly benefit by its realization, and by the general public who are beginning to discern the extensive ramifications of an industry which will keep an immense amount of money at home which has hitherto been sent abroad. It is a feature—perhaps the principal one—in a large scheme for such a widening of our agricultural operations as will embrace the production of many articles now imported and which can be profitable and successfully raised at home. To-day we are importing large quantities of tobacco which might as well be grown here, where our varied climatic conditions are favorable for the many varieties of the fragrant weed. There are also several vegetable fibers adapted for home growth, but for which large sums are annually sent to other countries—such as hemp, flax, jute, etc. That the home growth of tobacco is capable of large extension is evinced by the fact that, for the year ending June last, over $18,500,000 was paid for foreign grown and manufactured tobacco. To import cotton, seems very like the proverbial "sending coals to Newcastle," but $7,000,000 worth were received during the same period; while of vegetable fibres, such as hemp, flax, jute, manila hemp, etc., close on $40,000,000 worth were imported, including both raw and manufactured material. Here are over $65,000,000 paid out for purely agricultural products which, with our almost unlimited natural resources, can be raised by our farmers. There may be some deductions on account of brands of foreign-grown tobacco necessary for certain uses, and also for some descriptions of cotton; but the bulk of the large sum mentioned could certainly be retained at home, and will be when our farmers are more alive to their necessities. Corn and cotton are both important factors in our agricultural economics, but it is possible and advisable to have more than one or two crops to rely on; and the more diversified the farmer's operations, the less is he likely to suffer from an over-abundance of either cotton or corn.—Journal of Agriculture.

NEAT SAFETY DEVICE.

No Farmer Should Dig a Well Without Constructing One.

It is often necessary to dig a well upon the farm, or make some other form of excavation in the ground. There is always serious danger to the man who is at the bottom digging. The rope may break, the hook may slip, the bail of the bucket may break or slip out, or some of the stones in the bucket may be spilled. The man below ought to have some safety device like that shown in the cut, to stand beneath as soon as the bucket begins its ascent. A few moment's labor will make it, and a life may be saved by its use.—N. Y. Tribune.

Some Causes of Failure.

One of the most important things about good farming that most of us have to learn is to avoid waste. We pay taxes on land that we do not farm; we only half cultivate our fields, and so waste both land and labor; we leave a large percentage of the crop in the field; we waste time and capital raising inferior animals; we waste money in buying what we should raise ourselves; we waste energy in trying to do more than any one man can do right; we waste opportunities to improve our condition by staying away from institutes and neglecting to read papers; we waste—in a thousand and one ways, and then we are ready to say that "farming don't pay." And it is no wonder.—Rural World.

Bamboos in the South.

Experiments in Florida and Louisiana have shown that bamboo will grow in those states almost as well as in the hottest countries. Around Fort Myers there are bamboos that have attained to a height of 50 or 60 feet. They are of a variety which usually grows to about 70 feet in India. In Orange county there is one clump of bamboos, said to be only ten years old, in which the stalks have attained to the height of 65 feet, the stalks averaging 13 inches in circumference. There are eighty stalks in the clump. This particular clump is of a variety from Bengal, where the wood is used for building purposes and for light spars for vessels.

Care of Farm Machinery.

More harvesting machinery is destroyed by the hot sun of midsummer than by actual cost. The wood work of machinery lasts much longer if it is given a coat of linseed oil once a year. Some idle day go over the running gears of the wagon and give the cultivators, harrows, hay rakes and other machines a coat of the same. Anyone can do this, as there is no danger of geting too much oil on the wood, and it will not hurt the metal parts in any way.

METHODS HERE AND ABROAD.

Ways of Steering Boats in England, France and Germany.

A comparison of the different methods of doing what is practically the same thing in various parts of the world is both interesting and amusing to the thoughtful observer, says Cassier's Magazine. On American ferryboats the import is well known of the "ting-ting" or "jingle-jingle" of the bell by which the man in the wheelhouse communicates with his fellow mortal in the engine room. On the Thames, however, it would be considered practically impossible to convey information in this manner, and the captains of the small paddle steamers on that stream stand on the paddle boxes and sing out: "Ease 'er!" "Back 'er!" etc., apparently to nobody in particular, while these interesting remarks are promptly repeated in shrill tones by a small boy into a speaking tube which communicates with the lower regions. On the Seine, in France, this process is simplified and a large trumpet-shaped mouthpiece flares out in front of the man at the wheel, and he yells his commands into this funnel, the other end of which is supposed to reach the engineer. The large steamers on the Rhine, in Germany, are controlled, not by the usual wheel placed in the wheelhouse forward, but by a very large wheel on a vertical axis, placed right amidships upon an elevated platform or bridge, and several men pass the handles from right to left, or upon occasion trot round in a circle, and it would doubtless be considered a serious temptation of Providence, or at least a reflection upon the fatherland, if anyone were to attempt to construct a Rhine steamer with the ordinary form of steering gear.

The Great Railway Detective Tells What Dr. Miles' Remedies Have Done For Himself and Wife.

DETECTIVE work requires constant vigilance, steady nerves, a clear head and active brain. "A year ago," writes Capt. Duffey, of 631 Orchard St., Toledo, Ohio, "I overworked myself, was in such a condition sleep was impossible. I was so nervous I could not lie in bed; my arms and limbs twitched and my system seemed completely exhausted. I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine and the fourth bottle restored me to health. Mrs. Duffey had suffered for eighteen years with heart disease, had tried every remedy without avail until she took Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure two years ago. For the past year she has been free from the trouble."

TECUMSEH, MICH., MAY 28, 1897.

The sale of the Adrian street railway did not take place Tuesday, simply because no one cared to make a bid. Now what will be done with the thing, no one seems to know. Will it run, or will it quit?

Our sister village, Clinton, has risen up in her wrath and said to both male and female, who dare the "bike" to stride, "Ride not at all upon the sidewalk either in daylight or in darkness. Push not the wheel without a tinkling symbol that thy coming may always be heralded for the protection of all animals both biped and quadruped who might by chance get in the way. Put not thy light under a bushel, but dare not appear on the street after sunset without a $4.00 'bike' lamp which shall be lighted and shining brightly. Neither shall any rider go faster than a walk through the principle streets and if he cannot ride at this slow pace a leader must be secured who will hold him up till over the paved district. For the violation of any provisions of this ordinance severe penalty is imposed. the extreme limit of which is to take away the sinner's wheel and compel him to stay in Clinton for a month. Since this action of our sister village, many people in Tecumseh have suggested that our city fathers take a like step. There are two sides to this bicycle question. There is no doubt that when the roads are good wheels should keep in the roads and off the sidewalks; but with the small amount of travel in either Clinton or Tecumseh, with proper regulation as to speed, the wheel should be allowed the use of the walks in daylight from October 1st until May 1st, and even during the summer when the roads are unfit for use. A bell should be attached to every wheel to give warning when safety demands its use; but in villages well lighted with electricity, there is no more use for a lantern on a wheel than that every pedestrian should wear one in his hat. On the streets of Tecumseh may now be seen three bicycles to one vehicle of any other kind and yet the village law makers would legislate to the annoyance of wheel owners simply for the sake of making laws. In Tecumseh there are now 400 wheels and certainly the owners of these machines should be allowed some rights the same as people who ride after horses or depend entirely on the pedal extremities for means of locomotion. Quite a number of these wheel owners also have the privilege of voting.

A Good Thing.

The Cook Twin Sisters Big Uncle Tom's Cabin Co., at Tecumseh, under canvas, June 1st, is actually a $20,000 production of this grand old historical play—a magnificent scenic production. It requires a whole train of three sixty-foot palace cars to transport this mammoth spectacle; fifty people; twenty ponies, donkeys and burros, eight original jubilee singers; a pack of seven man-eating Siberian and Cuban bloodhounds; Eva's golden chariot, a "thing of beauty," costing over $3000; one big band of music; Uncle Tom and his typical Southern ox-cart. The grand free street parade is the finest ever witnessed. The sight of a lifetime.

COMIC OPERA.

New Croswell Opera House, Adrian—Week of June 14.

The Mac Kay Comic Opera Co. will occupy the boards of the New Croswell Opera House, Adrian, during the week of June 14th. The troupe numbers 25 people and will give a week of comic opera at popular prices—10, 20, 30 and 50 cents. All the standard comic opera successes are sung by this organization. They are appearing before crowded houses this week at Bay City. It is the intention of the management to run one or two excursions on the Detroit and Lima Northern for this event. We trust that sufficient interest may be developed in Tecumseh to make the special trains an assured fact.

The Greatest Country On Earth.

The Land of Promise is down South in the eight great Southern States penetrated by the Southern Railway. One way settler's tickets and round trip excursion tickets are sold by lines leading south in connection with the Southern Railway to give people a chance to see that Great Country. The Southern Railway runs to Ashville and Hot Springs, N. C., "The Land of the Sky," America's Great Resort of Health and Pleasure. Through vestibule trains from Cincinnati and Louisville via Queen & Cresent Route to Knoxville, Ashville Columbia Savannah and Jacksonville.

MEASURING THE EARTH.

The Mountains and Stars Are Both Called Into Use by Astronomers.

The longest distance ever encompassed by the human vision, so far as the records go, is 183 miles, between the Uncompahgre peak in Colorado, and Mount Ellen, in Utah. This feat was accomplished by the surveyors of the United States coast and geodetic survey, who are now engaged, in conjunction with representatives of other nations, in making a new measurement of the earth, says the Philadelphia Record.

The observers on the Pacific coast have been able to signal from Mount Shasta to Mount Helena, a distance of 190 miles, but have never been able to get a response. Between the two other peaks communication has been continuous for an hour or more on several occasions.

The Uncompahgre is 14,300 feet in height, while Mount Ellen is 13,400.

The longest distance that the human eye ever reached until this record was made was between Algiers and Spain, 168 miles.

The measuring of the earth, which is now going on, is no simple task. The width of the ocean can only be ascertained by astronomical observations. The observers at Greenwich and at Washington note each night the exact moment of the rising of certain stars, and then, by mathematical calculations, turn the difference in time into distance. This is corrected and corroborated by other observations upon other stars, and by a series of experiments, which furnish an average that is approximately accurate.

The difference is seldom more than a small fraction of a second, and is attributed to atmospheric phenomena.

The Pacific ocean is measured in a similar manner by joint observations with the Lick telescope, in California, and that of the Imperial university of Japan, at Tokio.

A MAN OF PRUDENCE.

Why He Didn't Kill the Barkeep at That Time.

The cowboy was sitting in his chair tilted back against the shady side of the saloon, taking it easy, when one of his friends came by, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Hello, Dick!" he said. "What's this story about the barkeep over the way callin' you a liar yesterday and bullyraggin' you around fer an hour or more?"

"That's what he done," admitted Dick, boldly.

"What did you let him do it fer?"

"I had my reasons."

"'Fraid of him?"

Dick jumped up.

"Hold on, there, pard," he said. "You ain't in the same fix that the barkeep was, and it ain't safe."

"Don't you worry about me. What about the barkeep?"

"Well, it was this way," explained Dick. "The barkeep was negotiatin' fer a policy on his life fer $10,000 in favor of his widder. The business wasn't settled till this mornin'. Now it's in workin' order, an' I'm goin' over after awhile and give him a chance to bullyrag me some more. Then I'll go round and have a little talk with the widder. You must think I'm a chump that can't see past the end of my nose."

Turtle as a Fox Trap.

C. R. Perry, of Herrick, Pa., has been fattening a 20-pound snapping turtle all winter. One Sunday his turtleship was taken out of the barrel and allowed to wander about the yard. Early one morning recently Perry was aroused by the noise of a scuffle in the yard. Repairing there, he found the turtle hanging to the nose of a big fox, which had been stealing from the henneries in the vicinity for a month. Br'er Fox was near the fence endeavoring to get over, but his efforts were blocked by the turtle. Eventually the fox reached the next yard, but Farmer Perry followed and shot him dead. The turtle all the time retained his hold and refused to let go until the fox's nose was cut off. Then it crawled back to its home, carrying the nose with it as a trophy.

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS IN MANCHESTER.

Mack & Co's entire stock of dry goods, clothing, shoes and groceries to be sold at retail or in bulk at less than 3-4 makers' prices. The enlarging and remodeling of our store in Ann Arbor by which its size will be increased to 2 1-2 times its present size, makes it impossible to give the attention to our business in Manchester its importance requires and compels us to dispose of it either in bulk or at retail, with the least possible delay. Having this purpose in view we begin Saturday, this week, May 29th a great closing out sale selling every article now in our store at less than manufactures' or jobbers' wholesale price. All kinds of notions, hosiery, underwear, domestics, ribbons, gloves, etc., divided into great lots. See what you'll find in lot 1, lot 2, lot 3 and lot 4. Be the first to get your pick from these great lots, Saturday, May 29th.

BASE BALL.

But Two Hits Made Off Harris—Strikes Out Twelve Men.

The base ball season opened at the driving park Saturday afternoon, with a hot game between the Adrian college team and the home club and proved to be as fine an exhibition as is often seen. If this is the kind of games we are to have, there will be no need of our cranks going from home to see base ball. Considering its being the first game for our boys, they played great ball; although there were errors, many of them were excusible on account of the strong wind prevailing. After the first inning, Harris settled down to business and had the batters at his mercy.

In this inning, Steele, the first man at bat, made a hit—Waters got his base on balls, and Munden his by being hit by a ball resulting in two score. This would have ended their runs but for Spalding's error in the 3rd, which let in Steele. Umpire Lowe was prompt in his decisions, and impartial. Not a kick from either side was made and in this respect it was a model game. Although our boys hit Steele freely, they were of little avail until the 7th inning, when hits by Heesen, Parrish, Spalding and Harris, coupled with errors by Waters, Steele and Hammond, five runs were scored. It was the first appearance on the diamond here of Bowerman and Parrish and they demonstrated their ability to hit the ball and fielded their positions well.

While he was in no wise to blame, his replacing it will do him no harm.

Sunday afternoon, while Will Bennett who had a cousin and John J. Orr in the buggy with him, was coming down Pottawatamee street when near C. A. Slayton's a party on a bike sailed by, causing one of the horses to jump. Will took him up quick when the strap or band which holds the pole broke, then matters became interesting, the pole dropping down, was very erratic, could'nt tell where it would go and the horses became excited. They started across the street for Wes Bordines, the pole ran under the walk up to the whiffletrees and the occupants of the carriage went out without ceremony. Affairs for a few moments were exciting and decidedly mixed. After righting matters, aside from broken whiffletrees and neck yoke, no damage was done to the carriage and save a general shaking up and some bruises, the occupants escaped. It was a fortunate termination of what might have been a serious affair.

Confidential Clerk Mason Is a Good Man.

GETTING POPULAR IN WASHINGTON

He Welcomes Every Michigan Visitor to the War Department with a Glad Hand —Garbled Facts Concerning Some Recent Appointments — Ex-Governor Rich at the National Capital to Demand a Higher Duty on Wool.

Washington, May 25.—There is a disposition on the part of some correspondents, and on the part of some editors, to garble facts and mistate news occurrences. Last week a Washington correspondent sent out word that George Farr had been appointed collector of customs at Grand Haven, and that James A. Coye had been appointed surveyor of customs at Grand Rapids. That was a mere statement of fact. One of the editors in western Michigan, however, added to the news matter, the assertion that both of those appointments had been secured solely through the influence of Congressman William Alden Smith. The object of the assertion was, of course, to keep up a political wrangle and row; but it is just as well to remember that the Michigan senators are somewhat influential in Washington, and the president always consults them before making appointments. It is all right for an ambitious congressman to keep himself before the people, and advertise himself, but there is such a thing as overdoing it; and the man who claims all, or whose friends claim all for him, ignoring all others in the political world, will ultimately have more enemies than he can handle.

Growing in Popularity.

Confidential Clerk Mason is growing in popularity here. He is closer to Secretary of War Alger than any other man in the war department. He is a good business man and meets with many people who transact business with him; thereby saving a great deal of time for Secretary Alger. Nobody knows what a bore it is to a secretary to be obliged to listen to tales of woe, and listen patiently, when there is a great deal of public business to be transacted. In such cases a good private secretary is a jewel. Mr. Mason understands the current business of the war department, and knows just who should and who should not have access to the private offices of the secretary. He welcomes every Wolverine visitor to the war department with a warm heart, gay face and glad hand. He knows all of the friends of General Alger, not only his Michigan friends, but from every state in the republic; and hence he is an invaluable aid to the secretary.

Not Bothered by Officeseekers.

Congressman Brucker of the Saginaw district is the only member of the Michigan delegation in the national house of representatives who has been here during the past week. He is a silver Democrat, and has no influence with the present administration; so he is not bothered by constituents who seek office. The other congressmen are at their homes, looking after business matters, and listening to the stories of the hungry and thirsty who feel that their lives will be forever miserable, unless they can make connection with the pay roll of the government.

Dr. William M. Edwards, superintendent of the Kalamazoo insane asylum, has been attending the convention of superintendents of asylums in our neighboring city of Baltimore. He spent several days in Washington before leaving for home. He called upon Senator Burrows and Senator McMillan, and occupied a seat in the gallery during the debates on the Cuban question.

Ex-Governor Rich, accompanied by several parties interested in the wool schedules of the tariff bill, were here last week demanding a higher duty on wool. The gentlemen brought with them a sample case of skirted and unskirted wool, which they exhibited with pardonable pride to many senators. The case is a large canvas covered box, and opens like a book, and the samples of wools were marked, so that their value might be readily understood. The wool was grown by Payne K. Leech of Utica, Mich., and was shorn in April.

May Have a Hearing.

Senator Burrows has undertaken to secure a hearing for the gentlemen before the full committee on finance; but that is a difficult matter, because the committee has not been disposed to give hearings concerning the schedules in the bill.

Senator Burrows, although a member of the committee on finance, is a new member, and too much must not be expected of him in special matters. While it is true that he is one of the most experienced men in public life and one of the best informed upon all phases of the subjects of finance and revenue, the people must understand that the senate is a very conservative body, and no one man can achieve too many special favors in the formation of a tariff bill. All measures of that character are compromise measures; and every senator is obliged to concede much to his colleagues. Nevertheless, his membership of the committee on finance will enable Senator Burrows to do much more than could be accomplished by him if he had not attained that important position. The interests of Michigan will be protected by him to the best of his ability, and he will have the hearty co-operation of Senator McMillan.

By the way, continued service in the senate gives power and strength to the men who have back of them the united support of great commonwealths. By reason of his continued service in that body, Senator McMillan has attained the chairmanship of the committee on the District of Columbia. That is a very important position, and Senator McMillan is so highly respected that he can accomplish much for Michigan by making personal appeals to senators; and often in the senate personal requests are more potential than forensic efforts. That is what is meant by the common expression "senatorial courtesy."

Ex-Congressman Linton has given up quest for office, if indeed, he ever seriously hoped for high federal preferment. The appointment of a cabinet officer and an assistant secretary of the treasury from Michigan decreased the chances of all others for big positions. Moreover, the appointment of President Angell to that foreign mission, gave Michigan a pretty full quota of fine plums; albeit Angell was not officially charged to the state, but was a personal appointment of the president.

There is considerable misunderstanding among candidates for presidential postoffices. It is not only necessary to have the indorsement of your congressman, but also the indorsement of both senators. Furthermore, it must be understood that in the Third and Eighth congressional districts, which are represented by Democrats, all successful applicants must have the indorsement of both senators. In no other way can these offices be obtained.

Prominent Ohio Men.

"The fecundity of Ohio is simply phenomenal," says ex-Senator Sanders of Montana. "Ohio gave to this country General Grant, General Sherman, General Sheridan, Senator Sherman, President Hayes, General Rosecrans, President Garfield, Chief Justice Chase, Associate Justice Stanley Matthews, and President McKinley. Moreover, Ohio gave us Senators Allison of Iowa, Manderson of Nebraska, Sanders of Montana, Squire of Washington, and many others whose names would fill a volume."

Senator Sanders is one of the most remarkable of men; able, brilliant, and eloquent. Not the most sensational hero of dime fiction ever approached the wildness of his adventures, particularly during his leadership of the vigilantes. Sanders' queer experiences date back to his very young manhood. In 1861, when Andrew Johnson was still in the senate, and the senators of the southern Confederate states had left that body, there was a late night session drawing near to the close of congress. There was so much noise that Charles Sumner demanded that the galleries should be cleared. Senator Johnson objected, but the galleries were cleared.

No Lack of Cheek.

Ex-Senator Charles F. Manderson and ex-Senator Sanders, at that time young lawyers from Canton, O., were in the galleries, and of course they went out with the crowd. Later on the galleries were reopened, but Sanders said he didn't care to go back there—he meant to go on the floor of the senate. Manderson marveled at his cheek, and contented himself with a seat in the gallery, while Sanders announced to the senate doorkeeper that he was "a senator of the southern Confederacy," and as such entitled to admittance to the floor. The doorkeeper was so dumfounded that he let Sanders pass and he seated himself coolly under the eye of his friend Manderson in the gallery. At the close of the session he beckoned Manderson to come down, but that individual did not respond, so that at length Sanders went up to the gallery to see what the matter was.

Boots with French Heels.

Now, it so happened that Manderson had on a pair of the $7 boots with French heels which were at that time the joy of every unmitigated swell. They were awfully tight, of course, and he had taken them off to ease his feet while he sat in the gallery and watched with admiring eyes his cheeky friend Sanders on the floor. He put his feet on the rail of the gallery in delicious comfort, while they swelled and swelled until, when Sanders came up to wake him, he could not get the boots on again at all. And it is an actual fact that he was obliged to walk down Capitol hill and along Pennsylvania avenue to the Metropolitan hotel, where and Sanders were stopping, in his stocking feet. The most interesting point about this story is found in the circumstance that both of these poor Canton lawyers, thirty years afterwards became members of the United States senate.

Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota tells a good story concerning the administration of justice on the frontier. He says that when he went from Wisconsin to Dakota territory twenty-nine years ago a tenderfoot judge was holding court at the extreme frontier in a town on the banks of the Missouri river, where it chanced that an indictment for murder was brought against three men who had hanged a horsethief to a telegraph pole.

Motion Promptly Granted.

The accused were released on their own bonds, and when the day came for their trial they came into court, unaccompanied by an attorney, and advanced toward the judge, each one of them with his hand on a brace of 44-caliber revolvers, and moved that the case be adjourned for a year, during which they should be released as before on their own personal bonds. The judge promptly granted the motion, remarking subsequently that the argument in its behalf was the most powerful he had ever heard in a court of law.

When the year was gone by no further action was instituted, until it happened that one of the three men was elected to the legislature. His seat was contested and the contestant, wishing to throw odium upon his adversary, had him arrested upon the old indictment for murder and confined in jail, which was immediately beneath the room in the court house where the legislature met. The county was not willing to pay for the prisoner's board, nor would the town or territorial authorities, and so the contestant paid it. But he lost his case and thereupon announced that he would not pay for his opponent's support any longer. So, inasmuch as no one else would become responsible for it, the man was liberated, walked upstairs, and took his seat in due form in the legislative body.

A Story of Dubois.

"When Senator Dubois was a candidate for congress in the territory of Idaho," says George Biglow, "his opponent was old John Hailey. Old John used to say to the fellows at the mining camps: 'This man Dubois always wears biled shirts, and he drinks tea for his breakfast.'"

This was a clinching argument against Dubois until it was heard by a man in the mines who had been at Yale college with Dubois. He immediately took the stump and addressed the crowds as follows:

"Gentlemen: Fred Dubois is no dude, but a man of the people. I went to college with him. He used to swear, and fight and drink, and raise the devil all the time. He can drink a pint of whisky before breakfast, and he never tasted tea in his life."

Dubois was elected to congress three times, and then elected to the senate.

A COMPROMISE.

Merriman Railroad Tax Measure Passes the House.

Gov. Pingree's Followers Acquiesce After Strongly Denouncing the Concessions Made to the Roads —Gossip from Lansing.

(Special Correspondence.)

Lansing, May 26. — The Merriman bill, which increases the specific taxes of Michigan railroads about $200,000 annually, was passed by the lower house of the state legislature Tuesday afternoon at the close of the warmest scene of the session. The bill as passed is the result of a compromise between the house and the senate, the former body having voted to raise the taxes about $500,000, while the senate agreed to a bill providing for an increase of $170,000. The Pingree men of the house wished to double the railroad taxes, and Col. Atkinson, of Detroit, who is admittedly the governor's representative on the floor of the house, bitterly denounced the concessions which were made. F. C. Chamberlain spoke for the bill as passed, declaring it better to increase the taxes $200,000 than to obtain nothing at all, as it was either the compromise bill or nothing. Col. Atkinson's acquiescence in the action of the house is construed as an indication that Gov. Pingree will sign the bill, although he has stated repeatedly that he would do no such thing, but would convene the legislature in special session until the railroads should be made to bear their share of taxation. The Merriman bill as passed by both houses provides a tax upon the gross earnings of railroads of 2½ per cent., where the earnings are less than $2,000 per mile, 3¼ per cent. where the earnings are from $2,000 to $4,000, 4 per cent. where the earnings are from $4,000 to $6,000, 4½ per cent. where the earnings are from $6,000 to $8,000 and 5 per cent. where the earnings exceed $8,000 per mile.

The house Monday in committee of the whole agreed to an anti-trust bill which prohibits any combination to increase or decrease the price of commodities and provides a penalty for violation of not less than $500 nor more than $2,000. The bill was hotly attacked on constitutional grounds, and is not believed by lawyers to be able to stand the scrutiny of the courts. A bill was also agreed to increasing the franchise fee of corporations from one-half mill to 1½ mills upon each dollar of capital stock. It also increased the minimum fee from five dollars to $20.

The legislative committee which investigated the pardon by Gov. Pingree of Convict Wixom, an inmate of the Jackson state prison, reported Monday night that the pardon was irregular, and intimated that Sybrant Wesslius, state railroad commissioner, was responsible for it. The committee reported testimony to the effect that Wesslius was to have gotten $500 for his influence in securing the pardon, and charges that the railroad commissioner is guilty of contempt in having failed to respond to a subpoena summoning him before the committee. The committee reports that Deputy Warden Wiesman, who is a friend of Wesslius, interested himself in getting Wixom pardoned out, on the supposition that he would receive $2,000 for it, and that Wesslius was in all probability instrumental in obtaining the pardon.

The senators have decided not to act upon the bill repealing the Michigan Central special charter, the Widoe 500-mile ticket bill or the Donovan interchangeable mileage book bill until some agreement is reached on the specific tax bill.

Gov. Pingree has vetoed the following bills: Appropriating $5,000 for construction of a driveway at the Mackinac Island State park; appropriating $3,000 for the support of the Michigan Pioneer and Historical society, giving his reasons as economy and the lack of necessity. He also vetoed a bill increasing the salaries of police justices of the city of Detroit.

The Bell Telephone company won a victory Wednesday, when the house defeated the maximum rate bill, which provided that where rates were reduced to shut out competition the lowest rate should govern in all cities of like population.

On Friday the senate passed the uniform text-book bill, which the house passed a fortnight ago. The bill is not all the friends of the system desired, as it exempts all districts adopting the free text-book system prior to January 1, 1899, and also permits districts to vote themselves from under its provisions if they see fit to do so.

A bill agreed to by the house in committee of the whole provides a tax of one cent per gallon on all beer sold in the state.

The senate refused to pass the bill removing the homeopath college from the state university at Ann Arbor to Detroit by a vote of ten yeas to fifteen nays.

July 13, 1898, the state board of health of Michigan will have been in existence 25 years, and the board want to arrange a celebration of the event. On behalf of the board, a concurrent resolution was introduced in the house that when the national convention of boards of health occurs at Nashville, the governor send an invitation for the next convention to be held in Michigan. Also, that the various health authorities of the United States be brought here and that all the distinguished visitors be shown the beauties of Michigan as a health resort state.

The governor has signed the bill giving hotel keepers and boarding house keepers the right to hold and sell property of guests for the payment of board due. He has also approved the Holmes mechanics' lien bill, giving to men who furnish material for buildings a lien equal with a labor lien.

TOO MUCH WORK

For a Healthy Existence.—That's Why the Kidneys so often Fail.

Nature has provided a certain amount of work for every organ of the human body; overtax them and disease eventually follows. There is not one portion of our organism that is so overworked as the kidneys; on them is placed the important function of filtering the blood of the impurities which naturally form in the regular action of life and digestion. The kidneys are consequently termed the sewerage of the system; clog up this sewer, and the blood becomes tainted with poisonous uric acid, which brings on disease in many forms. The back is the first to show this stoppage. From there comes the warning note; it should be heeded, and the kidneys receive prompt attention. Doan's Kidney Pills will right the action of the kidneys quickly, relieve the back of pains and aches, and cure all troubles of kidneys and bladder. Read the following:

Mr. Wm. Nelson is a well-known business man of Kalamazoo, he resides at 822 Portage Street, and his business is that of a grain buyer. He says:

"For five years I have suffered from an inability to urinate, which resulted from what was said to be a stoppage of the bladder. During these years I have taken mineral and electric baths and used other means in expectancy of getting better, but they all proved unavailing. Some months ago I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which I had heard highly recommended, and I can now say that the flattering reports were not greater than they deserved. I got better right along, and I am free from any trouble now. I feel better than I have done for three years past. If Doan's Kidney Pills were well known all over they would do an immense amount of good."

FORT MACKINAC.

Park Board Anxious to Have Uncle Sam Again Take Possession.

Detroit, May 24.—Peter White, of Marquette, was in the city Sunday en route to Washington, where he will endeavor to persuade the government again to take possession of Fort Mackinac, which had been deeded to Michigan, and to make it a properly garrisoned army post. Mr. White has been authorized by the Mackinac park board, of which he is chairman, to deed the fort back to the United States, together with as much contingent land as is necessary for garrison purposes. The legislative authority for this was granted last winter. The board believes that continued maintenance of a fort on the island is a necessity and incidentally a decided advantage to the island.

DIED AT SEA.

Millionaire Tanner of Detroit Dies on an Ocean Steamship.

Detroit, May 21.—When the steamship Trave arrived in New York Thursday it was announced that Trangott Schmidt, of this city, had died during the voyage from cancer of the stomach. He was returning home from a visit to Germany, where he went in quest of health. He was one of the wealthiest Germans in Michigan. He represented the twelfth generation of tanners in his family and had been in the tanning business in Detroit since 1850. All these years he had been an extensive wool dealer and leather manufacturer. He was 67 years of age and leaves a widow and five children. A conservative estimate places his wealth at $2,500,000.

Accused of Robbery.

Jackson, May 24. — Chief of Police Boyle Sunday afternoon arrested George P. Thompson, wanted at Detroit for the larceny of $2,400 worth of diamond jewelry from Carrie Brown of that city. Thompson, who came of a good family, was cast off by his people. The Brown woman cared for him, and when she was away from home he looted the place and fled. This was a year ago. Thompson was passing under the name of Harry Russell, and six months ago married a young girl here. He has been fully identified.

New Clew in the Clark Case.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 23.—The police have found a clew now that gives every indication of leading to the solution of the Clark murder mystery. It involves a woman, and the man in the case is also under surveillance. Everything done on this particular line of investigation has pointed to the conclusion that Clark was taken by surprise when he was murdered, and the discoveries already made seem to fit this new theory.

Address to Populists.

Grand Rapids, May 22. — Secretary James E. McBride, of the middle-of-the-road populist party, has issued an address to the populists of the state calling attention to the national conference to be held in Nashville on July 4, and urging all true believers in the Omaha platform to forsake their fusion allegiance and again take up the fight for principle.

Call on State Banks.

Lansing, May 22. — Bank Commissioner Just has issued a call on state banks for a report at the close of business May 14.

ADVENTISTS SUED.

Mr. Henry Claims His Reputation Has Suffered and Demands $50,000.

Battle Creek, May 22.—Archibald R. Henry, of this city, is suing to recover from the General Conference association of the Seventh Day Adventists damages of $50,000 for disseminating articles detrimental to his character and lowering him in the estimation of the people of that denomination. Mr. Henry has been prominent in almost every board of the many institutions of the Adventist denomination, treasurer of the college and treasurer of the publishing company. He was relieved from the latter position about four months ago, and he attributes his loss of prestige in the denomination to the dissemination of several articles, visions or so-called inspired writings by Mrs. Ellen G. White, charging him with worldliness and with being possessed by satanic impulses and influences. Mr. Henry attributes in part Mrs. White's attacks on him to his being instrumental in having the amount of royalties on her publications cut down. Mrs. White is now in Australia, where she has been for several years, and despite her advanced years is one of the most active and influential members of the denomination.

MONEY FOR THE SUFFERERS.

Big Sum to Be Distributed Among Ontonagon People.

Ontonagan, May 21.—The legislature has at last passed the bill appropriating $25,000 for the fire sufferers of this place, and the money will be distributed by a commission to be appointed by the governor. The appropriation bill specifically provides that none of the money shall go toward paying any of the bonded indebtedness of the village, which amounts to $75,000. The improvements for which the indebtedness was incurred were completely wiped out by the destructive fire of last August. Although the Diamond Match company has permanently abandoned the town and is closing out its interests here as rapidly as possible, nearly half of the taxable property is owned by that concern, and as the local feeling toward the big corporation is none of the best, the assessor will probably see to it that the Diamond Match property is appraised at its full value, and the company will have to pay its full share of the bonded debt.

BUYS ASSEMBLY GROUNDS.

A Chicagoan in Control of the Hackley Park Property at Lake Harbor.

Muskegon, May 24.—Thomas Thorkildsen, of Chicago, has bought the Hackley park assembly grounds at Lake Harbor from Albert Dodge, of Grand Rapids, who obtained title from the association when it failed to make the assembly idea pay. A committee of the Good Templars also sold to the same person the state building known as the Temple. Lathrop hall, the state W. C. T. U. building, is not affected, as the women have absolute title. Mr. Dodge's deal was complicated by a suit in ejectment began against him by Edward F. Swett, late of Chicago and owner of the Lake Harbor hotel, who claims to own lands from the Lake Harbor company, which gave them to the association for assembly purposes. Dodge filed receipts showing he had paid the association's debts. Thorkildsen must run some kind of an assembly.

PINGREE'S OFFER.

The Governor Will Give Prizes to Ambitious Students.

Lansing, May 22.—Gov. Pingree has issued the following:

"To the student of any college in Michigan preparing an historical paper tracing the most accurate parallel in ancient or modern history with the present social and political conditions in the United States, and giving the causes of this parallel condition, I hereby offer a prize of $25 cash. To the second best paper, a prize of $15 cash, and to the third best paper $10 cash. Papers must be prepared and mailed to the executive office at Lansing not later than September 1, 1897. Judges will be announced later. H. S. PINGREE, "Governor."

Michigan Congregationalists.

Saginaw, May 21.—At the meeting of the State Congregational association in this city Dr. Hermau P. DeForest, of Detroit, was chosen moderator. Rev. John P. Sanderson presented a report on the churches of the state. It shows the number of churches to be 350 and the membership 31,622, against 30,600 at the last meeting. The Sunday schools have a membership of 42,117 and have gained 477 during the year. The enrollment of the Y. P. S. C. E. is 14,602, an increase of 1,000. The home expenditures during the year were $170,714, a decrease of $32,000, and the benevolences were $61,989.95, a decrease of $8,000.

Ironworkers Agree on a Scale.

Detroit, Mich., May 24.—With the exception of the sheet-iron and tinplate items, the general wage scale of the Amalgamated Association of Iron Steel and Tinworkers has practically been settled so far as the association is concerned. The entire scale has been revised and the rates of wages on a few kinds of work have been slightly increased, while on others there have been reductions.

A Young Receiver.

Saginaw, Mich., May 24. — Homer Loring, of Newton, Mass., has been appointed receiver of the Union and Consolidated street railways of this city. He is very young for the position—21 years old. He is a son of S. D. Loring, a wealthy broker, of Boston, Mass., who represents the interests of the bondholders. The bond as receiver is fixed at $75,000.

Mint Crop Damaged by Frost.

Decatur, May 26. — The Michigan peppermint crop was seriously damaged Monday night by severe frost. Growers estimate the injury to the old mint in some localities to be over one-half.

Fell Down Stairs.

Decatur, May 26. — Mrs. Martha Buchanan, of Allegan, aged 63 years, was killed by falling downstairs.

A PLUCKY LITTLE PIGEON.

Nansen Owns and Cherishes One of the Wonders of the World.

One day a wonderful bird tapped at the window of Mrs. Nansen's home at Christiania. Instantly the window was opened and the wife of the famous Arctic explorer in another moment covered the little messenger with kisses and caresses. The carrier pigeon had been away from the cottage 30 long months, but it had not forgotten the way home. It brought a note from Nansen stating that all was going well with him and his expedition in the polar regions.

Nansen had fastened a message to a carrier pigeon and turned the bird loose. The frail courier darted out into the blizzardy air. It flew like an arrow over a thousand miles of frozen waste, and then sped forward over another thousand miles of ocean and plains and forests, and one morning entered the window of the waiting mistress and delivered the message which she had been awaiting so anxiously.

We boast of human pluck, says the New York Mail and Express, sagacity and endurance, but this loving little carrier pigeon, in its homeward flight after an absence of 30 months, accomplished a feat so wonderful that we can only give ourselves up to the amazement and admiration which must overwhelm everyone when the marvelous story is told. Mrs. Nansen's pigeon is one of the wonders of the world.

EASTER BREAD AND CHEESE.

Origin of a Custom Still Maintained in a Quiet English Village.

An old ceremony which links the present with an epoch as nearly distant as the Norman conquest has been duly observed in the quiet village of Biddenden, in Kent, near Ashford, England. Easter was celebrated by the distributing by the vicar and church wardens of cakes of gingerbread among visitors to the place, while the residents were regaled with hunks of bread and cheese. For nearly 900 years these doles or gifts have been dispensed, although now all idea of charity has practically disappeared, and the distribution is used more for an occasion of conviviality and ale drinking than for the pious commemoration of the two maids of Biddenden who founded the feast. These ladies were Eliza and Mary Chulkhurst, who lived at the beginning of the twelfth century and were joined together like the Siamese twins. One died a day after the other, and they left a bit of land, of which the rental is about $200 a year, to perpetuate a fund for the distribution of bread and cheese at Easter. The doles are all stamped with a likeness of the two maids, with their names and the dates of their birth and demise. Many people go to Biddenden for the express purpose of getting a cake and preserving it as a curiosity.

A Dog-Hunting Fox.

A. R. Dodge, of Dexter, Me., tells this one: "The other day, coming down Maple street, I saw a dog strike cross lots from Park street. Some animal was in pursuit. At first I thought it was another dog; then it looked like a large cat; ultimately I saw that it was a fox. The dog was putting in his best licks, yelping like mad, and the fox was hot on his trail. With a final long-drawn howl the dog reached the piazza of his master's house and from that vantage ground sat down to watch his pursuer. The fox stationed himself about six or eight feet away, and the two sat eying each other for some time. Finally the door opened and the dog slipped inside. Then the shed door was cautiously opened, and by the aid of the neighbors the fox was driven into the shed and is now a captive."

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

BILL INCREASING RAILWAY TAXES.

Every Prospect of a Disagreement Between the Two Houses Over the Measure—Element of Uncertainty as to the Action of Governor Pingree—Mileage Book Bills Advanced—Uniform Text Book Bill Passes Both Houses—Prizes for Essays.

Lansing, Mich., May 25.—The last week of the legislative session opens with a vast amount of work on the calendar of each house, and with every prospect of a disagreement between the two houses over the bill to increase railroad taxes. The conference committees appointed, as mentioned last week, to consider the differences on this subject as they then existed finally reached an agreement which proved to be satisfactory to the senate, but the indications are that the house will refuse to adopt them. This important matter is to be considered today. The taxes paid last year by the railroads operating in this state aggregated $471,408. As passed by the senate the bill provided for an annual revenue of $914,750, while the house made the aggregate $1,246,193. By the terms agreed upon by the conference committee the annual revenue would be $947,414. In other words the senate provided for an increase of $173,342, the house for an increase of $504,785, while the conference report makes the increase $306,006. The rates of taxation as reported by the conference committee are as follows: On earnings of $3,000 or under per mile, 2½ per cent.; from $3,000 to $4,000, 3¼ per cent.; from $4,000 to $6,000, 4 per cent.; from $6,000 to $8,000, 4½ per cent.; over $8,000, 5 per cent.; on gross earnings of union depot companies with incomes in excess of $20,000 per mile, 10 per cent.

Merriman Commended It.

As son as the conference report was submitted the senate proceeded to consider it. Chairman Merriman commended it as just between the people and the railroad companies, and urged that it be adopted. Senator Thompson made a carefully prepared speech in reply to the special message of Governor Pingree on this subject. He referred to the threat made by the latter that unless the legislature passed such railroad taxation bills as he desired he would refuse to approve appropriation bills and would also keep the legislators here all summer. The senator created quite a sensation by denouncing the governor's threat as a bluff. He expressed the hope that the legislators would not be influenced by either the govenror's bluff or his blandishments in the way of promises of state patronage, but urged them to vote their convictions, leaving the governor to carry out his threats if he wished to do so, and declaring that, in that event, impeachment would stare him in the face. The special message was denounced as a tissue of deliberate fabrications intended to deceive the people, and the senator went into a long dessertation in support of this proposition. At the conclusion of the speech a vote was taken and the conference report was adopted without a dissenting vote. However, Senators Hughes, Bostawick, Moore and Mudge refrained from voting on the question.

It was expected that the house would dispose of this matter before adjourning last week, but the attendance was so small on Friday that both sides consented to let it go over until today. The contest bids fair to be long and acrimonious, and it will certainly interfere sadly with other important matters, including numerous appropriation bills, which must be attended to before adjournment next Friday.

A Little Problematical.

Just what Governor Pingree will do should the two houses happen to agree on the rates recommended by the committee is a little problematical. As stated last week he has emphatically declared that nothing short of an increase of $1,000,000 will receive his approval. The element of uncertainty as to his action now prevails is due to the fact that when asked if he would approve based on the conference committee report he said it would be time enough to declare himself after some sort of a bill had been passed. Those who are near to him, however, are all inclined to the opinion that such a bill as the report contemplates will be promptly vetoed. Many legislators who think the railroads should be required to pay a greater sum than the report provides are, however, free to say that they consider half a loaf better than no bread, and they will vote for the compromise for this reason. At the present writing it looks as if it will be this increase or none for the next two years. Should the bill be passed and vetoed, there is no reason for believing that the governor could get anything better by calling an extra session, while the cost of such a session would be very large.

Other important railroad legislation has been considered during the past week. An attempt was made in the house to pass a bill permitting steam and electric railroad companies to lease each other's lines. The Pingree men arrayed themselves against the bill on the ground that it would permit a road to get possession of a competing line, and eventually lead to the organization of a gigantic combine which would wipe out all competition. They succeeded in killing the bill.

The latest railroad measure to be reported out by the house railroad committee is one which permits the main line of the Grand Trunk road to go back to 3-cent fares, the rate having been reduced to 2 cents four years ago. The reason given for such a bill is that there is no prospect of passing a bill for the general reduction of railroad fares, and that it would simply be just to place the Grand Trunk on the same footing with other roads in this regard. It is safe to say that notwithstanding this plea the bill will not become a law.

Two mileage book bills have been advanced through the house and are now in the possession of the senate railroad committee. One of these is the Widoe bill, which requires roads to sell 500-mile books good for any member of a family or firm. It also provides that new mileage shall be issued for the unused portion of the books at the end of the year. The other is the somewhat famous Donovan interchangeable mileage book bill, which was vetoed by Governor Rich on the ground that insolvent roads would flood the state with mileage books which they could never hope to redeem, thus leaving the solvent roads to carry out the contracts with no chance to get any pay for doing so. Manager Heald, of the Detroit, Grand Rapids and Western road, has promised to secure from the solvent roads of the state an agreement to carry out the object sought to be obtained by this bill, and this may end the matter.

Burdening the Senate.

The bill repealing the special charter of the Michigan Central road, which passed the house much to the surprise of every one, is also in the hands of the senate committee and no one need be surprised if it stays there. There are some reasons for believing that some of these bills were passed by members of the house for the purpose of making a point with their constituents and throwing the burden of defeating them on the senate. Just how much of this burden the senate will stand is one of the problems which enter into the question of just what railroad legislation will be eventually passed. The uniform text book bill has passed both houses and is in the hands of the governor. It exempts all districts that now have free text books or which shall adopt the system previous to Jan. 1, 1900. It is also a local option measure in that any district that does not want to come under its provisions may avoid doing so by a vote of its qualified electors to this effect.

Governor Pingree apparently meant just what he said when he remarked a few days ago that the chances were against any special appropriation bills becoming laws this year, and his lieutenant in the house, Colonel Atkinson, was equally as well informed when he declared that while all state institutions would be maintained, no improvements would be made at any of them. The significance of these remarks became apparent to every one late last week when the governor sent to the legislature three messages vetoing as many bills for purely economical reasons. The bills selected for the slaughter on this occasion were those appropriating $6,000 for the construction and maintainance of roadways and other improvements on Mackinac Island State park, and $1,500 for each of the ensuing two years for publishing the historical collections of the Michigan Pioneer and Historical society; also increasing $500 per year the salaries of the two police justices of the city of Detroit.

Unjust to Taxpayers.

In each of the messages vetoing the appropriation bills the governor said: "In times of prosperity it would be proper enough to indulge in expenditures of this kind, but in the present depressed state of the times, when the taxpayers of the state are groaning under their burdens, I feel that it would be unjust to them to make appropriations which can be dispensed with." These two vetoes are taken as a sure indication that other special appropriation bills, such as those providing for electric light plants at the university and other state institutions, will experience a blow from the veto ax. The senate made an attempt to pass the pioneer bill over the veto, but it failed, three less than the necessary twenty-two votes being recorded in favor of such action.

In disposing of the police justice bill, Governor Pingree took occasion to call attention to the great increase of the number of judges of various kinds and the vast increase in the expense of maintaining the judiciary of the state since the present system was adopted. In the first place he mentioned the fact that 25,000 laboring men are out of work in the city of Detroit, and said that the situation called for a reduction rather than an increase of salaries. The cost of mantaining the judiciary, he said, has increased from $14,900 in 1855 to $146,184 in 1896, while the number of circuit judges have increased from ten to forty-one, and the number of circuits from ten to thirty-five. He suggested that the legislature carefully consider the question of reorganizing the circuits, and ventured the statement that they could be increased fully one-half without any detriment to the service. In support of this statement he cited the fact that many of the judges are not occupied more than half the time, some being able to spend months in other circuits for which service they receive extra pay.

Cash Prizes for Essays.

The governor's reference to the depressed condition of the times suggests the fact that he has offered cash prizes for essays on this subject. To the student of any college in Michigan preparing the best historical paper tracing the most accurate parallel in ancient or modern history with the present social and political conditions in the United States, and giving the causes of this parallel, he offers a prize of $25. For the second best essay he will pay $15, and for the third best $10. Papers must be prepared and mailed to the executive office in this city not later than Sept. 1. They will be examined and the award made by judges.

The senate committee on appropriations and finance has unmercifully slashed every appropriation bill that has come before it. This does not mean that the slashing has been done without judgment. On the contrary the committee has been very painstaking in its investigations and has sought to hold the institutions down to actual needs. Owing to this fact, which has come to be recognized at both ends of the capitol, much surprise has been expressed at the action of the house in cutting $35,000 from the appropriation made by the senate for the Michigan College of Mines at Houghton. The senate allowed the college $115,000, but the house reduced it to $80,000. Two attempts were made by the friends of the bill to save the bill as it left the senate, but without avail. This action of the house foretells the probable fate of the numerous appropriation bills which are yet to be acted upon during this, the last week, of the session.

In view of this action it seems a trifle strange that both houses should have voted an increase in the appropriation for the state dairy and food department. The increase, however, will enable Commissioner Grosvenor to put a larger number of inspectors in the field than at present and thus more effectually enforce the laws. Heretofore this department has been allowed but $10,000. This legislature has given it $18,000 and no veto has been filed by the governor. Some of the latter's enemies are predicting that this increased appropriation will not be molested for the reason that the governor dictates the appointment of all inspectors and that this department is one of the most effective political machines in the state. Its inspectors being constantly in the field and covering the entire state, they can "saw wood" in behalf of their creator with surprisingly gratifying results.

MEMORIAL DAY.

It Is Generally Observed Throughout the Country.

Imposing Ceremonies at the National Cemetery at Arlington—At Lincoln's and Grant's Tombs—The Day Elsewhere.

Washington, June 1.—Memorial day was generally observed in Washington. The senate adjourned over for the day and the house held only a 15-minute session. All the departments and business houses were closed, and the day was given up to patriotic observance and tributes to the heroic dead. At ten o'clock there was an impressive parade of the G. A. R. and other patriotic organizations, which broke up at 11 o'clock, the several posts holding memorial exercises in the various cemeteries.

The Day at Arlington.

most imposing ceremonies were t the national cemetery at Arlon, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, which was before the war the magnificent estate of Robert E. Lee, the confederate chieftain. Here bivouac almost 35,000 of the nation's dead, 2,000 whose identity will never be known being buried in a single grave. Among the most famous of the heroes buried beneath the spreading oaks and elms are Gen. Sheridan, the great cavalry leader; Admiral Porter, the hero of Mobile; Brig. Gen. Harney and Gen. Ricketts.

In Chicago.

Chicago, June 1.—Memorial day was fittingly observed. A parade was given by old veterans, regular troops from Fort Sheridan, militia and civic organizations. Decoration day exercises were held at Forest Home, Waldheim and Concordia and other cemeteries.

At Lincoln's Tomb.

Springfield, Ill., June 1.—Decoration day was observed here with great interest. Federal, state and city and many business places were closed during the day. The exercises at Oak Ridge cemetery and the tomb of Lincoln were interesting and attended by thousands. The parade was long. Hundreds of the grand army and sons of veterans were in line. Military exercises were held over graves of dead soldiers.

Grant's Tomb Decorated.

New York, June 1.—A rainy forenoon interfered greatly with the observance of Memorial day in New York and its vicinity. There were, however, committees of the veterans of the union army at all the cemeteries in and about New York to decorate the graves of those of their comrades who have found burial there. The tomb of Gen. Grant, in Riverside park, was well remembered, for, besides the tributes from local posts of the grand army, there was received a box of choice flowers from the white house conservatory in Washington.

At St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 1.—Decoration day here this year received practically a double celebration. The memorial sermons and other exercises of literary character were mostly held on Sunday. Monday, being the legal holiday, was reserved for the grand army parade and the decoration services proper. The latter included the grand army demonstrations at the cemeteries and at Jefferson Barracks, and appropriate ceremonies by the regular army troops in connection with the veterans at the national cemeteries.

At Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, June 1.—Monday's demonstration presented the greatest seen here. It took an hour in passing. On both sides of Fourth street the girls of the schools were ranged to witness the parade. They were all provided with small flags. The passing of the gray-haired and tottering veterans, bearing with stern pride their cherished battle flags, was to these children a lesson in patriotism not soon to be forgotten. Following them came the battalions of boys, with boys' drum bands and flags without number.

At Boston.

Boston, June 1.—Decoration day of this year was of particular significance on account of the unveiling and dedication of the elaborate memorial structure on Boston common, erected in honor of Col. John Robert Gould Shaw, of the Fifty-fourth Massachusetts regiment, and the brave black men who comprised his followers and who fell with their colonel in the assault upon Fort Wagner, S. C., July 18, 1863.

In the South.

Jackson, Miss., June 1.—A special from Vicksburg, Miss., says: An immense assembly joined in the ceremonies of Decoration day at the national cemetery Monday. In accordance with a custom of years a delegation of confederate veterans took offerings of flowers to the cemetery in the afternoon and scattered them over the graves.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 1. — The graves of the 14,000 union soldiers buried in the national cemetery at this place were decorated Monday with elaborate ceremonies. Capt. J. H. MacGowan, of Washington, delivered the annual oration. An immense throng of people was present.

Monument Unveiled

West Point, N. Y., June 1.—In the presence of 5,000 people, the secretary of war and many high officials of the army the battle monument erected by their comrades in honor of the officers and soldiers of the regular army who fell in battle in the civil war was dedicated Monday. Among those who occupied seats on the speakers' stand were Secretary Alger, Gen. Merritt, Gen. Ruggles, Gen. Franklin, Gen. Butterfield, Gen. Stanton, Paymaster General Viele, Gen. Saxton and Gen. James Longstreet. The exercises opened with an invocation by Chaplain Shipman, which he prefaced with the recitation of the Lord's Prayer, those in the pavilion joining. Then followed the presentation of the monument to the United States army by Brig. Gen. John M. Wilson, chief of engineers, U. S. A.

Mrs. Maria Pruett (colored) died at Chillicothe, O., aged 104 years.

WORDS OF CHEER.

Secretary Gage Believes Industrial Revival Will Soon Come.

Cincinnati, May 29. — The crowning event of the annual meeting of the commercial clubs was the banquet last night, at which Secretary of the Treasury Gage spoke in part as follows:

"I have thought that on this occasion I could do no better service than to give you needed reassurance and hope. As to the great fabric now before congress, known as the tariff bill, I have nothing to say in detail. I want to bear testimony, however, to the zeal and good faith of those in both houses who have that measure in charge. They are fully conscious of their great responsibilities, and are working faithfully to discharge them. Nor do I think that the opponents of these measures are likely to oppose with willful and unjust obstructions the course of legislation. Protest, there will be more or less; fencing for position must be expected, but having now come into contact with many of the representatives of the people in both houses of congress, I deem it my duty to bear witness, so far as it may have value, to the honorable and patriotic motives that inspire the minds of the great majority, whether upon one side of the house or the other, and I prophesy an early result in the national councils to which this great commercial question is now committed.

"I make these remarks not to defend a body for whom I hold no commission to speak, but to correct, in one direction if I may, the operation of an injurious sentiment—a sentiment which is sowing evil seeds in many directions. It is dividing classes, destroying unity and breeding hatred. The one word for that sentiment is 'distrust.' Faith and courage lead to conquest and victory. Distrust paralyzes and destroys.

"As to the financial question to which I have already referred, I want to content myself with few words. I am glad that they may be words of assurance. If any of you harbor the suspicion that the administration, but just now installed into the responsibilities of high office, has forgotten, or is likely to forget, the mandate of the people, whose voice in behalf of honest money and sound finances rang out loud and clear in November last, put that suspicion aside. It is unjust and unfounded. In good time and in proper order the affirmative evidences of my declaration will appear. In the meantime, my friends, do your part to help those charged with legislative and administrative duties. Do not let the inertia engendered by fear and distrust creep over you.

"We have been passing through a period of great trial, and nobly have we endured the strain. The future is not dark with forebodings. It is illuminated with rational hope. The revival of industry is near, and with the establishment of a revenue law sufficient to bring into the treasury an amount adequate to meet the reasonable needs of our government, and with the establishment of our finances on a sound and enduring basis, nothing now foreseen can delay the recovery of past losses and the inauguration of a new forward movement along the lines of material advancement and social progress, which we may humbly trust is in the benevolent mind of God to bestow upon the American people."

WINTRY WEATHER.

Frost Damages Fruit and Crops in Northwest—Snow in Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, June 1.—Heavy frosts occurred Monday morning over the entire state of Wisconsin, and considerable damage was probably done to vegetation and fruit, although the chilled and backward condition of almost everything doubtless saved much of it from being ruined. Strawberries in many sections are thought to be almost a total loss by reason of the recent frosts. Hurley reports a regular blizzard. It snowed all Sunday night and Monday morning, the ground being covered. All garden stuff must be replanted.

Marshalltown, Ia., June 1.—There was a severe frost here and considerable ice formed. Reports from the country indicate material damage to corn, early potatoes, tender vegetables and fruits.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—Frost is generally reported throughout the northwest, with scattered reports of snow and a hard freeze. Considerable damage to vegetables and small fruits is feared.

Rockford, Ill., June 1.—There was severe frost Sunday night. Ice formed in many small bodies of water. Corn which was up was cut to the ground. Tobacco has also been severely injured in the region north of here and potatoes and vegetables are killed. There will be very severe damage to the fruit crop, which promised a heavy yield.

Tributes to Flood Victims.

Johnstown, Pa., June 1.—The eighth anniversary of the Johnstown flood was appropriately observed in this city Monday, when thousands of people, many of them having lost relatives and near friends in the most appalling disaster of recent times, visited the beautiful cemetery of Grand View. The plot that contains the unidentified bodies of over 800 victims of the disaster was literally covered with flowers, contributed mostly by persons who lost dear ones in the flood and whose bodies were never recovered.

To Meet in Detroit.

Cincinnati, June 1.—President D. D. Woodmansee and Secretary M. J. Dowling have issued a call for the tenth annual convention of the National Republican league at Detroit, July 13. Each state and territorial league is entitled to four delegates from each congressional district and six delegates at large.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in Senate and House.

The Tariff Bill Occupies the Entire Time in the Senate—No Business Done in the House—Other News.

Washington, May 27.—Good progress was made in the senate yesterday in the consideration of the tariff bill by schedules, and on a test vote over a motion to reduce the duty on a certain article the friends of the measure were sustained by a vote of 34 to 20. Several paragraphs of the bill were considered during the day, the committee being sustained in each instance.

Washington, May 28.—The final conference report on the sundry civil bill was agreed to in the senate yesterday. This involves the suspension until March 1 next of the forest reserve proclamation. Ten pages of the tariff bill were disposed of. Several votes were taken, the finance committee being sustained in each case.

Washington, May 29. — Considerable progress was made on the tariff bill in the senate yesterday, 15 pages being covered. Several votes were taken during the day, but the finance committee had a liberal majority in every instance. Senator Tillman (S. C.) presented a resolution for the appointment of a special committee of five senators to investigate charges of speculation by senators while the tariff bill was before the finance committee. It was referred to the committee on contingent expenses.

Washington, May 31.—In the senate on Saturday progress on the tariff bill was checked, the plate paragraphs proving a source of controversy lasting throughout the day. As a result little more than a page of the bill was disposed of.

Washington, June 1.—A short session of the senate was held yesterday, but no business was transacted.

Washington, June 2.—Senator Pettigrew introduced a bill in the senate yesterday to provide for the submission to a popular vote at the congressional election of 1898 of the questions whether congress shall enact a law providing for the immediate free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of sixteen to one, and to amend the constitution so as to provide for the election of United States senators and of the president and vice president by direct vote of the people. The tariff bill was further discussed.

The House.

Washington, May 28.—Bills were introduced in the house yesterday to exclude from the mails all matter emanating from commercial agencies which publish business ratings and carry on collections, and to tax business corporations such as oil companies, iron and steel railways and street railways, banks, stock exchanges and glass, wool, silk, paper, leather and sugar manufacturing. Adjourned to Monday.

Washington, June 1.—The house yesterday met and immediately adjourned.

Washington, June 2.—In the house yesterday the senate bills making a special appropriation for the government printing office and for granting the secretary of the navy authority to contract with any two vessels to carry contributed supplies to India were passed.

Must Pay Letter Rates.

Washington, June 1.—From the large number of inquiries now being received by the post office department there seems to be a general belief that congress has authorized the issue and use of private postal cards, mailable at one cent rate of postage. This belief is unfounded. The department has called the attention of all postmasters to this fact and has notified them that no law has been enacted on the subject, so that private mailing cards, bearing written messages, when deposited in the mails are still subject to postage at the letter rate.

The Cuban Question.

Washington, June 1.—From now until June 10, when he will start on his trip to attend the Nashville exposition, President McKinley's attention will be devoted almost exclusively to the Cuban question. Important developments may be looked for within that period. A new minister to Spain and probably a new consul-general to Havana will be appointed, the report of Special Commissioner Calhoun considered, and a formal note to Spain drafted and placed in the hands of the new minister for delivery upon his arrival in Madrid.

There is a Class of People

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over one-fourth as much. Children may drink it with great benefit 15c and 25c per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

The plant of the Utica Packing and Provision Co. in Deerfield, N. Y., was destroyed by fire recently. Loss $100,000.

What use is there in eating when food does you no good—in fact when it does you more harm than good, for such is the case if it is not digested? If you have a loathing for food there is no use of forcing it down, for it will not be digested. You must restore the digestive organs to their natural strength and cause the food to be digested, when an appetite will come and with a relish for food. The tired languid feeling will give place to vigor and energy; then you will put flesh on your bones and become strong. The Shaker Digestive Cordial as made by the Mount Lebanon Shakers contains food already digested and is a digester of foods as well. Its action is prompt and its effects permanent.

HORTICULTURE.

A MARKETING WAGON.

Good Thing for Farmers Who Sell Their Own Produce.

Many gardeners and farmers have discovered that much more money is made by selling their produce at first hands from door to door than by selling to merchants or commission men. A convenient wagon is of the greatest importance if one is thus to market his produce. Such a wagon is shown in the cut given herewith. It is "low-hung," and has its lower part boxed in and floored over. Access is had to this inclosed space by raising the driver's seat in front, by a door on each side in the middle, and by two doors in the rear. At one side two drawers are shown. One of these is most convenient for carrying the flat parchment covered prints of butter to market, carrying the drawer to the customer's door to avoid handling. The other can be used for eggs, using the ordinary pasteboard fillers placed one upon another. The rear can have drawers or not, according to the nature of the produce to be carried. Above the rear doors are two metal "open work" doors, that hold in the vegetables or other articles that are piled in loosely in the wagon's top. The center of this top space is easily reached from the canvas door in either side. The top is, of course, covered with canvas, and should have the name of the farm painted upon each side, with the nature of the goods carried. This will advertise and enlarge one's trade.—American Gardening.

PLANTING FORESTS.

Hundred Men Can Plant 1,000 Acres in About 30 Days.

Robert Douglas, the pioneer nurseryman of Waukegan, Ill., has shown by his own experience that it is not only easy to plant a forest of 100 or 1,000 acres in a season, but that it is also possible to make it pay—for the planter—that is. It pays richly for the owner later. He is not inclined to glorify the European forestry, as some of our Americans do. If the Europeans had the task of setting out forests upon our treeless western prairies, they would find it harder than maintaining a standing army.

Americans can, however, manage the task, because they do things by the large. They cultivate by horse and steam power instead of by hand power. The forest trees should be planted in rows and tended like orchard trees. In selecting trees to plant those native to the locality, if there are any, should have first consideration, as these will surely thrive best. Many growths that do well in the east are not suitable for the west. "Western trees for western planting" is the motto, because western trees are the surest. The green ash, for instance, makes a fine and vigorous growth in the west, while in the east the white ash is far superior to it. The chestnut has been thoroughly tried in the west, and has been found wanting. The pines and other conifers of the Pacific slope will not grow at all in the prairie belt, although the conifers of the Rocky mountains will.

Mr. Douglas finds that 100 men can plant 1,000 acres of forest in 30 days. The ground should, however, have been previously prepared. Either autumn or spring will do for the planting. In spring the seeds of the trees should be sown so soon as frost is out of the ground. By fall they will have made a growth sufficient for transplanting to the forest that is to be. Forty acres will grow seedlings enough to plant 1,000 acres.

The farmers of Kansas have set out in the past few years 147,340 acres of forest. Among them are 11,500 acres of black walnut, 12,486 acres of maple, 2,637 acres of honey locust and 55,553 acres of cottonwood. The cottonwood grows the quickest and makes fuel for the farmer sooner than any of the others, hence his preference for it. Land prepared as for corn planting will grow the seedlings.—Norwich (N. Y.) Sun.

Calendar for Fruit Growers.

W. N. Mitchell, commercial freight agent of the B. & O. R. R. in Atlanta, has just issued a very unique calendar for the fruit and vegetable growers of the southern states. It is one of the cleverest methods of advertising that has been put out in the south. It is full of attractive illustrations, and also contains a complete almanac and pictures of the watermelons sent by Mr. Mitchell to presidential candidates McKinley, Bryan and Levering. The B. & O. has become a large factor in the handling of southern produce and fruits for the eastern market.

Hint for Orchard Planters.

Inexperienced orchard planters usually manifest an inclination to plant large trees; whereas an old and successful planter would probably select one or two-year-old trees. The latter are, we think, more certain to grow, and often make the more symmetrical appearance, for the orchardist can begin their training at an earlier age. Large trees lose more of their fibrous roots when moved than do smaller ones, therefore do not take hold upon the soil so readily nor grow off so vigorously.—Agricultural Epitomist.

ABOUT TRANSPLANTING.

Some of the Important Points Which Must Not Be Neglected.

There are three essential items to be looked after in transplanting. They are puddling, compacting and protecting. A failure to give either properly will affect the growth of the plants. When properly done puddling is preferable to watering. The soil used in puddling should be a rich loam. If in addition one-third of it is well-rotted and fined cow manure or good commercial fertilizer all the better. Dip only a few plants at a time, so that the roots of each plant can be well covered with the rich mud. Make the hole large enough and deep enough to take in the plant without bending or twisting the roots. The depth that the plant should be set will depend upon the way it has grown; generally it will be safe to set the plant down to the first leaf. When grown thick in a close bed the plants often make a long, spindling growth, and if not set deep a good percentage of them will die.

Compact the soil close around the roots. The roots must come in close contact with the soil or the plant will die. It is too often the case in transplanting that a hole is made with a sharpened stick, the roots of the plants are dropped in, the soil is pressed around the stem of the plant with the point of the stick, while the roots barely touch the soil, if they touch it at all, and the plants die.

When the weather is warm and the soil rather dry, in many cases it will be a help if the plant bed is thoroughly watered two or three hours before taking up the plants.

It will be best to take up the plants and set them out late in the evening. This will give them all night to recuperate from the change.

When the plants have been growing in a close, protected bed it is quite a change to set them out all alone and often a little protection will be of material help. This may be given either by drawing a little mound of earth around the plant with the hand when the transplanting is done or by covering with a large leaf of some kind for a day or two.

When the weather is hot and the soil is dry it will be best to water for two or three nights after setting out. Always use water that has had the chill taken off and thoroughly wet the soil around the roots.—St. Louis Republic.

PLANTING TOMATOES.

The Right Way to Set Out Weak and Spindling Plants.

Young tomato plants, when growing up thickly in hotbeds or flats, will invariably become spindling and weak. If planted out in the usual way they have either to be inserted so deep that the roots will come in direct contact with the poorer subsoil, or the stems bend over and the tops fall upon the surface of the ground and will never make strong healthy plants. Of course strong, short, stocky plants are the best to set out, but if these cannot be had spindling plants may be made just as serviceable if planted as shown in our illustration. By this method the fine roots are nearer to the surface and the part of the stem underground will soon strike additional roots, thus giving the plant still more sustenance and nourishment.—Orange Judd Farmer.

ORCHARD PICKINGS.

A uniform production of fruit cannot be received from wet, heavy ground.

With strawberries, flavor, color and firmness are of more importance than size.

Profit in fruit culture has its beginning in the careful selection of the very best varieties.

In planting strawberries for market select varieties that will give a long season of ripening.

On the farm the first object in planting fruit should be to furnish the family with a good supply.

The tree that bears a great crop of small fruit exhausts itself by having to produce an undue proportion of seeds.

Young trees will start into vigorous growth after transplanting with less check than older ones would experience.

A trellis made with three strands of wire, bracing the end posts thoroughly, is the best for grape vines.—Western Plowman.

Soot as a Fertilizer.

Soot is a great fertilizer, as it contains ammonia salts, and a liberal dressing may be given and forked in while dry. Soot and sulphate of iron have been used as a means of producing higher color in apples, and with apparently good results. Where tanks exist for catching the drainage from farmyards, stables and houses, the liquid forms a valuable aid to fruit culture. Fruit trees and brush fruits standing in need of a stimulant may be watered with the liquid until the soil is saturated. Raspberry plantations always appreciate attention in this direction and never fail to give a good account of themselves afterwards. If it is not needed in the garden it may be given to the orchard trees, pouring it on the surface of the grass round the trees and as far as the branches extend. If there are any doubts as to the liquid being too strong it can be diluted with water.—Western Plowman.

LITERARY NOTES.

June is the month for Photography and as an aid to interest it is well to read the Photographic Times for this month. Timely topics there are in great abundance and the Photogravure "Chums" is a wonder.

The American Journal of Photography is always a welcome guest to the photographer and the June number is no exception. Full of good things.

Woman stands as the sacred guardian of future homes and our nation's prosperity, and to her must we look for true reforms. To her standard must society come. Let her be sure to place it high and keep it pure, and make it apply impartially to all people. Let her keep out those whom she knows fall short of her standard, and never condone in the stronger sex what she condemns in the weaker. Let her think not to elevate society by hiding or condoning the evils which surround her on every side, but only by shutting out those whom she has found it impossible to raise to her standard. Then future generations will arise who will bless her for their heritage, instead of cursing her for their misery.—DWIGHT L. MOODY in June Ladies Home Journal.

The June number of the North American Review contains a remarkably clever article on "Popular Errors in Living," by Dr. Charles W. Purdy, who maintains that it is high time more widespread and efficient measures were adopted for the purpose of educating the general public in those physiological laws, the observance of which most surely conserve the bodily health, erect the strongest barriers against the encroachments of disease, and thus conduce to the attainment of long life.

To those now planning their summer vacations, the "Recreation Number" of The Outlook (its Magazine number for June) offers special attractions, and is full of useful hints. Delightfully illustrated articles on possible vacations, lists of coming summer schools and meetings, remarkably full information about summer resorts and routes of travel everywhere—all this and much more is included in the nearly or quite 200 pages. This is the eighth—and best—of The Outlook's popular summer Recreation Numbers. $3.00 a year. The Outlook Company, 13 Astor Place, New York.

Albert Shaw, author of "Municipal Government in United States," writes of the new Greater New York Charter in the June Atlantic. He makes an interesting comparative study of municipal government in different countries, and comes to the conclusion that the government of American cities is much more complicated than it need be, and that one of the greatest weaknesses of the new New York Charter is its complexity and the likelihood that it will be interfered with by continued legislative action.

For significance, variety and interest of matter, and beauty of illustration, there rarely issues a magazine equal to the June number of McCLURE'S. Professor Langley's account of his ten years of hard study and experiment in the construction of flying machines, crowned at last with a machine that actually solves the problem and proves "mechanical flight" to be both possible and practicable, is a positive contribution to science; but it is at the same time a most interesting story of heroic patience and effort directed to a noble end. The paper is illustrated with pictures of Professor Langley's own machine (the only flying-machine that has ever flown) made under his direction.

The Arena for June is not prehaps quite so varied in its contents as usual, but it probably more than makes up for this feature by an unusually full and thorough discussion of several important topics. The number leads off with a paper by the Hon. James D. Phelan, Mayor of San Francisco, on "Municipal Conditions in California," in which he makes a strong plea for the exercise of more rigid control over private corporate monopolies, such as those which control the street-car service, lighting, water supply, etc. This paper concludes the valuable series of articles on Municipal Reform, written by various city mayors, which have been appearing in The Arena during the past few months.

The more London entertains, the bigger and happier it grows, and the better the entertainers are liked. Since the days of Robin Hood, Englishmen have appeared best at table. There are banqueting halls of all ages and sizes in every part of London. The proper place for a boar's head or an enemy's flag was always in the dining-hall. No better use could possibly be made of a captured vessel than to turn the best part of it into a dining table, and probably the most that is left of the Spanish Fleet now ornaments the main hall in the Inner Temple.—From "London Salons," by C. D. Gibson, in the June Scribner's.

The June Chautauquan is a veritable storehouse of interesting reading. Among the articles contributed are "Paris the Magnificent," profusely illustrated, and "Historic Concord," in which Bishop John F. Hurst gives pleasing recollections of his visit to the homes of Emerson, Thoreau, and Hawthorne and other interesting spots, also portrayed by excellent half-tone reproductions. In the Woman's Council Table Eben E. Rexford's seasonable paper on "Annual Flowers and their Culture" and Mrs. L. Vance-Phillips, "China Painting in America" are of especial interest to women. The entire number will be read with profit by old and young.

Much has been said of late about the prevalence of eye disorders among American children, but very little has been done in the direction of pratical reform. One of the few hopeful movements on this line is that recently organized in the Minneapolis public schools under the direction of Dr. Frank Allport, who contributes to the June Review of Revie ws a valuable and suggestive account of what has been accomplished there.

There are no particular changes to chronicle in the shapes of parasols, but they are made of all possible fabrics, and the styles of trimming them are legion. The only dressy ones that are untrimmed are coaching parasols, all the pretty taffetas are used for these,—figured, changeable, and checked, but the handsomest are of moire velours and satin, in all the brightest hues of the rainbow. Even artificial flowers are heaped upon these with only a less lavish hand than upon hats, and ribbons also are an important feature. Transparent fabrics and thin silks are also made in the new sun-plaitings, which radiate from the center, and are named "Sunburst Parasols."—From Demorest's Magazine for June.

The base ball management have expressed themselves as being much disappointed with the result of the game with Britton last Saturday, saying they world much preferred to have lost a good game. We are assured, however, that tomorrow's game will be a good one as the Ypsilanti boys have the reputation of being good ball players, and will probably make the home team hustle. The cost of bringing the Ypsilanti team here is considerable, and a large attedance is needed to pay expenses. Turn out and see a good game.

Monday four ladies took a trip to the woods east of town, in search of flowers. two of them thought they would cross the C. J. & M. R.R. bridge. As they were about midway, along came a train what to do, they hardly knew, but decide they must, and that quickly. They could not reach land on either side so but one alternative presented itself, to get down and hang on till the train passed over, but it came to a stop, the engineer having seen them. The feelings of the ladies, as well as their companions on the bank, can be imagined but not described. Certain it is that none of them care to pass through a like experience.

They would no donbt, if let alone, have brought up all right where the gravel was to go for cement walks, but they were stopped before reaching the place. Nothing pertaining to barness, wagon or team was injured. Boyd, though not seriously hurt, received several cuts and bruises on the head.

The Senior Reception.

Friday, May 28th, was the evening of the Senior Reception, held at the home of Miss Agnes Eaton about two miles east of Tecumseh. The evening as usual was cold and threatened rain but every body turned out just the same, regardless of the weather. Japanese lanterns without and light and flowers within, formed a very pleasant welcome to the class of '98 after their cold, disagreeable drive. Nearly all having arrived, the gentlemen present, were consigned to a room by themselves and being choice asticles, were locked in. Early in the evening Will Hicks, acting as auctioneer, they were auctioned off to the highest bidders, and then chewing gum, cards and slips of paper with names of various animals on them. The chewing of the gum and manufacture of the animals from gum, occupied about an hour and strange indeed were some of the animals formed This interesting occupation was brought to a close by the announcement of the supper hour and the tables having been brought in light refreshments were served to the forty five guests. This having been satisfactorly accomplished, two of our talented Seniors gave a hypnotic exhibition to the admiring audience. Then twelve o'clock having struck some time since, a general rush for the dressing rooms was made with a hasty farewell, and many thanks to their entertainers for a royal good time.

OLD FORT MACKINAC.

Hon. Peter White Seeks to Have It Re-Established.

HIS MISSION WILL PROBABLY FAIL.

Senator McMillan Does Not Favor the Scheme—How Money Might Be Realized from the Island—Lively Michigan Postoffice Fight—Prominent Wolverines Who Were at the National Capital During the Past Week.

Washington, June 1.—Hon. Peter White of Marquette has been here for several days urging the Michigan senators and representatives to undertake congressional action looking to the re-establishment of Fort Mackinac, which has been deeded to the United States for garrison purposes. Authority for this was granted by the legislature last winter.

Peter White is one of the most honorable and respected citizens of Michigan and came here by authority of the Mackinac park board. He has been exceedingly diplomatic but urgent, and undoubtedly believes, as the park board believes, that the continuance of a fort on the island is a necessity.

The army appropriation bill of the Fifty-third congress made over Fort Mackinac to the state of Michigan about three years ago. At that time a syndicate was formed in Buffalo for the purpose of purchasing the island for private purposes. The Michigan senators, however, intervened and secured the park for the state, and so worded the law that no private syndicate should obtain possession.

No Strategic Necessity.

As a matter of fact there is no strategic necessity for the fort on the historic island. The army posts at Chicago, Detroit, and St. Marie have recently been enlarged, and consequently the government decided to abandon Fort Mackinac and the island.

The railroad and steamboat companies want the fort re-established because its existence would have a tendency to increase the number of summer visitors who use the transportation routes. It happens that Senator McMillan is president of a steamboat company, but that fact will not influence him in the matter. He will not favor the re-establishment of a fort on the island, and consequently it is likely that the mission of Peter White will result in failure.

Of course, Senator McMillan will have the settlement of the matter, because he is the senator from the eastern part of the state and Senator Burrows will not interfere. It is believed that Senator McMillan has in view an object which will ultimately result in the permanent beautification of the island and the maintenance of its parks and roadways by the national government.

The Purchase of Mackinac.

By act of congress the battlefields of Gettysburg and Chickamauga have been purchased and are to be permanently maintained. A bill is now pending to purchase the battlefields about Vicksburg. The condition of the treasury is such, however, that this bill is not likely to be passed at the present time. Senator McMillan has an idea that when the condition of the treasury is such as to warrant it something should be done to purchase one of the historic battlefields of the war of 1812, and when that time arrives the purchase of Mackinac will be considered, and will probably be carried through.

In the meantime the ground rents on Mackinac island can be increased in a legitimate manner and the park and roadway be maintained by the state of Michigan. Some of the cottages on the villa sites there are worth from $15,000 to $20,000, and instead of paying a ground rent of $20 to $25 per annum each of them should bring a rent of about $100 per year. With proper management it is believed that from $15,000 to $20,000 per annum might be realized from ground rents and the park be thus maintained.

Useful as Well as Interesting.

The post and barracks might be made useful as well as interesting by having the state militia regiments sent there, one after another, during the summer season to remain two or three weeks at a time; and that will probably be the ultimate outcome of the disposition of Mackinac island, posts, barracks, and park.

One of the liveliest postoffice fights that has agitated the postoffice department for some time is being waged in Maysville. There are seven candidates and each one of them is trying to demonstrate to the postmaster general that the other six candidates are incompetent. The term of the present incumbent will expire June 28, and in the meantime it will devolve upon Senator McMillan to name the man who shall be appointed. It is a pretty contest and the senator is as yet unable to decide who should receive his recommendation.

Michigan Visitors at Washington.

Among the Michigan visitors here during the past week were Alex. R. Avery of Port Huron, who confidently expects to be appointed collector of customs for the Huron district; E. P. Waldon of St. Johns, who is interested in the postoffice appointments of Clinton county, and who was successful in securing the lease for the St. Johns postoffice; W. H. Boyet and William K. Alden of Grand Rapids; S. D. McIntyre of Lansing, C. T. Burkhart of Adrain, A. A. Raymond of Detroit, the editor of the Mt. Pleasant Enterprise, and Professor Spenser of the Indian school at Mt. Pleasant. Charles Wright of Detroit, who is a prominent candidate for collector of internal revenue, was also here and had a short conference with Senator McMillan.

Henry R. Huntington of Benton Harbor, Edgar O. Shaw of Newaygo, and Ramsey Arthur of Schoolcraft were among the presidential postmasters appointed during the week.

Mrs. R. A. Alger has returned to Detroit for a short visit. Assistant Secretary Spaulding has been in New York for few days on business of the treasury department.

On Decoration Day at West Point General Alger, in his capacity as secretary of war, accepted the battle monument on behalf of the government and then gave it in the keeping of the authorities of the military academy.

Benjamin A. Harlan, one time probate judge of Kent county, has been appointed chief of the financial division of the pension office, with a salary of $2,000. He is secretary of the Michigan association, and has done a great deal to keep the Michigan people together in the national capital.

Across the river from the national capital, beneath the shade of trees, panoplied by the invisible but tangible perfume of millions of flowers, shepherded by the vigils of angels, in their last earthly bivouac, 20,000 soldiers of the republic sleep forever in Arlington cemetery. Not only on the beautiful May day do loving hearts and willing hands cover their graves with garlands, but upon every day of the year their eternal camping ground is visited, and skilled landscape gardeners make beautiful the mounds in which they lie. Some of them in life hungered and thirsted in Andersonville and Libbey; hungered and thirsted not alone for the bread of life and the pure waters of the wells, brooks and rivulets of their childhood, but hungered and thirsted for the love of the dear ones at home. Now that they are beyond all human help and sympathy, they have the love of a nation and the gratitude of all who worship heroism.

Today they have high honor; the hillside for their pall.
They lie in state, while angels wait, with stars for tapers tall.
The oaks and pines, like tossing plumes, over their mounds do wave.
And the sunlight of God, with love, kisses the sod, which grows green over each grave.
They were as noble soldiers as ever buckled sword.
They had as brave commanders as ever uttered word;
And never earth's philosopher traced with golden pen,
Upon the deathless page, truths half so sage, as they fought out for men.

It has been more than a quarter of a century since the inauguration of the custom of decorating the graves of the dead soldiers annually; and it is to be hoped that the custom may be continued forever. The passing of the years, however, makes a great change in the way people look at things. Decoration day is a legal holiday which has been uniformly observed by the veterans and by the people. But the manner of decorating the graves of the soldiers differs very materially from the first Decoration day, and the people have changed in their habits more than they would be willing to admit.

First Observance of the Day.

Many of us can remember the fact that when Decoration day was first observed, the poignant grief of the survivors of the war was an emotion to which all other feelings were subordinated. In those days the sight of the graves of the dead soldiers caused the grief of the people, the widows and orphans, and their friends, to break out afresh; and by reason of the fact that a majority of the women were clothed in black, the scenes on the grounds were usually exceedingly solemn. In those days young girls, dressed in white, distributed the flowers, this ceremonial making the contrast sharper, and bringing out in a stronger light the deep emotion of the mourning crowds that came together on those occasions.

Colonel Urell, past commander of the department of the Potomac, says: "I remember that in those days romantic things were constantly happening. Many persons who had been enemies in the years before the war, would be suddenly revealed to each other by some little act of common sympathy or impulse beside the grave of some friend, and their friendship would be renewed. I remember one case in particular where there had long been an alienation between two families caused by an elopement and ill-considered marriage. A young man who had married the daughter of a neighbor, against the will of his father, volunteered when the war broke out, went into the army without a word or good-by to his parents and was shot dead at Resaca. Through the efforts of the family of his widow his remains were brought home and interred in the old cemetery.

The Reconciliation.

"His grave was beautified by the hands of a loving woman, and when the first formal Decoration day observances came around, the soldiers who came to that spot laden with flowers, found it already so beautiful and impressive in its decorations that they did not add a single bud. After the ground had almost been deserted, late in the afternoon of that fair May day, a little woman, clad in black, and deeply veiled came with her little boy to kneel at the grave, rearrange the flowers, and moisten them with the dewdrops of grief. Very shortly afterwards and while she was kneeling there, there came to the other side a trembling, feeble, shattered old man, supported by an elderly lady, with snow-white hair, vieing with her own forehead in whiteness, and strongly contrasting with her crape bonnet. As the kneeling widow raised her eyes, the old man dropped his cane, extended his arms, saying nothing; the little widow arose, went to him, kissed him, and laid her head upon his shoulder and the reconciliation was complete. He was the father of her husband; and she was the widow of his dead boy. It was very affecting, indeed."

Such scenes in these later days are very rare, and Decoration day is rather an occasion of rejoicing and congratulations upon the work and good deeds done by the dead than of grief for their loss on the field of battle.

While we weep for the fallen and mourn for the loved and lost; while the nation scatters flowers over the silent soldiers of the republic whose martial tread once shook the world; we should have a share of sympathy and a goodly store of kindness for the living remnants of the great volunteer armies. Tens of thousands of them are marching grimly into the jaws of death, bravely and unflinchingly; but there is no excitement, no huzza, no comradeship in facing death by disease and old age.

What a pity it was that the boys who fell in battle, or died in hospitals during the war could not have looked into the eyes of loving friends at home and heard the words of cheer which might have fallen from the lips of mother, wife, sister, or sweetheart. It was added pang to them all to die alone without a ray of the light of sympathy or love. If we now appreciate their services, their heroism, their patriotism, their sufferings, in defense of the national life and honor; we will, on each Decoration day, mingle words of cheer for the living, with our tears for the dead. AT AN END.

The Michigan State Legislature Adjourns Sine Die.

Scenes of Revelry at the Closing Session—Special Message of Gov. Pingree Ignored—He Seeks Advice on Validity of Merriman Law.

Lansing, June 1.—The legislature adjourned sine die shortly after midnight Friday. The members kept up until a late hour their revelry incident to the closing of the session. During the celebration a valuable portrait of Gen. La Fayette which hung on the senate walls was badly damaged, a couple of hooks having been thrown against the canvas, tearing it in two places. The elegant glass doors of the senate chamber were broken and the walnut desks were defaced with a carpenter's hammer. Although it is customary for the members to hold a jubilee at the close of the legislative session, the exhibition is without a precedent. Confusion reigned in the legislature Friday, and as usual upon the final day of the session business was subordinated to the hustle attendant upon the breaking up process.

Gov. Pingree had his final say at the evening session. It was in the shape of a special message on the railroad tax question, in which he maintained that the Merriman bill increasing the specific tax rate would yield an annual increase of but $155,000, or over $50,000 less than its advocates claim. He also submitted that the law is clearly unconstitutional, in that it usurps the functions of the interstate commerce commission. Both of these assertions were backed up by figures and a legal opinion prepared by Railroad Commissioner Wesselius, which the governor said was coincided in by a number of eminent lawyers. He urged that the session be continued until this fatal defect could be remedied. Prominent senators and Attorney General Maynard upheld the constitutionality of the laws. Neither house did more than direct that the message be printed in the journal. The session came to an end at midnight.

The refusal of the senate Thursday to take from the railway committee three important bills, that a vote might be had on them, has practically decided Gov. Pingree to call a special session of the legislature, although he says he does not know just when he will do so. The bills sought to require the sale of interchangeable mileage and 500-mile books, and repeal the Michigan Central's special charter. The governor's determination is intensified by the fact that the senate also refused to concur in the action of the house in adopting his suggestion and voting to extend the present session until June 14. The senate, in fact, even declined the request of the house that a conference committee be appointed to consider the subject. The governor was still further snubbed by the upper house by the passage over his veto of the bills making an appropriation for the Mackinac Island state park.

Gov. Pingree has requested an opinion from Dean Hutchinson, of the law department of the Michigan university, as to the constitutionality of the Merriman bill to increase taxes upon railroad earnings. The governor must sign or reject the bill by June 5, and is undecided what to do about it. Its chief alleged defect is that it is in conflict with the interstate commerce law.

The general appropriation budget for the expenses of the state government outside of special appropriations came from the ways and means committee. It calls for $2,551,451 for the years 1897 and 1898, or $561,040 less than appropriated by the last legislature. The committee estimates the total saving effected this year at $948,000.

A state board of arbitration and mediation has been appointed by Gov. Pingree. It consists of Carl Schmidt, of Detroit; Jerome W. Roberts, of Pontiac, and Thomas Roberts, of Negaunee.

A GRAND TRIUMPH.

Baffled Many Times but Success Comes at Last.

(From the Grand Rapids Press.)

The following incident would be hard to believe if it had not occurred right here in Grand Rapids, and investigation by our representative has placed it beyond the reach of doubt. These are the facts in detail: Mr. J. H. White of No. 25 Haifley Place, has been an instructor in penmanship in different business colleges for the past fourteen years. He says: "Last October I was suddenly taken ill. I consulted a physician, who said the pain was from 'gravel' stones; gradually grew worse; the pain was in my back and side. My back swelled up in a great ridge, and I finally grew so bad that I was taken to bed, as helpless as a child. I passed blood, and when the pain was at its worst I was like one crazy. The doctor injected morphine to give me relief, but further than that he said he was powerless, and nothing would do me any good but a surgical operation. I believe my flesh was literally cooked in the attempts to relieve my agony, everything was used, mustard plasters, turpentine, hot cloths and all such things. I was in this condition, given up by the doctor, and almost out of my mind with suffering. I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and really I felt easier in 20 minutes. After about two hours I had a passage of urine, and passed blood and some 'gravel' stones which greatly relieved me. I rapidly improved. I took in all six boxes, and I feel to-day entirely well. Mine has been a wonderful case. I feel that I cannot say anything strong enough for Doan's Kidney Pills. My great wish is that they may become well known. They will prove a boon to mankind.

ARMORY DEDICATED.

Notable Military Event at Grand Rapids—Gov. Pingree Present.

Grand Rapids, May 29.—The armory fitted up for the three companies of the Michigan national guard, constituting the Grand Rapids battalion, was formally dedicated Wednesday night. Gov. Pingree, accompanied by his wife and daughter, the members of the military staff, most of the regimental officers of the state and many company officers, attended. Gov. Pingree and party arrived at one o'clock, and were greeted by music and the booming of cannon. After lunch an informal reception was held. At night the cannon boomed another salute, and the festivities of the armory were opened. There were addresses by the governor and by Mayor Stow, followed by dancing. The armory is the largest and handsomest in the state, with a drillroom 67 by 100 feet, an equipment-room the same size, with company offices and lockers and spacious quarters for a military club. In the afternoon the Second regiment elected Charles S. Stewart, of Kalamazoo, as lieutenant colonel to fill a vacancy, and Capt. John Mitchell, of Ionia, major.

GERMAN PYTHIANS UPHELD.

Michigan Supreme Court Decides a Case in Their Favor.

Lansing, May 29.—The supreme lodge Knights of Pythias met a setback in the supreme court Friday afternoon in the attempt to restrain the Improved Order of Knights of Pythias from using the jewels and ritual of the order. The defendants were German members of the Knights of Pythias, who withdrew from the order and established a lodge of their own, in which the German language was used. The supreme court affirms the decision of the lower court in dismissing the bill of the complainant.

George M. Dewey Dead.

Owosso, May 28. — George M. Dewey, the veteran editor and campaign speaker, died Wednesday morning. He was one of the organizers of the republican party, was past supreme commander of the Royal Templars of Temperance, past grand master of the Odd Fellows, state senator and ex-deputy superintendent of public instruction. Mr. Dewey had campaigned in nearly every northern state in presidential elections for 40 years, and was widely known as an orator on political and fraternal subjects. His widow and five children survive him.

Fight with a Porcupine.

Niles, May 28.—Nolan H. Breece and A. M. Perry, residing near this city, had a desperate fight with a porcupine which they finally killed, and they now have the carcass on exhibition. The animal has been annoying farmers hereabouts for over a year and many attempts were made to kill or capture it. Breece and Perry came on the porcupine accidentally and the animal gave them a great fight, inflicting severe wounds on both men. No one knows where the porcupine came from.

Recovers His Voice.

Lagrange, Ind., May 28. — Frederick Markley, living near Church, Mich., lost his voice when a boy. He spent a fortune in an effort to regain speech, finally abandoning medical science and trusting wholly to the efficacy of prayer. Recently a miracle was apparently wrought. The power of speech returned to Markley as mysteriously as it left him nearly half a century ago. Markley attributes the recovery of his voice to divine interposition.

Fell from a Train.

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—Mrs. Harriet Higgins, of Wakelee, Mich., fell from the west-bound "Maple Leaf" passenger train Thursday night, and later her body was found in the railroad yards in this city. The car wheels had cut off her head. The woman was on her way to live with her son at Columbus, Kan. Her age was 50 years.

Started Out as Tramps.

Davidson, May 28.—Kenneth Clark and George Henderson, two Davidson 12-year-olds, left their fond parents last week and started out as "hobos," but Henderson, becoming tired of irregular meals, left his chum in Clifford and went home. Clark's father located him in jail at Imlay City and took him home.

Died from Her Injuries.

Jackson, May 27.—Mrs. Nancy Stevens, who was run over by a street car Monday, breaking one ankle and crushing the other so badly that amputation was necessary, died this evening. She was 71 years old. Two remaining members of her family are invalids.

Damaged by Frost.

Lapeer, May 27.—A hard frost visited this section, doing considerable damage to all kinds of fruits and especially grapes. It is said that the potato crop will be almost entirely a failure owing to the frost.

Oldest Practicing Attorney.

Port Huron, May 28.—Judge William T. Mitchell, the oldest practicing attorney in this city, and perhaps in the state of Michigan, celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary at his home in this city.

Marvelous Cures!

—BY—

Dr. W. C. Walker

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon, of Detroit, Mich, formerly of N. Y., will make the following regular monthly visits:

Tecumseh, Lilley House,

Friday, June 18.

Adrian, Hotel Emery,

Thursday, June 17.

Clinton, Hotel Lancaster.

Saturday, June 19.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will describe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery. It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS E J B.

Miss Addie Smith says: "I was sick for many years. My case was known for miles around. Was helped to Dr. Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the Doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the Doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration."

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Wm. Redman says also, that he has been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vistage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast She was a great sufferer.

Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $3,000.

Mrs. W. M.——, after being barren for ten years, says, "He cured me. We now have two little children. Suffice to say our home is a happy one.

Epilepsy (or fits) positively cured by a recent scientific discovery.

One of the most respected young men of Grand Rapids, Mr. C. H. Banks, has doctored with all the best physicians he could hear of and was finally given two weeks to live. Consulted Dr. Walker, took his treatment and is now a well man. He had chronic stomach trouble, weak lungs and constant cough, rheumatism and Bright's disease. He has gained 35 pounds and works every day. He advises all who are sick to see Dr. Walker.

Mrs. C. M. Stutzman cured of blood and skin disease of twelve years standing.

Mrs. L. E. Lambert cured of varicose ulcers on limb.

Miss Ella Crane cured of bronchial trouble and lung disease.

Miss B. H. cured of female weakness after being treated by many noted physicians.

Mrs. W. W. Bennett says also that she had lost her sense of smell and became partially deaf by catarrh in the head and could not sleep for constant coughing and pain through the lungs, also had female trouble. She says she will testify to anyone that Dr. Walker saved her life. She has gained thirty pounds and is well.

Miss Elizabeth Ball writes, after being a great sufferer for a number of years with neuralgia in the head and stomach: I am cured. I feel as though I have got into a new world. I cannot praise the doctor enough for his skill in my case.

Dr. Walker's specialties are diseases of Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs and all chronic, private and nervous diseases and deformities, as Granulated Lids, Cross Eyes, Deafness, Discharge of the Ears, Bronchitis, Chronic Cough, Goitre (big neck) Fever Sores and Ulcers, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Heart Stomach and Nervous Diseases, Chorea (st. Vitus Dance), Epilepsy fits, General Debility, Scrofula, skin diseases and all diseases due to bad blood; also rectal diseases.

I will give special attention to difficult cases and to cases other physicians have failed to cure.

Bank references.

Persons applying for treatment will please bring from two to three ounces of urine, first passed in the morning preferred for analysis.

WILL ACCEPT ANGELL.

Sultan Withdraws Objections to the New American Minister.

Washington, June 2.—Sultan Abdul Hamid has changed his mind and James B. Angell will go to Turkey as United States minister. The information reached here Tuesday that the sultan had withdrawn his objections to President Angell, principally through the efforts of Minister Terrell, who from the first has made strong efforts to disabuse the minds of the Turkish authorities of prejudice against Dr. Angell. It is learned that the principal complaint of the porte against Dr. Angell was based on an erroneous idea of the Congregational church, of which the porte understood Dr. Angell was a member.

The representations made to the Turkish government were that the Congregationalists were a politico-religious body, likened by the Turks to the Jesuits, and had designs on the welfare of the sultan's empire.

The sultan was therefore advised to object to receiving as the representative of a friendly foreign power a man who was a member of and in sympathy with, if not actually concerned in, a body that was working against his interests. This and the other objections were explained away by Dr. Angell, and Turkey is now willing to welcome him as Turkish minister.

SEEN IN NEW YORK.

Charles H. Smith, a Legally Dead Man, Is Alive.

Detroit, June 1.— Charles H. Smith has returned to this country. On May 14, 1890, Mr. Smith, then a prominent business man of Detroit, mysteriously disappeared. His estate was probated June 19, 1890, and he was declared legally dead. Six months ago his closest friend, James Vernon, heard from him, and yesterday Mr. Vernon returned from New York, where he had met him. Financial reverses drove Mr. Smith away and he says he will never come back to Detroit. Mr. Smith was formerly a member of the firm of Pingree & Smith. He left Detroit one night on a sailing vessel. He has visited South America and China, and until now his family was kept in ignorance of his whereabouts.

Man with a History.

Lansing, May 27.—Rev. George Taylor died this morning at the age of 87 years. He was a man with a history, one of the pioneer Methodist ministers of the state, and he was largely instrumental in raising the funds with which the soldiers' monument in Detroit was erected. In 1849 he came to Michigan and occupied a pulpit in Detroit for several years. He had also preached at Pontiac, Romeo, Flint, Howell and other interior towns. He was chaplain of the Eighth Michigan infantry during the civil war.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

Pingree May Call the Lawmakers Together Again.

LAST WEEK OF THE LEGISLATURE.

As Usual in Such Cases It Was a Busy One—Considerable Important Legislation Affecting the Manufacture of Liquors Put to Death—Governor Pingree's Final Message to the Legislature Suggesting the Continuation of the Session.

Lansing, Mich., June 1.—The first session of the legislature of 1897 is at an end. I say the first session for the reason that the chances are much more than even that the present legislature will be called in special session before the terms of its members expire. At this writing about the only problematical thing in this connection is the time when such session will be held. All of the governor's utterances and intimations tend to show his determination to make the railroad bills, which were turned down in one end or the other of the capitol during the past fortnight, the subjects for consideration by the present body of lawmakers, not that he expects to have any of them passed any more than they have been during the session just closed, but in order to equip himself with a most excellent talking point for the next campaign. There is no reason to believe that the majority of senators who voted to put these bills to sleep last week will vote any differently if called together again during the next few months, but the exigencies of an approaching political campaign sometimes call for the resort to heroic measures, even though the poor taxpayers, about whom so many plaintive appeals are heard, are called upon to pay the freight.

Belittling the Legislature.

It has come to be the custom during the past few years to belittle the standing of the legislature, certain people delighting to convey the impression that the legislature is made up of a lot of men who are inferior intellectually and who are inclined to yield to improper influences. As one who has been a close observer of the successive legislatures which have convened in Michigan during the past two decades, I desire to venture the opinion that this class of charges which are so frequently heard and made have no foundation in fact. The present legislature compares favorably with any of its predecessors during the period mentioned at least. Its members all come from the people—the common people, if you please—and they are no better and no worse than the class from which they come, the members of which are for the most part honest and intelligent. The members of the present legislature are just as honest and just as intelligent as were those of the legislatures which convened in the "good old days" when it was not considered the proper thing for the newspapers to vie with each other in endeavoring to impress the people with the idea that all their representatives in lawmaking bodies are corrupt. The sooner the people get this false idea out of their heads the better will it be for both them and their representatives, who are simply those whom they select from among their own number to represent them, and who reflect truthfully the honesty and intelligence of their makers.

Last Week a Busy One.

The last week of the legislature was, as usual, a busy one, everyone's feet being constantly off the ground, as it were. Not the least exciting feature was the governor's special message calling upon the two houses to rescind the resolution fixing final adjournment for May 31, and to extend the session at least two weeks. The governor's reason for asking this extension was that numerous important bills had not been disposed of and sufficient time did not remain to give them intelligent consideration. In this connection he cited the bills requiring the railroads to sell interchangeable mileage books and also 500-mile books for $10; the bill to repeal the special charter of the Michigan Central Railway company; the bill to prevent discrimination in the matter of freight rates; and measures to provide for a state bureau of accounts for the purpose of requiring a uniform system of accounts to be kept by all corporations which pay specific taxes so that the state may be sure that it is getting honest statements of earnings on which to base its assessments. He also called attention to the pending bills to increase the taxes paid by telephone, telegraph and express companies, and expressed the opinion that the numerous important appropriation bills could not be given adequate attention in the time remaining before the session was scheduled to end.

The effect of this message on the house was instantaneous and decisive. A concurrent resolution was immediately adopted extending the session until June 14, but as the senate as promptly refused to concur in this action, the extension was not made. The senate further wiped aside the governor's suggestions by refusing to take from the railroad committee the three railroad bills mentioned, all of which were smothered without coming to a vote, although the vote on the question of taking them from the committee was a sufficient test of the attitude of the senate concerning them. Not one of them would have passed that body, notwithstanding all had been passed by the house.

Extra Session May Be Called.

It is this hostile attitude of the senate which warrants the belief that an extra session of the legislature will be called, although it may not be held until next winter. Just what can be gained in a practical way by calling such special session is not readily understood by the ordinary citizen. The conditions with reference to the wisdom or justice of passing these railroad measures or of still further increasing the taxes to be paid by the companies will not have altered between now and the time the session may be called, either is there any reason for believing that there will be any change in the attitude of a majority of the senators. The outcome of the session so far as the fate of these bills is concerned is, therefore, easy to predict.

One of the bills passed by the two houses during the closing hours of the session was inspired by the labor unions of the state, the members of which hope for great things from its practical operations. It provides for an exchange of products between state institutions, and it is hoped that the several institutions of the state may be able to supply the needs of each other to a large extent under its practical workings. The labor men who urged its passage hope that it will, in a measure, solve the convict labor problem by keeping the convicts at work, as far as may be possible, on products that will be used at other state institutions, and to this extent do away with their labor competing with free labor in the markets.

Legislation Put to Death.

Considerable important legislation affecting the manufacture and sale of malt and spirituous liquors, which looked hopeful during the early days of the session, was put to death during the closing hours. One of these bills was the Colman bill, which, as its author stated, was designed to make druggists go out of the saloon business. It aimed to accomplish this by hedging about in every way possible the sale of liquors by druggists. Another was the bill providing for a stamp tax of 1 cent, per gallon, or 32 cents per barrel, on all beer manufactured or sold in Michigan. Senator Flood, who introduced this bill, figured that it would yield the state an annual revenue of between $300,000 and $400,000, while it would increase the price of beer but one-sixteenth of a cent per glass. He made a vigorous fight for the bill, but it was lost in the senate by a close vote. The third bill of this class which suffered defeat was one asked for by the saloonkeepers. As introduced it amended the present law so as to permit saloons to be kept open on New Year's Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day. After two trials had demonstrated the fact that the bill could not be passed as introduced, its friends cut out two of the days and sought to have it apply to the nation's birthday only. They came very near scoring a point here, for, as thus amended, it came within a single vote of passing the house, fifty votes being recorded in its favor. The result of the legislative labors on this subject is that the liquor laws remain just as they were before the legislature convened.

Pingree's Final Message.

Governor Pingree has always been famous for his fighting qualities, and he lost none of his reputation thus gained by his controversy over the specific railroad tax matter. His final communication to the legislature was on this subject. It was sent to both houses late Friday night, after all the members had packed all their desk effects in big pine boxes, nailed down the covers, and were prepared to depart for their homes.

The message again suggested the advisability of extending the session, although the Merriman bill was the only matter of legislation mentioned. Accompanying the message, Governor Pingree transmitted a statement prepared by Railroad Commissioner Wesselins in which it was declared that the annual increase in railroad taxes based on last year's earnings, which the Merriman bill would yield, was only $155,000, instead of 205,000, as has been computed by the friends of the bill. There was also transmitted an exhaustive brief prepared by Commissioner Wesselins on the question of the validity of the scheme of taxation provided by the Merriman bill. The commissioner maintained that the bill was in direct contravention of the interstate commerce law, and hence unconstitutional and void. Governor Pingree stated that he had submitted this opinion to several lawyers eminent in their profession, and they indorsed the commissioner's contention as to the unconstitutionality of the law.

Senator Merriman made a long speech and cited numerous authorities in opposition to Wesselin's claim, and on his motion the message was ordered printed in the journal. This was all the attention it received in the senate, no one making any motion to act on the suggestion that the session be extended.

Showing of Economy.

Notwithstanding all of its shortcomings the present legislature prides itself on the showing of economy it can make as compared with the record of two years ago. It points to the fact that the bill providing for the general expenses of the state government two years ago called for a levy of $3,071,000, while the special appropriations aggregated $2,508,941. This year the amount included in the general purpose bill is $2,011,457, a decrease of $562,059, while the special appropriations aggregate $1,568,457, a decrease of $143,000. The total decrease in these two items is $705,059, to which must be added the increase of $205,000 made in railroad taxes, thus making a total saving to the taxpayers of $910,059. The state tax rate for 1895 and 1896 was 4¼ mills on the dollar of valuation, or a rate per year of 2⅛ mills. On the basis of the above appropriations it will be for ensuing two years 3 9-10th mills on the dollar, or a trifle less than 2 mills per year.

If the Perry bill reducing the number of state reports and other documents to be printed and distributed is not vetoed by the governor a further saving of $10,000 a year will be effected. The governor is inclined to veto this bill for the reason that it arbitrarily says how many pages certain state officials may include in their reports, and deprives the chief executive of the privilege of having thousands of messages printed and sent broadcast at the expense of the people, bearing his compliments in bold type. He thinks that the men who prepare the reports are the best judges of what and how much material they should contain, and in this contention he is correct. This limit should not be fixed arbitrarily by people who know nothing about the subject matter.

Important Bills Passed.

Two very important bills were passed on the last day of the session. One of them provides methods by which the property of persons dying without wills and without heirs, may be escheated to the state. It also provides for the taking by the state and turning into the general fund all deposits in state banks which have been unclaimed for a period of seven years. Deputy Attorney General Chase is authority for the statement that this bill will yield the state fully $100,000 in the immediate future.

The other bill referred to is one which makes directors of corporations which fail to make annual reports liable to the extent of $5 each for each day that such neglect continues.

BACK FROM CUBA.

William J. Calhoun, Special Commissioner, Home Again.

He Will Not Talk of His Mission—Says, However, Testimony Was Hard to Get—Cuba Is Practically Devastated.

New York, June 8.—William J. Calhoun, who was sent to Cuba as a special commissioner to investigate the circumstances of the death in the prison of Dr. Ruiz, an American citizen, reached this city on his return yesterday.

Hard to Get Testimony.

"At the session of the commission," Mr. Calhoun said, in response to a reporter's questioning, "we examined several witnesses, but when you ask me if they were plentiful, I can only say that they did not run after us, and we had to use no force to keep them away. They were composed of Spaniards and Cubans. The Spanish witnesses, and, in fact, all of those who testified, were so surrounded with safeguards that it was impossible to get at the naked truth. One person whom we would have liked to hear could not be found. This was Fondsvella, who commanded the Spanish in the Guahabacoa territory. He disappeared, and it was impossible to find him. Capt. Gen. Weyler did not put in an appearance at the investigation. We inspected the jail at Guanabacoa, and when we were there it was suspiciously clean."

Ruiz' Death a Mystery.

"We learned that Dr. Ruiz was arrested on February 4 charged with having some connection with an assault which took place in a railroad train between Guanabacoa and Havana. He was placed in solitary confinement, or, as it is known there, he was incommunicado. Thirteen days later he was taken out of his cell on account of his mental and physical condition. It was then found that he was suffering from a severe wound on the head, and he died two hours after his release from the cell in which the secret of his injury is buried. The question of the deceased doctor's American citizenship was never denied. The autopsy showed that he died from congestion of the brain. His remains were interred at Guanabacoa. We had no positive or direct proof of any assault whatever, and the conclusion arrived at must be based on the detailed evidence in the report of Consul-General Lee, which is now on its way to Washington. I, myself, will make no report, and I prefer not to say anything as to my idea of the affair until the report is made public by the proper authorities at Washington."

Cuba Devastated.

In a later conversation, Mr. Calhoun said: "The island of Cuba is rapidly being devastated by a relentless, cruel and bitter civil war, so that in a short time it will not be worth anything to anyone. It is difficult to get at the exact situation there. In the first place, there is a severe censorship of the press, and those who are naturally friendly to the Cubans hardly dare to express their views and opinions. Furthermore, the adherents of both sides are exceedingly intense. They tell their stories just as they want you to believe them. From the Spanish point of view, the island is practically pacified, and from that of the Cubans the insurgents never were in such excellent shape as they now are."

"What is the condition of the country?"

"It seems to be entirely depopulated, and there are no signs of any buildings standing except at the railroad stations. These by the way, are practically forts. I was generally informed that the same condition of affairs exists throughout the Cuban island from Havana to Pinar del Rio, except in the extreme eastern end. There is where the Cubans get their supplies and their cattle. They control that section. It was the portion of the island which held out ten years in the last war. Cuba is undoubtedly a magnificent country. It is rich and beautiful, and the soil responds bountifully to the seed.

"While I am not called upon to make any formal report to the president, because I acted merely as counsel to Gen. Lee, in the Ruiz case, still I may be asked to tell Mr McKinley and the secretary of state of the things which I have seen and heard in my brief trip to the island of Cuba. In that case, I readily will do so."

Talks with the President.

Washington, June 9.—W. J. Calhoun, of Danville, Ill., the president's special commissioner to Cuba, returned to Washington Tuesday afternoon. He went first to the state department to see Assistant Secretary Day. Judge Day and Mr. Calhoun went thence to the white house, where for an hour Mr. Calhoun related his experiences in Cuba to the president. Mr. Calhoun said that his conversation with the president and Judge Day was an official one, and that he could not repeat what had passed between them. He said the conversation was general on the affairs in Cuba, and that he had related some of his impressions and conclusions, but that the president desired to ask him some questions and go into a more detailed discussion of the subject. Mr. Calhoun will make no written report.

LOSS TO IOWA FARMERS.

Ravages of Hog Cholera Last Year Cost Over $22,000,000.

Des Moines, Ia., June 8.—Reports from 61 counties show that in these counties 1,344,158 hogs died of cholera last year. These reports are from returns by township assessors, tabulated by the county auditors and returned to the auditor of state for the state weather and crop service. The returns are reliable, and will show that about 2,225,000 hogs died of cholera in the state last year. A fair average price of a hog is ten dollars, so the loss will be over $22,000,000.

To Visit American Cities.

Philadelphia, June 8.—The South American delegates who attended the formal opening in this city of the Philadelphia Commercial museum bade farewell to Philadelphia Monday, when they started on a tour of the industrial centers of this country. The trip was planned for the purpose of enabling the delegates to get an idea of the vast diversity of this country's manufacturing interests.

Chicago, June 8.—C. D. Mosher, a prominent photographer, dropped dead of heart disease in a restaurant Monday.

CHILLY FOR CROPS.

Farmers' Interests Suffer from Cold and Frosts.

Chicago, June 9.—The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Ohio—Warm days, cool nights, severe frost, showers local, sunshine deficient. Too cool for all crops; frosts not serious. Wheat, pastures, timothy, clover, rye, barley, potatoes and tobacco made slight growth, and look fairly well, but corn slow and poor and much being replanted. Wheat heading, some complaints of insects and rust. Gardens variable; meadows weedy; some millet sown; tobacco not all planted; strawberries and cherries ripe; locusts becoming numerous.

Michigan—Good week for field work, but continued cold has held back growth, being especially detrimental to oats and early corn, which look yellow and poor. Cold ground causes much seed corn to rot, necessitating much replanting. Rye, grass and meadows in generally good condition. Wheat beginning to head. Corn cultivation and late potato planting begun. Snow and freezing temperatures did much damage in upper peninsula.

Indiana—Weather too cool for corn, which comes up yellow. Wheat, oats and other crops improved. The hay crop will be heavy. Tobacco plants ready to sod out.

Illinois—Week too cold for corn and garden growth, but favorable for wheat, rye, oats and grasses. Corn cultivation general, considerable replanting done owing to cut worms, moles, poor seed and frost damage. Winter wheat heading and blooming and cutting will begin in extreme south counties next week. Clover cutting progressing. Strawberries and cherries being marketed in large quantities.

Iowa—Another cold, dry week, following freezing temperature, has retarded all crop growth. Gardens, vegetables and grapes in northern districts were much hurt by frost, but field crop not badly injured. Corn cultivation and replanting in progress.

Wisconsin—Liberal rain during week, but too cold for rapid growth. Frost on 1st damaged corn, potatoes, gardens and fruits in central and western counties. Winter wheat, winter rye and barley slightly injured. Much corn will be replanted. Oats, spring wheat, spring rye and meadows fair.

A MOB'S VENGEANCE.

A Negro Lynched in Ohio—Two Men Killed by the Militia.

Urbana, O., June 5. — Charles Mitchell (colored) was taken from the jail here by a mob, kicked and cuffed down the stairs and out of doors to the nearest tree, and, more dead than alive, was strung up over the heads of the enraged people. For an hour his lifeless body was left suspended, and then, by order of the mayor, was cut down and placed in a wooden box.

Mitchell's crime was an assault committed on Mrs. Eliza Gaumer, widow of the late publisher of the Urbana Democrat. Mitchell had been sentenced to serve 20 years in the penitentiary—the extreme penalty prescribed by the Ohio law—for his crime.

News of the intended attack on the prisoner reached the officers of the court in the afternoon, and they called on the governor for militia to protect Mitchell. Troops were ordered out and when the mob attacked the jail they fired, killing Harvey Bell and Upton Baker, fatally wounding Wesley Brown and Zach Wank, and injuring seven others.

The feeling is intense against the sheriff for allowing the national guards to fire on the people, and there is a very general approval of the work of the mob.

The sheriff denies responsibility for the shooting, and so does the captain. On the other hand, the citizens assert that the sheriff himself fired the first shot.

Cincinnati, June 8. — Gov. Bushnell in a letter to the Commercial-Tribune, says:

"The members of the national guard at Urbana did their duty and are entitled to the support of the state. Lamentable as the results were, their efforts were to maintain the majesty of the law, and they should be upheld by all the people."

FIREWORKS EXPLODE.

A Woman Killed, Many Persons Hurt and Buildings Wrecked.

Chicago, June 9.—Exploding fireworks wrought havoc in the immediate vicinity of Halsted and Van Buren streets at precisely 5:55 o'clock Tuesday evening. As the result of the swift accident one person was killed and 46 hurt, some of them seriously, $50,000 worth of property was destroyed and a commotion was precipitated such as the West division has seldom witnessed. The name of the dead person is Mrs. Maggie Kenney. She was struck by a runaway horse, bruised and cut, and died at midnight in the county hospital.

Woman Confesses a Murder.

Kenosha, Wis., June 7.—Mrs. Marie Pleva, who is accused of murdering her husband, and was arrested Tuesday, has made a full confession. She says she procured a large amount of poison and placed it in his coffee. The reason she gives for doing it was that she had a great deal of trouble with him and wanted to get him out of the way. She says that nobody else was connected in any way with the murder.

Lawyer Kills an Editor.

Ardmore, I. T., June 8.—James Williams, editor of the Chronicle, was shot and killed here Monday by Clarence B. Douglass, of this city, an attorney and prominent republican. Both men were of high standing and widely known. The killing is the result of an attack made on Douglass through the columns of the Chronicle. Douglass is now in jail.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in Senate and House.

The Tariff Bill Occupies the Entire Time in the Senate—No Business Done in the House—Other News.

Washington, June 3. — The senate made greater progress yesterday on the tariff bill than on any day since the debate opened, completing more than half of the important metal schedule.

Washington, June 4. — The senate again made good progress on the tariff bill yesterday, covering about ten pages of the metals schedule.

Washington, June 5. — The senate had a period of speechmaking yesterday, and as a result little progress was made on the tariff bill. The advance covered about two pages, and brought the work up to the wood schedule, the first item of which was considered, but not completed. The nomination of Ellis H. Roberts, of New York, to be treasurer of the United States, was received from the president.

Washington, June 7.—When the senate laid aside the tariff bill Saturday night it had reached the sugar schedule, which has been the subject of so much interest and conflict.

Washington, June 8.—The senate on Monday disposed of the lumber paragraph, which has been more stubbornly contested than any feature of the bill thus far, by defeating the motion of Senator Vest to place white pine on the free list; yeas, 20; nays, 38. The contest was mainly significant in breaking party lines which have been maintained with few exceptions during the early stages of the debate.

Washington, June 9.—By a decisive vote of 42 to 19 the senate yesterday adopted an amendment to the tariff bill placing raw cotton on the dutiable list of 20 per cent. ad valorem. The sugar schedule was passed over, and the agricultural schedule taken up and nearly disposed of. The republican senators held a caucus and adopted a new sugar schedule for the tariff bill.

The House.

Washington, June 4.—In the house yesterday the conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was adopted. Mr. Terry (Ark.) endeavored to bring up Cuban affairs as a privileged question, but was defeated. Adjourned to Monday.

Washington, June 8. — The house Monday passed the senate bills to amend the act to authorize the construction of a steel bridge across the St. Louis river and to authorize the construction of a bridge across Pearl river, Miss. By a vote of 91 to 79 it then adjourned until Thursday, the democrats opposing an adjournment in the interest of the Cuban and bankruptcy questions.

Forestry Order Revoked.

Washington, June 5.—The president signed the sundry civil bill Friday which contains the compromise amendment concerning the forestry reservations. The amendment suspends the proclamation of President Cleveland dated February 22 last, under which 21,000,000 acres were set aside from the public domain as forestry reservations until the first of next March. These reservations are in the states of Wyoming, Utah, Montana, Washington, Idaho and South Dakota. The lands embraced within them are until that date subject to sale and entry, under the laws, like any other public lands in the United States.

Many Postmasters Appointed.

Washington, June 8.—The effect of the recent ruling of the post office department to consider as vacant all offices which are due to expire between now and July 15 was apparent Monday when 153 fourth-class postmasters were appointed. This is the record for one day in this administration. Seventy-two of the vacancies were caused by removals.

CANOVAS WILL STAY.

An Unexpected Termination of the Spanish Ministerial Crisis.

Madrid, June 7.—The queen regent has confirmed Senor Canovas, the premier, in his ministerial powers, and the cabinet will remain in office with personnel and policy unchanged. All the leading members of the senate and of the chamber of deputies who were consulted by her majesty, as well as three marshals, have advised the recall of Capt. Gen. Weyler from Cuba.

At a cabinet council held Sunday afternoon at his residence Senor Canovas, the premier, announced that the queen regent had renewed his powers and those of the cabinet in terms most flattering to him and all his colleagues. It is understood that the government does not contemplate any immediate change in the supreme command in Cuba. The surprise and displeasure of the various sections of the opposition are not easy to describe.

A Sad Affair.

Salem, W. Va., June 7.—John Nicholson and Ida Sutlan, members of prominent families, were married, and boodluma who went to their home to hold a charivari fired a gun and the bride was killed.

Tragedy in Cairo.

The game of ball Saturday between Lake Ridge and the home team was interesting and quite exciting notwithstanding the score ran high. With the grounds as they are, long and narrow, unless it is purely a pitcher's game, the scores must necessarily be much larger than if they were broader. For the first four innings it looked as if Lake Ridge had a dead cinch on the game, the score being 11 to 2 in their favor. After that our boys gathered themselves together and in the next four innings made 20 runs while Lake Ridge in five only made 4. There were some very pretty plays made by both teams. Mallon, our new catcher, is a "dandy" and in many respects resembles that prince of catchers, Charlie Bennett, Detroit's old favorite. He threw three men out at second in fine style and batted well. Score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R
Lake Ridge	1	0	6	4	0	0	0	4	0	15
Clinton	0	0	0	2	4	1	9	6	*	22

Earned runs—Lake Ridge 9, Clinton 11. Bases on balls—Lake Ridge 2, Clinton 8. Base hits—Lake Ridge 16, Clinton 18. 2-base hits—Phillips, Cotton, Wade, Rogers, Mallon, Kennedy. Stolen bases—Lake Ridge 0, Clinton 10. Struck out—Eastlick 5. Uphouse 12. Errors—Lake Ridge 9, Clinton 4.

Many farmers are clearing the rye out of their wheat. The task is not so herculean as it would seem to be. An energetic man with a sharp corn knife will get over a good deal of ground in a day, and it ought, by all means, to be done if Michigan would retain her reputation for fine quality of wheat. Mixed wheat means low priced wheat.

When a person begins to grow thin there is something wrong. The waste is greater than the supply and it is only a question of time when the end must come. In nine cases out of ten the trouble is with the digestive organs. If you can restore them to a healthy condition you will stop the waste, put on new flesh and cause them to feel better in every way. The food they eat will be digested and appropriated to the needs of the system, and a normal appetite will appear. Consumption frequently follows a wasting of bodily tissue because nearly all consumptives have indigestion. The Shaker Digestive Cordial will restore the stomach to a healthy condition in a vast majority of cases. Get one of their books from your druggist and learn about this new and valuable remedy.

FARM & GARDEN.

MARKING OFF FIELDS.

Handy Contrivance That Has Never Before Been Described.

A seed drill with a marker is very desirable, but where only small quantities are planted, a stake and line must be depended upon. The great trouble with a line is that after having marked a row by it and shifted the last end for the next row, you must walk back, doing nothing the whole length of the row, whether long or short, to shift the first end. This year I hit on the following contrivance, which I have never seen described, and it is a great help. Besides the line, with a reel (a) on one end and a stick (b) on the other, have two smooth sticks (c), with rounded tops, like the upper part of a broom handle. Drive in the end stake very firmly at a, the second end of the first row. Walk across, unreeling the cord, to e. Put in one of the extra sticks lightly and pass the cord around it. Put the reel in very firmly at f. The cord is now as shown by the continuous line. Mark or plant from e to a. Put in the other new stick at b lightly. Take up the end stick at a and pull so hard on the line that the stick at e leans over and the cord slips off. Stretch the cord tight around the stick b and drive the other end of stick firmly at c. The cord now appears as the dotted line, and it will have been shifted for the second row without loss of time or unnecessary walking. You are always working toward the one stick and away from the two sticks. In this way you can plant an indefinite number of rows and only cross the ground without planting or marking when you set the line and when you reel it up.—Orange Judd Farmer.

ALL AROUND THE FARM.

In a sandy soil deep planting is best for potatoes.

If the hay is dusty, dampen it for feeding to horses.

Pull the collars away from the horses' shoulders while they are resting.

Ashes may be considered as a special fertilizer for potatoes, improving the yield and quality.

Generally with flower seed, large or coarse seed should be planted much deeper than fine seed.

The most successful work of the farm is done according to the season, rather than by any other set rule.

It will be an exceptional case when some soiling crop cannot be used to a good advantage during the summer.

When the cabbage, tomatoes or sweet potato plants have grown long and spindling set them deeper into the soil; down to the first leaf is usually a good plan.

If the full number of stock is kept that the pastures will carry during the best part of the growing season, some soiling crop must be grown to help out when the pastures fail.

One advantage with all farm products and stocks is that if prices fall it is certain that the lower quality drops first and most, and usually is most difficult to sell. There is always a sale for the products of a better quality.—Farmers' Union.

This Is a Peculiar World.

One is struggling for justice, and another is fleeing from it. One man is saving to build a house, and another is trying to sell his for less than cost, to get rid of it. One man is spending all the money he can make in taking a girl to the theater and sending her flowers, with the hope of making her his wife, while his neighbor is spending what gold he has in getting a divorce. One man escapes all the diseases that flesh is heir to and gets killed on the railroad. Another escapes with a scratch and dies with the whooping cough. One man stands off his creditors and goes traveling, while another pays his debts and stays at home.—Corman's Rural World.

Burn All Diseased Plants.

Diseased plants should never be added to the manure heap, as they contaminate the whole mass. It is possible to spread plant diseases over the entire farm through the agency of manure, and no farm will get rid of any disease that attacks plants until all refuse is burnt. Onion smut, potato scab and sweet potato rot are spread when the tops are thrown on the manure. Every tree or plant that is brought on the farm from other places becomes a medium for communicating disease and should be carefully examined on arrival, as the nurseryman may not be aware of the fact that a plant is not healthy. It is cheaper to keep disease away than to combat it after it becomes established.

Bean Straw for Sheep.

It has been well attested that bean straw is a valuable feed for sheep, and that they are fond of it. The bean, like clover is a leguminous plant, and many farmers say that the straw, though coarse and harsh, has nearly as much nutrition as clover hay. It makes a very rich manure when fed to either sheep or cows. That is shown by its rotting very fast when piled and giving off the strong smell of ammonia which comes from feeding any manure rich in nitrogenous nutrition.—Dakota Field and Farm.

A Beautiful Girl Barely Escapes a Life-long Calamity.

It happened in this way. The young daughter of Mrs. E. S. Gibson, Greelyville, South Carolina, was slowly but surely becoming a hopeless invalid. Her mother became anxious and haggard in her frantic efforts to save her daughter. None of her attempts to find a cure seemed of any avail. As stated in her own words: "My daughter was taken sick some time ago and I tried many medicines in vain. She was very weak, appetite poor, bowels costive, and night sweats. She appeared to be cold all the time, being taken with violent chills at times. Her nerves were in a very bad condition. At last I happened to see one of your little books and wrote you. You recommended Peruna. I gave it to her and she has now completely recovered. I owe all that I am worth in this world to you for saving my daughter's life. I shall always keep a supply of your medicines on hand. May you live long to help those suffering as my daughter was." Peruna always cures such cases. Send for free book, written for women only. A Sad Death.

It was a sad accident that befell Ralph Gillespie Thursday of last week; Doubly so as it resulted in his death Saturday evening. Death is always sad, but when it comes to one so young and in perfect health, the pang has a specially keen edge. After breakfast last Thursday morning, Ralph went out to turn the cattle into the pasture. Seeing the men hauling gravel for the road, he got upon a load, and when it was dumped started to turn the team around. How it happened no one will ever know, but the team ran away, he was thrown from the wagon, the wheel striking him on the back of the head. He was gathered up unconscious and never fully regained it. Everything was done that loving and skilled hands could do but with no avail, and he fell asleep with the setting sun Saturday evening.

Ralph was thirteen years of age, a boy of special promise a friend to everybody and everybody's friend. To know him was to love him for his bright, cheerful nature commanded love. The fact of his popularity was demonstrated by the large concourse of friends who completely filled the house and yard at the funeral Tuesday. Rev. C. M. Brown conducted the service, assisted by the Presbyterian choir. Ralph's Sunday-school class were in attendance, part of them acting as pall bearers.

Over a hundred carriages followed the remains to their last resting place and the occupants of every carriage carried hearts of sorrow. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their deep affliction.

Stephen Whittier

Was born in the state of New York, January 14, 1832, and died at his residence in Tecumseh, Mich., June 2, 1897, aged 65 years. About the year 1835 he came to Michigan with his parents and Tecumseh has been his home since. Fifty years ago he united with the M. E. church and has been always a consistent member. Was for 20 years and at the time of his death a member of the official board and superintendent of the Sunday-school 10 years. In 1854 he married Harriet E. Austin, who beside two children, Harriet V., of Tecumseh, and Chas. S., of Grand Rapids, survives him.

Mr. Whittier was a contractor and builder and had lived in 28 different houses in Tecumseh, most of which number he built and sold after occupancy. To him more than to any other man can be given the credit of building up Tecumseh with medium priced neat houses for which the village is noted and it seems almost incredible that one man could live in, build and build ove 28 houses in 40 years.

Although his death has been anticipated by his friends for many weeks, still it was a shock to the whole community, for in Tecumseh no man was better known or more respected than Stephen Whittier. His faithful labors were appreciated by almost every person in town who ever employed a carpenter. He was always cheerful of disposition and painstaking to a fault, a kind father and husband, a good Christian, an honest man. His place in home and church and community cannot be filled. In this case genuine sympathy goes out to the widow and children and the community is truly sad. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Barnes and burial was in charge of the Masons of which order he was a member.

Resolutions of Respect.

The following resolutions were passed by the Bible Class of the Presbyterian church, Raisin, on the death of the teacher, Nathan Spencer, who died June 2nd, 1897, aged 73 years:

As we meet today in our accustomed places we miss the familiar face of our beloved teacher whose tenement house the Owner did not see fit to repair, and whereas, he has moved to a mansion not made by hands, be it

RESOLVED, that in his removal we have lost a faithful and exemplary teacher and friend who will be sorely missed, and while we grieve we shall see his face no more, we rejoice he is forever free from care and anxiety and at rest in the arms of his Savior.

RESOLVED, the Church and Sabbath-school has lost an earnest Christian helper, the community, a kind and sympathetic friend, and the family, a kind, loving father and grandfather.

RESOLVED, we extend to the family our sympathy and a copy of these be printed in the TECUMSEH HERALD.

MR. AND MRS. W. E. DOTY, Committee.

Memorial Resolutions on the Death of Jehiel Davidson.

The last roll-call has been answered, the bugle has sounded, "Lights out" and our comrade has gone to his eternal rest, called away while yet in active service to His final reward.

We, the members of Beers' Post, No. 140, by his death have lost a loyal member and a tried patriot for he loved his country in the hour of her peril. How much greater the sorrow to his companion who is left to mourn his departure, but there is no death to the Christian.

"The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore.
And bright in Heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forevermore."

Therefore RESOLVED, that as a last tribute of respect to his memory, we have laid the laurel wreath upon his grave remembering his spirit dwells with the great Commander on High, and that his chair and the chart of this post be draped in his memory for thirty days.

Ball Game.

The game last Saturday, between the Atlantis, of Ypsilanti, and the home team was a great improvement over the one of the preceding week, and although somewhat one sided, abounded in snappy playing, particularly by the home team. Harris as usual pitched great ball, striking out nine men and holding the visitors down to four singles, in as many innings, but for Gillens passed ball, and Hicks error in the first inning, the visitors would have been shut out. With the exception of Hicks, Spalding, and Gillen, our boys played a gilt edge ball, and batted well. Kennedy leading, having four hits to his credit. Hughes next with two. All the rest save Hicks, made a hit. In the 7th inning Kennedy redeemed himself for his error where by reached first, by putting Wilson out at first and throwing Holly out at 2nd, making a pretty double play. Our boys stole bases on Holly at will having 12 to their credit, while the Atlantis had but 3, for the visitors Meyers, carried off the honors. He played the finest short-stop seen on the grounds, and by his work, saved many runs. Father Kennedy at 2nd fielded his position well, and is a good ball player.

	1	2	2	4	5	6	7	8	9

Commencement.

The thirtieth commencement exercises of the Tecumseh high school as furnished last evening at the opera house by the class of 1897, though of a different character from that usually followed were most entertaining and reflected great credit to the graduates. The stage was artistically though simply arranged, the only decorations being palms and ferns. Over and following the arch were the class motto, "Facto non verba," and the class colors, blue and yellow. The opera house was filled with friends and invited guests of the class.

Promptly on time the class took their positions and as they came forth from the flys on either side, the ladies in robes of fleecy white and the gentlemen dressed neatly in black. They made a pleasing picture.

Samuel W. McClure, president of the class, then announced the first number of the program, "Dancing o'er the Waves," by the male quartette, composed of Messrs. Coddington, Pulver, Hayden and Elliott, which was generally applauded.

Then came the invocation by Rev. David Lewis, after which Miss Julia Lowry gave a piano solo, charming all by her delicate and skillful touch and fine expression.

The address by Donald D. MacLaurin, D. D., of Detroit, was next on the program. Subject, "Otherism—or Right Conceptions." The reverend gentleman held his listeners spellbound by his masterly address. He is a magnetic as well as dramatic speaker and his manner was easy yet forcible. The class did well in securing his services.

The cornet solo by Geo. W. Knapp with his daughter as accompanist was finely executed and he was forced to respond to the encore.

Leigh H. Pennington then delivered the valedictory which we give in full. Mrs. Kellogg gave a beautiful vocal solo and then Dr. L. G. North after a few appropriate remarks presented the diplomas. The male quartette followed with another selection and as an encore gave a catchy little piece. Rev. David Lewis then pronounced the benediction and the exercises were over.

The class numbering fifteen was composed of the following: Florence L. Huey, Mary A. Mills, Naomi S. North, Cora E. Austin, Agnes L. Eaton, L. May Lowry, Harry C. Osgood, Leigh H. Pennington, Anna L. Williamson, M. Winnifred Richard, William W. Hicks, Grace Hillman, Samuel W. McClure, Calvin W. Snell and Lillian A. Waring. Each member was generously remembered with beautiful flowers and gifts and after receiving the congratulations of their friends, the class repaired to the Masonic temple upon invitation of the officers of the Eastern Star where a fine banquet was served.

VALEDICTORY.

It is fitting on an occasion like this that a recognition of the favors of our friends should be made and to me, at the request of my classmates has the duty been assigned.

Small events in our short lives have shown us that passing opportunities were not always appreciated as they came and went. Four years of high school life closes tonight, and I venture the statement that few of us fully comprehend what they should mean to us. To be sure we are now made to feel that our course here is finished and that, hereafter, yonder brick edifice where we have spent the best part of four years will know us no more. If we wander back there sometime in the future we shall find our old places filled by strangers. There will be no room for us there. Then perhaps more than now we shall realize that great law. We must progress if we would keep out of the way of those following and keep up with those with us.

Year after year we have seen other graduating classes stand here and heard them express their feelings and expectations, yet how lightly we esteemed their words. "Just a little emotional feeling, quite appropriate to the occasion and well adapted for pleasing their friends."

How seldom did we ever give a passing thought to the dignified board which was constantly planning and scheming for our benefit. Indeed I doubt if some of us would have known anything of their diligence had we not been reminded occasionally that our tuition was due.

Then there were our teachers. Some may say they were paid for instructing us. Be it so; when we stop to think we cannot count all the favors shown us by them. These favors are the landmarks along our way, and we shall keep them in memory after all other affairs are forgotten. Perhaps we did not show our appreciation as much as we might, nevertheless we did appreciate all.

As graduates of the high school considerable is expected of us, and that is as it should be for after having such opportunities as we have had, we certainly ought to be capable of usefulness.

Do not think because we have not all come forward and carried out the program as on former commencement occasions that we feel we are not capable of doing so. It makes but little difference what we say here, but what we shall do in the future is the all-important question. Deeds and not words are what count. And we feel that you have been much better entertained by the excellent address to which you have listened than you would have been by us.

In conclusion, in behalf of our class, I wish to thank the board, friends and teachers for the interest and favors of the past. We hope we may in turn be able in future years to help our successors as much as you have helped us.

We understand the council contemplate passing an ordinance restricting the speed of bicyclists within the corporation and that the ordinance against driving faster than six miles an hour will be rigidly enforced. It will therefore stand our wheelmen as well as drivers in band to "look a little out" or they may be marched up to the captain's office and required to fork over good money.

Beeswax wanted at Parrish's.

The bicyclists in all the towns around us are not only agitating bicycle paths but raising money for that purpose. Why are not our wheelmen doing the same thing? They do not want to be behind their neighbors in this almost imperative necessity. Cinder paths are the thing and ought to be built between towns. When this is done the condition of the wagon roads will not effect the use of wheels but they can be used nearly the year round.

Mrs. E. L. Russell after a short but painful illness wherein all medical skill and the tenderest care seemed futile, surrounded by loved ones, passed away Saturday morning at 5 o'clock, being one of the pioneers, and possessing qualities that made all friends who came in contact with her. Her funeral which was held at the M. E. Church Tuesday after-noon was attended by a great concourse of friends. Rev. J. P. Varner being away, Rev. O. J. Perrin of Dundee, a former pastor, attended.

From time to time as the years go by many pleasant memories long forgotten are revived by some circumstance and become deeply interesting to people of today. Decoration day, perhaps, leads all others in bringing to light incidents that otherwise would remain unknown to the present age. Among those gleaned this year from our exchanges is the following from the South Bend Saturday Tribune of May 22nd, which we think will be interesting to our readers as the parties honored in the first case are closely related to the chief executive of our country and the others to our fellow townsmen, James, John and Charles Heck. The historic spot mentioned is where the battle of Gettysburg was fought:—

"Our city cemetery is the resting place of the bodies of the grandparents of President William McKinley, commander-in-chief of our army and navy, and that we may help to honor this spot we invite Masters Edwin Nicar, jr., Walter Schamel and Fred B. King, Misses Helen G. Roth, Addie Creed and Hazel M. Harlin, sons and daughters of veterans, to decorate the McKinley lot; again, Daniel Heck, a soldier of the war of 1812 and once owner of the historic ground known as 'Little Round Top,' and his son, our comrade, William C. Heck who in childhood's happy days whiled away many pleasant hours on and around this now familiar spot, are buried side by side in our beautiful cemetery. I make a special detail of Comrades Jonathan P. Creed, Julius Waldschmidt, Rudolph W. Donmoyer and other veterans of our city who participated in the battle of Gettysburg, to decorate these two graves."

The annual inspection of Company C occurred at the Armory Wednesday evening of last week. Inspector-General Fred H. Case, of Three Rivers, assisted by Capt. Gardner, of the 19th U. S. Infl., who has been detailed by the Secretary of War as instructor of the M. N. G., inspected the armory, clothing and accoutrements. Mayor Howell and Capt. Holloway, of Adrian, were also present. In the evening the company were drilled in the manuals of arms, firings and foot movements, and found to be proficient. It has been the usual custom of the inspector at the conclusion of the inspection to state in what condition he finds the men as a company; but Gen. Case and Capt. Gardner refrained from making any remarks whateves, Capt. Gardner stating that a written report would be forwarded to Capt. Hayden at an early date, and until the arrival of such report nothing definite will be known. The inspection of '97 shows a general, all-around marked improvement over the one of '96, and much credit is due Capt. Hayden and the Lieutenants for the efforts they have made to bring Company C up to the standard of a fine military organization. Tecumseh is the second smallest town in the state that can boast of being a military station, and it is with only the hardest kind of work that the enlistment roll is kept up to the requisite number. The slight interest and appreciation which some of our citizens display, make it very discouraging for the officers and members of the company who are trying hard to keep the organization to the front and it is hoped that much more appreciation will be shown by outsiders, that we are homeward with this fine body of soldiers.

David Garlinghouse.

Died, at Napoleon, Jackson county, Mich., on Wednesday, June 2nd, 1897, David Garlinghouse, aged 92 years.

The deceased was born in New Jersey March 10th, 1805, and was the eldest of a large family, all of whom, save one, have gone before him to the other world. In young manhood he removed with his parents to Steuben county, N. Y., where in 1831 he was united in marriage to Miss Jane Coryell. In 1836 he came with his family to what was then the Territory of Michigan. In October, 1862, his wife died, leaving three sons and one daughter, another daughter having died in childhood. In October, 1867, he was again married.

For nearly thirty-five years Lenawee county was his home. In the spring of 1871 he sold his farm in Macon and went with his son, John, to a farm west of Napoleon, where he has since lived. On March 11th, 1896, Death again claimed his companion.

He was in the best sense of the word a good man, a man who would scorn to do a dishonorable deed. Wealth never came to him nor did he crave position or power, yet life for him was not a failure and he was held in high esteem by all who knew him for his sterling worth, honor and honesty. As age came on those who were younger liked to listen to his stories of olden times told in his quaint way. We shall all miss "Uncle David." For many years and especially since the death of his wife, he had been wont to say, "Well, I don't know as I shall be here a great while longer, but I have no reason to complain. I have had a long life and pretty good health and am ready to go when called."

His last illness was short and not accompanied by much suffering. There was just a failure of the vital forces and the worn-out body was at rest. The daughter, Mrs. Lettie Cogswell, died in 1892. The three sons, Ira, John and Daniel, were present at the funeral which was held at his late home. The services were conducted by Rev. Brundage, pastor of the Napoleon Baptist church, and were attended by a large number of neighbors and friends. He was buried beside his wife in the Napoleon cemetery.

Those who loved him best could not wish it otherwise, feeling that his life's work was done and resting in the full belief that he had the assurance of a reunion with the loved ones gone before to the Better Land.

THE CHAPLAIN'S STORY.

Jim Bourn and I were boys together at Westminster; we went to Oxford together—to Balliol; we took our degrees together in the classical (honors) school, and were ordained together by the bishop of L——, as curates for his diocese. Here our paths separated for some years, and when next we renewed our old friendship I was the vicar of the town. Still single at 34, and Jim was the chaplain of the famous jail in the same town, and married.

We were talking in my study as in olden times. Somehow the conversation drifted to the subject of a recent newspaper article: "Ought Married People to Have Any Secrets from Each Other?" I said "No," Jim said "Yes." We both smilingly stuck to our text.

"Why, Jim," said I, "you would have been the last person I should have expected to take that line, for I am sure, from what I have seen, that if ever two folks were happy and loving, they are Ella and yourself. I can't conceive of your having any secret which you would not want Ella to know."

"Ah," retorted he, with a peculiar smile, "that's just it. Well, Howson, I'll tell you one, if you like, though," he added, "it must remain a secret between us two. I have never spoken of it to anyone in the world, and never shall, except to yourself."

"Thanks, Jim, you need not fear me, as you know. I am only desirous to know the case," and I assumed an attitude of eager attention to Jim's story.

"I was the chaplain at Lowmarket, as you are well aware, before I came here. It is a pretty place, and one wonders whatever made the government build a jail there. However, there it is, and there was I. The amount of society that one got in Lowmarket was perfectly astonishing. Had I had the time and inclination for it, I might have turned out a regular 'society' clergyman. As it was, I had a full amount of lectures, soirees, parties and entertainments. Among the people I got in with one were nicer than the Yorks. Miss York, a maiden lady of 50, lived in a large and beautifully furnished house called 'The Cedars,' in the best part of the town. She was known all over the district for her charity, kindness of heart and pure life. Everybody had a good word for her. Nor was her niece, Miss York, any less popular. People in Lowmarket fairly worshiped both of them.

"I was 28 when I first saw Ella York, and at once succumbed to her charms. For weeks her praises had been in my ears, and now, on acquaintance, I found her beauty, her manners, her kindness of heart, not one whit less than report stated. I loved her. Of course, I could not say so at once; and whether, after two or three meetings in the course of my work—for Miss York the elder took great interest in our sphere of labor—she guessed my love, and reciprocated it, I could not then say. I found, upon judicious inquiries, that Miss York—Ella—lived with her aunt from childhood; that she was now 24; that her mother was dead, and her father lived on the continent for his health; also that she was her aunt's sole heiress. These facts were of course only learned by degrees, as one cannot go to the ountain head for such information.

"After much heart-searching and debating within myself, I thought I saw that Ella York was not wholly indifferent to me, and I resolved to ask her to be my wife. I need not go into details as to how I did it, beyond saying that it was one summer morning rather more than five years ago, when, having gone to see her aunt, who was out, I met Ella in the grounds; and after talking as we walked along on various subjects, somehow it came out unexpectedly, and almost before I could comprehend what it all meant, Ella York had promised to be my wife, subject to her aunt's consent.

"But her aunt didn't consent. I received a dainty note that night—how tenderly I regarded it, Howson!—from Ella, saying that she had spoken of my visit to her aunt, and had told her I was coming to-morrow for her approval; Miss York had been very kind, but acted rather strangely, and said she would see me, but she could not consent, as she did not wish to lose Ella. My dear girl went on to say that she had in vain tried to get from her any more than this.

"I was in a curious state of mind as I went next morning to see Miss York. What could her objection really be? Surely not to me! My position, my family, my life here were, I hoped, beyond reproach. Even were it a question of money, I had enough private means, as you know. As for Miss York, well, of course, it would be lonely without Ella at first, after so many years' companionship, but surely she didn't expect her never to get married! It was preposterous.

"I was destined to know her objection. As I approached the lodge the porteress met me.

"'Oh, Mr. Bourn, this is shocking!'

"I was more puzzled than ever! Why my engagement to Ella should be 'shocking' I couldn't see; and I no doubt expressed it in my looks.

"'So sudden, too, sir!' said the woman. 'Nobody expected it.'

"'Whatever's the matter?' said I.

"'Why haven't you heard that Miss York is dead? No! Oh, dear! Poor thing; had a fit in the night, doctor says; was quite unconscious when Miss Ella got there, and died at nine o'clock this morning.'

"My heart sank; I felt faint and giddy; it was some minutes before I could move. You will never know how it feels, Howson, unless you should have such a blow, which I hope you never will. But I am bound to say that my one thought was: 'My poor, lonely darling, Ella!'

"There were no more details to be learned about Miss York's death. She was buried in Lowmarket churchyard. Ella was ill for weeks, and could not see even me. When she was well enough to attend to business, it was found that she inherited all her aunt's money; and as she had already accepted me, we were married a twelvemonth afterward. She had been awfully lonely, she said, since Miss York's death; but no couple had ever lived happier and been nearer and dearer to each other than Ella and I. May God bless her!"

"Amen!" said I, solemnly and reverently.

"Ella and I," pursued Jim, "could never give the remotest guess as to her aunt's objection to our engagement, and it would probably have remained a mystery to me, as it has to Ella even now, had it not been for the following circumstances: Some time ago I was sent for at the prison to see a rather desperate character, whose end was very near. He had been sent to seven years' penal servitude some three years before for forgery, and after serving two years at Portland had been transferred to Lowmarket. His appearance was superior to that of the ordinary convict, even when a forger. Although I had seen him several times and certainly been struck with his face and appearance, we could not be said to be friendly, as he had been indifferent to all my advances.

"I found him lying in the hospital, and I soon saw that he would not live very long.

"'You seem pleased to see me?' I said.

"'Yes, sir,' replied No. 152. 'I am glad you've come; I hardly expected you would, considering how standoffish I've been. But I wanted to see you, as the doctor says I'm not likely to last much longer—perhaps not until to-morrow.'

"'There, well, never mind. Keep your courage up, and you'll probably deceive the doctor.'

"I talked to him about his soul and spiritual things. That we may pass by, Howson; I believe he was thoroughly penitent. I asked him if there was anything I could do for him.

"'Yes, sir, there is one thing, if you will. It's such a curious one I hardly like to ask you.' His eyes looked eagerly at me.

"'Go on,' said I; 'I'll do it if possible.'

"'I've had a queer life, sir,' said the convict. 'I might have been somebody and done some good; but I got led astray after marriage and broke the heart of my wife, who died soon afterward. Yes, I've led a bad life, and it's precious few friends I've had lately, anyhow. But I hope I may be forgiven, as you say God will pardon even the worst of us. And if you'll promise me to do one thing when I'm dead, I shall die happy.'

"'I'll promise it as far as I can,' said I. 'What is it?'

"'It's to take care of your wife,' answered No. 152. 'Ah,' said he, smiling, 'I thought that would astonish you.'

"'Take care of my wife!' I gazed at him in amazement. 'Why, of course I shall! But what is that to you?'

"'A great deal,' said he.

"'Why?'

"'Because she's—my daughter!'

"I looked at him in terror and astonishment, and was about to send for the nurse and for the doctor, feeling sure he was rambling, when he said, slowly:

"'Sit down, sir, please; I can't talk much longer. You need not send for Dr. Darton; I'm all right. I feared it would give you a shock, sir, as it gave me one the first time I saw her here with you. Ella York—you see, I know her name all right—was taken when quite a child by her aunt, who disowned me, and never told the child what her father was. In that she was quite right. She changed her name from Wilson to her mother's name of York and completed the disguise. Whenever I desired—and, oh, sir, I did often desire—to see Ella, my darling, Miss York has always threatened me with the police, and I knew better than to have them on my track if I could help it. Yes, sir, I see you can't realize it yet, but you'll find Ella Wilson's birth and baptism in the registers of Northfield, and I give you my word it's true.'

"I sat in dumb silence. What could I say? Ella, my Ella, a convict's daughter!

"'Please, sir, don't tell her,' said he. 'She has never known; don't let her know. But I felt I must tell you, sir, and you'll not think any worse of her?' and his eyes looked pleadingly and wistfully at me.

"My senses had somewhat returned.

"'No,' said I, 'of course not. I am half dazed, but I feel what you say is true. But Ella is my own now, and always shall be while I live. I wish I had not heard this, but it cannot alter my love for Ella.'

"'Thank God!' he said. 'And, sir, there's one thing more. The doctor says I shall sleep myself away. Do you think it could be managed for my darling to give me one kiss ere I die—just one?'

"'I'll try. Yes,' said I, 'she shall, if you'll leave it to me.'

"'I will! God bless you, Mr. Bourn.'

"I left him. When I got home Ella thought I was ill, and indeed I was. Overwork, I pleaded. In another hour they came to tell me he was asleep, and would not wake in this world.

"I took Ella with me to the hospital. 'Ella,' said I, 'a prisoner who is dying, and who has no—few—friends, told me to-day how he had seen you and would like you to kiss him ere he died, as his own daughter would have done. Will you?'

"'Certainly, my darling.'

"And with eyes full of tears she did. The unconscious form rose, the eyelids half opened, the face smiled. She didn't know; did he?

"I led her away, weeping, my own heart full. I afterward verified his story. But Ella has never known any more, Howson, and never will. There is sometimes a secret which should not be shared between husband and wife, Howson, isn't there?"

"You're right, dear old Jim," said I, as he grasped my hand in silence, but with tear-dimmed eyes. "You're right, old fellow, and God bless you both!"—Birmingham Weekly News.

IN NEED OF AID.

Poles Out of Work Are in a Very Destitute Condition.

Bay City, June 7.—It is reported from the eighth ward that many of the Polish families there are in a destitute condition, owing to the impossibility of securing employment. The Poles do all of the manual labor in the saw mills, with the exception of a few positions, having driven out other nationalities that formerly manufactured the lumber, and they now find that there are not places for even the Poles. This is largely due to the fact that just as soon as a Polish boy reaches the age of 16 he is put into the mills and factories to take a man's place, and the adults are crowded out. A meeting was held in the ward to devise means for taking care of the destitute families.

SIGNS RAILWAY TAX BILL.

Gov. Pingree Puts His Favorite Measure on the Statute Books.

Lansing, June 5.—The bill which the Pingree forces fought the hardest in the legislature was the Merriman bill, increasing the specific tax rates paid by railroad companies, and the last act of the governor before adjournment was to send a special message to the legislature asking that the session be extended until the bill could be perfected, he having been advised by the law faculty of Michigan university that there is a grave question as to its unconstitutionality. Gov. Pingree Friday night signed the bill. Sixty-five other bills were also signed Friday.

A small sum of money and his gold watch were taken. His wounds will probably be fatal.

Musical Festival at Albion.

Albion, June 8.—The musical festival began Monday before a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. McKinley, the tenor, was enthusiastically encored. His rendition of Gluck's "Our Hearts in Childhood's Hour Intertwining" and Beethoven's "Adelaide" called forth hearty applause. Nor did Mr. McKinley receive the only honors. His wife, who played his accompaniment, was on the programme for a piano solo. She played Rubenstein's "Etude" in C major and was heartily encored.

Must Make Reports.

Lansing, June 5.—The last legislature amended the law requiring corporations to file an annual report with the secretary of state. As it now stands the secretary of state must send notice to delinquent corporations and to provide, if the neglect continues 30 days after this notice, that it shall be deemed willful. The old law was inoperative, as Attorney-General Maynard discovered. It is in such a condition now, however, that it can be enforced.

Calumet Baking Powder

has turned the tables on high price baking powders. The directions on High Price cans are the same as on Calumet cans, viz: 2 teaspoonfuls to a quart of flour, but they say that one can of High Price will go three times as far as any other. Can any claim be more ridiculous? The frantic cry of adulteration, danger and poison made by the high price baking powder people is a blind to intimidate the public and induce them to pay fancy prices for their goods—also to divert attention from this defect in their own goods.

Calumet Baking Powder is safe. Food baked with Calumet is absolutely free from Rochelle Salts, Alum, Lime, Ammonia or any injurious substance.

GOT THE BACKACHE?

If You Have, Here's the Way to Rid Yourself of the Weariness and Pain Attending It.

Some people suffer with headaches, many people are worn out and weary all the time, many more people have lame back and backache. Few people understand the real cause of their aches, and fewer yet know how easily they can find a cure. Just a word of explanation before we prove that what we say is true. The back is the key-note of the kidneys. It aches; that's a sign that the kidneys are not working properly; it is lame; another sign, the kidneys are out of order. The kidneys, you know, are the filters of the blood, but filters sometimes get clogged up. This means in their case that the blood courses through the entire system impregnated with poisonous uric acid, bringing on many a disorder which, if neglected, means disease perhaps incurable. And now about the cure:—Don't take our word for it; read what others say:

Mr. David C. Oaks is proprietor of the well-known hardware and paint shop at 220 East Main Street, Kalamazoo. Mr. Oaks has suffered a great deal from kidney ailments; he described his condition and cure as follows: "I had a bad, lame back, which I suppose was caused by my kidneys; was confined to my bed during bad attacks. I might say, from time to time, I have been in that condition for years. The urinary organism was affected, urine being scanty, highly colored, and difficult in passage. I was in a bad shape when I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, about which I had heard. I have used now two boxes of them, and the pills have removed all the pain and trouble. There was a marked improvement right from the first, and it has continued right along. Doan's Kidney Pills are the right thing in the right place."

AT A HUNT BALL.

"I declare you're the most punctual girl alive, Maggie, and how sweet you look!"

Lady Carew surveyed her cousin's figure approvingly, as Mrs. Fawcett's maid put the last touches to her toilet.

"Do you really like me?" and Maggie Fawcett turned slowly round that no item of her dainty ball gown might be lost.

"My dear, you'll be the success of the evening; and, O, what an exquisite bangle that is!" and, with an exclamation of delight, Lady Carew caught her cousin's wrist, on which glittered a magnificent bracelet set with diamonds and emeralds. "Surely that's new, isn't it? It wasn't a wedding present, was it?"

Mrs. Fawcett flushed nervously. "No; you haven't seen it before—I only had it yesterday."

"You lucky creature, to get promiscuous presents like that! Who gave it to you?"

The flush on Maggie's cheek deepened.

"Eric, of course," she replied, with a laugh. "He spoils me dreadfully, you know."

Lady Carew's lips quivered into an indefinable expression.

"My dear," she answered, smiling, "beware of a husband's unprovoked presents."

"What do you mean?" asked Maggie, quickly.

"Only that their source is more often a guilty conscience than an overflowing affection."

"Laura, why will you say such things? Come, the carriage is ready."

"So am I; but isn't Eric coming?"

"Not with us; he was lunching with the Delawares and sent over for his things. He will go with them, and he goes back there to sleep."

The two women then took their places in the snug brougham. It was a fairly long drive to Treloar hall, where the Darshire hunt ball was to take place, but there was absolute silence in the carriage, partly because, as cousins and intimate friends, there was no necessity for conversation between its occupants, and also because Maggie Fawcett knew of old that Lady Carew hated to tire herself out with talking before the serious business of the flirting and waltzing began.

Maggie Fawcett's appearance at the hunt ball was something of an event. She was the bride of the occasion. Early in the spring she had married Eric Fawcett, and this was the first winter she had spent on his estate in Darshire.

Now and then Lady Carew glanced at her cousin. Maggie leaned back in her corner, the white fur of her wrap nestling around her throat and her head resting against the cushions of the carriage. It struck her companion that the young wife's face was a little pale, and that it wore a look of suppressed excitement, mingled with something which seemed almost like anxiety. "What can be the matter with the girl?" murmured Lady Carew to herself. "She is evidently disturbed about something. How she plays with that bracelet. I wonder—but, no! Maggie is the best little soul alive; and, besides, there isn't an eligible man within a dozen miles. Still, I never should have expected Eric Fawcett to have turned out a model husband;" and she laughed softly to herself.

Laura Carew was a good six years older than her cousin, and she remembered very distinctly that at the same ball last year, before Maggie had flashed upon his firmament, Eric Fawcett had been her very devoted slave, and naturally she smiled at the recollection—a little pityingly, perhaps, for Lady Carew could not quite understand an admirer deserting her for Maggie, and, though she was fond of her cousin, she was rather sorry for Eric. Women generally are sorry for the men who marry some one else.

But, in spite of Lady Carew's moderate estimate of Maggie's powers of attraction, her card was full before she had been in the room ten minutes—as full, that is, as she would allow it to be; for she valiantly resisted all efforts to fill up two spaces which she insisted on preserving.

She was standing by her husband in the midst of a group of people. She put her hand gently on his arm.

"Eric," she whispered, "I've kept you two waltzes."

"Two!" and he laughed as he looked down at her. "Why, little woman, we can't dance together twice—it would be ridiculous! Here, I'll take this one. I don't suppose you'll have any difficulty in filling the other; you're looking very pretty to-night. I must go, dear; this is my dance with Laura."

Maggie Fawcett bit her lips. She wouldn't have minded people seeing that she was in love with her husband and that she thought him the handsomest man in the room, but men were different — very different — and her heart swelled as a rush of memories came upon her. She answered her partner's not very abstruse remarks mechanically. It was doubtless bad form, but her eyes sought her husband's figure; he was waltzing with Laura—it seemed to her that he was always waltzing with Laura. But, then, perhaps Eric might be thinking the same thing of her, for she had certainly danced a great many times with this Mr. Dobson—Dodson—she was not at all sure of his name, and she really did not care at all who was her partner. The Darshire hunt ball was not amusing, she thought, and it was a little embarrassing that so many people noticed and admired her bangle; she touched it doubtfully, twisting it on her arm so that the diamond flashed in her eyes. It was very pretty, but—

"Maggie seems to be putting in a very good time to-night," observed Lady Carew, as she strolled into the conservatory with Eric Fawcett; "she appears to be enjoying herself tremendously."

"Not half so much as I am," replied Eric, with a laugh. "It is quite like old times, isn't it?" he added, drawing a low seat forward for his companion.

"O, my dear Eric, don't try to be sentimental! But, really, I begin to think my warning to Maggie was not uncalled—"

"Eh! What warning?"

"Well, it rather seems to me that the Old Adam is returning, my friend; that domestic joys are palling, and forbidden fruit is becoming terribly attractive."

"Is that a challenge?"

"Not at all; besides, Maggie is my cousin and my friend, and I think it is right to warn her."

"Are you in fun or in earnest? What do you mean by warning her?"

Lady Carew broke into a laugh.

"Only that I told her to beware of a husband's presents—that a magnificent diamond and emerald bracelet often meant more than met the eye when it was bestowed apprpos de bottes."

"Really, I haven't the slightest idea of what you mean."

"Mean? Why, the lovely bangle you gave her yesterday."

"I gave Maggie a bangle yesterday?"

"Certainly. She is wearing it to-night."

"You must be dreaming."

Lady Carew looked at her companion's face with frank astonishment.

"I am very sorry," she said, quietly. "I am afraid I have been indiscreet; but how was I to guess? O, what are you going to do?"

For at that moment Mrs. Fawcett entered the conservatory on the arm of her partner, and Eric immediately arose to his feet. Laura caught his arm.

"Eric, don't be ridiculous, it is some absurd mistake! I'll take that man away. Speak to Maggie, but for heaven's sake don't look like that."

But, in spite of Lady Carew's efforts, it was not an easy thing to "take that man away;" and while the futile, frivolous conversation rippled on, Eric stood by, bewildered and stunned. Maggie, the soul of truth and simplicity, had told a lie. There was not the faintest doubt that Laura had spoken the truth, and spoken it without arriere-pensee. The stones of the mysterious bracelet glittered maliciously before his eyes, and yet, had not his attention been drawn to it, most probably he would not have noticed it. The details of any other woman's dress were always more obvious to Eric than those of his wife's, and Maggie might have presumed on that.

But Maggie! He was very much in love with her when he married her, but he was uncomfortably conscious that he had paid very little attention to her of late. But then Maggie—who would have dreamed—

At last the music struck up, and Lady Carew led off the intruder, having succeeded in persuading him that his calculations were out, and that it was precisely this dance she had given him.

Maggie rose too, but her husband laid his hand on her arm.

"No, stay here. I want to speak to you."

"But—"

"I can't help engagements or anything else. I must speak to you now."

"What is it?" asked Maggie, looking up at him. "Why, Eric, what is the matter?"

"I wish to know who gave you this bangle?"

The color flew over Maggie's throat and face, and her lips trembled.

"I—I can't tell you."

"So I suppose, or you wouldn't have lied to Laura Carew about it."

"Eric!"

There was something so pathetic about the girl's expression as his name burst from her lips—she looked so childish, so helpless, and so miserable—that the anger in Eric's heart died suddenly. A whole world of thoughts surged up in his mind. Why had he left this child so lonely? The fault was his. "Maggie, dear," he said, gently, "I know I've not been as I ought to the best little wife in the world. I've set you a bad example, and you are so young you don't understand things—you don't know what men are; you've been a little foolish, perhaps, but that's all, I 'm sure—do you, hear, dear?—I'm quite sure of that. But you must tell me the story of that bangle."

"T— O, Eric, I'm ashamed!" and she turned her face away.

"Tell me, dear."

There was a moment's pause.

"Well, I bought it myself."

"Maggie!"

"Yes. O, don't think I want to blame you, Eric, but the other women I know were always having presents from their husbands—flowers and sweets and trinkets—and so as you—as you did not think of them, I bought them myself, and said you'd given them to me—"

Eric held her at arm's length. She raised her face suddenly and looked at him.

"I wanted people to think you spoiled me—that you were in love with me still."

Eric Fawcett did not return to the Delawares, and a couple of days later the diamond-and-emerald bangle had a companion, which was clasped on Maggie's arm by her husband himself. —London World.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

FOOTPRINTS IN THE STONE.

Discovery in a Los Angeles Park of Great Interest to Archaeologists.

Scientifically-inclined persons in southern California are pondering deeply over the discovery, in Elysian park here, of a distinct imprint in solid stone of a shoe worn by a human being, says the Los Angeles Herald. This discovery is certain to excite no little comment, for there appears to be no authentic record of a fossilized footprint of a human being of ordinary size having been found heretofore. The peculiar feature of this find is that the owner of the foot wore a shoe of antique Mexican fashion, with high, narrow heel and broad, flat sole. The imprint is perfectly clear and looks as though the owner had unwittingly put his right foot into soft mud but a day or two ago and left his mark, to be dried by the sun and preserved for future generations.

The fossil imprint was discovered by laborers who were making a deep cut for the new wagon road northwest of the park. It was cut out of solid rock, four feet or thereabouts below the surface soil, and from a point on the hillside at least 70 feet above the bottom of the little canyon at the hill's base. The stone is a fine-grained shale, impregnated with lime. An interesting fact in connection with the find is this: Several other excellently preserved and clearly defined organic remains, such as ferns, leaves and twigs, have been found in the same deposit, and, stranger still, but a few days ago the complete outline of a fish was taken from the same stratum of stone not many feet distant from this last find. The fish's remains were 20 feet below the surface.

THE POPULAR IDEA.

But They Are Not All Innocent Men Who Go to Siberia.

There is a popular idea that the wastes of Siberia are peopled with men who have been unjustly exiled from Russia, and that the criminal is really as difficult to find as the traditional needle in the bunch of hay, says Tit-Bits. Facts, however, do not substantiate this theory any more than they do the large majority of popular impressions.

A great sensation was created two or three years ago by the finding of seven Russian exiles or prisoners, who had made their escape from Siberia. They were in an open boat in the Pacific, and were taken to San Francisco, where they became the objects of popular commiseration, as well as the text for the denouncing of the Russian methods of dealing with political offenders.

The Californians, ever ready with sympathy, gave them clothes and found them work to do. It now appears that during the interval that has elapsed between their arrival in San Francisco and now every one of them has been punished by the law of the land. The last of the party has just been sentenced to 21 years' imprisonment for burglary, while one of his comrades only a short time ago was hanged for two murders which he had committed.

Investigations which have been made show that every one of these men had been sent to Siberia for reasons which would have earned him a corresponding period of exile from the haunts of his fellowmen if not absolute deportation from the country in any other part of the world.

LOVES HIS TRIBE.

Romantic History of Chief Quanah Parker, of the Comanches.

Chief Quanah Parker, the Comanche Indian of Oklahoma, has a romantic history.

His mother was a white woman who was captured by the Comanches when a small girl and grew up among the Indians, forgetting her own tongue. When Gen. McKenzie raided the Comanches and captured the tribe in 1874 Quanah Parker's mother, who had been taken as wife of the chief, was among the number.

All that she could remember to identify herself was her name—Cynthia Ann Parker.

She was finally located as being from Jackson county, Tex., where she was joyously received by her family, after having been looked upon as dead for many years.

She took her son, now Chief Quanah Parker, with her, and had him educated. Later he returned to his tribe. He is a tall, fine-looking Indian, but he shows no trace of his white blood.

The favorite of his five wives always accompanies him on his journeys, as does his young son, both of whom are now in this city.

Chief Quanah Parker is quite rich in cattle and money, and is looked upon as one of the most intelligent of the Indian chiefs.

FEW AMERICANS AMONG THEM.

Hawaii's Population Made Up Largely of Japs and Chinese.

A census of the Hawaiian islands has been taken recently and the result just been received by the department at Washington. The figures, says the Manchester (N. H.) Union, are most interesting in view of the renewed movement for their direct annexation to this government, which the present administration is said to be very desirous of bringing about. The total Americans constitute less than three per cent. of the whole and but a little over two per cent. of the male population. They are, however, in full possession of the government, having thus been since Queen Liliuokalani was deposed. Considering these facts, it is not strange that they should be fearful lest such power should be wrested from them or at least be considerably more limited than at present. Except for the peculiar conditions that were undoubtedly made the most of at the time, this absolute power could not have been seized by such a small minority, as it was, and it is remarkable that it has been so long maintained.

Marvelous Cures!

—BY—

Dr. W. C. Walker

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon, of Detroit, Mich. formerly of N. Y., will make the following regular monthly visits:

Tecumseh, Lilley House,
Friday, June 18.

Adrian, Hotel Emery,
Thursday, June 17.

Clinton, Hotel Lancaster.
Saturday, June 19.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will discribe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery. It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS E J B.

Miss Addie Smith says: "I was sick for many years. My case was known for miles around. Was helped to Dr Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the Doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the Doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration."

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Wm. Redman says also, that he has been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vestage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast. She was a great sufferer.

Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $—.

Mrs. W. M. ——, after being barren for ten years, says, "He cured me. We now have two little children. Suffice to say our home is a happy one.

Epilepsy (or fits) positively cured by a recent scientific discovery.

One of the most respected young men of Grand Rapids, Mr. C. H. Banks, has declared that the best physicians he could hear of had given up finally given two weeks to live, consulted Dr. Walker, took his treatment and is now as well man. He had chronic stomach trouble, weak lungs and constant cough, nervousness and Bright's disease. He has gained ... and works every day. He advises all who are sick to see Dr. Walker.

Mrs. C. M. Stutzman cured of blood and skin disease of twelve years standing.

Mrs. L. E. Lambert cured of cancer, bad ulcers on limb.

Miss Ella Crane cured of bronchial trouble and lung disease.

Miss B. H. cured of female weakness after being treated by many noted physicians.

Mrs. W. W. Bennett says also that she had lost her sense of smell and became partially deaf by catarrh in the head and could not sleep for constant coughing and pain through the lungs, also had female trouble. She says she will testify to anyone that Dr. Walker saved her life. She has gained thirty pounds and is well.

Miss Elizabeth Bell writes, after being a great sufferer for a number of years with neuralgia in the head and stomach: I am cured. I feel as though I have got into a new world. I cannot praise the doctor enough for his skill in my case.

Dr. Walker's specialties are diseases of Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs and all chronic, private and nervous diseases and deformities, as Granulated Lids, Cross Eyes, Deafness, Discharge of the Ears, Bronchitis, Chronic Cough, Goitre (big neck) Fever Sores and Ulcers, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Heart, Stomach and Nervous Diseases; Chorea (St. Vitus Dance), Epilepsy (fits), General Debility, Scrofula, Skin Diseases and all diseases due to bad blood; also rectal diseases.

I will give special attention to difficult cases and to cases other physicians have failed to cure.

CURE FOR HYDROPHOBIA.

Liver of the Dog Said to Be an Infallible Remedy for Its Bite.

A French missionary in China witnessed recently how two of his carriers were bitten by a rabid dog, and was very much worried about it, says Medicine Moderne. Several Chinese who happened to be there told him that his worry was absolutely uncalled for, since they had an undoubtedly safe preventive against the poison of a rabid dog taking effect, and to prove the assertion five Chinamen who had been bitten in March of last year by a mad dog were presented to the missionary. He found that Chinamen eat of the raw liver of a mad dog after being bitten, and if they partake of this within a given time after the accident it is said they will not be subject to hydrophobia. It is curious that Plinius in his "Natural History" recommends eating the liver of a mad dog, if bitten, as raw as possible, and they who could not swallow the liver raw should have it cooked and drink the broth therefrom. It is not positively known whether this remedy is efficacious, but it appears to be worthy of investigation, particularly since this seems to be the actual beginning of the isopathic treatment since perfected by Pasteur and Koch.

A GOOD SUIT OF CLOTHES.

No Man Can Afford to Wear Shabby Garments.

A Barnesville lawyer appeared before his friends in a new and costly suit of clothes recently, says the Atlanta Constitution. When he named the price a bystander exclaimed:

"Whew! I haven't had that much cash in a month of Sundays."

"Cash!" exclaimed the lawyer. "Why, I got it on credit and I shan't lose any sleep if I never pay for it. I think turn about's fair play and the other fellow can afford to do without it." And, lifting himself to his full height and buttoning his coat across his chest, he continued: "No, gentlemen, I never intend to wear a shabby suit. A man just can't afford to do it. Nobody has any respect for shabbiness. Why, I couldn't win a case if I wore shabby clothes if I had the eloquence of a Demosthenes or Cicero, not if all the law and the prophets were on my side. A jury just wouldn't respect me enough to listen to me and the judge himself would give his decision according to my outward appearance. No, sir, a man can't afford to wear shabby clothes."

The People of New York City.

It is said that more than 76 per cent. of those who people New York city today were born of foreign mothers, while more than 40 per cent. were themselves born on foreign soil. Peter Stuyvesant ruled in his day over 1,400 New Yorkers, who conversed in 18 different tongues.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in Senate and House.

The Tariff Bill Occupies the Entire Time in the Senate—No Business Done in the House—Other News.

Washington, June 10.—The senate had a period of tariff speeches yesterday and, as a result, little progress was made on the bill. The following nominations were received from the president: To be envoys extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary of the United States, Henry L. Wilson, of Washington, to Chili; William F. Powell, of New Jersey, to Hayti, and John G. A. Leishman, of Pennsylvania, to Switzerland.

Washington, June 11.—In the senate yesterday the agricultural schedule of the tariff bill was laid aside and the sugar schedule was taken up, but no final action was taken.

Washington, June 12.—The first test vote on the sugar schedule was taken in the senate yesterday, resulting in the adoption of the republican caucus amendment increasing the duty on refined sugar from 1.675 to 1.95 cents per pound. The vote was taken after a day spent in speeches on the effect of the sugar schedule. The main speech of the day came from Senator Allison, in charge of the bill, and was in the nature of an answer to the charges made against the sugar schedule as a whole, and a defense of it.

Washington, June 14.—The sugar schedule was again the subject of democratic assaults in the senate Saturday and practically no progress was made. Only one amendment was voted upon and that was defeated. When the senate adjourned the amendment of Senator Lindsay (Ky.) to strike out the differential on refined sugar was pending.

Washington, June 15.—The debate on the sugar schedule of the tariff bill continued in the United States senate yesterday. Only one roll call occurred, on Senator Lindsay's amendment to place all sugar on the same basis. This was rejected.

Washington, June 16.—The sugar schedule of the tariff bill was completed and adopted in the senate yesterday. Senator Tillman gave notice of an amendment he will offer to the tariff bill providing for a head tax of $100 on all immigrants to the United States. The bill granting pensions to the survivors of the Indian wars of 1832 to 1842 was favorably reported. The nomination of John G. Brady, of Alaska, to be governor of the district of Alaska, was received from the president.

The House.

Washington, June 11.—In the house yesterday James T. Lloyd, elected to succeed the late Representative Giles, of the First Missouri district, took the oath. The house then adjourned to Monday.

Washington, June 15.—In the house yesterday a monster petition, said to contain 6,000,000 signatures, appealing to congress to recognize the Cuban insurgents as belligerents, was presented by Mr. Sulzer, of New York. It had been in circulation throughout the United States for about six months. Adjourned to Thursday.

Postal Receipts.

Washington, June 12. — During the month of May last the postal receipts throughout the country amounted to $2,685,708, an increase of $21,563 over the receipts of May, 1896.

Gold Exports.

Washington, June 12. — The exports of gold since April 1 last up to date amount to $17,384,728.

Treaties Exchanged.

Washington, June 15. — The final ratification of the boundary treaty between Great Britain and Venezuela was exchanged at the state department at three o'clock Monday afternoon.

Exports and Imports.

Washington, June 15. — Treasury department figures show that the exports of domestic merchandise during May amounted to $76,372,082, against $64,587,491 for May of last year. The imports amounted to $79,321,827. The exports of gold amounted to $9,466,711, against $19,103,913 for May, 1896, and the silver exports amounted to $4,337,342.

In No Danger of Being Shot.

Washington, June 15.—The Spanish minister has received an official communication stating that the report coming from Havana, via Key West, that the insurgent leaders Rivera and Bacallao are in danger of being shot is false, for not a single insurgent leader is under the death sentence.

Will Accept Angell.

Washington, June 16.—A cablegram received at the state department from the United States charge d'affaires at Constantinople Tuesday afternoon states that the sultan has issued an irade announcing the acceptance of Dr. Angell as minister from the United States, and Mr. Terrell has accordingly started for home.

Bathers Drowned.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., June 14.—While picnicking Sunday along the Cedar river, near Linn Junction, John Vahl, a well-to-do farmer residing near Marion, was drowned. Earl West, a young man of Mount Vernon, was also drowned while bathing in the Cedar river near his home.

BARNATO'S FATE.

Famous South African Speculator Drowned in the Atlantic.

London, June 16.—The officials of the Union Steamship Company, to whom the steamer Scot belongs, confirm the announcement made in a special dispatch from Funchal, Island of Madeira, that Barney Barnato, the South African "diamond king," committed suicide by jumping overboard while the vessel was on her way from Cape Town, which port she left on June 2, for Southampton via Funchal.

The Pall Mall Gazette, commenting on the death of Barney Barnato, says he had been mentally unwell for about three months past, and that he had been under constant surveillance.

Mrs. Barnato and her children were also on board the Scot.

Barney Barnato was in many respects the most remarkable speculator of the century. Of all the Englishmen who have taken part in the development of South Africa two only have secured a world-wide reputation. These have been Cecil Rhodes and Barnett Isaacs, more often and less respectfully styled "Barney." Barnato was an assumed name, a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa by exhibiting a trick donkey some 25 years ago. He was then about 20 years of age. Barnato was an English Jew and illustrated in an extraordinary way the financial genius of his race. Up to the point where his fortunes began to decline he made money by leaps and bounds, and in 1895, when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of £100,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world.

At that time he was virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the boom in Kaffirs, the shares of the comparatively new gold mines of the Transvaal, South Africa, was at its height, every man, woman and child in London with money to invest invested it in "kaffirs." The craze was the last of those financial fevers which periodically attack conservative England, the "South sea bubble" being the first. For months it was the controlling passion in London, and it was scarcely less rampant in Paris and Berlin. The shares went to unheard-of figures and fortunes were made in a day. The center of this tremendous financial outburst was Barney Barnato, and he was conservatively estimated at that time as worth between £100,000,000 and £150,000,000. Among his assets was a bank originally capitalized at $12,500,000. In a few months its capital stock rose in value to $45,000,000.

About a month ago it was rumored that his health was suffering from the severe tension of speculation, and in the latter part of May it was reported from Capetown that he was suffering from nervous prostration and had been placed by his friends under restraint. This was subsequently denied by his London representative, who said that Barnato was suffering from a slight attack of cape fever, not likely to prove serious.

NEWS FROM CUBA.

Rivera Sentenced to Die—Brave Surgeon Killed—Many Deaths Daily.

Havana, June 14.—The secret court-martial of Gen. Ruis Rivera and Col. Bacallao, the insurgent chiefs captured in Pinar del Rio, was closed at Cabana Friday. The sentences were death in both cases.

Havana, via Key West, June 14.—Capt. Foster R. Winn, M. D., of St. Louis, a volunteer surgeon with the Cuban insurgent hospital corps in the field, is reported to have been killed in an attack by government troops upon an insurgent hospital near Quivican, province of Havana.

Key West, Fla., June 14. — Advices from Havana say that more than 1,000 persons die every day in Cuba as a result of the famine and disease due to Gen. Weyler's enforced reconcentration of pacificos.

Freedom for the Youngers.

St. Paul, Minn., June 15.—Powerful friends are working for the pardon of the Younger brothers, once the terror of the Mississippi valley. Bob, the youngest, died in the state prison at Stillwater some time ago, but Cole and Jim are still living. Cole is now 53 and Jim 47. It is said that Gov. Clough has lent willing ear to their pardon. He is not pledged, as former governors were, not to liberate these men.

Big Industry Killed.

Chicago, June 16.—The manufacture of butterine as an industry will virtually cease in Illinois July 1, now that Gov. Tanner has signed the bill preventing the coloring of that article. Uncle Sam will lose $600,000 a year in internal revenue taxes. Thirty million pounds of butterine is made in Chicago a year, on every pound of which the manufacturer pays a two-cent tax to the government.

THE GUEST OF HONOR.

Tennessee's Day at the Exposition Welcomes President McKinley.

A Hearty Greeting to the Chief Magistrate and Mrs. McKinley—Text of the Felicitous Address of the President.

Nashville, Tenn., June 12. — At eight o'clock yesterday morning the presidential tour merged into the centennial celebration of the admission of Tennessee into the union. The presidential party, on its arrival, was driven speedily to the Maxwell house and there provided with accommodations and breakfast. As soon as breakfast was over the presidential party was ushered into carriages. As a guard of honor to the president a mounted detachment of ex-confederates commanded by Capt. George F. Hager ranged themselves immediately in front of his carriage. They wore the old-time gray, but the buckles of their belts bore the insignia, "United States."

At the Grounds.

As the head of the procession turned into the main entrance of the exposition grounds a battery of artillery boomed forth the national salute of 25 guns. It was within the grounds and led by the centennial chimes which rang forth from the top of the Administration building that the enthusiasm reached its climax.

In the Auditorium.

Exactly at noon President McKinley walked down the main aisle, on his arm the stately Mrs. Van Leer Kirkman, president of the woman's board. The president was greeted with hearty cheers, and so were Secretaries Sherman, Alger, Gary, Wilson and the other distinguished guests and their accompanying ladies. Mrs. McKinley, much to the regret of everyone, did not feel equal to the heat and stress and remained in her room at the hotel.

The President's Speech.

The president spoke in part as follows:

"Officers of the Tennessee Centennial Exposition Ladies and Gentlemen: American nationality, compared with that of Europe and the east, is still very young, and yet already we are beginning to have age enough for centennial anniversaries in states other than the original 13. Such occasions are always interesting, and when celebrated in a practical way are useful and instructive. Combining retrospect and review, they recall what has been done by state and nation and point out what yet remains for both to accomplish in order to fulfill their highest destiny.

"This celebration is of general interest to the whole country and of special significance to people of the south and west. It marks the end of the first century of the state of Tennessee and the close of the first year of its second century. One hundred and one years ago this state was admitted into the union as the sixteenth member in the great family of American commonwealths. It was a welcome addition to the national household—a community young, strong and sturdy, with an honored and heroic ancestry, with fond anticipations not only of its founders but faith in its success on the part of far-seeing and sagacious statesmen in all parts of the country.

Praise for Tennesseeans.

"Tennesseeans have ever been volunteer, not drafted, patriots. In 1815 when 2,400 soldiers were called for, 30,000 loyal Tennesseeans offered their services; and amid the trials and terrors of the great civil war, under conditions of peculiar distress and embarrassment, her people divided on contending sides. But upon whichever side found, they fought fearlessly to death and gallant sacrifice. Now, happily, there are no contending sides in this glorious commonwealth or in any part of our common country. The men who opposed each other in dreadful battle a third of a century ago are once more and forever united together under one flag in a never-to-be-broken union.

"The glory of Tennessee is not only alone in the brilliant names it has contributed to history or the heroic patriotism displayed by the people in so many crises of our national life, but its material and industrial wealth, social advancement and population are striking and significant in their growth and development. Thirty-five thousand settlers in this state in 1790 had increased to 1,109,000 in 1860, and today it has a population closely approximating 2,000,000. Its manufactures, which in 1860 were small and unimportant, in 1890 had reached $72,000,000 in value, while its farm products now aggregate more than $62,000,000 annually. Its river commerce on three great international waterways, its splendid railways operating nearly 3,000 miles of roads, its mineral wealth of incalculable value, form a splendid augury for the future. I am sure no better workmen could be found than the people of Tennessee to turn these confident promises into grand realities.

Exposition an Object Lesson.

"Your exposition shows better than any words of mine can tell, the details of your wealth of resources and power of production. You have done wisely in exhibiting these to your own people and to your sister states, and at no time could the display be more effective than now, when what the country needs more than all else is restored confidence in itself. This exposition demonstrates directly your faith and purpose, and signifies in the widest sense your true and unfailing belief in the irrepressible pluck of the American people, and is a promising indication of the return of American prosperity.

"The knowledge which this beautiful and novel exposition gives will surely stimulate competition, develop your trade, increase your output, enlarge your fields of employment, extend your markets, and so eventually pay for all it cost, as well as justify local sentiment and encourage state pride.

"Men and women I see about me from all parts of the country, and thousands more will assemble here before the exposition is closed. Let ourselves and let them always remember that whatever differences about politics may have existed, or still exist, we are all Americans before we are partisans, and value the welfare of all the people above party or section. Citizens of different states, we yet love all the states. The lesson of the hour, then, is this—that whatever adverse conditions may temporarily impede the pathway of our national progress, nothing can permanently defeat it."

A fast freight on the Santa Fe railroad was ditched near Elmer, Mo., and three tramps and one brakeman were killed.

SCIENCE OF THE ANCIENTS.

Tools Found in Pompeii Facsimiles of Modern Instruments.

Prof. Goodman says the thing that most impressed him, when visiting Pompeii, was the resemblance between many of the implements of 1800 years ago and those of to-day. On looking at the iron tools grouped together in an old factory there he could almost imagine he was gazing into a modern tool shop, except for the fact that there was a heavy coating of rust on the iron, says Glass and Pottery Magazine.

Sickles, billhooks, rakes, forks, axes, spades, blacksmith's tongs, hammers, soldering irons, planes, shovels, etc., are much like those used to-day, but the most marvelous instruments found are those for surgery, beautifully executed and of design exactly similar to some recently patented and reinvented. Incredible as it may appear, Pompeiians had wire ropes of perfect construction. Their bronzes reveal great skill and artistic talent. The bronze brazier and kitchener had boilers at the side and taps for running off the water.

Ewers and urns have been discovered with interior tubes and furnaces precisely like the arrangement now in vogue in steam boilers. Metal safes had substantial locks. Many of the locks and keys are most ingenious and some very complex. The water supply of Pompeii was distributed by means of lead pipes laid under the streets. There were many public drinking fountains, and most of the large houses were provided with fountains, many of them being of very beautiful design.

HE WANTED TO START RIGHT.

Fees the Conductor to Insure the Comforts of the Road.

On one of the South Halsted street cars, when it left the neighborhood of the stock yards the other morning, was a man with a brand new valise that had splashes of mud on it and gave other evidence of having just arrived in Chicago, says the Tribune.

The man wore a black felt hat and a large checked suit, and there was mud enough on his heavy boots to show he had just traversed a portion of the stock yards. He boarded the car at Thirty-ninth street, put his valise on the seat beside him, and when the conductor stopped to take his fare he pulled out a roll of bills.

The conductor extracted a nickel from a one dollar bill and handed over the change. The man with the valise extracted a silver quarter dollar from the change and handed it back to the conductor.

"Here," he said, so loudly that everyone in the car looked to see what was going on, "here's a quarter for yourself."

"I've taken out a nickel," said the conductor. "I don't want any more."

"Now, don't say another word, friend," replied the passenger. "My wife told me before I left Kansas City I'd get along a good deal better in Chicago if I tipped everybody, and I'm going to start with you. You take that quarter like a little man and do the best you can by me on this trip and don't say anything more or I'll make it a half."

A COLLEGE FOR LOVERS.

Such an Institution Is Needed for Training Men in Love Making.

Miss Lillian Bell, who has won fame as an authoress, her last book being "A Little Sister of the Wilderness," is of the opinion that some one should found a college for training men in love-making. This is how she expressed herself in a recent interview:

"I suggested once a kindergarten for the training of husbands. Now I want to change that and have a college for lovers, with a post-graduate course for husbands. As it is now—well, almost any girl can do almost anything with a man. You know how easily one girl can rob another girl of her lover. He, poor, blind being, never suspects it. A girl would know in a minute if another man was trying to win her from her lover. She has intuitions like antennae which tell her the very nature of every approach. But with a man it is different. He sees only 'a sympathetic soul' in the girl who leads him away by all the deliberate arts of which she is mistress. But there! one can go on all day talking about these things. Everybody likes to talk about love. People ask me if I am rosy [illegible] I possess. I have had, but I tell them it was not any great inspiration on my part. When I began to talk of love I had the ear of the world."

NOBILITY WEDS RICHES.

Marriage of Miss Walker and Count Manfred at Detroit.

Detroit, June 16.—At noon Tuesday the civil marriage of Count Manfred von Matuschka, of Germany, and Miss Ella Holbrook Walker, youngest daughter of Hiram Walker, a distiller, took place at the residence of the bride's father on Jefferson avenue. At 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon Bishop Foley arrived and the rites of the Roman Catholic church were performed. Miss Walker is several times a millionaire in her own right, and the count is of a fine family. At night a reception was held from six to eight o'clock, at which society was present. The house was decorated with roses. The dishes were of solid gold and silver.

It was the greatest wedding that ever took place in the city. The cost is estimated at $50,000, yet everything was quiet and there was no outward display. Thousands stood in the streets about the residence hoping to see the count and countess. The presents were numerous, but the bride gave orders that not one package should be opened until she reached her new home across the sea. They left Tuesday night at 11:25 o'clock over the Michigan Central for New York to sail by the first steamer for the count's estates. It is said that until Miss Walker met Count Manfred a year ago while abroad she was determined never to marry. It was a case of love at first sight.

Flag Day at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., June 15.—A feature of flag day in Detroit was the raising of the big flag and union jack presented to the city of Detroit by the crew of the United States cruiser Detroit. The banners were hoisted from the ground in front of the city hall to the flagstaff on top of the building shortly after noon by some United States marines amid cheers of the crowd. Mayor Maybury and others made short appropriate addresses and the bright new emblems of patriotism fluttered finely in the fresh breeze.

Accused of Swindling.

Charlotte, June 14.—Martin Gibbs, a well-to-do farmer of Eaton, was arrested Saturday night on a charge of forgery. He is street commissioner of the town and employs considerable labor. He is alleged to have defrauded the town out of a large sum of money by issuing fraudulent orders on the treasurer for fictitious names, and, as a "matter of accommodation to the workmen," drawing the money and retaining it.

Fenton Bank Closed.

Niles, June 15.—The State bank of Fenton was closed Monday morning by order of the bank commissioner. No estimate can be obtained of the bank's financial standing. Its capital stock was $50,000, and it is said $85,000 was due depositors. It is claimed the embarrassment is only temporary.

More Mines to Open.

Ironwood, June 12.—The company controlling the Norrie group of mines has effected a sale of 100,000 tons of ore, which will clean up the large surplus and necessitate the reopening of the mines, thus giving employment to at least 500 men. A great revival of business is sure to follow.

Bicycle Thief Sentenced.

Grand Rapids, June 14.—Judge Burlingame, of the superior court, imposed a severe sentence upon a self-confessed bicycle thief. When George Moffat acknowledged that he had stolen Wallace Amsden's wheel, the court promptly sentenced him to Ionia for three years.

Electric Line Running.

Pontiac, June 12.—The Detroit Pontias Electric Railway company has been so far completed as to allow traffic between the two cities. The line inside the Pontiac city limits is not yet finished, because of injunction troubles, and the cars now start at the city limits.

The Biennial Tax Levy.

Lansing, June 14.—Auditor-General Dix has determined that the state tax levy for the present year will be $2,397,907 and $2,012,227 for 1898. The state taxes for the biennial period will be $690,000 less than for 1895 and 1896.

Any one can use Paint that is properly prepared, and use it in the right place. The difficulty is that most people do not know the difference between good paint and poor paint, nor the proper place to use even a good paint. All paints are not alike. One may be good for outdoor use, and not for indoor use, one may give a bright, glossy finish, another an oil finish that can be washed. It is knowing what to use, and where to use it, that makes painting a success.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS FAMILY PAINT is made for touching up the little things about the house. It gives an oil finish. It can be washed, so it is suited for shelves, cupboards, etc.

Our booklet "Paint Points" covers the ground. It tells what you need to know about good or bad paint. It tells what to use for a buggy, what for a bath tub, for iron bedstead, for a house, for a floor, for a bench. It is a practical book for the home. It is free to any address. Send for it to-day.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JUNE 18, 1897.

It is reported that the council will pass a new bicycle ordinance at the meeting next week, and that the provisions will be satisfactory to bicycle riders, pedestrians and drivers.

Poor old Blissfield—The latest is that a nest of blue racers occupy the opera house, at least some children, who have of late been using the building as a playhouse, complain of being driven out by the snakes. Grass does not grow on the steps but for no other excuse than want of water.—Poor old Blissfield.

The bicycle riders of Britton and Ridgeway are constructing and have nearly completed a bicycle path from Britton to Frank Davidson's corner. A subscription paper is being circulated about Tecumseh to raise funds that the path may be continued to this village and, no doubt the work will be accomplished. This will be the first bicycle path into Tecumseh and more will soon follow. If Adrian would build a path as far north as the Quaker meeting house, the riders from that section would not be obliged to come over here on the cars when they wished to ride on really good roads.

It is not the purpose of any committee of Tecumseh citizens to urge the management of the Clinton Woolen Mill Co. to remove their plant to Tecumseh, nor to make propositions to them to compel Clinton village to do as the factory people would desire. Such action would not be right toward our sister village; but if the management of the Clinton Woolen Mills have decided that they are intending to move their plant and will make a proposition to Tecumseh, the citizens will in very short order, decide whether the proposition can be accepted or not. The visit of the Hamiltons and Supt. Huntington to Tecumseh this week, to look over the water power, would indicate that a move of some sort was in mind.

An Interesting Letter Received from Rev. W. H. Babbitt.

Few towns of 2500 inhabitants, in the state of Michigan, or any other state of our union, have enjoyed the reputation which Tecumseh has always had for intelligence and public spirit. A recent visit to this place, made by a former resident, has proved to him that it still deserves this reputation. The town never before presented so attractive an appearance. Hard times have not dampened the ardor for improvement. Churches and schools still keep up their standard of excellence. A public library has been established. A new railroad has begun to run its vestibuled trains thro' the place and facilitate intercourse with the outer world; tho' we are sorry to see that God's law of the Sabbath was violated by the running of a Sunday excursion, as the first act of its opening. The true prosperity of a place depends so much on the morality of its inhabitants that every violation of the perfect code of the ten commandments should be frowned upon. The world has made great progress in recent years. But it has not yet discovered a code of law, strict compliance with whose tenets would be followed by as many benefits, temporal and spiritual, as this. How slow it is, in all its advancement, to learn this simple, all-important truth.

At the hour of penning this letter the members of the graduating class of the high school are getting very nervous and excited over the near approach of their commencement exercises. It would have been a pleasure to be able to accept the kind invitations of several members of this class to attend these exercises. Will those who gave them accept these publicly expressed regrets at being constrained to decline them. And at the same time will all the class accept best wishes for long lives of usefulness and happiness, in spite of every obstacle and temptation they may encounter?

One of the most interesting events of every year is the recurrence in early summer of these school and college closing exercises, at which diplomas are given to certify the completion of a liberal course of study. Our country's welfare depends very largely on the kind of character which these youthful graduates develop, or rather which they maintain, for it has already been pretty fully developed, and the principles which are to guide them are already pretty firmly established. Education is many sided and there is perpetual danger that some one of the many phases of a full and perfect education will be overlooked. There was a time when athletics were neglected. But that time has passed if we may judge from the interest taken in out-of-door games and exercises. Still the training of a base ball or a foot ball team or of a rowing club cannot take the place of the good wholesome, scientific training of all our young people in muscular development, and occasional games of a difficult and even dangerous kind cannot take the place of regular exercise of a kind adapted to each one's capacity and needs. It is clear that this craze of athletics needs a little reason infused into it and that the temperate use of the wheel, which may safely be encouraged and commended, is in danger of degenerating into an abuse and an evil. One of the phases of education which has been neglected in the past is "manual training," or the bringing out of the constructive skill that lies hidden in the human hand. A manual training school is in successful operation in Cleveland in connection with the Central High School. An exhibition was recently given of work done by its pupils. In the basements 24 forges were shown with the boys at work and samples of work done in forging iron were exhibited. On the first floor a machine shop was in full blast and also a wood turning shop with 25 lathes running. On the second floor carpentering and joining work were displayed, also cabinet making and pattern making. In another room four years' work in drawing was shown. Fine examples of linear, perspective, projective, geometrical, architectural drawing were shown, also tinting, shades and shadows, etc. In another room drawings by the girls were exhibited which the boys frankly confess were better than their own. This manual training school proposes to establish a girl's class in domestic economy. A sewing machine firm has donated six of its best machines, a range company has donated a range, and donations of a helpful kind have been received from other firms. Is it hard to see a shield from temptation and a benefit in other directions also in this manual training movement?

It would make this letter too long, and too much like a sermon, to take up the question of the education of the young in the moral and religious departments of our nature. This question is coming to the front in connection with the stubborn banishment, not only of the Bible as a whole, but of all portions of the Bible from our public schools. Crime appears to be rather on the increase than the decrease, and there is a growing disposition to trace one cause of this to the absence of moral training and the non-recognition of God in the schools where so many of the children of our republic get all the mental and moral training that they have.

The HERALD continues to make welcome weekly visits to us, giving us items of interest and keeping us in touch with a community to which we shall ever be warmly attached. Please accept our thanks for these visits and for many a favor in the past.

Mrs. Hulda M. Russell.

On the morning of June 5, 1897, at 5:30, while surrounded by her daughters, Mary and Almeida, her husband, Mrs. Gray and her constant attendant, Mrs. Harris, a dear companion and a loving and beloved mother departed this life after four weeks of severe suffering during which all her family and friends were remembered with a care for their welfare and happiness. Ten days before, when the attendant physicians called the family out and stated to them her condition with little or no hopes of her recovery, it was like a lightning stroke from a clear sky. Although August 31st she would have been 63 years of age, yet it seemed she was but in the prime of life, having most of the time enjoyed good health and having inherited a good constitution.

Hulda M. Russell was the daughter of Alanson and Mary Bangs, was born in Raisin, Mich., August 31, 1834, in the same house where she died, where she was married May 31, 1859, to Edward L. Russell and where she has lived these 38 years of her married life, with the exception of the first four years when her residence was near Centralia, Ill.

A brother, Alanson Burr Bangs, of Raisin, and a sister, Betsy Jane Haight, of Jackson, survive her. She was the mother of two sons and three daughters, Ellsworth E., of Jackson; Frank E., of Tecumseh; Mrs. Mary Scofield and Mrs. Ida Mosely, of Owosso; and Miss Almeida, of Raisin.

Heavy rains and dark clouds ushered in the day of her marriage, but the day closed with a bright rainbow and a beautiful sunset. Thus it was with her life; labors and cares were constant and her last suffering severe, but she died saying, "God is good;" to her husband, "I have loved you every moment, every moment"; to the daughter left at home, "It will be hard for you, but harder for pa." She had a deep affection for her parents and relatives and never tired of doing for them, her cares and labors never pressing upon her so heavily but she could administer to their comfort and happiness, her heart never so full but she had a place for friends and neighbors. She was willing to sacrifice her own comfort and happiness for that of her family.

I remember her as a rosey cheeked, healthy miss of 17, tripping down the street to meet and welcome me to her father's home as my boarding place. She had then given her heart to God and His spirit shone forth in her looks, actions and words. She had united with the M. E. church of Tecumseh. The letter she received from this church she never presented in Illinois, nor yet sought her old home in the church here until five years ago when her husband and others of the family were ready to go with her under the guidance of Rev. O. J. Perrin, Ph. D., who also so kindly officiated at the funeral which was held at the M. E. church on Tuesday, June 8th.

Could we have but one faint glimpse into that spirit world and see her happily surrounded by kindred spirits, it would afford comfort and encouragement. But her life's work was well done and we trust God's word and remember that he will fulfill all his promises

Ball Game.

The game Saturday afternoon between the Lake Ridge Farmers and the home team, was a commingling of brilliant plays with rank errors, forming a combination rarely seen. It was largely a pitcher's battle, both doing good work. Harris had this advantage over Uphouse—his catcher was used to him while Lewis had never before caught Uphouse and found it difficult to hold him. Our team was not as strong as usual; Lee was unable to play, Spalding was not present, and Kennedy had a bad hand and was otherwise maimed, which made batting out of the question. Parrish was put on 3rd, but after the 2nd inning, when in his wild throw to first let in two runs, he went back to his old position right field and Bowerman held down 3rd. Heesen played a very good shot. Our boys played a dandy game until the ninth inning, when they all endeavored to mount the band wagon at the same time, and five of their six errors were made, which let in five runs, and but for a faulty decision of the umpire, would have tied the score. During this comedy of errors, the wildest excitement prevailed. All were intensely interested, some fearing it would lose the game for our boys, while others hoped they would have to play their half of the ninth inning. Taken as a whole, it was the most exciting game of the season.

Allen B. Ward

Died May 29 at his residence near Lawrence, Kan., aged 88 years. He first commenced business at this place with J. S. Stacy in 1846. The next year he married Elizabeth DeMott, located at Dundee, Mich., and for some two years was a merchant there. He returned to this place about 1849 and conducted the same business successfully, first with R. C. More and with other persons, closing out his business to E. B. Strickland & Co. about the year 1869. He afterwards entered business with Alonzo Tribou which continued a few years when he moved to Dundee to conduct the extensive lumber, stave and heading mill business of Hall, Ward & Co. Closing out this business, it not being profitable, he settled on a farm near Lawrence, Kan., following his friend, Chas. Strong, whom he survived a few months.

He first occupied the Guion residence here, bought the Backus house which he occupied a few years and sold to the late Wm. Hayden and then bought and rebuilt the Guion house now occupied by Wm. DeMott which was his home for many years. His first wife died about the year 1863. He married for his second wife, Mrs. Jane Breckbell, who mourns his loss and with whom we sympathize, knowing his exemplary character and sterling worth. By her he has one serviving child, Charlie, who is just entering manhood. We would wish to pay this tribute to his memory, that by the writer he was esteemed highest as a friend and brother and to him he always appeared as having very many of the virtues and none of the faults and failings common to mortals.

WHEELER & SISSON.

The following from the American Gardener is of interest to many readers of the HERALD:

Perhaps the largest celery plant bed in the United States, if not in the world, is that of Messrs. D. E. Smeltzer & Co., of Santa Ana, Cal. The beds are under the personal supervision of Mr. Homer Wilson, of the firm of Wilson Bros., celery growers, of Tecumseh, Mich. They are laid out in sections sixty feet wide, with ditches between them for irrigating, as it does not rain there at this time of the year. The beds have to be kept quite wet, while the plants are small, as the hot sun and wind in the soil would otherwise kill the young plants. Forty pounds of seed were sowed. The firm expects this season to plant six million plants.

We understand that many of our dealers in bicycles, as well as those riding them, said to Ridgeway and Britton people, who were anxious for a bicycle path, that they would meet them half way. If this be true, they want to get a move on them for Tuesday between Ridgeway and Britton they had a large force at work and ten teams drawing gravel, and by the middle of the week, if the weather permits, they expect to have their half done, that is from Britton to Frank Davidson's corner. Certainly Tecumseh will not be outdone in this matter by Ridgeway and Britton, and we expect to see our people act quickly.

Comfort Chase and Charles Moyer have been going fishing all the spring, and two more patient or persistent fishermen would be hard to find. Nothing seemed to dampen their ardor for the sport for week after week past, and only a few blue gills or bullheads could they show as trophies. They tried first one pond; then another, but the result was the same. Monday afternoon, however, their luck turned. They were on the Red mill pond and were about pulling to shore discouraged, when Comfort felt something at the end of the line, and after skillful engineering he landed a fine pickerel, weighing, he thought, fully six pounds, but by the time they reached a pair of scales it had shrunken to four pounds. Never was a boy prouder of his first pair of boots than Comfort with his fish. Tomorrow the boys go fishing again.

HOW THE WORLD JUDGES.

BY ANNA SHIELDS.

The world in this case was represented by the sewing circle of Abington, which met once a week at the various houses of the ladies of the congregation of the church which it represented. There were matrons and maidens, young and old, and among the latter, notice, if you will, Alice Spencer, neither young nor old, but a maiden whose story all Abington knows. Ten years ago Dr. Greyson and Alice Spencer "kept company." There was a quarrel, growing from a trifle, until it ended in a separation, and Dr. Greyson married Maude Hepburn, heiress of the richest man in Abington.

Alice "wore the willow" gracefully enough, neither going into brain fever nor rushing about seeking a mission as a properly conducted maiden in her plight should have done. She is not beautiful, but, in her soft, gray merino, with snowy lace ruffles and a trifle of blue here and there, her sweet, fair face is very pleasant to see. She is gentle and placid, doing her duty well, and always cheerful, yet there comes a frown of pain across her low, white forehead, as the stream of censure flows around her.

"I had it from Martha, Mrs. Greyson's cook," Mrs. Lee said, emphatically, "that Agnes and Lottie Greyson were sent to boarding school against their own mother's will. It is downright cruelty! Why, Agnes is not eight years old, and Lottie just passed six. Mere babies!"

"They say their mother took on dreadfully," said fat, comfortable Mrs. Agnew, looking up from a perplexing gusset; "screamed and cried and clung to the poor little things, as if she couldn't let them go. That, hateful Miss Greyson took them away."

"Miss Greyson interferes in everything," said another voice; "for my part, if my husband brought a prim old maid sister into my house, I'd just put her in her place! But, they do say that half the time poor Mrs. Greyson isn't allowed to order her own dinner."

"I never thought much of Dr. Greyson after he gave up practice and went to live on his wife's money," said Mrs. Agnew. "Such a splendid doctor as he was, and doing so much good, had no business to fold his hands and live in idleness, before he was 30 years old."

And so on, and on, and on, till a monster in human form and a suffering, martyred angel were evolved from the Greyson household, and held up to scorn. Even Mrs. Greyson herself had a side slap or two, as being "poor-spirited" and one who took too meekly to being "put upon" by her tyrant of a husband and sister.

Alice Spencer bent her head lower and lower over her sewing, hearing all, but saying no word of defense or blame. Her heart was very sore when these stories, that were not new in Abington, but merely were revised, improved and enlarged whenever the gossips met, were told. She was of a large-hearted nature, forgiving and tender, and when her lover deserted her she sent no ill will after him. She had hoped he would return to her, and she suffered intensely, if silently, when he nursed his wrath so long and then married. But she lived her sorrow down, and wished Dr. Greyson every happiness.

Often, in the delicious days of courtship, Dr. Greyson had told Alice of his sister Margaret, the older sister, who had taken his mother's place when he was a child of three years. She had, from his loving descriptions, learned to think of Margaret Greyson as one of those noble, self-sacrificing women who make the home a dwelling place of all peace and happiness. It had been one of their favorite dreams of the future to think of Margaret in their home, a ministering angel, and to repay her by their devotion for her long sisterly care.

And now, another of her idols was torn down and smirched by evil tongues, and Alice heard of Miss Greyson as a sort of assistant domestic demon, to carry out her brother's wickedness.

She had no power to contradict any of these reports, for Maude Greyson had exhibited the most savage jealousy of her husband's first love, and her manner to Alice was positively insulting.

Pondering on all these things, Alice walked from the sewing circle to her own modest cottage, where she had lived alone since her father's death, five years before. He had been the pastor of the church, and had, by close economy, saved enough to leave his only child a modest competency. There were no money cares to trouble Alice, although she was far from wealthy, and her income was generously shared with the poor of the village.

Followed by her servant, she was entering the gateway of her garden, when a dark figure came from the porch, down the cottage steps, and she started and trembled, as she recognized Dr. Greyson. What could he want with her at that hour?

"Alice," he said, making no formal greeting, "I have forfeited the right to ask a kindness at your hands, and yet I have come to you in a sore strait, for help."

"I will give it gladly," she faltered, all her accustomed quiet calm broken into a strange tumult of feeling.

"Will you come with me to Highbanks?"

"Now?"

"Yes, now. My carriage is here—indeed, I have but just arrived, and must have hastened back alone, if you had not come."

"But Mrs. Greyson—she does not wish to see me—I—"

"Mrs. Greyson is ill! Alice, I cannot wait. Can you not trust me?"

She gave a few words of direction to the servant and followed him. He gave her no explanation as they drove rapidly towards his home, his whole attention being given to hastening without danger over the road in the night gloom. But at the door he said:

"You had strong nerves, once. Are you as good now? Can you bear the sight of blood—of a wound?"

"If I can be of use."

"You are the same Alice," he said, sighing, and then led the way to a bedchamber, where, still dressed and evidently suffering greatly, Margaret Greyson was extended upon a bed. From some neighboring room came the sound of a screaming voice, uttering appalling oaths, using language that sent sick shudders through Alice Spencer's frame.

Not until then did Dr. Greyson speak.

"Alice," he said, hoarsely, "I have tried to keep my painful secret from all, but it must soon be known. You hear Maude's voice, you see my dear sister lying dangerously wounded by Maude's hands. She has been insane for four years, and Margaret has tried to help me in guarding her from harm, and yet keeping her sad state a secret. Yesterday she broke into acute mania. I sent my little girls away hurriedly and Harry is with his nurse in another part of the house. We thought the worst of the attack was over, when she suddenly ran downstairs to the kitchen, and, seizing a knife, stabbed my sister. The servants are all occupied—one with Harry and two with my wife. Somewhere I had to look for help, and I went to you."

"Thank you for that," she answered, gently. "Tell me now what I must do."

Deftly she helped him to care for Margaret, whose wound had been dressed, but who sorely needed a woman's nursing. When he had done all required of a physician, she said:

"Now leave me and send one of the women here," and she heard him in the next room vainly trying to quiet the raving woman, whose shrieks were unlike any human sound Alice had ever heard.

It was a long, painful task to make the unconscious, moaning woman comfortable in her bed, but the maid was strong and willing, and Alice tender and accustomed to sickness. As they worked, the other side of the story the world judged so harshly came out.

"You see, miss, I was the only one of the servants that knew Mrs. Greyson was queer like. She was about the house, but the doctor, he watched her constant, night and day, and a bitter time he had, miss, for she took that hatred to him that I think she would have killed him if she could. It was only when she was asleep and I a-watching of her that he dared to rest. And there was the children, and Harry not five years old, miss, and he looking after them like a woman, or there's no knowing what she might 'a' done to them. It's been better since Miss Margaret came, and if there ever was an angel on the earth she's one, miss—that patient with the poor, daft lady, and that good to the children as you never see. It was easy to hide it from the servants sometimes, but if they had not been dumb some other times it seems to me they must 'a' knowed the poor lady wasn't right in her mind. I hope she'll not have to go to a 'sylum, miss."

"I hope not," Alice said.

"Only the master's about worn out! If he didn't know about giving her doctors' stuff when she's worst, we'd 'a' had to have help long ago."

"Harry!" Margaret called feebly, and Alice was instantly beside her.

"I am Alice," she said, gently, knowing her name must be familiar to Harry's sister. "Your brother asked me to nurse you. What can I do now to help you?"

"Alice!" Margaret said, "oh, my dear, how I have longed to see you! And to meet in this way!"

"No, you must not cry," Alice said, kissing her tenderly; "you are badly hurt and must keep very quiet, but you are willing to trust me to nurse you, are you not?"

"Yes, dear; yes, I am glad to have you here. You know—"

"Yes, I know. Heaven help him," said Alice, choking back a sob; "it is very bitter!"

While Margaret was still too ill to leave her room, Maude Greyson died, raving day and night through weeks of madness. All Abington by that time knew the sad story, for servants will gossip, when ladies stoop to question, and Highbanks was the theme of every tongue.

As soon as his sister was able to be moved, Dr. Greyson took her to the seashore, with his boy and nurse, leaving the little girls still at school, where they were happier than they had ever been under their mother's capricious control. It was not far from Abington, and Alice visited them frequently, carrying the toys and dainties dear to children's hearts.

From their seaside trip Dr. Greyson and his sister returned to Highbanks, and Margaret took the little girls home and kept the house, while the doctor went abroad. He dared not trust himself near Alice, for all the old love was springing up again in a heart he had thought dead to emotion. His bitter experience had not hardened him, nor the fact that Maude's property was willed to her children, though under his guardianship.

For three years Margaret and Alice were like dear sisters, sharing the love of the children, and Alice learning much of the martyrdom of the life of Dr. Greyson and Margaret during the four last years of Maude's life.

He came home at last and resumed his professional duties, having spent most of his time abroad in the great hospitals in Europe. It was long before he spoke to Alice, but she understood, and when he asked her to be his wife, she knew that the love she had crushed down for years had come back, true and strong, in her heart.

Of course the world, as represented by the Abington sewing circle, had plenty of hard judgment ready for both, but they never heard it, nor would they have heeded it if they had.—N. Y. Ledger.

WRECKED VESSEL LOCATED.

The Pewabic, Lost 32 Years Ago in Thunder Bay, Found.

Alpena, June 12.—After a 32 years' search the copper-laden steamer Pewabic, which collided with a sister ship, the Meteor, off Thunder Bay island, has been discovered by the steamer Root wrecking expedition, lying on the bottom seven miles east in Thunder bay. A diver in a patent diving bell found the Pewable lying upright on her bottom in 169 feet of water. Her head was pointing out. Capt. Smith says the work of getting out the cargo will be begun at once.

There is great excitement here over the discovery, as there is not only 267 tons of copper, which constituted part of her cargo, in the hold, but considerable coin. The copper is at present valued at about $80,000. Arrangements with the Home and Aetna companies, which held the insurance, assure the wreckers of 60 per cent. of all property recovered.

Scores of wrecking expeditions have been formed at various times in the past to search for her, and thousands of dollars have been spent in both dragging the bottom where she was supposed to have gone down, and in diving.

The Pewabic was a fine passenger steamer, bound from Lake Superior, with about 150 souls on board, including the crew. She sank in a few minutes after colliding, carrying down 125 passengers. The night was clear and the surface of the lake like glass. Passengers were enjoying dancing and card playing, assisted by some of the officers of the boat, and the boat went down so quickly that few had time to save themselves. At the time it was said the collision was due to carelessness. The night was so beautiful it was thought no harm would come to run close and exchange mail with the Meteor. Accordingly the boats steered close together and were drawn together by suction. The coin on board was in gold in the purser's safe, but the exact amount was never known. It is said by some to have amounted to $60,000. The copper cargo is worth $80,000 and the Pewabic cost $200,000.

AN ELECTRICAL MARVEL.

Man Has an Invention Ten Years Old Which Will Startle Scientists.

Marquette, June 12.—R. A. Wilson, superintendent of the electric light plant in this city, is said to have made a find which is apt to cause an upheaval in the electrical world. Mr. Wilson, it is alleged, has discovered a complete model of an electric lighting plant, made by an eccentric inventor, John Ingalls, which has lain in disuse since 1887, and has just been unearthed in perfect working order. By it a light similar to the incandescent bulb is said to be obtained without the use of a filament, the light being caused by waves of electrical energy forced through a vacuum on "high frequency."

Ann Arbor's Lighting Plans.

Ann Arbor, June 12.—Plans are about completed for expending the $20,000 appropriation recently made by the legislature to the Michigan university for an electric light plant. The money will be used for two 60-kilo Watts dynamos for lighting purposes and one 500-volt dynamo for power purposes. This latter will displace three engines now in use in the laboratories. A small plant at the hospital will also be provided for, one of the engines displaced by electricity in the physical laboratory being used to run it. The campus will be lighted with arc lights and the building with incandescent lamps. The new plant will be of inestimable value to the instructors in the engineering courses.

Nailed Up Church Doors.

Niles, June 12.—The congregation of the Methodist church at Nuncia is divided against the pastor, William Lawton, who has of late censured his townspeople in his sermons. Some of his enemies at a recent service cursed the pastor in the church and nailed up the doors with the congregation inside. One member of the congregation broke a window, climbed out and opened the doors. Six of the disturbers have been arrested.

Graves Despoiled.

Cheboygan, June 14.—For the past few nights sneak thieves have been stealing valuable plants and flowers off the graves in the cemeteries here. The entire G. A. R. Decoration day tribute was stolen off the graves of the veterans. Many private graves have also been despoiled. The plants have been taken to surrounding towns and disposed of.

Death of a Midget.

Kansas City, Mo., June 11.—C. W. Sparling, a midget, died here of throat trouble. He was 34 years old and was only 42 inches in height and weighed 53 pounds. Sparing was a traveling agent for a Dowagiac (Mich.) firm, and had been in the city for a year. His remains were sent to Dowagiac, where he was born, and where relatives survive him.

Sudden Death of a Sheriff.

Mancelona, June 10.—S. M. Chaffee, sheriff of Antrim county, died very suddenly at eight o'clock Wednesday morning, at Bellaire. He was apparently as well as ever, and was taken with a violent headache and died at once. Sheriff Chaffee was a favorite of all. He was serving his second term, and was universally respected.

Took Strychnine.

Marshall, June 14.—Abram Hinman committed suicide here by taking five grains of strychnine. He was jilted a few months ago by a young lady, and this is supposed to be the cause of his self-destruction.

Crushed to Death.

Flint, June 13.—A. E. Atherton, proprietor of the Atlas flouring mills, was crushed to death at Atlas by being thrown under the wheels of a wagon to which a team of fractious colts was attached.

WELL FED BOILERS

The right boiler feeder saves trouble, time, fuel. The most perfectly automatic, the safest, most economical feeder made is the U.S. AUTOMATIC INJECTOR. More lasting than others. No other injector has an overflow valve which will never leak from wear. No other injector has a drip cock which enables injector to start (even if the check valve leaks); which drains the injector and prevents freezing; which prevents suction pipe from getting hot.

It is easier to operate, feeds hotter water, works with lower and higher steam than any other automatic injector. If your dealer does not keep it make him order it for you, or write to Bar City reports the lumber market as picking up.

The Mount Lebanon Shakers recently performed a great deed of charity, although it was not designed as a charity, being nothing more nor less than an advertising scheme. It however resulted in great good just the same. They gave away 1,000 bottles of their Digestive Cordial to those suffering from stomach derangements. It was so effective in curing those who used the remedy that they were loud in their praises of it and in consequence a large demand for the Cordial was at once created. The druggists of this town have little books that tell all about it. Digestive Cordial creates an appetite, aids digestion and brings about a rapid increase in flesh and strength.

ONE MAN'S SUFFERING.

The Trials and Tribulations of a Battle Creek Citizen—How He Comes to Tell This Story.

(From the Battle Creek Moon.)

Among the moulders at the works of the Michigan foundry company can be found Mr. Amos Maynard; he has lived in Battle Creek for over ten years, is honored and respected by all who know him; such is the man who makes this statement, he says: "I have had kidney trouble for years, and it has made my life miserable. The heavy lifting, necessary in my business, made me worse. I have been compelled to lie in bed in a helpless condition for as long as nine days at a time; the greatest pain was from my back, which sometimes felt as though a bayonet was being run through me in the region of my kidneys; many citizens of Battle Creek knew how bad I was. I could not move without the greatest caution, for as soon as I attempted to stoop over, bend to one side, or even turn in bed, the pain was simply unbearable. I wore porous plasters constantly for the little temporary relief they brought me. Whenever I caught the slightest cold it went straight to my kidneys and made me worse. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got some. I have taken in all four boxes of them, and I now feel as active as ever. A few months ago I would have ridiculed the idea of being cured so quickly, and being able to work as I can now. All the long-standing pains are gone, and the former traces of kidney disorders found in my urine have disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends who were troubled as I was, and in every case I have learned they proved as beneficial as with me. Doan's Kidney Pills would be cheap to me at almost any price."

HORTICULTURE.

DWARF PEAR TREES.

They Produce Excellent Crops Within a Very Few Years.

Farmers and others do not sufficiently appreciate the value of the dwarf pears. With these the setting out of fruit trees is certainly not "planting for posterity," whatever may be the case with standard trees.

Dwarf pear trees are formed by grafting pear cions upon quince roots. The result is the making of a bush out of the pear stock. Another result is the very early bearing of the dwarf. A few planted about one's garden and grounds make ornamental shrubbery, and in a very few years are producing excellent crops.

DWARF PEAR TREE.

Purchased by the hundred dwarf pear trees are inexpensive—from six to eleven dollars being charged at the nurseries for two-year-old trees from three to four feet in height. Care should be taken in setting the trees to put the point where the pear and quince stock joins two inches at least below the surface of the ground. Dwarf pear trees, being small, can be set out in places where larger trees could not well grow. A very excellent arrangement is to set them in a hedge-row along the sides of one's orchard or garden. They can be set as closely as 4½ feet apart, provided they have plenty of space on either side to let in sunshine and air. A row of these little trees in full bloom is a sight to be remembered.

Not all varieties of pears are suited to the dwarf habit of growth. Those that do well as standards will not always give satisfaction as dwarfs, but it is fortunate that some of the very finest of the standard varieties, as dwarfs, do as well as the standards, if not better. Thus among the summer varieties that give excellent results is the dwarf form one may mention the Bartlett and Clapp's Favorite; among autumn varieties the Seckel and Duchesse, and among winter varieties that "noblest Roman of them all," the Anjou, and the Lawrence.

There are other good pears that do well as dwarfs, but this gives a good selection for home use. Every spring before the leaves start let a third of last season's growth be cut away, as severe pruning is essential for heavy fruiting.

In localities where the winters are severe, a little mulching, at least for the first season, should be put about the trees in winter, and remember that pear trees, as well as all fruit trees, for that matter, are greatly benefited by a liberal application of wood ashes to the soil. Give them other fertilizers, too, but don't neglect to supply plenty of potash.

Set out a few dwarf pear trees, and the chances are that you will like them so well that you will set out as many more a year from this spring.—N. Y. Tribune.

VEGETABLE HOSPITAL.

Established by the United States Department of Agriculture.

A hospital under the care of Prof. B. T. Galloway, chief of the division of vegetable pathology, has been established by the department of agriculture of the United States government for the treatement of sick plants. Diseases affecting plants and vegetables, as well as remedies, are investigated. The work will not only benefit farmers, but all lovers of flowers. A violet plant was placed under a glass jar, where it was provided with only poor ventilation. Germs of a disease known to be injurious to the plant were mixed with water and sprayed upon it. Soon large yellow spots appeared upon the leaves. After the jar was removed the patient rapidly recovered, showing that the germs would have had no effect had the air in which the plant grew been fresh. The plants in a row of young corn are given water in different quantities, mixed with certain proportions of salts, as found in natural soil. When certain strengths of salt are added the little mouths of the hairlike tubes of the roots through which the plants drink become so badly puckered that the plants starve. Plants growing in salt marshes and by the seaside are supplied with larger mouths. By testing the amount of salt in his soil the farmer can ascertain how healthy his corn is likely to be. Prof. Galloway is awaiting results from some very interesting experiments with the germs of wheat "rust."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Ripening of Fruit.

Experiments made in England to retard the ripening of fruit by keeping it at a steady low temperature have succeeded well with apples, but not with plums or with vegetables.

MARKETING FRUITS.

Have Each Package as Uniform in Quality as Possible.

Upon the condition that the fruit is in when it is offered for sale largely depends on the price it will fetch. It is essential, therefore, that good care be taken to pick, sort and pack it so that when opened in market the fruit will present an attractive appearance. A few unripe or a few overripe specimens in a box or basket will damage the sale.

With all fruit maturity is a distinct stage, and ripeness or mellowness another. For marketing fruit should be fully matured—that is, full grown—but it should not be so ripe as to be mellow. The stage of ripeness at which fruit should be picked depends upon the time and distance it must be sent for sale. If allowed to remain on the tree or bush until ripe it will be soft and often partly rotten by the time it reaches the consumer. Generally all early fruit, if picked when mature, will be in the right condition for use when it reaches the consumer. Nearly or quite all early fruits decay soon after they are fully ripe.

All fruits sent to market should be carefully sorted. Have each package as uniform in quality as possible. It is poor economy to mix the bad fruit among the best, hoping in this way to sell the poor at a better price; the reverse always happens. Have the packages neat, attractive and convenient. In many cases the difference in price between carefully sorted, neatly packed fruit and that of a poor quality determines the question of profit or loss. The best always sells at a fair price, while often when the market is overstocked poor grades are not saleable at any price.—St. Louis Republic.

A GARDEN LEVELER.

In Irrigated Sections Every Farmer Should Have One of Them.

In irrigated sections is where horticulturists are thoughtful to use tried methods and devise new ones to get the soil in proper condition to receive the seed. For a cheap arrangement I have not found a better implement to level and smooth the soil, when it is loose, as well as to mash the lumps, than the portrayal below. It consists of a plank (a) 8 feet long, 12 inches wide and two inches thick, with a strap of iron (b) spiked to the front square edge, with half hook, half eye pieces (c) bolted on top sides of plank 1 foot from each end, 2 inches back from the edge, angling somewhat toward each other at front edge of the plank. I used inch rope with a loop knot in the center for clavis and knots in each end to prevent it from drawing through the "loop eye." To complete the arrangement, a short board (e) is nailed across the center, top side of plank, extending back of plank 6 inches, the board being leveled so as to tilt back end up 2 inches. The plank is used flatwise with strap iron edge ahead. To scrape heavy ride on front center edge; and to dump, step one foot back on end of short cross board. A little experience will enable one to do good work. Lie down and look in all directions to see where more soil needs to be taken away, and where more needs to be dumped. If the land is to be flooded make the ditches and borders to give each "land" a finishing touch with the leveler.—J. Wesley Eastwood, in Farm and Home.

GARDEN AND ORCHARD.

Dusting with white ellebore is a good remedy for currant worms.

Air-slaked lime dusted on rose bushes when the dew is on will kill insect pests.

In planting for home use, select only well known standard varieties.

So much fruit that the limbs are liable to break down should not be left on the trees.

Salsify and parsnips are two root crops that can be left in the ground until they are wanted to use.

Fresh cow manure diluted with water to the consistency of cream is a good remedy for squash bugs.

Coal ashes can be used to good advantage in mulching the currants; they will keep down the weeds.

A stout stake set by a slender tree and the tree tied to it will help materially to secure a straight growth.

If desirable to use liquid manure, the better plan is to apply it weak and frequently. Do not put it on the foliage.

Pear blight, quince blight and apple twig blight are best cured by cutting all affected limbs and burning them.

Protecting the birds is one cheap way of fighting the insect pests in the garden. Don't allow boys to kill the birds or rob the nests.

Set thin pasteboard or strips of tin bent round over the early-set cabbage and tomato plants to protect them from cut worms.

A liberal application of wood ashes on the surface thoroughly stirred into the surface with a rake is a good remedy for cut worms.

The greater portion of the roots of the grapevine grow near the surface. The cultivation should always be shallow.—St. Louis Republic.

Bore Fruit Ninety Years.

On the farm of Enoch McCall, near Wrightsville, O., stands an apple tree that has been bearing fruit for 90 years. It is a yellow bellflower, and was planted when this whole region was almost a solid forest. Five feet from the ground it measures nine feet six inches in circumference, and it would take a basket 48 feet wide to set under the tree to catch every apple that falls. The tree shows some signs of decay now, but it is thought the year 1900 will find it producing.—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

MOTHER! There is no word so full of meaning and about which such tender and holy recollections cluster as that of "MOTHER"—she who watched over our helpless infancy and guided our first, tottering step. Yet the life of every Expectant Mother is beset with danger and all effort should be made to avoid it.

Mother's Friend so assists nature in the change taking place that the Expectant Mother is enabled to look forward without dread, suffering or gloomy forebodings, to the hour when she experiences the joy of Motherhood. Its use insures safety to the lives of both Mother and Child, and she is found stronger after than before confinement—in short, it "makes Childbirth natural and easy," as so many have said. Don't be persuaded to use anything but

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

Order by Mail.

No greater aid to the shopping community has ever been devised than the Mail Order System. Ladies living at a distance and occupied with the various duties of life cannot always find time to visit the city to purchase the various articles they may desire. To them the system is invaluable. They may be a thousand miles away, but still can purchase their goods as easily and satisfactorily as if they were to visit our store in person. A postal card directed to us will bring you a price list of goods or any samples you may desire to see. You can then sit quietly at home and make your selections without the bother of going to market, and thus escape all the crowding and jostling that is incidental to the large dry goods houses. Our Mail Order Department is well equipped. The most experienced salespeople attend to your wants. They are alive to the swift-changing fashions; their experience in the business teaches them which are the most serviceable and stylish goods. The customer at a distance has sometimes a decided advantage over those who purchase in person. When we receive an order it is placed in the hands of a salesman who knows all about the goods to be selected. He will not make any mistake, and he selects articles that he knows will give the best satisfaction; whereas there are cases when you would not make such judicious purchases yourself.

YOU WANT THE BEST FOR THE PRICE.

This we Guarantee. Send to us for anything in Dry Goods, Carpets, Draperies, Cloaks, Millinery, Parasols, Boys' Clothing, Shoes (Ladies' and Children's), Books, Corsets, or Small Wares, and we will give you our best service, guaranteeing everything to be satisfactory or money refunded.

INFALLIBLE SCIENCE.

Figures for Once This Professor Had to Admit Were Wrong.

Occasionally science must admit failure. One night a young man in Divinity hall at Yale undertook with a toy rifle to hit a lamp. But his aim was poor and the ball passed through the window of an eminent and venerable professor of science and embedded itself in the wall.

This was the opportunity for the professor and for science, says the Hartford Courant. He set to work and computed the curve, and with the exact skill of infallible figures he traced the ball right back to the room of an innocent colleague who didn't even know the rifle had been fired.

The unfledged minister flatly denied all knowledge of the affair. But men, even ministers, have been known to make denials in self-defense, and the professor had the proof with him. There was the bullet, there were the marks of its course, and there was the computation worked out. It looked as if a pulpit career was to be nipped in the bud.

But the guilty student heard what was going on. He called on the professor, confessed the offense, pointed out that the man of science was 200 feet out in his computation, and advised that the matter be dropped right where it was.

And that was done.

CRITICAL AGE FOR GENIUS.

Host of Eminent Men Who Have Died at the Age of Fifty-Six.

Fifty-six years seems to be a fatal age for people of genius. Among those who have died at that age may be mentioned Dante, the Italian poet; Hugh Capet, king of France; Henry VIII., king of England; Henry IV., emperor of Germany; Paganini, Italian violinist; Alexander Pope, English poet; George Sala, English orientalist; Marcus Aurelius, emperor of Rome; Frederick I., king of Prussia; John Hancock, American statesman; Marie Louise, empress of France; Philip Massenger, English dramatist; Saladin, the great sultan of Egypt; Robert Stephenson, English engineer; Scipio Africanus, Roman general; Helvetius, French philosopher and author; Henry II., the first of the Plantagenet line; the elder Pliny, Roman naturalist and author; Julius Cæsar; Charles Kingsley, English author; Juan Prim, Spanish general and statesman; Henry Knox, American revolutionary general; Thomas Mullin, American patriot; Marryat, the novelist; George Whitefield, English founder of Calvinistic Methodism; Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester, favorite of Queen Elizabeth; Johann Caspar Spurzheim, German physician and phrenologist, and Frederick II., emperor of Germany.

Long-Distance Riding.

For riding long distances, the great secret is—keep an even, steady pace, and cut down the stops. Order your meals to be ready beforehand, if possible, and avoid strictly any unnecessary delays on the way, such as stops for altering the position of saddle or handles, which should be placed absolutely right before starting, dismounting to ask the way—which ought to have been made perfectly familiar by previous riding over the whole course, a part at a time—or pauses to extract small eatables, etc., from a bag—all things that may be wanted should be carried in a light basket fixed upright [illegible] carrier, and easily unfastened with [illegible] hand while riding, says the Irish [illegible]. The comfort and ease of a long [illegible] depends immensely on the proper [illegible] arrangement of such small details as [illegible]

He has killed 11 tigers, a number of elephants and rhinoceros, bears and lions.

Tecumseh enthusiasts of this section gathered at the vacant store of Frank Brown last Saturday evening, to discuss and devise some plan of establishing a gravel path between this place and Ridgeway. There was a large turnout. A committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions and we learn that nearly a hundred dollars has been subscribed in cash and work. Another meeting will be held tomorrow night at same place and further arangements made.—Britton Citizen.

W. D. Pudney, of Cleveland, Ohio, a Lake Shore road attorney, was here yesterday and to-day, leaving with the register of deeds a copy of a mortgage, in the small sum of fifty million dollars, running to the United States Trust Co., of New York city, John T. Dye, trustee. The mortgage copy makes 76 printed pages. It is payable June 1, 1997, and draws interest at 3 1-2 per cent., payable semi-annually, in gold at the present standard. A copy of the mortgage will be filed in 37 counties in New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Michigan, where the road owns property.—Adrian Telegram.

The new law makers of Britton are having great times building sidewalk ordinances, and if given time, will regulate the speed of bicycles, horses and railway trains.

We understand the board of review for the village have added $80,000 valuation to the Clinton Woolen Manufacturing Co., making a total of $200,000 for them to pay taxes on. Can it be possible that our council want to drive away this industry that is the very life of the town? a few more such moves will surely do it, and we hope they will see the matter in the right light before it is to late. We cannot afford such a set back.—Clinton Local.

The Telegram suggests an electric light in the vicinity of the Lima Northern depot We second the motion and offer an amendment that the city be to the expense of clearing up the river bank and approaches to the depot, so that it present a more inviting appearance. Burdocks, thistles, and other weeds, with brush and rubbish do not show enterprise.—Adrian Press

Another "coolness" has sprung up in Adrian between the Times, and Press. The following taken from a Press editorial is self explanatory:

If we couldn't run a paper without stealing and lying, we would go out of the business and run a job office." The Times draws no line in its thefts, and there's nothing in a paper it won't steal except the ads. Editorial matter, state news, telegraph dispatches or local, it's all the same. The scissors flip in with readiness and ease, and the item is "scribbed," without even so much as a "thank you." We do not expect to reform the practices of the sheet, but we want to try and so word it, that those who conduct it may know that we know what they are doing. If there appears in that paper a whack at the PRESS, or at its proprietor, you can set it down as about the only original article in the paper.

QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

Celebration in London of Victoria's Sixty Years' Reign.

The Ceremonies Begin with Church Services—Reception in Buckingham Palace to Envoys—President McKinley's Letter.

London, June 21.—Queen Victoria began the celebration of her jubilee Sunday, as was befitting her entire career, before the altar of her faith. Throughout London, the United Kingdom and the empire, in every cathedral, church or chapel of the established church of England was held services similar to those at St. George's chapel, Windsor, where her majesty paid her devotions and offered solemn thanks to God.

Special dispatches from Paris, Berlin, Vienna, St. Petersburg and nearly every large city in Europe, show that thanksgiving services were held in the local English churches, numerously attended. The newspapers in many cities, especially Vienna and St. Petersburg, published long eulogistic articles upon the Victorian reign.

The Queen in London.

London, June 22. — Queen Victoria left Windsor castle at noon yesterday for Buckingham palace, and all along the route loyal subjects greeted her enthusiastically. All the houses were freely decorated with flags, flowers, banners and festoons and endless mottoes on the order of the day: "God Save the Queen."

Receives the Envoys.

In the afternoon at four o'clock her majesty received the imperial and royal envoys, United States Special Envoy Hon. Whitelaw Reid, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., Rear-Admiral J. N. Miller, U. S. N., and the members of the HON. WHITELAW REID.

United States special embassy were presented, and Mr. Reid was received in the most cordial manner possible. Her majesty expressed her sincere thanks to President McKinley and to "the great nation of our kinsmen."

A Royal Banquet.

The queen at 8:45 in the evening entertained at dinner 90 of her most distinguished guests in the state supper-room at Buckingham palace. Among those present were the prince and princess of Wales, with all the members of the royal family, the royal guests, the envoys of states with the rank of ambassador and the great officers of the household. Mesdames Whitelaw Reid, Nelson A. Miles and Ogden Mills were presented by the queen's special command.

PRESIDENT TO QUEEN.

Text of Mr. McKinley's Letter of Congratulation to Her Majesty.

London, June 22.—President McKinley has sent the following personal letter to Queen Victoria, which was delivered to her by Mr. Whitelaw Reid, special envoy:

GEN. NELSON A. MILES.

"To Her Majesty Victoria, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India —Great and Good Friend: In the name and on behalf of the people of the United States I present their sincere felicitations upon the sixtieth anniversary of your majesty's accession to the crown of Great Britain.

"I express the sentiments of my fellow citizens in wishing for your people the prolongation of a reign illustrious and marked by advance in science, arts and popular well-being. On behalf of my countrymen I wish particularly to recognize your friendship for the United States and your love of peace, exemplified upon important occasions.

"It is pleasing to acknowledge the debt of gratitude and respect due to your personal virtues. May your life be prolonged and peace, honor and prosperity bless the people over whom you have been called to rule. May liberty flourish throughout your empire under just and equal laws and your government continue strong in the affections of all who live under it. And I pray God to have your majesty in his holy keeping.

"Done at Washington this 28th day of May, 1897. Your Good Friend,

"WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

"By the President:
"JOHN SHERMAN Secretary of State."

Diamond Jubilee Pageant.

London, June 23.—Probably 5,000,000 people saw the great pageant yesterday celebrating Queen Victoria's jubilee. In all history no such vast mass of humanity has gathered to witness a similar spectacle. The cavalcade of princes riding ahead of the queen's carriage included relatives or a representative of every notable sovereign in the world. When the queen reached St. Paul's cathedral the ecclesiastics came out and held a simple service. The bishop of London then read a short collect, after which, as her majesty sat with bowed head, the archbishop of Canterbury announced the benediction. Then, amid the ringing of bells, the national anthem was sung, and the queen drove on into other scenes, and at a little after one o'clock returned to her palace.

In the British Colonies.

London, June 23.—Dispatches received here from all the British colonies announce the holding of jubilee reviews, official receptions, the giving of dinners to the poor and the illumination of cities throughout the British empire. In addition nearly all the foreign cities had fetes, decorations and illuminations in honor of the jubilee of Queen Victoria.

Black Flags in Ireland.

London, June 23.—The jubilee was celebrated in almost all parts of Ireland with enthusiasm by public officials, fetes, decorations, illuminations and bonfires. The Parnellites, however, were very busy with counter demonstrations. In Dublin a procession went through the streets carrying a black flag and a robin bird, "The British Empire." At Cork the National society hung out black flags and attempted to hoist one on the principal flagstaff, but the police interfered. At Limerick the police removed black flags from the town hall and from a number of public monuments.

REFUSE TO QUIT GREECE.

Ten Thousand Albanians Decline to Give Up Thessaly.

Constantinople, June 21. — Edhem Pasha telegraphs that 10,000 Albanians, regular and irregular soldiers, refuse to lay down their arms and declare they will not leave Thessaly before the land is Turkish property. Otherwise they will fight till death. This shows the way the wind is blowing.

Constantinople, June 21.—The draft of the treaty of peace between Greece and Turkey is likely to be submitted to the powers this week. The amount of the indemnity which Greece will pay, it is believed, will be 5,000,000 Turkish pounds ($23,000,000), the largest amount the Greeks could pay. It has also been generally conceded for some time past that the Turkish government has given up the idea of the retention of Thessaly, and it is understood that the changes in the frontier line will be slight.

FOUR BOYS KILLED.

Terrible Result of a Tornado in Logan County, Ill.

Lincoln, Ill., June 19.—A tornado passed over the central and southern part of Logan county at 3:45 p. m. Friday. The state institution for the feeble-minded was damaged. A barn on the institution farm collapsed. Twenty-six persons were gathered there for shelter. Four were taken out dead: Sylvester Baker, James O'Brien, Neal McKenzie and Castle Le Baron, all boy pupils from Chicago. Farm Superintendent Jacob Wilmot was fatally hurt. Lemuel Gleason, an attendant, was severely injured. Pupils Henry Berger, William Withem and Willie Fisher were hurt. Much damage was done to property in the city and country.

LIGHTNING'S WORK.

Set Fire to Library Building of Iowa State University.

Iowa City, Ia., June 21.—The library building of the state university was struck by lightning at four o'clock Saturday morning, and was destroyed by fire. The two-story brick structure, with the library on the second floor, and the physical laboratory on the first, represents a loss of $100,000. The libraries of political science and economy, history, German, French, Greek, Latin, English, and a part of that of chemistry were destroyed. These can be replaced when the state legislature meets in July. Fireman L. M. Leek was caught in the building under a falling roof and burned to death before he could be rescued.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 22.—Christian K. Ross, the father of Charlie Ross, whose abduction on July 1, 1874, from his parents' home in Germantown, was one of the most mysterious and sensational crimes ever committed, and which up to the present has never been cleared up, died early Monday morning, at his home in East Washington street, Germantown. He was 74 years old.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in Senate and House.

The Tariff Bill Occupies the Entire Time in the Senate—No Business Done in the House—Other News.

Washington, June 17.—The senate made rapid work on the tariff bill yesterday. Thirteen pages were disposed of, carrying the debate through the agricultural schedule and up to schedule H, relating to spirits, wines, etc. The Hawaiian annexation treaty, signed by President McKinley, Secretary Sherman and Minister Hatch, of Hawaii, was received, as was also the nomination of Stewart L. Woodford, of New York, to be minister to Spain.

Washington, June 18. — The senate made greater progress yesterday on the tariff bill than any day since the debate opened. Two entire schedules, covering 20 pages, were completed, namely, schedule H, on spirits, wines and beverages, and schedule I, on manufactured cotton goods. This brings the senate to the flax schedule, with the important wool schedule standing next.

Washington, June 19.—In the senate yesterday bills were passed for public buildings at Cleveland, O., to cost $2,700,000, and McKeesport, Pa., to cost $200,000.

The tariff bill came to a halt, less than one page of the flax schedule being disposed of. The debate drifted into political channels. Senator Teller introduced a bill providing that all bank notes shall be redeemed in coin, and another that all national banking associations shall keep their reserves in their own vaults.

Washington, June 21.—The tariff bill was further considered in the senate on Saturday and a motion to place floor mattings, plain jute ingrains, burlap and cotton bagging on the free list was successful.

Washington, June 22.—The senate made good headway with the tariff bill yesterday. The last two schedules of the dutiable list were completed and the free list was also disposed of.

Washington, June 23.—An exciting debate marked the consideration of the wool schedule which began in the senate yesterday. It developed the first serious disagreement on the republican side of the chamber and led to a warm encounter between Senators Carter (Mont.) and Teraker (O.) on one side, and Senator Allison (Ia.), in charge of the bill, on the other. Fair progress, however, was made on the schedule.

The House.

Washington, June 18. — The house was in session an hour and a half yesterday, most of the time being taken up with roll calls. Mr. Sulzer (dem., N. Y.) succeeded in injecting into the proceedings a brief speech in favor of Cuba, in which he denounced Weyler as a "thief" and "murderer." Adjourned till Monday.

Washington, June 22. — A joint resolution was favorably reported in the house yesterday permitting foreign exhibitors at the Omaha exhibition under stringent provisions to bring laborers into the United States to take charge of exhibits. Adjourned to Thursday.

Revenue Receipts.

Washington, June 19.—The monthly statement of the collections of internal revenue shows that the total receipts during May were $10,816,892, a net decrease as compared with May, 1896, of $647,598. For the 11 months ended May 31, 1897, the total receipts were $133,176,200; increase, $51,389.

New Peace Treaty.

Washington, June 21.—President McKinley has determined to revive the abandoned treaty of general arbitration between the United States and Great Britain. He has already turned his attention to the subject, and under the direction of Secretary Sherman the matter has progressed to the extent that a new treaty already has been drafted to serve as the basis of negotiations expected to result in the submission of a convention to the senate to replace that which was negotiated by Secretary Olney, only to fail in the early hours of the present session.

Offices Filled.

Washington, June 23.—The president has appointed to the offices in the southern district of Illinois the candidates heretofore agreed upon. J. Otis Humphrey was nominated for United States attorney, and Charles P. Hitch for United States marshal, while Richard Yates was named as collector of internal revenue for the Eighth Illinois district.

Bar Iron Prices Advance.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 22.—An advance of five cents per hundred on bar iron was announced in iron and steel circles Monday morning. This is the first tendency toward recuperation that bar iron has shown for months. During the past few weeks prices reached almost the lowest level known in the history of the industry.

Thousands Killed.

Simla, June 21. — It was announced Saturday that over 6,000 lives have been lost by the earthquake disturbances which have recently visited the province of Assam.

Fire in Brooklyn Navy Yard.

New York, June 22.—Fire broke out in the Brooklyn navy yard shortly before ten o'clock Monday night and did damage to the extent of about $100,000.

RAILROAD MEN GATHER.

Chief Arthur Speaks for Arbitration at a Saginaw Rally.

Saginaw, June 21.—Sunday was railroad day in Saginaw, over 2,000 state members of the various orders accepting an invitation from the Saginaw lodges to the lodges of the state. Delegations were present from Bay City, Detroit, Battle Creek, Jackson, Port Huron, Grand Rapids, Toledo, Ionia and other places. The various orders held meetings in the morning to transact routine business, and in the afternoon a public meeting was held at Masonic Temple. After an address of welcome by Mayor Baum, representatives of the grand lodges of the orders spoke. The first of these was Grand Chief Engineer P. M. Arthur, of Cleveland. He spoke on the relations of the employer to the employe and vice versa, and dwelt at length on the advantages of arbitration in the settlement of disputes. Charles H. Wilkins, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., assistant grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors; J. W. Arnold, grand secretary of the Firemen's Brotherhood; T. R. Dodge, of Peoria, Ill., grand vice master of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and other speakers, among them some railway officials, counseled unity, good feeling and fair treatment between employers and employed.

Unbalanced Books Left by Ex-Treasurers of Montmorency County.

Lewiston, June 23.—J. H. Dresser, an expert accountant from Detroit, who has been examining the Montmorency county treasurer's records, reported to the board of supervisors shortages during the terms of four ex-county treasurers as follows: C. Johnson, 1895 to 1896, $1,478.76, which, including the balance of $2,790.91, shown by the county clerk and supervisors' record as due the county at the last settlement in January, and not yet paid, amounting to $4,269.17, makes a total due the county of $13,842.40. The report was accepted by the board, which will probably instruct the prosecuting attorney to begin proceedings against the ex-treasurers at once.

Kalamazoo, June 18.—Marshal Platt, of Vicksburg, received a tip at ten o'clock Wednesday night that there was a gang of counterfeiters coining "green" dollars, and Sheriff Snow and deputies have arrested Jerome W. Tompkins, Don Halliday and Charles Lyons. Tompkins was arrested first and he "squealed" on his partners and the layouts consisting of molds and money, was obtained. They intended to have all evidence of their having made the money destroyed Thursday and expected to circulate the spurious coin at Vicksburg July 5, when a large crowd is expected in that village. Tompkins made the money at his house and Lyons furnished money to buy the material.

Boom in Shingles.

Grand Rapids, June 21. — There is great hustling just now among the shingle manufacturers and dealers. For several years California red cedar shingles have been shipped into the eastern and central territory in such quantities and at such prices that they controlled the market and practically shut out the Michigan product. Now the California manufacturers have formed a combine to regulate the output. The shortage in the red cedars as a result has created a lively demand for Michigan shingles.

The Crops.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—The crop bureau's weekly report as to Michigan says: Warm showery weather greatly improved all crops. Corn and oats have much better color and growth. Winter wheat uneven, but improved and fairly promising. Rye pastures and new grass in fine condition. Beans and potato planting nearly finished while corn and early potatoes are being cultivated. Haying just begun. Old meadows rather poor, but new ones very heavy.

FOR over a year I suffered with complete nervous prostration as the result of La Grippe, writes Mr. Ball of Lake Placid, N. Y. Doctors did all they could but their efforts were without results, and I grew worse. My trouble affected my mind, but kind nature came to my relief by helping me to think, 'If I only had a helping hand to aid nature to build me up slowly and surely.' The result was I refused all other medicine and my wife procured a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine which I took faithfully and am fully restored to health. I write this hoping it may help others, for Dr. Miles' Remedies surely cure.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JUNE 25, 1897.

Adrian is just now organizing a Bicycle Association, the object of which is to promote the building of paths and the maintaining of good roads. Trust their first job will be to make a way north to the Quaker meeting house.

The man who talks to himself is usually well entertained, and Tecumseh citizens never tire talking about the beauties of Tecumseh. The frequent rains this spring have given the foliage the most beautiful deep green color, the lawns about the village are kept in the finest condition and just now, with a wreath of roses and summer flowers, old Tecumseh as a whole is a veritable park.

Nearly every week when the exchanges come to the HERALD, some editor feels badly and howls and kicks up a row because some subscriber tells him how to conduct his paper. How must the farmer feel, at this season of the year, when the country editor tells him when to plant corn, how to cultivate potatoes, how and when to cut the rye from his wheat, whether or not to set a hen in the full-of-the-moon, and hundreds of other things which ten to one the editor knows less about than the farmer would know about nonpariel. The average country editor is a great man but shouldn't know beans about any business but his own.

Some action should be taken by our authorities to stop the hypnotic performances being indulged in by the boys about the city. A Telegram man noticed last night several disgusting exhibitions by young boys who seem to have the power in their make-up to force other boys to do their will. It is becoming positively dangerous, and the effect upon young girls, who seem to be afraid of meeting these young men on the streets, is something alarming. We understand that the marshal has an eye on these boys, and if caught in the act they will hear something drop.—Adrian Telegram.

This man Griffith seemed to stir up Adrian in a wonderful way. The Times printed an average of a column a day about him during his stay in the Maple City and many prominent citizens seemed interested in his performances. As a matter of fact Griffith, at the time of his visit to Tecumseh possessed hypnotic power only in a moderate degree, being unable to control any one, unless by their consent. A large number of his subjects in Tecumseh were country boys who performed as told without the use of hypnotic influence and it has been much of a question whether the boy who slept in the window was under hypnotic influence or drugged. No matter what the condition it is altogether wrong to deprive any man of 48 hours of life, simply as an advertising dodge. In Tecumseh the authorities put a stop to it and compelled the manager to wake the chap up. And now in Adrian they advocate the prosecution of boys for following the example of their parents.

The Criminal Again.

Mr. Andrus' article in the HERALD of April 30 should be of interest to all whether as property owners, philanthropists or scientists. From the earliest dawn of history and all through the succeeding ages up to the present moment we have had crime and the criminal with us. What splendid progress the race has made socially, financially, intellectually since the long-ago days of the "cave man," and still we have the criminal classes and crime can scarcely be on the decrease. Have we been too busy planning for the comfort and convenience of the race socially and financially to devote time to ethical questions or pruning away abnormal growths, or must the tares forever grow beside the wheat?

Long ago criminals were drawn and quartered, scourged, transported, beheaded, hung, often for the most trifling offences. No man was ever reformed by unkindness: that is a truth. Now if we could say with equal truth that all men are reformed by kindness, this vexed question would have been settled ages ago. But alas! instead, it is a matter of record that convicts, who have been treated with marked kindness and liberality, have betrayed their benefactors even to the taking of their benefactors' lives, and have taken great credit to themselves for their superior sharpness. These people with the tiger cat natures, who will fawn and purr under your hand only to indulge in their thirst for evil at the first opportunity, constitute the unsolvable part of this hard problem. There are probably comparitively few of these natures but one such will make us suspicious of all criminals, greatly to the disadvantage of those with whom they are confined some of whom may be guiltless of crime.

In this sea of uncertainty it is a relief to think there is one thing that we can do for the benefit of all criminal classes and that is to give them work or rather, let me say, not to take their work away from them. Those so-called labor leaders, who have been recently defeated in their efforts to abolish convict labor, have not given up their object by any means, but public sentiment should give them their quietus. Abolishing the convict labor system practically means that the greater number of convicts would be idle the greater part of the time. The criminal should not be over-worked; he should have sufficient hours of rest and recreation, also holidays.

To the mind burdened by affliction and sorrow work comes as our best relief. The remorse, the anguish, the savage thoughts of vengence which courses through the brain of an idle man, who can tell? whether the man be a guilty man or laboring under a sense of cruel injustice. Give the convict work and give him work that he loves to do; encourage him to do that work well by paying him just what he earns; make him support himself while in prison and give him the balance when he is set free so that he may have the means to live until he can establish himself in some occupation and the state should keep a watchful eye on him until so established. Do you say this would be impractical, or if practical, too costly an experiment? The expense would be a feather-weight to the present cost of prosecutions, criminal trials, loss of property and life.

A. B. WISNER.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

The millers and wheat buyers are trying hard to impress upon the farmers the importance of cutting the rye out of their wheat. It is very thick in many fields and if allowed to go in the measure will lessen the market price several cents.—Saline Observer.

Congressman Spaulding has appointed our genial townsman, Dr. E. E. Hendershot for a member of the board of pension examiners for this county. The selection was undoubtedly wisely chosen, and the Citizen extends a congratulating hand.—Britton Citizen.

The building of numerous cycle paths in the country is opening up a new industry for farmers and their families who live along the line of these paths. This is the business of furnishing light refreshments for hungry and thirsty wheelmen who pass along the paths.—Morenci Observer.

The Clinton juvenile ball team will please let out its suspenders and try again. It has been defeated in three straights by the Manchester infants. Are the proud colors of Lenawee to trail in the dust at the feet of the cabbage raisers over the border? Awake, you little Lenawee scamps!—Adrian Press.

At the council meeting last evening Ham Kingsley wanted to know why they cut his bills for electric lighting, and the councilmen told him it was because he did not furnish the lights the contract calls for. We learn that some of the councilmen are in favor of purchasing the plant if it can be bought at a reasonable price.—Manchester Enterprise.

The work of constructing a bicycle path between Britton and Ridgeway is being pushed in earnest this week. The ground is being plowed, dragged and rolled thoroughly, and then covered with gravel several inches thick, then rolled again. The distance is about half covered now. About a dozen teams were hauling gravel yesterday, and today, anybody that can handle a shovel is cordially invited to come to the field of labor and use it.—Britton Citizen.

The puissant Adrian Press is twenty-five years old and with one exception, which modesty prevents us mentioning, there isn't a better paper in Michigan. The Press carries a club at its saddle-bow, and with crushing whacks is sure to crack the caput of wrong wherever found. We knew Stearns in Ohio when he was a little ragged bare-footed urchin and wiped his nose on his sleeve. But he braced up at fourteen, went through school like a meteor, and finally entered the journalistic race and ever since has kept ahead of the hounds. Willard is bang up good timber for governor, brethren!—Grass Lake News.

Wm. Witmar, a former resident of this township, who some years ago moved to Dakota, is dead at Broadland, his end coming quite suddenly. On the 9th inst. he went out to do some herding, his little grandson being with him, and he was so overcome by the heat that he fell from his cart. He managed to tell his grandson to notify Mrs. Witmar of what had happened to him, and as the boy had to go more than two miles, several hours elapsed ere Mrs. Witmar arrived where her stricken husband laid on the prairie. He was then unconscious and his death occurred the next day. He was buried on Saturday afternoon and the G. A. R. post of Huron attended the funeral.—Morenci Observer.

The return of Julian Hawthorn, the special commissioner sent out by The Cosmopolitan to investigate the famine and plague in India, confirms the worst fears. British officials in India were not anxious to have Mr. Hawthorne risk his life by a close inspection of the horrors of plague and famine, but he is a typical American, and having undertaken to see the real conditions, was deterred by no dangers. Eight and a half millions of people have already perished, and the reading of Mr. Hawthorn's description will open the eyes of the world to a condition of affairs that is almost inconceivable in this year of jubilee Toledo Blade: The trip of President Magrew and directors of the Detroit & Lima Northern over the Michigan division of the C. J. & M., spoken of in Saturday's Blade, was continued to Lake Michigan over the Chicago & West Michigan Monday. The plans of Cal. Brice for a trans-lake line like the Ann Arbor and F. & P. M., seem to be on a fair way to materialize. The scheme includes the lease of the tracks of the Chicago & West Michigan from Allegan the terminus of the C. J. & M., to Holland on the lake. There is a good harbor at Holland, and it is said the Brice people have already purchased docks at Milwaukee.

Marshall, Mich., June 21.—The Lima Northern Railroad officials passed westward over their new acquisition, the Michigan division of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw, this morning. While here they made a thorough examination of the shops and other property. The principal object of this trip of inspection is that of securing an outlet to Lake Michigan at St. Joseph or other equally important point. It is stated now, on what is said to be good authority, that such arrangement has been made to reach the lake by way of the West Michigan. The company evidently means to push this project at once so as to secure this season's business over this new and important route.

Lansing, Mich., June 22.—The Toledo & Milwaukee Railroad Co., with a capital stock of $1,500,000, filed its articles of association with the secretary of state today. Among the incorporators are the projectors of the Detroit & Lima Northern Railroad, and the company proposes to build 170 miles of new road from a point where the Ann Arbor road crosses the Michigan-Ohio state line, through the counties of Monroe, Lenawee, Hillsdale, Jackson, Barry, Allegan and Ottawa to Holland, on the shore of Lake Michigan.—Free Press.

This means that the C. J. & M. line from Dundee to Allegan will be used and sufficient mileage to complete the line through to the lake. Coal and passenger boats will then connect with Milwaukee, same as the F. & P. M. connects from Luddington to Milwaukee.

The following from the Monday's Detroit Free Press will be of interest to all interested in the new D. & L. N.:

There was a distinguished party of New York and Ohio railroad men at the Cadillac last night. They are interested in the new Detroit & Lima Northern railroad line, which has recently begun to run trains to this city on the Wabash tracks, and in the Ohio Southern railroad property. The following formed the party: Hon. C. N. Haskell, of Ottawa, O.; Hon. J. B. Townsend, of Lima; Col. W. C. Brown, of Fostoria; Judge M. Donnelly, of Napoleon; J. R. McGrue, of Cincinnati; C. H. Roper and W. B. Richie, of Lima; Gen. Burnett, Col. Broadhead, Col. Jones and Mr. Oppenhelm, of New York; Hon. Henry C. Smith and Mayor Hunt, of Adrian, Mich. The party inspected the Ohio Southern property from Wellston to Lima, O., and the Detroit & Lima Northern line from Lima to this city. They were a tired, soot-covered, hungry lot of men when they reached the Cadillac last evening. W. B. Richie, of Lima, was delegated by Hon. C. M. Haskell, of Ottawa, who had charge of the party, to give out the following statement of the results of the tour of inspection: "Most of the members of our party are stockholders in either the Detroit & Lima Northern or the Ohio Southern, or both, and all are interested in the enterprises. All of the members express themselves as having been most favorably impressed with the condition of the properties. We found everything most satisfactory. We are inspecting the properties with a view of improving and developing them, particularly the Detroit & Lima Northern. We are considering various ways in which the line may be developed, but no definite plans have been agreed upon. This will be done later. We are all agreed that both roads will pay and pay well. The Detroit & Lima Northern is a new enterprise of active people, who wish to make it a paying investment, as well as to afford advantageous means of transportation to business men and citizens of Detroit generally. We do not intend to interfere with existing freight rates, but we know that Detroit people have an advantage in patronizing the Detroit & Lima Northern, because they thereby avoid extra switching charges at Toledo."

Pattison-Boyd.

A most enjoyable company gathered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Boyd Wednesday evening to witness the marriage of their niece, Miss Lina Boyd, to Mr. Marvin Pattison, of Ridgeway. Skilled hands had decorated the house with a wealth of roses, making it look most beautiful. At the appointed hour the bride and groom, preceded by Rev. C. M. Brown and little Miss Belle Wood, niece of the groom, entered the room. Little Belle Wood carried a silver tray upon which was the wedding ring. The couple took their stand in the bay window of the back parlor, where Mr. Brown said the words that made them husband and wife, using the beautiful ring ceremony. After the couple received the congratulations of their friends all repaired to the dining room where a most delightful lunch was served. After the guests had taken their departure Mr. and Mrs. Pattison drove to his farm near Ridgeway, where everything had been prepared and awaited their reception. The HERALD, with the hosts of their friends, extends congratulations and wishes them a long life of peace and prosperity.

Ball Game.

Those who were present at the ball game Friday, when our boys met the Imperials of Jackson, must have been satisfied with the work of the home team for individually and collectively they played gilt edge ball from start to finish. In the first inning Hicks made one of the finest pick-ups of a hot grounder ever seen on the diamond. It was the first appearance of Rixom in a game here and he covered third base in a manner which showed conclusively that he was a ball player. Parrish had on his batting clothes as usual, as did Harris which, in connection with his elegant work in the box, added to his already flattering reputation as an all-around player. Although Kennedy had recovered from his injuries sufficiently to cover 1st base in fine style, he was not able to do his usual amount of batting. Had the Imperials played anything like the game their reputation warranted, it would indeed have been an ideal game. Avery, the first man in the box, was easy prey for the home team, 13 runs being made in the three innings he pitched. Hall relieved him in the 4th and held the boys down to 3 singles in 5 innings. The support given him was far superior to that accorded Avery. The Imperials are gentlemanly fellows and, no doubt, can play good ball, and we hope to see them here again when they are at themselves.

GOOD CORN MARKER.

It Has Given Satisfaction to All Who Have Used It.

I made a corn marker like the diagram herewith, about eight years ago. It has done faithful service annually for myself and neighbors ever since, but now I find it worn and disjointed almost beyond repair. In planning to make another, because of its admirable adaptation to its special use, the great satisfaction it gives to those who use it, and the ease with which any farmer handy with tools can make it, I am prompted to send a description and drawing for the benefit of other readers.

The runners are preferably made of hard wood sawed 2 by 10 inches; the outside ones 2½ feet long on top and the two middle ones 4 feet long. For my use they are fixed 3½ feet apart. The transverse strips which secure them may be of 1½ by 2-inch stuff, excepting front piece in center to which tongue is attached, which should be 2 by 4 for greater strength. The cross strips connecting the two longer runners should be two feet apart, to which the tongue should be attached in the center with one-half-inch bolts, and forward of the front strip 15 inches should be bored a hole for attaching doubletree and one 9 feet forward of that for the neck-yoke spud. A deep slot should be cut in rear end of tongue where attached and a shallow one in front, so as to raise front end the right height for neck-yoke on team, so that the runners may stand level, thereby preventing unnatural wear on rear end of runners by being tilted up in front.

The boards marked S are 1 by 6 and firmly nailed in place as shown, giving great strength to implement.

The outer runners or wings are bolted near the central ones with one-half-inch bolts, so as to move up and down freely. After cutting shallow slots near the ends of the transverse connections, fit them in deeper slots cut in runners as seen at M, then nail the lath firmly across them.

Modus Operandi.—Run the rows by stakes. Use but three and cut them 2½ times as long as your rows are wide, i. e., for a 3½-foot marker make the stakes 8 feet 9 inches long and sharpen large end. In commencing a field set stakes right distance from one side for first through (you can guess at this) four or five rods from end set the first, the second in the middle, and the third four or five rods from opposite end, get your team with marker in range with the stakes (which of course were set in line) and the driver standing on marker with one foot near inside of each center runner advances to first stake, stop, and removing stake, bumps the top end against outside of outside runner and raising same forces it into the ground as a guide for the next through; he then remounts and proceeds likewise with the middle stake, but upon reaching the end stake drives over same and stopping at the end throws up both outside wings, turns and drives up until in range with the two stakes now standing, drops the wings and advances until opposite the stake just driven over when he stops and sets the same as before, and thus continues until the field is completed.

By exercising a little care a skillful man can run "air lines" just as far as the stakes are visible.—L. M. Kraner, in Ohio Farmer.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

The board of trade is a buzz saw. Don't monkey with it.

Clover improves the soil and makes the best "hay" in the world.

No soil was ever so rich that it could not profitably utilize the manure made on the farm.

If you can do twice the work with a new machine than you can with your old one, buy a new one.

Patronize your home people. Sell your grain to the local buyer unless you know he is swindling you.

We take little stock in the direct shipment of grain to cities. As a rule it does not pay, in our judgment.

Look before you leap, and if you do you will not get swindled by slick-tongued imposters from the city.

The horse should be put to hard work in the spring gradually. The animal is not in the best condition in early spring.

Try peas for stock. Sow broadcast or drill. They are at the top as green forage for hogs, cows or any other stock.

Sit down and cultivate a bitter enmity to every weed that grows this season. Try to feel toward it as a dog does toward a cat.—Western Plowman.

Irrigation on the Farm.

In laying out a system of ditches for irrigation purposes good care and time should be observed. Ditch lines should be run as much as possible on the high parts of the farm, and the grade should be light, about four feet to the mile being about what ordinary soils will best stand. The ditch should always be larger than is apparently necessary. Both ditch and bank should be built broad, and particular care given to prevent the liability of a little stream of water starting out from the side somewhere and cutting away both ditch and bank and inundating the field.—Dakota Field and Farm.

MUD DIET OF LONDON.

A Scientific Person Publishes Some Astounding Statistics.

There is nothing like dealing with large figures and no doubt the statement by a scientific person that Londoners drink in the course of a year 1,000 tons of mud will appear to many to disclose a terrible and most dangerous state of things, says the London Standard. Nothing could be further from the truth. A thousand tons of mud would mean, perhaps, about half a pound of mud to each person. It will be certainly not too much to assume that each half pound of mud does not contain more than two ounces of solid matter, probably much less. Now it is certain that in the course of three or four windy days in March each person in the air all day will draw in fully an ounce of dust, as much as he will swallow in water during six months. A railway traveler who takes a few hours' journey in dry weather has but to look at the state of his coat and of the carriage seat to form an idea of the amount of dust that must have entered his mouth, the majority of which on touching the palate and tongue is converted into mud and swallowed. Thus, then, it will be seen at once how many infinitesimally small and how absolutely innocuous is the daily portion of this 1,000 tons of mud swallowed by Londoners and how little cause there is for alarm in the array of figures piled up by the scientific investigator, who may frighten weak-minded people but does not in the slightest degree affect the ordinary man or excite in him any feeling whatever save indifference.

HUGE MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.

Harp Made in an Open Lot—Why It Was Constructed.

The most gigantic harp ever constructed, as far as the record goes, was that made by Veritan, the provost of Burkli, near Basel, Switzerland, in 1787, says the St. Louis Republic. That was a long while ago, but the fame of M. Veritan's gigantic harp was such that it is still occasionally mentioned by writers on the rare and the wonderful, just as the sea serpent, bloody rain, live mastodon, etc., are. M. Veritan's colossal musical instrument was 320 feet in length, and, on that account, was constructed in an open lot instead of in a harp factory. It was most simple in construction, consisting of 15 wires strung tightly between two poles. These wires were of different sizes, the largest being one-sixth of an inch in diameter and the smallest one-twelfth of an inch. They were stretched north and south and inclined in such a manner as to form an angle of from 20 to 30 degrees with the horizon. This queer instrument was not intended as an exaggerated toy, but was constructed for the express purpose of foretelling changes in the weather, which were calculated by Prof. Veritan according to the different tones the instrument made when the wind was blowing through it.

WORLD'S BEST THIN ARMOR.

Remarkable Plates at Indian Head That Shot Could Not Crack.

The navy department is securing a constant improvement in the quality of its armor plate, says the Washington Post. A test made at Indian Head the other day demonstrated that it now possesses the best thin armor, at least, in the whole world. A four-inch plate representing some of the side armor of the battle ship Kearsarge, that was well up on the bows, was fired at with a five-inch gun. Not long ago a shot was calculated as able completely to penetrate an armor plate of one and one-half times as thick as its caliber. In other words, a five-inch shot would penetrate a plate seven and one-half inches thick.

This four-inch plate, however, not only kept the shot out, but it smashed it up, and the only mark left on the plate was slight dishing in the center, not more than half an inch deep. This passed the plate. Then another shot was taken at it to ascertain the power required to perforate the plate. This was accomplished only by giving the shot the high velocity of 1,985 feet per second and even then the plate was not cracked.

CALIFORNIA POWER SCHEME.

To Transmit Electricity Over Seventy-Five Miles.

A corporation to be known as the Southern California Power company has been organized with a capital stock of $1,000,000. The principal stockholders are Henry Fisher, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and H. H. Sinclair, president and manager of the Redlands Electric Light & Power company. The purpose of the company is to develop power from the Santa Ana river by taking water at the junction of Bear creek and Santa Ana river and carrying it in a cement ditch and tunnels about four miles, thus securing a fall of 1,000 to 1,100 feet. The power will be transmitted by pole line 75 miles long to Los Angeles. It will be the longest line and the highest voltage (30,000 volts) in use in the world. The line will run through San Bernardino, Pomona, Ontario and Pasadena, and will be able to supply all power needed in these towns. It is proposed to deliver power into Los Angeles by January 1, 1898.

Commemorating Verlaine's Death.

A queer Parisian commemoration is that of the anniversary of Paul Verlaine's death by a mass in the most aristocratic church of the Faubourg St. Germain Sainte Clotide. There is nothing in common in the place and the works of the wretched life of the Bohemian poet.

In Austria the man who loses both his hands in an accident can claim the whole of his life insurance money on the ground that he has lost the means of maintaining himself. Loss of the right hand reduces the claim from 70 to 60 per cent. of the total.

Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, has prepared an anti-trust amendment which he will offer to the tariff bill.

A sick woman should consult the best physician possible.

If all the sick mothers, invalid daughters and diseased sisters in this broad land would write to Dr. Hartman when failing to find relief elsewhere, no pen could describe the benefit that would follow. There are so many women, especially married women, who drag themselves wearily around from year to year without any particular disease, and yet miserable beyond description. They ache and tremble, and throb, growing more nervous, tired and debilitated every day. For this class of sufferers Pe-ru-na is the most perfect remedy in existence. It relieves, it soothes, it quiets, it strengthens, and no tired, over worked woman in the land should be without Pe-ru-na in the house for a single day. Those wishing a complete description of female diseases, their causes and cures, should send their address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free copy of "Facts and Faces," a book showing what Dr. Hartman's free treatment has done for a multitude of invalid women.

Try to keep God's law and you will soon find out that He made it.

No mystery about it. When the Shakers offered some time ago to give away a bottle of their Digestive Cordial to any one who might call at their New York office, there was a great rush and a great many people thought they were crazy. Subsequent events proved it to have been a very clever advertising transaction, for although they gave away thousands of bottles, it was in the end profitable., nearly every one that took a free bottle, came back for more and paid for it with pleasure, saying they had derived better results from its use than any other medicine they had ever used. There is nothing so uniformly successful in the treatment of stomach troubles as the Shaker Digestive Cordial, and what is better than all, it relieves at once.

WELL FED BOILERS

The right boiler feeder saves trouble, time, fuel. The most perfectly automatic, the safest, most economical feeder made is the U.S. AUTOMATIC INJECTOR. More lasting than others. No other injector has an overflow valve which will never leak from wear. No other injector has a drip cock which enables injector to start (even if the check valve leaks); which drains the injector and prevents freezing; which prevents suction pipe from getting hot.

It is easier to operate, feeds hotter water, works with lower and higher steam than any other automatic injector. If your dealer does not keep it make him order it for you, or write to

Beautiful Lady

May or may not be the meaning of the word belladonna. But many women know (and others are daily learning) how excellent a thing for aches and pains in any part of the body is JOHNSON'S BELLADONNA PLASTER. It is fine, smooth, elegant, and full of quick and kindly healing. Try one and I've shall not need to advertise them any more—not for you at least. JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Manufacturing Chemists, New York.

STOP IT NOW!

Stop It Quickly, Just the Same as Did Mr. Charles H. Hoffman, of 182 Ten Eyck Street, Jackson.

If you have a pain in your back, stop it! A lame back, stop it! An aching back, stop it! Do you want to know how? Let us tell you! In the first place, never try to rid yourself of pain without knowing the cause. If pain or ache exist there is reason for it. Find out this reason and get after it. Strike cause a stiff blow with the right weapon, and its allies, pain and ache, will flee like chaff before the wind. To get right down to it, backache is indicative of kidney disorders, a spy placed there by nature; listen to his warnings and take up the weapon, strike before disease is reinforced with allies that can not be routed by hand of man, such as Bright's disease. Let us introduce to you this weapon! Let us prove its superiority to all others! Here is a blow it struck:

Mr. Charles H. Hoffman is a fireman on the M. C. R R., and resides at 182 Ten Eyck Street, Jackson, Mich. He says: "I have suffered for a long time from a kidney and bladder disorder which has at times rendered me incapable of work; have been at the hospital for my complaint and discharged from there as cured, but the old complaint has invariably come back again. Some time ago I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I began taking them, with most gratifying results. Urinary complaints which bothered me greatly are very much improved, and the pain I suffered in my back has entirely left me, my general condition is much improved. I would not like to be without Doan's Kidney Pills, I think others should know what a valuable remedy it is."

For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

FARM & GARDEN.

USEFUL HAY RACK.

One That Is Handy and Has Given Excellent Satisfaction.

At this season of the year we look around to see if we have all the tools necessary to do a successful job of harvesting the hay and grape crops.

Some of us will find ourselves with a broken half dilapidated hay rack almost if not altogether beyond repair. Of course, this calls for a new hayrack, which is almost a total necessity on the farm, and you will never regret it if you build a good one while about it.

I have had one in use for the past four years, which I find very handy and which has given good satisfaction, and I might say it is in as good condition as when made.

In the illustration the sills A A are 2x7 and 15 feet in length. Cross benches B B on sills are 2x4 and 3 feet 5 inches long, or to suit width of your wagon. These are bolted onto sills as in engraving, using 10-inch bolts, putting them in from under side of sill with nut on top of cross bench. These bolts you will find are an inch too short to reach through, but are countersunk, an inch, beneath and a small nail driven through the hole crosswise to prevent loss of bolts should a nut work off, as they are apt to do. The nuts are on top where they can be seen. The corresponding cross-benches C C on wings are 3 feet 6 inches in length and made by 2x4 stuff. These are cut as shown in engraving to slide on over sills and fit under the boards on center of rack. These boards are 1x6 and cut right length to reach as shown in cut of rack.

The side boards or wings are the same length as the sills and 1x6 stuff. These are bolted and nailed to benches C C.

The end ladders can readily be made after the rack is ready to fasten together. Will say that ladders on my rack are 5 feet high and back ladder is arranged with a loose iron pin to boom the load on at any desired height.

The holes of D D inside wings are made for purpose of hinging wings onto main frame of rack, and correspond with holes in cross-benches B B, where a one-half-inch bolt 5 inches in length fastens them together and is itself held in place with a key through it. This makes a combination rack which, by attaching endgates and tight board floor, can be used to haul hogs, tile, pumpkins, etc., and by placing a few boards on side wings a large load of corn in the ear can be handled. As I have always hauled a great deal of feed each winter I detach the sides, place it on a sled and make a very good feed rack of it, upon which to haul feed from the field to the barn.

My rack is all made of red elm and painted with two coats of oil and Venetian red, which makes quite a durable paint for farm tools, and better by adding a few pounds of white lead. A rack of this kind will be found very convenient upon the farm, and I assure you I would not trade it and go back to the old platform rack.—George W. Brown, in Ohio Farmer.

ALL AROUND THE FARM.

There is little danger in cultivating corn too much.

Mulching with straw is a good way to manage late potatoes.

Cultivate the strawberries as soon as they are done fruiting.

If good care is given the horses hard work will not hurt them.

The temperature of the water for the horses is not so important as the purity of it.

Before the weeds and briars get too good a start clean out the fence rows.

During the summer at least the work teams should not be compelled to rest with their harness on at noon.—Farmer's Union.

New Potato Industry.

The opening up of a demand for potatoes peeled, sliced and dried like apples promises to give a fresh impetus to potato cultivation, as decay will be prevented and freight cost lessened. The potatoes are peeled and sliced by machinery, soaked two minutes in strong brine, drained and dried at a temperature of about 194 degrees. Before using the slices are soaked from 12 to 15 hours, and then have all the freshness and flavor of new potatoes.

HE SWORE AT THE MULES.

And the Bishop Forthwith Dismissed the Driver.

A bishop's coachman must not swear, especially when he is on the box and the bishop inside, says the Pall Mall Gazette. There is a certain place in Spain called Corrales and it is in the province and diocese of Zamora, and the bishop of Zamora recently went in his coach and four (but they were mules) to hold a confirmation at Corrales. When the children of the diocese were duly confirmed the mules, being confirmed already in stubbornness and original sin, refused to start and backed the carriage, with the bishop inside it, against the churchyard gate, thereby making a breach in the sanctuary of the churchyard wall. At this point the coachman is reported to have uttered one of those thunderous Spanish curses in which the language of Spain is so infinitely superior to the language of France, and which even a bishop must feel has the dignity of power. Unfortunately for himself the mayor of Corrales, Sig. Tome, had just taken leave of the bishop and was standing by the carriage when the word reached him. He sprang forward and fined the coachman four pesetas on the spot for blasphemy and profanation, for in Spain the mayor carries the court with him wherever he goes. The bishop also got out and dismissed the blasphemer on the spot; then the mayor got on the box and himself drove monsiegneur back to his episcopal residence. The confirmation has ever since been known by a title which may be freely translated the blue blazes confirmation of Corrales.

A BORING ALLIGATOR.

Said to Have Made a Hole in a New Orleans Levee.

The high wind that prevailed did considerable damage to the levees along the Algiers shore, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat of late date. The wind after sunset blew especially hard against that side of the river. The waves were blown over the revetment and in some places did much damage to the earthwork. The guards were very active. They reported promptly all washings, and where the occasion demanded it the damage was promptly repaired.

One of the curiosities of the flood in this section developed at the Morgan railroad wharf early one morning. There had been trouble there for some days with seepage, and a force of men had been employed closing the crevices and cracks through which the water percolated. There was an unusual quantity at one place one night, and the foreman of the gang, going over to the spot the other morning to ascertain the reason, announced the hole had been caused by an alligator, which had burrowed through from under the wharf. His trail could be plainly seen in the mud, and the workmen, in speaking of it to Sergt. Cologne, commanding the Algiers station, said that they judged that he must have been at least four feet long. They think the water covered all the resting places that he might have had under the wharf, and he decided to bore a hole through the bank, and thus mix his time between dry land and water.

HIS NARROW ESCAPE.

Bagley's Boy Was Too Good a Guesser and Hence He's Been Banished.

The Bagleys have a small boy, and they are bringing him up on the theory that the boy is father to the man, and that his most irrelevant questions should be as carefully considered and answered as those of grown-up people, says the Chicago Times-Herald.

At least, that was their theory up to last week, when they had company to dinner, and a story-telling contest afterward in which young Master Bagley—albeit, he is of tender age—was allowed to participate.

Bagley senior opened the conversational bout by remarking in that slightly vague style of his that the narrowest escape he ever had from being instantly killed had happened a year or, two previous. His audience listened eagerly, for he is a good story-teller, but unfortunately he saw the interest which he had aroused reflected in the shining eyes of Bagley, Jr., and he broke off to say:

"You couldn't guess, now, could you, Johnnie, how papa happened to nearly get killed?"

"Yethir, I can," answered Johnnie, promptly.

"Bless the boy. How was it? Tell the company, my son."

"You had a scrap 'ith ma," answered the youngster, and now Bagley's boy doesn't sit up to show off for company.

Curious Dinner at Jericho.

An American traveling in Palestine describes in the Hartford Courant an interesting dinner he ate recently at a hotel in Jericho. "We sat on the porch of the hotel at Jericho," he wrote, "after dinner at which we were served with butter from Norway, cheese from Switzerland, marmalade from London, wine from Jerusalem diluted with water from the well of Elisha, raisins from Ramoth Gilead, oranges from Jericho (in no respect inferior to those from Jaffa or the Indian river, Florida), and almonds from the east of the Jordan, smoking Turkish tobacco, which, like the Turkish empire, is inferior to its reputation, and a cup of coffee from the corner grocery of Jericho."

Cartridge in a Tobacco Pipe.

A fatal accident of an extraordinary character has occurred at Mantes, near Paris. A hotel proprietor, who formed one of a party of sportsmen, had his tobacco loose in a pocket of his hunting jacket, and in the same pocket had placed his cartridges. In some way the powder escaped from a cartridge and got mixed with the tobacco. Unconscious of this, he filled his pipe and lit it. A moment later the pipe exploded and a fragment was blown into his eye with such force that it pierced the brain and killed the poor man.

MANY THINK!

when the Creator said to woman, "In sorrow shalt thou bring forth children," that a curse was pronounced against the human race, but the joy felt by every Mother when she first presses to her heart her babe, proves the contrary.

Danger and suffering lurk in the pathway of the Expectant Mother, and should be avoided, that she may reach the hour when the hope of her heart is to be realized, in full vigor and strength.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

so relaxes the system and assists Nature, that the necessary change takes place without Nausea, Headache, Nervous or Gloomy Forebodings of danger, and the trying hour is robbed of its pain and suffering, as so many happy mothers have experienced. A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

Order by Mail.

No greater aid to the shopping community has ever been devised than the Mail Order System. Ladies living at a distance and occupied with the various duties of life cannot always find time to visit the city to purchase the various articles they may desire. To them the system is invaluable. They may be a thousand miles away, but still can purchase their goods as easily and satisfactorily as if they were to visit our store in person. A postal card directed to us will bring you a price list of goods or any samples you may desire to see. You can then sit quietly at home and make your selections without the bother of going to market, and thus escape all the crowding and jostling that is incidental to the large dry goods establishments. Our Mail Order Department is well equipped. Two most experienced salespeople attend to your wants. They are alive to the ever-changing fashions; their experience in the business teaches them which are the most serviceable and stylish goods. The customer at a distance has sometimes a decided advantage over those who purchase in person. When we receive an order it is placed in the hands of a salesman who knows all about the goods to be selected. He will not make any mistake, and he selects articles that he knows will give the best satisfaction; whereas there are cases when you would not make such judicious purchases yourself.

YOU WANT THE BEST FOR THE PRICE.

This we Guarantee. Send to us for anything in Dry Goods, Carpets, Draperies, Cloaks, Millinery, Parasols, Boys' Clothing, Shoes (Ladies' and Children's), Books, Corsets, or Small Wares, and we will give you our best service, guaranteeing everything to be satisfactory or money refunded.

FAVORABLE TO HEALTH.

Athletic Sports Indulged In to a Reasonable Extent.

Many of the athletic sports, if pursued for sport or as a recreation, are valuable remedial helps and aid toward physical improvement, says the North American Review. Unfortunately, the spirit of emulation in athletics, which in some communities has grown into intense rivalry, is likely to lead to excesses in training and practice for contests, which unless checked and brought down to a rational basis may do more harm than good. Many young men seem to think that because the practice of athletics is favorable to health the more they can get of this practice the better. This is an erroneous impression, for it is as possible to overwork in athletics as it is in business and a great many young people do themselves injury by their excessive zeal in the practice of competitive exercise.

In this line of physical activity, as in any other, there is a limit to human capability and it is possible to develop the muscular and nervous systems to the detriment of the heart and lungs or of the digestive system. But the conditions under which athletics are usually practiced are so favorable to the maintenance of health and vigor that few persons who were sound at the time of commencing their athletic efforts have injured themselves by the practice of these vigorous exercises. It is true that a certain number of young men who were distinguished for their supremacy in certain athletic events have died young. But the number of young men who are now practicing athletic exercises in this country and appearing in public contests is very large, as many as 600 or 700 entries being recorded in some of the great city meetings.

ESSAY OF AN INDIAN BOY.

Original Ideas Advanced by an Intelligent Savage of Tender Years.

There is nothing more original than the early composition of an Indian boy. The following example is still preserved as an instance in which its savage author epitomized in unconscious parable and with excellent humor the relations of the red man and his white brother, says the New York Mail and Express. It is entitled: "Story of Good Bird and Bad Cat." The essay follows:

"One day, bright day, a little bird happy and stood on a log and sang all day long. That bird doesn't know anything about cat. She thinks nobody is near to her. But behind the near log old sly cat is watching. She wait to eat for supper, and she thinks about stealing all the time. The old cat came very slowly, and by and by she go after the little bird, but she does not see bird and sang loud again. She sang loud like this: 'I am always try to do what is right; wen I ever die I go to Heaven.' That bird said these all words, and I shall not forget the little bird what it said, and these all words it said and after two or three minutes go died; the cat jumped and catch and kill, eat all up except little things from bird, wings, legs or skin, and that bird is glad die because she is very good bird. The little bird has last time sang and very happy was the little bird after that. I think the old cat have good dinner and happy just the same as the bird was at first time."

CHAIN OF HUMAN BONES.

e in Libby Prison by a Member of a New York Regiment.

[illegible] O. Thornton, a farmer living a [illegible]les out of Bolivar, Mass., has [illegible]atch chain. It is made of hu[illegible]s. The chain consists of eight [illegible] each a trifle more than an inch [illegible]g, connected with plated rings. The chain is about ten inches long and has been highly polished by years of wear and glistens like ivory, says the Fall River News.

Thornton secured the chain at Petersburg, Va., in 1864. He was a member of company E, Fiftieth New York engineers. A member of the Twenty-first New York infantry made two chains while confined in Libby prison, and on his release met Thornton and sold him one chain for $5o in greenbacks. Thornton has forgotten the maker's name. The bones were taken from an [illegible]d a[illegible]s [illegible]ng it required 18 months' time to carve out the chains. For many years after he came home from the war Thornton wore the chain every day, but for several years he has worn it only on Memorial day and at grand army reunions. Some of his neighbors laughed at the idea of the bones being taken from human bodies, and he sent the chain to a surgeon, who examined it and pronounced it to be of human bones.

No Lavatory for Leedy.

It is a statehouse story at Topeka that Gov. Leedy, who, when he came into office last January, declared that he would not use the porcelain bathtub which he inherited from his republican predecessor, now refuses to use the porcelain lavatory. It is equipped with a supply appliance, which the governor has not been able to "get the hang of," and one day when he was unable to shut it off the water overflowed and deluged the floor. Gov. Leed's private secretary rescued his chief, and as the latter emerged from the bathroom drying his hands and face, he decided that a requisition be made for a tin wash bowl. "I am used to a tin bowl," he said. "It will not run over and drown me every time I want to wash my face." The bowl was bought, and to-day it adorns a soap box in the bathroom.

A Dictionary Index.

A man from Canada called at a drug and book store in Richford, Vt., the other day and inquired if the dealer had any indexes for Webster's unabridged dictionary. Scheme to Connect Manistique and Munising by Rail and Car Ferry.

Menominee, June 22.—From Manistique to within six miles of the town of Munising on Lake Superior, a distance of 35 miles, is a railroad which was built by the Chicago Lumber company. This road has been purchased by the Ann Arbor Railroad company, which will put in a car ferry slip at Manistique. The same company will complete the line to Munising, and also build an air line to Negaunee, on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and the Chicago & Northwestern roads from a point ten miles south of Munising, the whole line to be 63 miles long. Work will begin at once. Boats will run all winter to Manistique instead of to Gladstone, and a special boat will be built to navigate Green bay in the winter, and will be run here continuously. The object of the extension is to secure the flour trade of the west via the South Shore and the Northern Pacific, and also to open up a rich timber country between Manistique and the Marquette iron range. The new road may also touch the city of Marquette. This is the most important railroad deal of many years, and means much for the advancement of the upper peninsula's industrial interests.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in Senate and House.

The Tariff Bill Occupies the Entire Time in the Senate—No Business Done in the House—Other News.

Washington, June 24.—After a contest lasting throughout the day the senate yesterday completed the paragraphs of the wool schedule relating to raw wool and advanced into the features relating to manufactured woolen goods. The time was devoted largely to discussion of the effect of tariff rates in the price of wool, and the speeches were on technical lines in the main. Senator Morgan introduced a bill for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands as a territory of the United States in accordance with the terms of the recently negotiated treaty.

Washington, June 25.—A stubborn contest over the duties on manufactured woolen goods occupied the attention of the senate yesterday. It was a day of constant roll calls and crossfire debate. Many amendments were proposed to reduce rates, but these were rejected by decisive majorities. Less than five pages were disposed of during the day.

Washington, June 26.—The senate yesterday completed the wool schedule, the silk schedule and the tobacco schedule of the tariff bil, and, with this accomplished, all the schedules of the bill and the free list had been gone over once. There now remains only to go through the bill a second time, passing on the items passed over. Senator Hale introduced a resolution restricting the privileges of ex-senators on the floor of the senate to those not interested in legislation and claims, and it was referred to the committee on rules.

Washington, June 28. — The senate started on Saturday on its second consideration of the tariff bill, the purpose being to dispose of all items previously passed over. The paragraphs discussed were in the chemical and earthenware schedules, and failed to elicit more than technical debate. Senator Pettigrew (S. D.) was stricken with paralysis of his vocal chords while making a vehemeat speech. He was taken to his hotel, and has partially recovered his speech.

Washington, June 29.—The senate made good progress on the tariff bill yesterday, disposing of the paragraphs relating to hides, gloves, live animals, iron ore and stained glass windows. A resolution authorizing the president to invite foreign governments to participate in the trans-Mississippi exposition at Omaha was agreed to.

Washington, June 30.—In the senate yesterday the lead ore and other paragraphs of the tariff bill were disposed of, and the session wound up with a half hour colloquy between Senators Tillman (S. C.) and Chandler (N. H.) upon an amendment proposed by the former to the tariff bill providing a $100 per head tax on immigrants, and a restriction against all those not coming to the United States to become citizens. The proposition was defeated.

The House.

Washington, June 26.—In the house yesterday Mr. Foss, of Illinois, on behalf of his delegation, announced the death of his colleague, Mr. Cooke, and a committee was appointed to attend the funeral in Chicago. Adjourned to Monday.

Washington, June 29.—In the house yesterday Mr. Crumpacker (Ind.) introduced a resolution for a constitutional amendment providing that hereafter no contiguous territory shall be annexed to the United States, except in pursuance of a treaty negotiated by the president, concurred in by two-thirds of each house of congress and ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. Adjourned to July 1.

House Committees.

Washington, June 26.—Speaker Reed will name his committees the day the present session closes. The chairmen of the most important are given below:

Chairmen selected: Accounts, P. B. Odell, New York; agriculture, J. W. Wadsworth, New York; appropriations, J. G. Cannon, Illinois; banking and currency, J. H. Walker, Massachusetss; claims, C. N. FARMERS MAKE HAY.

Weather Generally Favorable to Cultivation and Growth of Crops.

Chicago, June 30.—The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country, and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same, were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Michigan—Splendid weather for work and fair for growth. Corn and oats have good color, are much improved but backward. Wheat continues promising, and is just beginning to turn. Beans made good stand. Corn and early potatoes about all cultivated. Clover haying well started, and is heavy crop, but cures slowly. Scarcely any damage from Monday's frost.

Indiana—Weather favorable but cool. The wheat, rye and barley harvest and haying have begun. The hay crop is heavy. Tobacco grows nicely. The pea crop is immense.

Illinois—Very heavy local showers, but week generally favorable to crops; corn making rapid growth and being laid by in early fields. Oats continue short but improving. Winter wheat and rye cutting continues in south half, wheat giving fine berry and full heads although few fields left; clover cutting general, but delayed by rains, crop fair; gardens, potatoes, meadows and pastures doing well; berries very plentiful.

Iowa—Temperature and sunshine below normal, with heavy local showers in central and southern districts, retarding haying and corn cultivation. Corn making fair growth, but condition and stand unusually variable. Wheat and barley are most promising cereals, with material increase in acreage.

Wisconsin—Week very favorable to growing crops, corn especially. Oats and barley heading well. Spring wheat and rye good. Clover cutting begun, crop light.

The sections were Nos. 4 and 5 of train No. 3, and left the Wells street depot at 11 and 11:15 o'clock, respectively. Section 4 stopped at the West Chicago water tank and was struck by section No. 5, following it closely and making rapid time. Each section consisted of a baggage car, day coach and seven sleepers. Four hundred passengers were carried in each section. Most of them were asleep when the collision came. Charles Courtney, the engineer of No. 5, who lives at Belvidere, was caught in the wreck and seriously injured. Charles Woodworth, conductor of No. 4, and A. Fish, conductor of No. 5, escaped without serious injury, although jarred and bruised by the shock.

AN OCEAN HORROR.

Wreck of Steamer Aden Off the Coast of Africa.

Of Those on Board the Drowned and Missing Number 87—The Latter Includes a Boat Load Unheard of Since Leaving Wreck.

Aden, June 30.—The Indian government steamer Mayo, sent out in search of the missing steamer Aden, from Yokohama on April 28, via Colombo and Aden, for London, which was last heard of when leaving Colombo on June 1 for this port, has returned here and reports that the Aden was totally lost off the island of Socotra, at the eastern extremity of Africa, on the morning of June 9.

The Aden carried 24 passengers from China and Japan.

The captain of the wrecked steamer, some of her officers and crew and seven white passengers were swept overboard and drowned very soon after she ran ashore. Eight lady passengers, nine children, two officers and a few of the Aden's crew succeeded in getting away from the wreck in a boat, but they have not been heard of since, and little hope, owing to the bad weather which has since prevailed, is entertained of their safety.

The Mayo saved nine of the Aden's passengers and three of the whites an 83 natives of the steamer's crew. All of these persons were rescued just as the Aden was breaking up. The survivors of the wrecked steamer were brought to this port by the Mayo and are being cared for by the local authorities.

In all, the drowned and missing include 25 passengers, 20 European officers and 33 natives of the Aden's crew.

London, June 30.—A special dispatch from Aden, Arabia, gives details of the loss of the steamer Aden, as follows:

ABOUT KAFFIR CORN.

Experience Fails to Sustain Many of the Claims Made for It.

Some enthusiasts declare that Kaffir corn is destined to supersede both wheat and Indian corn in Kansas, but the Kansas authorities and the department of agriculture do not sustain this claim.

Kaffir corn, an Egyptian millet, is a sorghum, and as a crop possesses these advantages: The yield is larger by from 20 to 50 per cent. than Indian corn; it will grow and yield a crop—not a large one—on very poor soil; it is injured much less than Indian corn by drought, and even when withered by the hot, dry winds of the prairies, it will recover under moisture.

It forms an excellent food for cattle and pigs. All the experiments of which many have been made by scientific agriculturists, show that it is inferior in fattening power to either wheat or corn. Nevertheless, as a surer and larger crop than corn, it promises most important results for regions like Kansas and Nebraska, where scorching winds frequently wither the corn and destroy the crop.

As food for man, it is nourishing, wholesome and palatable. But the latest conclusions of the national department of agriculture are that its use will probably be somewhat like that of buckwheat—it will form an occasional rather than a staple article of diet. In nourishing power it stands at 27, where bolted cornmeal stands at 37, wheat flour at 45 and oatmeal at 62.

Heretofore it has been difficult to grind this corn fine enough for use as human food. It is said that this difficulty has been overcome lately. If so, there will soon be an opportunity to test its food value on an extensive scale. —Farmers' Voice.

HORTICULTURE.

INSECT-EATING BIRDS.

Some Facts Which Farmers Should Always Bear in Mind.

Probably few farmers have any idea of the assistance which they receive from friends who ask no reward, except now and then a little fruit, or a few seeds of grain. A recent number of the National Stockman gives a mass of testimony as to the noble work done by the birds in the destruction of grasshoppers and other insects. The experiments were made by Prof. Aughey, of the University of Nebrask. Tabulated results show conclusively that birds of all kinds were doing their best to reduce the number of locusts. The birds of the thrush family were examined first. The stomachs of six robins contained the remains of 265 locusts; three wood thrushes had 68 locusts; one hermit thrush contained 19 locusts; two olive backed thrushes had gathered in 55 locusts; two Wilson's thrushes absorbed 73 of the pests, while five cat birds had "called" 152 of the insects. Three blue birds yielded 677 of the "hoppers," and one little ruby crowned kinglet showed up 29 as the result of its industry. But four tufted titmice contained no less than 250 specimens, and nine long-tailed chickadees had secured by hard work 481 of these enemies of agriculture. Four slender-billed nuthatches had the remains of 93 locusts. But the little warblers also insisted in "taking a hand" in the general massacre, for seven golden warblers turned in 77 locusts and 176 other insects. Five black-throated green warblers had secured 116 of the hoppers and 104 other insects. Four black poll warblers gathered 123 locusts and 47 other insects. Eight prairie warblers showed the remains of 116 locusts and a still larger number of other insects. Seven barn swallows called in 139 locusts; eight cave swallows exhibited 326 of the pests; five bank swallows contained 104, and ten purple martins had sacrificed 265 of these insects. Many of these birds were seen to feed the inmates of their nests with young locusts.

But the roll call does not stop here, even if our space should; and we would gladly give the complete record—for the roll of honor includes the yellow-headed blackbird, the vireas, shrikes, the bobolinks, Baltimore orioles, Brewer's blackbirds, purple grackle and others which ate locusts almost without limit. Not only these birds did their full duty, but even the ravens, the crows, the magpies and the bluejays followed up the good work and consumed vast numbers of the pests. The flycatchers and pewees were not far behind, while 345 "hoppers" were taken from the stomachs of seven night hawks. The humming birds are generally regarded as simply ornamental, but Prof. Aughey states that his cat caught a specimen of the ruby-throated humming bird, whose stomach contained the bodies of four locusts. Ten specimens of the yellow-billed cuckoos yielded 416 locusts and 152 other insects. But the woodpeckers were evidently bent on business, and did not confine themselves to a single article of diet, for 20 woodpeckers contained 853 locusts and 725 insects of various sorts. Even the birds of prey seemed to have joined in the good work, for 18 owls examined displayed the remains of almost 600 locusts and other insects. Not to be outdone by the owls, the two hawks which were taken gave up 378 locusts. In the same line followed the wild turkeys, grouse, prairie hens and quail. Emulating the above good examples a large variety of shore birds did almost equally good work, considering that their natural food is largely found in the water.

In view of the above, can any farmer have a shadow of doubt as to the inestimable value of the birds as aids in protecting his crops? If a few birds furnished such results for a single day's work, what would be the result were a calculation to be made of the work of all the birds for an entire season? All sorts of birds were examined, from the pelican, with its mammoth form, to the gem-like humming bird, and all proved to be the friends of the farmer in protecting his crops from the ruthless invader. How foolish is he who allows these his allies to be hunted as if they were robbers and enemies, and especially where he allows them to be slaughtered for no good purpose. Would space permit we could refer to hundreds of cases, in many of which the evidence is even stronger than any given above, and all of such unquestioned truthfulness as to leave no doubt as to the facts in the matter. A word to the wise is sufficient.

HANDY ARRANGEMENT.

Wagon Box for Farmers Who Sell Their Own Produce.

The accompanying illustration shows a box for a farm wagon excellently adapted to the requirements of those who practice selling their farm products from house to house in village or city. There are four large compartments, easily accessible, one in front, whose cover forms the seat of the driver; one on each side, and one in the rear. Different sorts of bulky articles can be carried in these, while in hot weather one compartment can be fitted to contain ice, for the well being of the butter and dressed poultry that is being marketed. In fact, there are many products of the farm that are benefited by going to market iced in the hottest of summer weather, such as early vegetables, strawberries, cream, etc. The drawers at the bottom of the box will be found convenient for eggs in two or three tiers of pasteboard egg fillers, or in the patent wire fillers, while the railed space on top will hold any articles that may be carried in bags or boxes.

Many farmers have a strong prejudice against "peddling" their produce, as they call the house-to-house sale of it. This is an unfortunate prejudice, for selling directly to the consumer is one of the most profitable methods of disposing of farm crops. Nor need it be at all disagreeable, if rightly managed. Have nothing but the best upon your cart; have regular routes and regular customers, and they will watch for your coming and make your trading agreeable. Selling at first hand means a steady cash income, and prices much higher than would be received from dealers. Then, too, it often means the sale of produce when the dealers are overstocked, and not willing to purchase at any price.

A valuable point to be borne in mind by those who thus sell their farm wares is not only to have choice articles for sale, but to carry them to the customers in attractive shape. Let the wagon look neat, being well painted and having the name of the farm painted in bright letters upon the sides. Then let the driver be neatly dressed, pleasant and gentlemanly in his address, and the work will prosper. These little matters are of far more importance in the success ful selling of farm products than many would believe. Attractive appearance from beginning to end sells goods. Don't try to build up such a trade by using an old ramshackle wagon, with the articles for sale dumped indiscriminately on the bottom; such a plan doesn't attract purchasers.—N. Y. Tribune.

WILL FIGHT LOCUSTS.

Nebraska Entomologist's Queer Mission to South America.

Millions of bushels of corn are annually exported from Buenos Ayres, but Argentine has so suffered from a plague of locusts that the entire crop has been destroyed, and not a shipload has been shipped this season. The chamber of commerce has engaged Prof. Lawrence Bruner, entomologist for the agricultural experimental station of the University of Nebraska, to investigate the locust migration. He is now at Buenos Ayres, and if he succeeds in exterminating locusts and grasshoppers will receive a handsome bonus. He believes that methods employed in Nebraska will be efficacious in South America. During the plague in Nebraska he developed some wonderful results. Farmers who desired aid sent in some healthy insects provided with sufficient food to last to their journey's end. In return they received "sick" bugs in packages, with directions for using. The professor began by securing some dead insects, killed by the fungus sporotrichum globuliferum. They were placed in cages with healthy grasshoppers, kept in a high temperature, and the healthy insects were soon inoculated. The disease is a dry rot, which causes the bodies of the locusts to decay. The spread is rapid, and result fatal. It somewhat resemble leprosy in the human family. The disease begins to show from the second to the fourth day after the infection has been placed in the field. The bugs leave their food plant and keep moving rapidly. The next day they are sluggish and seek protection from the sun. From the sixth to the eighth day the first dead bugs are found wrapped in a fungus resembling cotton. The insects do not have sense enough to seek a field not infected, but remain in the locality where they are inoculated. — Chicago Inter Ocean.

Proper Handling of Grapes.

Grapes, like other fruits, need to be carefully handled to bring the best prices. The vines need to be gone over frequently during the ripening season, gathering only those with full color, because grapes do not, like other fruits, color after being gathered. The bunches should be cut off with a pair of scissors, and so handled as not to disturb the bloom. Ordinary varieties may be at once packed from the vines into the basket that is intended for sale. Choice varieties should be gathered into shallow trays or baskets, in which they should stand a day or two on shelves in the fruit house, and then repacked. By this treatment the stems will wilt, and the bunches will then keep without molding and pack more closely than when green.

The treatment will be conducted by correspondence. The doctor will prescribe all medicines, applications, hygenic and dietary regulations necessary to complete a cure. The medicines prescribed can be obtained at all drug stores. This offer will hold good only during the summer months. Any woman can become a regular patient by sending a written statement of her age, condition of life, history and symptoms of derangements. All corespondence will be held strictly confidential. No testimonials of cures will be given to the public except by the express wish of the patient. The principal remedy he relies upon in such cases is Pe-ru-na which every woman should have who has any affection of this kind. Dear Sirs:—I have been bothered for 15 years with constipation and I have tried many preparations during that time. Dont credit yourself with brains because you are homely.

"Going into decline." How often do we hear this expression. What does it mean? It means that people are losing flesh, growing thin, wasting. The way to correct this condition is to improve the digestion. The condition arises from an inability to eat and digest food. In fact food does more harm than good because it ferments and putrefies in the stomach, developing poisonous substances which when absorbed cause various disorders. What is required is that the stomach be made to perform its duties. The Shaker Digestive Cordial is a food already digested and a digester of foods as well. It will make the stomach healthy. Get a book from the druggist and read about it.

MRS. KATE ETTER wrote from Neosho, Mo., in March last. "Two years ago I was severely troubled with my stomach and kidneys, and a great affliction so unnerved me that my condition became alarming. The telegraph brought a prominent physician in a consultation which resulted in no benefit. I went to Wyoming for change of climate without benefit, was brought back to Atchison where nurses worked with me night and day to keep me alive to reach my friends here. My heart became so bad that my friends gave up all hope. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine alternately and was restored to health. It is now months since and I am perfectly well."

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 2, 1897.

Letter from Canada.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can., June 14, '97.
EDITOR HERALD:

I am now settled in this parish for two or three months, to take the work while the rector, Rev. H. A. Gray, goes to England in capacity of chaplain to Bishop Pinkham who attends the Lambeth conference. The work will be very pleasant as the congregation is made up of intelligent people.

The town and country are beautifully situated on the banks of the Saskatchewan river. South Edmonton is a very new place, built up within the last four years, since the terminus of the C. P. R. was put there. Edmonton, on the north side where I am, is a very old place, being one of the sites of the old Hudson Bay Company's forts. The fort is still here but changed of course. This spot has been inhabited by white men for over one hundred years. The country round about is fertile and woody, though the trees are small, a more agreeable spot to live in than on the broad prairies I have passed through.

Some gold mining is done here on the Placer mining system. Heretofore the washing has been done by hand, but now several Americans and some Englishmen are building screens to do the work by machinery. The scheme is watched with interest. So far an average of $50,000 worth of gold has been taken out of the river yearly.

The government keeps large forces of mounted police in these northwest territories. In the large towns from 40 to 100 are stationed, and, then at every small station on the line, no matter how small, two or four or six are seen. About 750 men, besides officers, are kept in the territories all the time. The object in having so many small detachments scattered over the country is to secure quick reports at head quarters when any uprising occurs. In a very short time 100 men can be sent to the scene of trouble.

I have been asked to preach to the Masons on the 27th, and, of course, I did not refuse.

Yours very truly,
W. R. BLACHFORD.

Mrs. Jane Lowry.

Died, of old age, at her home 1 1-2 miles northeast of Tecumseh, on Monday, June 28, Mrs. Jane Lowry, widow of James Lowry, aged 98 years. Mrs. Lowry came to Tecumseh in 1855 and has lived on the same farm all these years, surviving her husband just eleven years to a day. Three sons, William, Thomas and Robert survive her. Funeral conducted by Rev. C. M. Brown Wednesday afternoon.

BALL GAME.

Pitchers' Battle—Exciting Game.

A large crowd was present at the driving park Saturday afternoon to see the most closely contested game of the season. More than ordinary interest was taken in the game from the fact that the teams were separated by a distance of only five miles, neither team having lost a game this season, being of about equal strength, and further both being candidates for the championship of Lenawee county. In a base ball sense there has always been a pleasant rivalry between Clinton and Tecumseh. It proved to be, as generally expected, a pitchers' battle and as such honors were about even, Uphaus pitched a very steady game while Harris as usual did not warm up to his work until after the first inning, Clinton making 2 of her 6 hits and one man reaching first on balls in that inning. After that he pitched remarkable ball. But few phenomenal plays were made as but little oppotunity was given. Uphaus' one-handed catch of Harris' pop fly and Cotton's catch of Lee's hot liner called forth liberal applause as did Lee's exhibition of acrobatic feats.

The meeting of bicycle riders at Military square last evening was well attended by those who desired to ride, but few came back to perfect an organization. It is understood a meeting will be held next Thursday evening at the armory at 8 o'clock.

For many years scientists have endeavored to discover a process for the successful photography of natural colors, and it is really too bad that thus far all the experiments have been failures. A picture that would truthfully portray the different colors of P. W. A. Fitzsimmon's "bike" suit, red hat and all, would be a curiosity worth saving.

Saturday, while some of the lads were at Bill's track, training for the coming boys bicycle meet, Floyd Elliott while turning the track at full speed came in contact with some wire and was thrown to the ground, striking on his shoulder. When he gathered himself up, one shoulder was found to be dislocated, medical attendance was secured, the shoulder replaced and he is doing nicely.

The Blue Ribbon races, at Detroit, beginning July 13th, are exciting greater interest as the time approaches. The M & M and Chamber of Commerce stakes—24 entries in each—will be hotly contested. Among the many flyers to be there are the five horses that last year started out as green ones, and before the close of the season had records better than 2-10, one trotter and four pacers; Page 2.09 3-4, Brightlight 2.08 1-4, Heir at Law 2.07 1-2, Miss Jennings 2.08 1-4, and Planet 2.09 1-2. In the M & M stake there will be Anne Allerton by Allerton, Red Star by Red Wilkes, Starmont by Earlmont, Vida by Pilot Medium, Hazel McKinney by McKinney, and others equally as good. With the track better than ever before, sensational records are looked for in all events and each day has its special features.

MICHIGAN CLASS DAY.

Exercises Are Held Under the Historic Tappan Oak.

Ann Arbor, June 30.—The students of the literary department of the University of Michigan held possession of the campus and the town all day. The class-day exercises Tuesday morning were held, according to custom, under the "Tappan oak." They began with the address of President Shirley Wheeler Smith, of Hastings. The oration was by Bayard Hoyt Ames, of Denver. Mr. Ames has achieved considerable prominence by winning the contest of the Northern Oratorical league for Michigan against Chicago, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Illinois and Oberlin. He chose for his subject "The College Man in Politics," and urged practical action by entering the primaries and taking up details of politics, instead of discussing the theories. Following this came the class poem, on "Temptation," by Arthur Maurice Smith, of Ionia. Then came the prophecy, by Miss Inez Christabel Perrin, of Detroit. The exercises closed with the presentation of the class memorial to the university by Irving Charles Woodward, of Iron Mountain. The class leaves a scholarship fund behind as its memorial.

Martin L. Dooge, who has held the position of dean of the literary department in the University of Michigan for almost a dozen years, resigned. The regents appointed Prof. Richard Hudson, of the chair of history, to succeed him. Prof. Dooge will continue in the chair of Greek language and literature, and only gives up the position of dean to lighten his work. The regents also made a change in the medical faculty by abolishing the assistant professorship of anatomy and appointing Dr. Yutsey as demonstrator of anatomy.

HORSE CLIMBS INTO A LOFT.

An Adrian Animal Has to Be Chloroformed to Get Down Again.

Adrian, June 28.—Mrs. Fannie P. Hill, of Merrick street, is the proud owner of a handsome bay horse. Mrs. Hill generally feeds the animal herself. When she went to the stable Sunday morning the horse was gone. A search of the barn revealed the presence of the equine in the loft. During the night the horse was seized with the pangs of hunger, and, breaking his halter, ascended a flight of ordinary narrow barn stairs to the hay loft, where he feasted to his heart's content. Mrs. Hill could not get the steed downstairs. So she sent for a veterinary. He administered a big dose of chloroform and the beast was then given a ride to the ground floor on a plank.

BANKER CONVICTED.

Jury at Ludington Finds Chester W. Comstock Guilty.

Ludington, June 26. — A verdict of guilty was reached here Friday night in the Chester W. Comstock embezzlement case which was transferred from Big Rapids here. This case is the first of three against the manager and president of the defunct Mecosta County savings bank. Comstock was accused of violating the state banking law by borrowing himself a large amount of the funds belonging to the bank; also loaning money indiscriminately to the directors and stockholders. He is a well-known lumber man.

Mount Clemens, June 25. — The case of Minnie Heidt, who shot and killed her father near this city three weeks ago, came to a dramatic finish in the circuit court Thursday, when the prosecuting attorney arose and stated upon conclusion of the testimony that in his judgment the girl was clearly irresponsible and should be discharged from custody. The judge thereupon directed a verdict of acquittal, and the large audience broke into vigorous applause.

ROBBED A SAFE.

Students at Michigan Agricultural College Confess a Crime.

Lansing, Mich., June 29.—Post Office Inspector Larimour and Deputy United States Marshal Abels have been successful in unraveling the mystery surrounding the blowing open of the vault at the Michigan agricultural college April 6, when $2,300 in cash was stolen. The crime has been fixed on two students, members of prominent families. The government officials were brought into the case for the reason that Secretary Butterfield, in whose office the vault was located, was postmaster at the college, and a part of the plunder was post office money. The young men arrested are Clinton D. Butterfield, son of the college secretary, and G. Devere Miller, son of Dr. Carroll E. Miller, of Cadillac. Upon being arrested Miller promptly weakened and made a full confession. Butterfield admitted the truth of Miller's story.

It appears from the confession that the scheme was concocted previous to the spring vacation, and when returning from home after vacation Miller stopped at Grand Rapids and purchased dynamite and a fuse. Young Butterfield knew the combination to the vault, and, being familiar with his father's business, knew also that large sums of money were paid in by students at the commencement of the spring term. He waited until the largest sum in years was in the vault and then the job was done. Butterfield unlocked the vault and aided in taking the money. After he had departed to his room with the cash Miller placed the dynamite and lighted the fuse, which was so long that both boys had time to get to bed before the explosion took place.

Butterfield is but 19 and Miller 20 years of age, and neither had ever before been guilty of any serious wrongdoing. The young men have been held in bonds of $2,500 to the United States court for trial. Butterfield gave up $700 which he had secreted in a vacant room in the college dormitory and Miller handed the officers $860 which he had buried in the cellar of his home in Cadillac. The deficit will be made good by the boys' fathers.

STATE TROOPS.

Will Hold an Encampment at Port Huron July 4 and 5.

Port Huron, June 29.—The annual encampment of the state troops at Island Lake in August will be preceded by an encampment of about 13 companies in this city July 4 and 5. Company F members in this city are making extensive preparations for the gathering of the boys in blue, and incidental to the encampment there will be a big military parade on Monday, July 5. Companies will be here from Saginaw, Flint, Bay City, Alpena, Cheboygan, Owosso, of the Third regiment, and the Detroit light infantry, of the Fourth regiment. Also the Naval Reserves, of Detroit and Saginaw, and the Woodmen light infantry of this city. The camp will probably be named after this city's mayor, Maj. Boynton, and will be of great benefit to the boys in the way of preparation for the regular encampment of the brigade.

Big Lumber Shipment.

Muskegon, June 27.—The propeller Mary A. McGregor finished unloading 650,000 feet of lumber at the Chicago & West Michigan dock Friday, the first shipment of 7,000,000 feet to be brought from Duluth to this city and from here shipped to Rowson Bros. & Clark, of Grand Rapids. The shipment made 40 car loads and it was sent to the Grand Rapids firm in lots of ten cars. It will require several months to bring all of the lumber down and its transfer here will give regular employment to a large number of men. The shipment is the most important one here in years.

Killed by a Random Shot.

South Haven, Mich., June 29.—Samuel Ketchum, of Kalamazoo, was shot Sunday night by his nephew, Bertie Haynes. The bullet struck him in the shoulder, cutting an artery, and before help could be secured he bled to death. He was with some friends in a summer cottage, and some one was throwing water into the house. Haynes was on guard with a gun and shot without meaning to hit anyone. He was exonerated.

Saginaw, June 25.—A shocking accident occurred at Zilwaukee Thursday afternoon. The child died in a few minutes from loss of blood.

R. circles; was once exalted ruler and treasurer of the Elks.

To Be Paid in Full.

Edwardsburg, June 29.—The depositors of the defunct Citizens' bank, of this place, will be paid the balance due them at once, to prevent suits being brought against the stockholders, to force the liquidation of the claims of the depositors. The bank was wrecked by the absconding of Cashier Kleckner.

Banker Passes Away.

Constantine, June 18. — Charles W. Cond, aged 74, Constantine's wealthiest citizen, died here Wednesday night. He was president of the Farmers' national bank and had been in business here since 1857.

CYCLISTS AND COLD BATHS.

A Physician's View as to the Proper Time to Indulge.

A physician, who is himself a wheelman of several years' experience and who has also devoted great attention to other athletics, lays down this general proposition: "Never take a cold bath when you are tired." He points out that the greater the exercise the more poisonous waste material is created, and that a cold bath does not assist the skin in getting rid of this product, whereas a warm bath does. The doctor adds:

"When you take a cold bath you depend upon the heart to bring about reaction. If this heart be already tired by the long ride it may not be strong enough to bring about reaction, and the blood and its waste material may not be brought to the surface. Internal congestions may follow, and, as I have seen in two cases, death may ensue. It matters not how hot you may be, how much you may be perspiring, the cold bath is harmless provided always the heart be not tired. A simple rule for the bicyclist, whereby he may know whether the heart be tired is simply to count the pulse, having in a previous quiescent state ascertained what his individual pulse rate per minute is. When, after a long ride, his pulse rate is normal he may with safety use the cold bath. He should, therefore, rest after a tiresome journey until the pulse is normal or thereabouts, say even ten beats per minute faster than normal, or what is far better, get into a tepid bath, one neither very hot nor very cold. When he has remained in the warm water long enough for the pulse rate to be about normal, he can then, with perfect safety, plunge into cold water, and these two procedures form the ideal way of using water on the surface after fatigue."

MUSCLE-MAKING FADS.

Exercises That Keep Athletic Girls Abreast of Their Brothers.

The fad for fencing at home has led many a girl to set up in the privacy of her father's residence a private gymnasium, or, as she prefers to dub it, an "armory," where she practices with the aid of an instructor and in company with a few of her intimate friends, says an eastern exchange.

Many a girl can do her trick on the flying rings or the parallel bar in a manner that makes her college-bred brother hustle for his laurels. And he'll have to hustle still more when the glorious May days come and she can show the result of her secret training on the golf links and the tennis court.

The Vassar girls and students at other of the famous women colleges and co-educational institutions have established gymnasium classes and are hard at work preparing for the coming summer. The Wellesley girls train with a special view of developing the muscles, necessary to become expert at the oars, and their famous fours and eights are expected to beat all records this season.

Bowling has its devotees, and many of the fair sex have proved themselves experts on the alleys.

The most usual place for practicing bowling is at some of the large athletic clubs, which generally have one day in the week, known as "ladies' day."

BURMESE GIRLS.

Gossiping and Flirting as They Fill Their Jars at the Well.

In every household the daughter has her appointed work. In all but the richest merchants' houses the daughter's duty is to bring the water from the well evening and morning, says Blackwood's Magazine. It is the gossiping place of the village, this well, and as the sun sets there come running down all the girls of the village. As they fill their jars they lean over the curb and talk, and it is here that are told the latest news, the latest flirtation, the latest marriage, the little scandal of the place. Very few men come. Water carrying is not their duty, and there is a proper time and place for flirtation. So the girls have the well almost to themselves.

Almost every girl will weave. In every house there will be a loom, where the girls weave their dresses and those of their parents. And very many girls will have stalls in the bazar. Other duties are the husking of the rice and the making of cheroots. Of course, in the richer households there will be servants to do all this, but even in them the daughter will frequently weave, either for herself or for her parents. Almost every girl will do something, if it be only to pass the time.

HE HAD NERVE.

The Average Drummer Wouldn't Be in It with This Young Man.

"Talk about the drummer having gall," said the man who had paid for the last round, reports the Pittsburgh News, "the worst case I ever heard of was in a plain, everyday country boy. He was wild, and got into so many scrapes at home that his folks sent him out west. He disappeared for a year or two, and in the meantime got married. My wife and I went west for our honeymoon, and on a train about 100 miles from Tacoma I found this country boy in the car sitting beside a big, stout, coarse man. Bill, the boy, had the other fellow shackled to him. He recognized me, and began inquiring after the folks at his home. After awhile he said:

"'I'm getting along all right. Folks up here, where I am, think so well of me they made me sheriff. I'm just taking this chap down to the pen. Oh, yes; I've reformed, and you can tell the folks so when you get back. I don't have time to write them.'

"When my wife went ahead into the sleeping car the coarse, stout man turned to me, asked if I knew Bill's folks, and when I said I did, he replied: 'Wall, tell them what you please, but I'm the sheriff.'"

CHINESE OBSTACLES.

Evil Spirits Which Must Be Driven Out.

If a house is to be repaired wonderful forethought is necessary. The evil spirits which are supposed to occupy each dwelling that mortals have inhabited cause the carpenter no end of trouble and no trifling expense, says Lippincott's. First, an astrologer must be consulted with regard to the most lucky day for beginning the work; then a square suspended from the ridge-beam is a notification to the spirits of darkness that their dwelling-place is to be disturbed, wherefore the square thing for them to do is to move out quietly and peacefully. Next the carpenters make offerings to these unseen residents. These gifts seem to say: "If you please, spirits of darkness, accept this bribe and speedily take your flight."

Next the neighbors must be warned that these evil influences are about to be turned loose, perhaps to seek shelter under a neighboring roof. Every house on that street receives a notice that upon a certain day and hour repairs are to begin on the dwelling of Ah Sin. Each household can then pay the imps not to enter their doorway, but to go to the next neighbor.

Even the farmer cannot begin his work in the spring until after the national festivals are celebrated in honor of the special gods who are supposed to make it their particular business to look after the welfare of those who till the soil. In a land where more than 100,000,000 people are supported by agriculture, where many farms have been in cultivation for three or even four milleniums, we naturally expect to find skill in that line of work. In this we are not disappointed, for Chinese farming is scientific handwork.

MATRIMONY AND MENNONITES.

The Minister Does the Proposing for the Girl's Hand.

When a Mennonite young man desires to marry a Mennonite young woman, instead of telling her about it he confides in the minister. If the latter thinks well of the proposed match he informs the young woman and generally devotes considerable time to pleading the case of the lovesick swain, since it is considered somewhat indelicate for the woman to yield too easily. Even after their engagement the minister conducts most of the negotiations leading up to the marriage ceremony.

This always takes place in a church, to which everybody is entitled to admission on the wedding day without invitation. Two weeks before the wedding the "banns" are called from the pulpit and during that fortnight the bride and groom are allowed to meet without the presence of a third party. The first portion of the ceremony consists of a sermon, generally on some such subject as the duties of husband and wife. One such sermon preached at a wedding last summer lasted about two hours, although the minister announced in the beginning that because of the hot weather he would "be brief." At the close of the sermon the contracting parties, who had been seated on opposite sides of the church, walked to the altar, where they answered affirmatively a series of questions and were pronounced man and wife. Then they returned to their seats on opposite sides of the auditorium and the regular services of the day were resumed.

SUBSTITUTE FOR SWING BRIDGE

Curious Engineering Structure at the Mouth of the River Nervion.

At the mouth of the river Nervion, which flows into the Bay of Biscay between Portugalete and Las Arenas, a curious engineering structure has been erected within the last few years to transport passengers, cattle and vehicles without interfering with the river traffic. It consists, says the Manchester Guardian, of a couple of towers 200 feet high, one on each bank; from these a bridge is suspended by chains at a height sufficient to clear the masts of vessels—that is, nearly 150 feet above the water level of the spring tides. This bridge carries a line of rails on which a trolley is pulled to and fro by an engine on the Las Arenas or northern side. With it goes a car, hung by steel cables, in which the passengers take their seats. This is not wound up to the top, but stays at the level of the quays. Thus the transit is effected quickly and regularly, without the delay inseparable from a swing bridge. A similar "pont transbordeur" is to be set up over the Seine near Rouen by a French company. In general appearance it will resemble the Spanish one, and if equally successful will probably lead to the application of the principle elsewhere. It seems odd that for such a simple and useful device engineers should have to go to Spain.

One Way to Cure Green Reporters.

The Albany Journal tells a story of two green reporters, Englishmen, who were sent by the city editor of a certain newspaper to a suburban town to write up the burning of an orphan asylum. Late that night when the news editor was wondering why no "copy" about the fire was coming by wire, a telegraph messenger rushed in and handed him a dispatch. He opened it and read:

"Dear sir—We are here. What shall we do?"

It was signed with the names of the two men sent to "write up" the fire.

The news editor made a few remarks, which, while they were appropriate to the occasion, would not look well in print; then he wrote on a telegraph blank this brief message:

"Find out where the fire is hottest, and jump in."

A Russian Joke.

One reads in a Russian periodical which has a corner devoted to the "comic," this pleasantry: "What, Vanyousha, drunk again? I thought you only got drunk on the great holidays?" "To-day is a great holiday; my mother-in-law has gone away."

TOWN TALK.

The Public Aroused During the Past Week.

Crowds of People Called at C. A. Wright's Drug Store, to Get Free Samples of

DR. HOBBS SPARAGUS KIDNEY PILLS.

Hundreds Now Testing the Remedy in this Vicinity.

NOW FOR RESULTS.

An intense interest was created in this vicinity by the announcement in last week's issue, that a free package of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills would be given away to any person who would call and ask for it at C. A. Wright's Drug Store.

This interest was shown by the unexpectedly numerous calls made at the above store. Many of the callers, who are sufferers from kidney complaints, expressed their astonishment at the offer to make no charge for the samples. Heretofore, the practice of medicine proprietors is to require pay in advance, and let the afflicted take the chance of cure.

The proprietors of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills are reversing this practice, preferring to exercise the golden rule of "doing to others as they would be done by."

They believe, because it has been demonstrated in every instance, that if those affected with kidney troubles once try these pills, they will be convinced of their great merit, and get well by their use.

For this reason they made arrangements with Mr. Wright to freely distribute as many sample boxes as should be called for, during the last seven days. Everyone who asked for a box was given it free of charge.

Some of those calling for packages, have expressed themselves as follows: "The science of medicine has certainly advanced when the proprietors of a remedy can stake so much upon a free and universal test of its merits." "The honest and straightforward manner in which the medicine is offered for trial, gives me confidence to use it. I hope it will prove helpful." "Dr. Hobbs' announcement that he has made a great discovery which will cure and build up the kidneys, and his offer to prove it free of charge is a novel proposition, and gives me great hope of relief." "This is certainly a fair proposition. I have everything to win and nothing to lose."

Many will be curious to know what are the results of the tests of these pills now going on in the neighborhood. It is a little too soon to look for results, probably another week will make them known. If those getting the samples have faithfully followed the directions, they will be encouraged to persevere in their use.

It is gratifying to learn that wherever similar distributions have taken place, there has followed a large sale of the remedy, and many letters of gratitude have been written by those who have regained lost health.

Every person who knows or suspects that his kidneys or urinary passages are affected; every person who has any of the following symptoms, should make a test of these pills without delay, viz:—Pains in the Back or Sides, Headache, Nervousness, Frequent Thirst, Shortness of Breath, Puffiness of the Eyelids, Swelling of the Feet and Ankles, Dark Colored or Scanty Urine, with albuminous or other deposits in the urine, or too frequent urination.

For the benefit of interested persons, living out of town who, from any reason, failed to get a sample Dr. Hobbs authorizes us to say, if you will cut out the coupon below and mail it to the Hobbs Remedy Co., Chicago, Ill., with your name and address, a sample box of these pills will be sent you by mail, postpaid, and free of expense.

Copper from the Pewabic.

Alpena, June 20.—The steamer Root arrived here Saturday with a barrel of copper from the wreck of the lost Pewabic. This is conclusive proof that the long lost ship has been found. TRAMPS TERRORIZE A TOWN.

Knights of the Road Run Things to Suit Themselves in Stevensville.

Benton Harbor, June, 29.—Stevensville, a small town near here, is terrorized by a gang of 200 tramps. One of the party was arrested and the others broke into the jail and released him. Soon after another man was captured and his friends attempted to release him, but were held at bay by the marshal, village president and citizens with revolvers until he could be transferred to the county jail. The men steal chickens, pigs and calves and commit other depredations, so that citizens are afraid to be out after dark. Numerous holdups and burglaries in the vicinity are credited to the tramps.

Made Good Scores.

Detroit, June 30.—At the opening of the Michigan Trap Shooters' league at the Rush House grounds Tuesday ten events were shot off. HAY STACK COVER.

It Keep the Hay Bright Clear Up to the Boards.

Herewith is presented a sketch of a stack cover which we saw a neighbor using and afterwards used ourselves with very satisfactory results, for upon removing the cover the hay is found nice and bright clear up to the boards. There is usually a little damaged hay at lower edges of cover, but the loss here is slight.

The stack is made in the form of a rick of any desired length, as several lengths of boards may be used. It should be well balanced; the hay should, if possible, be pitched on to stack from both sides. In topping out, bring up to sharp ridge and tramp well along center. In good weather it is best to let stand a few days, then retop and cover. Cover is made of boards one by twelve inches, ours were 14 feet long. Bevel the edge of one board and nail it and another together in the form of a well-spread triangle, using ten-penny nails. If not spread sufficiently, nail well and jump up and down on top of it. Have an attendant take one end, you take the other, carry up on ladders and lay on center of stack. Carry another board up in the same manner; or, better, have some one pass it up to you, slip edge under first board, lapping two inches or less, and nail. Now move around to opposite side of stack, put one up there, and so on till roof is wide as you want it. Pass wires over top and weight down heavily with rocks. Don't leave it any time without weighting, for the wind can remove a roof of this kind in much less time than it took to put it on. Watch the stack closely and don't let it get started tipping, for if it does the weight on top will pull it over rapidly. —George T. Pettit, in Agricultural Epitomist.

WOMEN ON FARMS.

Extent of the Help Which New England Wives Give.

The women are true helpmeets. Not only do they do their own work, but they are able and willing to milk the cows and assist with the hay-getting and in other ways lend a hand out of doors in emergencies. Some of them even eke out the family income by little ventures of their own, such as raising hens and bees and gathering and marketing spruce gum, beechnuts and blueberries. There is no servant girl problem, because there are no servants. When sickness or some other real disability necessitates female help in the household a neighbor's daughter is called in. She is, of course, regarded, and in every minutest particular treated, as a member of the family; it could not be otherwise. The children are trained to bear their share of the family burden, so far as it can be done without interfering with their schooling, and the very school terms are arranged with a view to conflicting as little as possible with farm work. When the children grow up many of them go out into the world to seek their fortunes (that, within reasonable limits, is a law of nature), but there is nothing like an exodus of the rising generation, no approach to a depletion. Plenty of ambitious, vigorous young men stay behind to arrange themselves in life as their fathers did before them, chopping in the woods winters and tilling the few acres they have been able to purchase with their winters' savings summers. Furthermore, there are plenty of desirable young women happy and proud to cast their lots in with the young men and do their share of the drudgery necessary to establishing a home. Thus new farms are cleared out of the woodland and the old farms are kept up.—Atlantic.

MANY THINK!

when the Creator said to woman, "In sorrow shalt thou bring forth children," that a curse was pronounced against the human race, but the joy felt by every Mother when she first presses to her heart her babe, proves the contrary.

Danger and suffering lurk in the pathway of the Expectant Mother, and should be avoided, that she may reach the hour when the hope of her heart is to be realized, in full vigor and strength.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

so relaxes the system and assists Nature, that the necessary change takes place without Nausea, Headache, Nervous or Gloomy Foreboding of danger, and the trying hour is robbed of its pain and suffering, as so many happy mothers have experienced. Nothing but "Mother's Friend" does this. Don't be deceived or persuaded to use anything else.

"Mother's Friend" is the greatest remedy ever put on the market, and all our customers praise it highly."—W. H. KING & Co., Whitewright, Tex.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

GRANT AS A BOY.

He Was Unusually Determined, Resourceful and Resolute.

Some of the good people of Georgetown, Ripley and Batavia go far in their attempt to show how very ordinary Ulysses Grant was, says Hamlin Garland in McClure's. A boy of 13 who could drive a team 600 miles across country and arrive safely; who could load a wagon with heavy logs by his own mechanical ingenuity; who insisted on solving all mathematical problems himself; who never whispered or lied or swore or quarreled; who could train a horse to pace or trot at will; who stood squarely upon his own knowledge of things without resorting to trick or mere verbal memory—such a boy, at this distance, does not appear "ordinary," stupid, dull or commonplace. That he was not showy or easily valued was true. His unusualness was in the balance of his character, in his pose, in his native judgment and in his knowledge of things at first hand.

Even at 16 years of age he had a superstition that to retreat was fatal. When he set hand to any plan or started upon any journey he felt the necessity of going to the turn of the lane or to the end of the furrow. He was resolute and unafraid always—a boy to be trusted and counted upon—sturdy, capable of hard knocks. What he was in speech he was in grain. If he said: "I can do that," he not merely meant that he would try to do it, but also that he had thought his way to the successful end of the undertaking. He was, in fact, an unusually determined and resourceful boy.

LITERARY NOTES.

Demorest's Magazine for July is a Victorian Diamond Jubilee number, and besides numerous portraits of the queen, representing her at different ages, it contains an interesting biography of Her Majesty which is very valuable.

Harper's Bazar of July 3d will contain the first of an interesting series on "Colonial Homes and Life," by Helen Evertson Smith, entitled "A Pioneer Home in Connecticut;" an article on "Patriotism and Manners," by Viola Roseboro'; and "The Trials of a City-Bred Young Married Couple," by Anna Wentworth Sears.

Walter Crane has given a charming quality to his article on "William Morris," in July Scribner's, because of a fine artistic sympathy with Morris's aims, and through personal friendship, which began in 1870. It is the best interpretation of Morris that has appeared. The illustrations give some entirely new specimens of Morris's designs—several of them unfinished when he died.

The Midsummer number of The Chautauquan appears in one of the most attractive and appropriate covers seen among the magazines this season. The artistic adornment is a picturesque scene on Chautauqua Lake, surrounded by graceful and suggestive emblems of the C. L. S. C.'s fair birthplace, all in shades of cool, delicate green and brown which complete the effect of daintiness and finish.

Mr. Edward Cary, of the New York Times, contributes to the American Monthly Review of Reviews for July a character sketch of President Seth Low, a former mayor of Brooklyn, and now the most prominent candidate for the mayorship of the Greater New York. Portraits and other illustrations accompany Mr. Cary's article, which is the most complete account of Mr. Low's career that has ever appeared.

Alvan F. Sanborn, who has made a study of the social conditions of rural New England, writes, in the July Atlantic on The Future of Rural New England. He describes a community which has been drained by emigration to the cities and which is dead. He discusses the possibility of reclaiming such communities by the reflex movement from the city to the country and by the incoming of cheaply living immigrants.

The leading article in the July Harper's is "Sheridan's Ride," by Gen. Geo. A. Forsyth, U. S. A., who was one of Sheridan's two aides, and is the only survivor. Among other important bits of historical fact, General Forsyth relates that though he was constantly with his chief, he failed to hear that terrible oath which in prose and verse has always been attributed to him. Nevertheless it is safe to predict that hero-worshipping humanity will cherish its belief in the "touch of nature," in spite of the hard facts of history.

The magazine women need is Table Talk, the acknowledged American authority upon culinary and household topics. The July issue contains a description of "Some Pretty Luncheons," by Mrs. Burton Kingsland; gives "Seasonable Canning and Preserving," as well as other recipes and menus by leading authorities. It also contains an article on "Summer Vegetables," by Miss Cornelia C. Bedford. Send for a sample copy of this unique housekeepers guide, which is offered free, to any of our readers who send their name and address to Table Talk Publishing Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

Harper's Weekly of July 3 will contain the first instalment of E. F. Benson's novel of the Greek war of independence, "The Vintage," which is said to be not only timely in theme, but in spirit and in episodes curiously like the experiences of the Greeks in their recent war with the Turks. Among the pictorial features in the same number of the Weekly there will be a double-page drawing, by Zogbaum, of the reading of the Declaration of Independence to the American troops on the New York Common, July 19, 1779, and an illustration of the celebration of "Veterans' Day" at the Tennessee Centennial Exhibition.

SWEPT BY STORMS.

Great Damage Done by Rain in Minnesota and Indiana.

The City of Duluth a Heavy Loser—Cloudburst in the Hoosier State—Big Snowstorm in Colorado.

Duluth, Minn., July 5.—A terrific rainstorm visited Duluth Friday night, breaking all records. The rain fell in blinding sheets. It seemed as though the bottom had dropped out of the heavens. It was a cloudburst. Never during the 26 years the weather bureau has been established in Duluth was there such a fall of rain in such a short space of time, and the streams and creeks all swollen to such enormous size. The damage done by the storm in Duluth and surrounding towns will amount to over $200,000. Streets are litterly torn out in many places, pavements all over the city are rooted up, parks sadly damaged, and the loss to the city alone will be tremendous. The private losses also will run very high. Houses have been loosened from their foundations, especially at the west end, cellars all over the city were filled, basements of stores were flooded, horses and cows were drowned, and an endless amount smaller damage was done. Fortunately, so far as known, there was no loss of life in the city.

In Indiana.

Evansville, Ind., July 5. — Reports from Henderson county say the damage caused by the cloudburst Friday morning is of a much more serious nature than was given Saturday evening. The damage to crops alone is estimated at from $100,000 to $150,000. Thousands of acres of wheat were carried away by the flood, while immense crops of corn and tobacco in all portions of the county were completely destroyed.

Snow in Colorado.

Denver, Col., July 5.—There was something not on the programmes for the delectation of the Endeavor excursionists who passed through Colorado on their way to the coast. Saturday morning at Leadville all trains stopped long enough for the passengers to indulge in a snowballing match, but after the novel pleasure the coolness of the atmosphere did not present the same attractions for the travelers, who were illy clad to cope with the sudden drop in temperature. Fires had to be lighted in the coaches where the train hands could get a supply of fuel.

A Cyclone's Work.

Duluth, Minn., July 7.—Dispatches received here at railroad offices say that a cyclone has obliterated the town of Lowry, Minn., and that seven people were killed and several injured. Lowry is situated on the Soo line, seven miles from Glenwood, on the Northern Pacific railroad. Particulars are meager, but it is learned that the cyclone traveled from southwest to northeast and that the little town of Lowry was in the track of the cloud.

From Lowry the storm continued in a northeasterly direction to the farm of Robert Peacock, where it made a clean sweep of all the buildings. Mrs. Peacock, her daughter Nettie and a boy named Robert MacGowan were injured, but will probably recover. Thomas Andrews' house and his farm buildings are a total wreck.

From here the cyclone moved about due east from Sam Morrow's, where it left death in its path. Sam Morrow died within an hour after the catastrophe, being horribly bruised and mangled, and a nine-year-old daughter, Annie, was found dead by the rescuing party. Five others of the family are badly injured.

Science to Aid Labor.

Oakland, Cal., July 5.—The food of San Francisco laborers is to be analyzed by the professors at the state university. Prof. M. E. Jaffa, the head of the dietetic department, has just decided that elaborate investigation shall be undertaken. Several hundred families of the wage-earning class will be called up to take part. When the statistics have been all collected and tabulated it is expected poor families will be able to live much less expensively than they do now, and at the same time on a more healthful diet.

Will Quit Business.

Toronto, Can., July 6.—McLean & Ockley, one of the largest bicycle firms in Canada have decided to close out their business for the reason that breaks in the price of high-grade of United States wheels will prevent their firm from continuing manufacturing at a profit. It is said that several other Canadian firms will follow their example.

Broke Her Own Record.

Medford, Mass., July 7.—At Combination park Tuesday afternoon Marion Mills, the wonderful guideless pacer, lowered her record of 2:07¼, made last year, to 2:05¾. The little mare bowled round the track without driver or sulky, and few who saw her realized that she was making such good time.

Hit by a Rocket.

Hedrick, Ia., July 5.—By a premature explosion of fireworks at the celebration here two people were killed and several wounded. A spark in the fireworks caused the accident.

Four Persons Drowned.

Little Rock, Ark., July 6.—By the upsetting of a boat Joseph and Jacob Dante and Miss Mary Arbor and Miss Josie Sanders were drowned.

THE BIG STRIKE.

The Wage Struggle of the Coal Miners Is Inaugurated.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 7.—The strike order of the national executive board of the United Mine Workers of America was obeyed by from 10,000 to 15,000 of the 21,000 miners in the Pittsburgh district Tuesday. The great struggle is now on in earnest and the developments of the next few days will determine the success or failure of the fight for a uniform mining rate. Pittsburgh is the pivotal point in the five states engaged in the contest and the success of the local officials in their efforts to secure a general suspension in this district will have an important bearing on the outcome of the movement. While it is estimated that at least two-thirds of the miners have thrown down their picks, enough men are still at work, however, to seriously impair their chances unless they can ultimately be brought out. This, President Dolan confidently claims, can be done. The operators, on the other hand, are in no wise disconcerted and assert that the strike cannot succeed. The first break in the operators' ranks was made Tuesday afternoon by J. W. Steen, of the O. I. C. mines at Rossville. The diggers refused to work and the mine was closed down, but a notice was posted that after to-day the 69 cent rate would be paid. It is not likely that the officials will allow the men to work until a majority of operators have agreed to the miners' demands.

According to the estimates of the miners' officials 62 railroad mines are idle and 26 are still in operation. They reported that in a number of cases they had heard no news from certain mines, and take it for granted in many cases that they are in operation.

THE POPULISTS.

Conference at Nashville Issues an Address.

Nashville, Tenn., July 7.—The afternoon session of the national conference of the people's party was devoted to the discussion of an address to the people, which was adopted. The address is lengthy and scores both the republican and democratic parties, declares against fusion, says free silver will not bring relief until trusts, combines and rings are abolished, reaffirms the platform of the party, especially as to the initiative and referendum, and calls upon all to join in the contest it is waging. A plan for reorganization and building up the party was adopted. It provides for the appointment of a committee on organization composed of three from each state, the chairman to be elected by the conference. It also provides for an executive committee of five to cooperate with the national executive committee when that committee acts upon the line of populist principles. This committee will act until the next national convention. The report declares in favor of thorough reorganization and education, even by civil districts if necessary. The national organization committee chosen by this conference is given full power and authority to call a national convention of the party or to submit any question to the voters of the party on the referendum plan whenever they may determine that the best interests of the party require the same.

NINE MEN KILLED.

Hartsville, Tenn., July 7.—A frightful boiler explosion occurred on the farm of W. A. Allen, in the Tenth district of this county, Tuesday afternoon, by which nine people were instantly killed and five badly injured. The dead are: W. A. Allen, James Allen, Lindsey Allen, Mock Tunstill, Asa Barr, Porter Averitt, —— Bolton, Len Barksdale and Will Allen. The latter two were negroes.

Fault of the Turk.

London, July 7.—In the house of lords the marquis of Salisbury, replying to Lord Connemara, said the delay in the settlement of the peace terms between Turkey and Greece was entirely the fault of the former power. There was no delay so far as the concerted powers were concerned, but Turkey had carried deliberation and circumspection to such an excess that the delay was not without danger, though the danger was not immediate. They were apparently at present no nearer to a solution of the question than at the beginning.

Killed with an Ax.

Waukesha, Wis., July 7.—James Butler, a farmer of Lisbon, went home drunk Monday evening and in a quarrel with is wife he seized an ax and almost hacked her to pieces. Shortly after the quarrel Mrs. Butler was discovered by two of her children and died soon after their arrival. Butler escaped and is still at large, but his capture is looked for soon.

More Deaths from Heat.

Attendance at the Exposition.

Nashville, Tenn., July 3.—The department of admission has made a report of the number of paid admissions to the exposition during May and June. The total is 507,793. During May total admissions were 205,351; during June, 302,442.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in Senate and House.

The Tariff Bill Occupies the Entire Time in the Senate—No Business Done in the House—Other News.

Washington, July 1. — Two of the most important provisions of the tariff bill—those relating to the Hawaiian treaty of reciprocity and the duty on coal—were perfected in the senate yesterday, while another source of much conflict, the reciprocity section, was matured by the finance committee and presented. Senator Turpie (Ind.) spoke in support of the amendment for a two per cent. tax on inheritances.

Washington, July 2. — In the tariff bill revision in the senate yesterday cotton bagging and cotton ties were placed on the free list and the duty on white pine lumber was reduced from two dollars to one dollar per thousand. The bill was completed with the exceptions of the reciprocity section and some comparatively minor paragraphs.

Washington, July 3.—Reciprocity and retaliation were the two phases of the tariff bill to occupy the attention of the senate yesterday to the exclusion of all other subjects. Both provisions were agreed to. Senator Thurston introduced an amendment to the bill to prohibit trusts. The nomination of William W. Rockhill, of the district of Columbia, to be envoy extraordinary, minister plenipotentiary and consul general to Greece, Roumania and Servia, was received from the president.

Washington, July 6.—Senator Allison, in charge of the tariff bill, announced shortly before the adjournment of the senate Monday night that as no agreement had been reached for a final vote on the tariff bill he would ask the senate to remain in session to-night at least until the bill was reported from the committee of the whole to the senate. This promises a test of endurance unless the opposition to the bill gives way. Senator Allison's statement was made after another futile effort to have a time fixed for the vote.

Washington, July 7.—The final vote on the tariff bill was taken in the senate before adjournment to-day, a definite agreement, assented to by all parties, having been reached at the close of the debate yesterday. During the day the anti-trust amendment was defeated, as was also an amendment for a one-fourth cent bounty on beet sugar.

The House.

Washington, July 2. — In the house yesterday Mr. Settle (dem., Ky.) denied the right to adjourn for three days at a time and arraigned the republicans for not acting on the bankruptcy and Cuban questions. Adjourned to the 5th.

Washington, July 6.—The house yesterday without transacting any business took a recess until Wednesday, to be ready for the tariff bill if completed before then by the senate.

The Public Debt.

Washington, July 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows at the close of business June 30 the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $936,636,086, a decrease for the month of $10,027,966, which is accounted for by a corresponding increase in the amount of cash on hand. The debt, independent of the cash, was reduced $4,152.

A Currency Commission.

Washington, July 3. — It was semi-officially announced that the president will send a special message to congress recommending the creation of a currency commission to consider a revision of the monetary system of the United States.

Home Again.

Washington, July 7.—President McKinley and his party returned yesterday from their visit to Canton, O.

Speech Gave Offense.

London, July 7.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Cape Town says that Hon. W. P. Schreiner, in a speech at the American banquet in celebration of Independence day, extolled the United States as "the one spot on God's earth where freedom finds its highest realization." This has given great offense in some quarters because it seems to imply a slur upon Great Britain.

Disastrous Fire in Spain.

London, July 3.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Madrid says that a huge fire has been raging in the mountains of the province of Tucharia, in southeastern Spain, since Wednesday. The flames have extended over an area of 20 miles, destroying villages, cattle and other property. It is feared that there has been considerable loss of life.

Result of Floods in France.

Paris, July 7.—Advices from the south of France show that the destruction by the floods there was greater than earlier reports indicated. The losses are estimated at 20,000,000 francs in the aggregate. Hardly a village has escaped damage and the number of persons drowned is quite 300.

Intense Heat.

Geneseo, N. Y., July 7.—The heat in the Genesee valley has been intense for the last three days, the temperature ranging from 100 to 106.

FORT MACKINAC.

Army Officer Inspects the Old Post with a View to Its Reoccupancy.

Mackinac Island, July 4. — Col. Snyder, Nineteenth United States infantry, stationed at Detroit, has been here for a couple of days, under orders from the war department, inspecting the historic Fort Mackinac and making an estimate of what it will cost to renovate the fort and buildings to fit them for occupancy again by troops. This is a primary step looking toward the reestablishment of the fort by the United States government, in accordance with an offer of the legislature to return to the fort for this purpose. The war department has the matter under consideration, and it cannot act until Col. Snyder's report is received, as the first requisite for such action is an appropriation by congress.

ANN ARBOR SUMMER SCHOOL.

University of Michigan Resumes Work in Two Departments.

Ann Arbor, July 7.—The summer school of the University of Michigan opened Monday in the department of law, and Tuesday in the literary department. Last year the attendance was 200, but that will be increased this year by about 50, which is largely due to the extra number in the law department. The corps of instructors has also been increased to 35, and the courses are better arranged and more of them. The attendance is largely made up of teachers and those who have back work to make up in the university.

SIGN OF BETTER TIMES.

Furniture Buyers Are Crowding Into Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, July 7.—More than 60 buyers are already here for the opening of the furniture season, and this unprecedented rush is hustling the manufacturers to get their samples ready. Reduced rates to the retailers' national convention next week will bring the crowds. Among the early arrivals are several buyers from the west, which will be well represented for the first time in five years. The buyers talk favorably of business, and will place good orders.

HORTICULTURE.

MOVABLE BERRY SHANTY.

It Saves Lots of Time and Labor and Is Easily Made.

I send you a sketch of my movable berry shanty, which is much liked by those who have seen it. My berry patch is 80 rods long and 40 rods wide, with a road running lengthwise through the center 9 feet wide, hence my object in making a movable shanty. My first step was to go in the woods and cut two straight poles 12 feet long and 6 inches through, and a number of small poles 2 inches in diameter. Then I went at it as though I was about to make a large wood rack, using a 1¼-inch auger. I first bored the holes for the cross pieces and fitted them in, using the 2-inch poles. I then bored the holes for the stakes (using the same auger), putting one on a side, 7 feet high on one side and 5 feet on the other, in order to give it sufficient pitch. For stays to nail around the top of the stakes I used 1x4 pine, which I procured by ripping an old board fence in two, putting a sufficient number on top to support the canvas. For $1.50 I bought enough old sailcloth to cover the entire shanty. The bottom of the sills on each end should be beveled, so as to prevent dirt from clogging in front while it is being drawn. If properly made the entire weight should not exceed 250 pounds. One horse easily draws mine back and forth through my patch. I hitch to either end, using a log chain attached to the corners. If the cheap canvas is not easily procurable, half-inch siding could be used for the roof and old blankets for sides. The entire cost is small, and it is much more convenient than one made of old boards and stationary. Much time is saved in carrying berries. I often move mine twice a day, keeping it directly opposite the pickers.—Rural New Yorker.

MOVABLE BERRY SHANTY.

GOOD INSECTICIDE.

Gasoline, It Is Claimed, Will Accomplish Wonders.

A most excellent insectitide is gasoline. The housewife can easily rid her carpets of moths and fleas by its use. For such purpose take a common watering pot with a fine rose, and having raised the windows and opened the doors of the room so the fumes may readily pass out, for they are explosive, sprinkle copiously around the margin of the carpets and then more lightly over the whole. Every insect and every egg of an insect that is touched will be destroyed as if by fire.

In the garden it is no less useful. Perhaps the best way to apply to plants standing in the ground is with a brush, an old paint brush answers the purpose well. Take any convenient dish or pot and fill two-thirds with water and the balance with gasoline. The water will retard evaporation and assist in spreading the gasoline to every infected portion when the brush is applied. Most kinds of scale are killed effectually with one application.

For ridding plants in pots of insects, fill a tub or other deep vessel nearly full of water and pour a little gasoline on surface, then dip the plant top downwards, and at once withdraw. Every portion will be touched with the gasoline, and it will do its perfect work. I have not tried it on tender plants, and should hesitate to do so till a trial should be first made on a leaf or two, as a test.

I save my seed peas from the weevil by first letting them get dry, when they are put into a convenient dish, covered with water into which has been poured a little gasoline, say a cupful to half a peck. The peas are then thoroughly stirred for some minutes, when they are drained off and put away. A second application is rarely necessary. In this case the gasoline has to penetrate the peas and kill the eggs of the weevil, and it does it most effectually.—American Gardening.

Nature's Wonderful Laws.

The growing of a berry calls into action some of the most wonderful laws of nature. In the growth of plants we find these laws in perfection. We also find in various forms a complete supply of every element required for the full development of both plant and fruit. Nature gives us all these products without stint. She simply asks, in return that we assist her in some of the smaller details of the work. She asks that the soil be made rich and well prepared. That the plants be of good quality and carefully set out. That frequent hoeing and cultivation be given. That plants be protected from winter frosts and summer drought. That no insect pest or fungus disease find an abiding place with them.—M. A. Thayer.

Regular Supply of Lettuce.

For a regular supply of lettuce during the hot months, sow thinly where they are to remain, in drills 12 to 14 inches apart, plants to be gradually thinned out to six or eight inches apart. This method allows the tap root to penetrate undisturbed into the soil, thus securing moisture and coolness, and does not induce surface roots, and also lessens their tendency to bolt to seed in hot dry weather—an advantage worth securing. Golden Queen, Big Boston and Trianou Cos are excellent varieties for general use.—American Gardening.

THE WOOLLY-APHIS.

Different Modes of Killing This Very Destructive Insect.

The Missouri experiment station has made extensive experiments with different methods of killing the woolly-aphis or apple-root plant louse. Following is a summary of the discoveries made:

The limb form of this insect can be readily killed by one or two thorough sprayings with strong kerosene emulsion. Apple seedlings, buds and grafts should be planted in a small trench filled with finely powdered tobacco or tobacco dust and lightly covered with earth. This will keep the woolly-aphis away. Apple nursery stock should have a liberal supply of tobacco dust applied to the roots every spring in order to kill the woolly-aphis and prevent it from establishing itself there. It should be applied by removing some of the earth from around the roots, filling the excavation with tobacco dust, and lightly covering it with earth. Newly cleared timber land should be cultivated in corn or other crop for two years before the apple trees are set out, in order to kill the woolly-aphis that may be on the roots of the wild crab and allied trees. Apple nursery stock should have the roots cleaned and dipped for a minute in strong kerosene emulsion, in order to kill the woolly-aphis that may be there. In planting apple trees tobacco dust should be freely used among and over all the roots, and close around the trunk, in order to kill and prevent the woolly-aphis from establishing itself there. Every spring, as soon as settled warm weather appears, each tree should have a liberal supply of tobacco dust applied to its roots by removing the earth from around the trunk for a distance of two feet and four inches in depth, evenly filling this with the tobacco dust and covering it with earth. The root form of the woolly-aphis may be cheaply and easily killed and kept away from an apple tree by the liberal use of tobacco dust. About five or six pounds of this substance should be applied as above directed to the roots of every infested tree, and half this amount should be applied in a similar manner each succeeding spring, costing approximately two cents per tree per year. This insect may also be killed by injecting one fluid ounce of carbon bisulphide two feet away from the trunk on two sides of the tree, but the use of this substance is not advised except in extreme cases, since a little carelessness may injure the tree, and it is always necessary immediately to treat the trees with tobacco dust in order to keep the insect away.—Country Gentleman.

QUICKLY-MADE HEDGE.

Woodbine Grown Over a Frame Gives Satisfactory Results.

Making a hedge with ordinary hedge plants requires a good many years of waiting before the full realization of one's anticipations. Many are deterred from starting hedges because of this long period of waiting. The accompanying illustration shows a "short cut" to a remarkably handsome hedge. A "form" is made of wire netting, the sides and top also being covered. Along the base on either side of this quickly-growing vines are planted, which soon cover the wire with a mass of green that becomes more and more dense and beautiful each succeeding year if the proper sort of vines is used. The "proper sort," in the writer's estimation, would include our common woodbine. It is a quick grower and its foliage is remarkably handsome, both in the green state and when touched by autumn frosts. There are many other vines, however, that would answer admirably for this purpose, so that all tastes can be suited. Such a hedge needs only such annual clippings as will suffice to keep the vines growing evenly all over the wire—as thickly in one place as in another. Cedar stakes should be used and carefully set in making such a hedge, since once made and covered with a black growth of vines, it will be inconvenient to make inferior repairs, though stakes can, of course, be driven down through the netting if necessary.—Webb Donnell, in American Gardening.

GARDEN AND ORCHARD.

A low, spreading tree is least affected by the winds.

The kind of soil has much to do with the quality of fruit.

Always remove dead or decaying wood from growing trees.

It is not too late yet to fill vacant places in the orchard.

A fast-growing tree is not apt to produce very much fruit.

All superfluous branches are a needless drain upon the resources of the tree.

In pruning the grapes it is a good plan to allow five canes to each post, cutting back yearly.

Red clover is one of the best plants for orchards, it keeps the ground loose and enriches the soil.

Pruning is done for two reasons: To make symmetrical, long-lived trees and to cause fruitfulness.

The most important thing in pear culture is good, well-drained soil. Train the trees carefully while young.

When trees are badly infested with bark lice, one of the best remedies is to wash them with a strong solution of tobacco, to which is added the same quantity of soap suds.—St. Louis Republic.

The city council Monday evening instructed the mayor and city clerk to make a proposition to Mr. Abbott, who recently came here to explain his voting machine, to have him place four of the voting machines here before March 1, 1898, and to Oct. 15, 1898, at $200 each. The question whether the city shall purchase the machines is to be left to the voters of the city to decide.—Coldwater Courier.

Mrs. Philo Hall, of Detroit, had a narrow escape from death by lightning Tuesday morning. She was standing on the back porch when a bolt struck the roof of the house, tearing off shingles and parting the frame work of the building, after which it passed down and struck the knife she held in her hand and completely encircled her. This is Mrs. Hall's second similiar experience within a month.—Morenci Observer.

A farmer and his family, consisting of a wife and small boy, passed through here last night, on his way from Schoolcraft, this state, to some point in New York state. He drove a good team, with a lumber wagon and buggy dragging behind. The wagon was made of lapped siding, Queen Anne style and truss roof, open at the ends and formed one of the most complete houses on wheels we have seen in some time. They seemed to be enjoying life. They stopped but a few moments in Adrian.—Messenger.

The Dundee canning factory began operations canning peas Wednesday, and is working part of each day this week. Next week it is expected that the work will be much larger, with a large yield of peas. About half a dozen men and some 40 ladies are employed at present, and it is desired to increase the number of ladies to 100 for next week. Manager Barrett requires the most scrupulous cleanliness in the performance of all parts of the work and stock to be canned. The goods are put up under the name of Pure Food Canning Co. of Dundee. The canning of string beans will follow peas.—Dundee Reporter.

Hudson, July 3.—A severe electrical storm passed over this city last evening. All the numbers in the telephone office were burned out, and Miss Hattie Eaton, the operator, was severely shocked. At the same time Mrs. S. B. Preston's barn, on Elm street, was struck and burned to the ground. The household goods of Rev. Smith, Free Methodist minister, stored there, were destroyed. During a storm Thursday noon, James Donnelly, an implement dealer, of this place, took refuge in a barn, near Bear Lake. The building was struck by lightning, and Mr. Donnelly and his team knocked senseless. They recovered all right, however.—Adrian Times.

The law making the duty of judges of probate to issue marriage licences and perform ceremonies of marriage in certain cases will take effect August 29, and the secretary of state has issued a circular calling the attention of the probate judges to the law. The statute is intended for the protection of the reputation of certain females. Special attention is called to the provision of the law requiring strict secrecy to be observed concerning marriages of this class. They are not to be talked about by the judges, their deputies or assistants, or by the physician indorsing the application. A penalty is provided for the publishers of newspapers who give publicity to such marriages.—Dundee Reporter.

An unfeeling exchange has discovered that when the question is popped to an Adrian girl she blushes and trembles a little and says she will give the matter careful consideration. The Hillsdale girl looks surprised and sits with lips parted for five or six moments, and then says it came sooner than she expected, but it's all right. The Addison girl drops her eyes resignedly, pats the carpet with a neat boot and responds: "The Lord's will be done!" The Hudson girl grins very sweetly and says: "Wouldn't that kill me!" and then lays her head on his shoulder to think it over. The Clayton girl looks him squarely in the eyes and says: "Why, cert. Do you reckon I've been letting you hug me around here for two months just for recreation?"—Adrian Messenger. The Tecumseh girls are obliged for the above pointers.

Lansing Republican, 1: In view of the numerous warnings to farmers this year from wheat buyers to cut the rye out of their wheat, with the alternative of accepting a much lower price for the latter crop, the following, related by an Ingham county farmer, will be of interest: "In the good old days of dollar wheat I solved this rye question. I heeded the injunction of holy writ and let the wheat and tares grow together until the harvest time, but followed it no further, but bound the grain all together in bundles. Then at thrashing time I had two extra men with broadax and block, who cut off the heads of the rye, which always extend a foot or two above the wheat, before thrashing. I thus saved rye enough to pay for the extra men, and had an article of wheat so nearly free of rye as to sell for the highest price."—Adrian Times.

The weak spot in the public school system in Ann Arbor is in the ward schools. The high school is the best in the state and in congratulating ourselves on this fact we are apt to transfer the reputation of the high school to the ward schools, and this transfer is hardly warranted by the facts. The main trouble in the ward schools lies in the fact that the city has some inefficient teachers there, who weigh down the work of the good teachers which the city also has. A bad system of employing only Ann Arbor high school graduates keeps out any fresh blood and unfortunately too many of the teachers hold only the lowest grade of diplomas granted by the high school. There is not a proper system of visitation in vogue in the ward schools, so that the board is not enabled to weed out the inefficient in teachers. The good hard working teachers fare no better than the poorer teachers and some of the incentive for hard work is thus taken away. There is great need of a shaking up of our ward schools.—Ann Arbor Argus.

THE KAISER AND MR. FRITH.

Small Prince's First Attempt at Painting Was Disastrous.

Although Prof. Knackfuss is usually credited with assisting the kaiser in the production of his surprising pictures, the German monarch owes his earliest introduction to the mysteries of art to an English painter, says the London Chronicle. The first time the kaiser handled a brush was at Windsor, when Mr. Frith was painting the picture of the prince of Wales' marriage for the queen. All the royal personages gave sittings to the artist and the kaiser, then a little four-year-old prince, spent several mornings in the room where the picture was being painted. To keep the child quiet Mr. Frith gave him some paints and brushes and allowed him to dabble on one of the unfinished corners of the canvas.

As a natural result of this very injudicious proceeding the prince's face was in a very few minutes covered with streaks of green, blue and vermilion. The sight of his smeared face terrified his governess, who begged the artist to remove the colors; and Mr. Frith, armed with rags and turpentine, had nearly completed his task when the pungent spirit found its way into a scratch upon the child's cheek. The future kaiser screamed with pain, assaulted the eminent painter with his fists and hid himself under a large table, where he yelled until he was tired. Mr. Frith declares in his "Reminiscences" that the little prince showed a most unforgiving spirit and revenged himself afterward by sitting so badly that the painter failed altogether to produce a satisfactory likeness.

SURE OF A FINE FUNERAL.

Men of Lubec, Me., Provide for Mortuary Emergencies.

The town of Lubec, Me., is one of the go-ahead villages of the Pine Tree state, and the one thing wanting to enable it to keep up with the procession is a hearse. The citizens investigated the condition of surrounding towns, and learned that every one of them had a hearse, and they considered it a burning and municipal shame that Lubec should be so far behind the times. Therefore, it was resolved to have one, although, according to the rates of longevity in Lubec, it was not considered likely there would be much use for it, says the Lewiston Journal.

A mass meeting of the citizens was called to discuss the grave subject. The enthusiasm was unbounded, and it was at once decided to purchase the vehicle by voluntary subscriptions, making a sort of joint stock concern or hearse corporation. Each subscriber chipped in one dollar, but the wary and thrifty Lubecker insisted upon a proviso whereby he is enabled to get a show for his white ally. It was unanimously agreed that if any stockholder had use for the hearse within a certain number of years from the date of his subscription, he, the said subscriber, should be entitled to a rebate of the sum paid in.

Now the Lubecker awaits the approach of the grim destroyer without emotion. In the event of his death, he is assured of a first-class funeral, with plumes and all the outward trappings of woe, and he gets his money back besides.

According to the Baltimore News the farmers of Maryland are becoming interested in the movement for a general cultivation of tobacco and for the introduction of the raising of rice. In earlier days tobacco was grown throughout the state, but for the last half century it has been confined to the counties of southern Maryland. Rice has never been grown in the state, but the recent success with this crop in lower New Jersey has led man to think that it can be profitably taken up in Delaware and Maryland. The yield of rice is from 35 to 60 bushels an acre, and the net profit is said to be from $25 to $45 an acre.

Racing matinees are of great benefit to those breeding roadsters, their horses are brought to the notice of the public in this way and many good sales are made as a result of matinees. Another matinee will be given soon, the date not yet settled on.

At the same time it is backed by wealthy Ohio capitalists and will be one of many similar exchanges with state connections. The apparatus will be the latest and affairs managed by Tecumseh people.

BOYS' BICYCLE MEET.

Good Weather—Fine Races.

The boys' bicycle meet Wednesday passed off pleasantly and was a success financially although the attendance would have been much larger had the meet been properly advertised. In the road race, 2 mile handicap, which came off at 10:30 a. m. there were seven starters and the finish was very exciting. Knapp, of Adrian, won the time prize in 6.12; Fred Waring, 1st; Donald Wright, 2nd; John Calhoun, Clinton, 3rd; Harry Rosacrans, 4th; Eddie Schmitt, Clinton, 5th.

The other events took place in the afternoon at Bills' Driving Park and resulted as follows:

One-half mile novice—1st, Charles Waring, 1.31 2-5; 2nd, Donald Wright; 3rd, Fred Waring.

One mile open, best 2 in 3—1st Knapp; 2nd, Vern Pattison; 3rd, Ed. Schmitt. Time, 2.57 1-5, 2.59 4-5.

Quarter mile dash—1st Donald Wright 2nd, Wade Jones; 3rd, Bert Gillem. Time, 40 2-5.

Two mile handicap—50, Fred Waring, 1st, 6.18; scr., Knapp, 2nd, 5.29; 35, E. Schmitt, 3rd, 5.47; 25, V. Pattison, 4th, 6.04.

Half mile open—1st Donald Wright; 2nd, Harry Rosacrans; 3rd, Chas. Waring. Time, 1.21 1-5.

Leon Rosacrans gave an exhibition, going a quarter in 28 4-5 seconds.

The Blue Ribbon races, at Detroit, beginning July 13th, are exciting greater interest as the time approaches. The M & M and Chamber of Commerce stakes—24 entries in each—will be hotly contested. Among the many flyers to be there are the five horses that last year started out as green ones, and before the close of the season had records better than 2-10, one trotter and four pacers; Page 2.09 3-4, Brightlight 2.08 1-4, Heir-at Law 2.07 1-2, Miss Jennings 2.08 1-4, and Planet 2.09 1-2. In the M & M stake there will be Anne Allerton by Allerton, Red Star by Red Wilkes, Starmont by Earlmont, Vida by Pilot Medium, Hazel McKinney by McKinney, and others equally as good. With the track better than ever before, sensational records are looked for in all events and each day has its special features.

THE HAYDEN MUSICAL.

A Musical Program, a Delighted Audience, Followed by a Pretty Dancing Party.

One hundred and seventy-five guests responded to the invitations of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Hayden and Miss Mead to attend a musical at the armory, given in honor of Miss Mabel Hayden, Wednesday evening. The armory was tastefully decorated with palms and other plants. The musical program rendered, especially the selections by Miss Hayden, gave much pleasure to the guests, and together with the dance at the close, made one of the best social evenings ever enjoyed in Tecumseh. The idea of entertaining outside of one's home is new for Tecumseh, but nevertheless delightful, especially in the entertainment of a large company.

Among those present from out of town were Misses Margaret Knapp of Adrian, Etta Baker, Detroit, Emily Palmer and Blanche Bigelow, of Flint, Edith Evans, Louchelle Hinsdell and Lou VanGorder, of Elgin; Messrs. and and Mesdames Loree, of Lawrence, and L. W. Kimball, of Clinton; Mesdames Albert Boyce, of Detroit, and Clara Grand, of Ft. Wayne; and Messrs. Frank Fletcher, of Ann Arbor, Carl Burton, of New York City, Will Reid and Roy Hinsdell, of Elgin, Dan Weldon, Lapeer, and Frank Turner, Flint.

Racing Matinee.

The matinee at Bills' Driving Park Saturday afternoon drew out a large attendance and was one of the most interesting given on the track. A fine string of horses were on the ground and each race was exciting and closely contested and but one race was finished in straight heats and that was the named race.

In green race No. 1 three started—Lady Vedder, b m owned by C. Vedder; May Day, c m Bidwell Bros.; Gibson Boy, g g Will Gibson, Macon. Great interest was taken by the locals in this race as the horses were well known and evenly matched. In the second heat from start to finish May Day and Gibson Boy were neck and neck and down the stretch McKee made one of the finest drives seen on the track. Lady Vedder after the first heat was unsteady (something new for her) consequently the race was between the other two and a pretty one it was but May Day proved to have the most speed.

May Day	3	1	1	1
Lady Vedder	1	3	3	3
Gibson Boy	2	2	2	2

Time, 1.32, 1.31 1-2, 1.30, 1.31.

Green race No. 2, four contested. This was a pretty race and better time was made. Grosslet, a chestnut roan gelding owned by Wm. Lapham, Onsted; Calanda c g L. Knowlds, Wolf Creek; Lady Beard ch m, P. Cole, Onsted, and C. J. V., g g, VanDoren, Adrian, were all good ones. Calanda though speedy was flighty and, while scoring for the 4th heat, collided with Lady Beard resulting in a broken wheel and was drawn. Lady Beard is a promising pacer. She is a pretty animal and moves well. With proper handling she will pace fast.

Grosslet	1	3	1	1
C. J. V.	3	1	2	2
Lady Beard	2	2	3	3
Calanda	4	4	4	Dr

Time, 1.18 3-4, 1.25 3-4, 1.20 1-4, 1.24 1-2.

The named race had seven starters and although won by Veto, Jr., in straight heats was no walk away. In the 1st heat Prairie Lil was a close second and in the other two heats Corktown hustled him.

Veto Jr. b g. Jas. Segar, Rome	1	1	1

Time, 1.17, 1.14-2, 1.15-2.

But two started in the 2.40 trot or pace, Central Boy, Geo. Teachout's gamey little pacer, and Frank B., owned by Jas. Vesceilus, of Milan. This race was a hot one as the time will show. Frank B. was steady as a clock and won the second heat in 1.14 but Central Boy was too fast for him and in the fourth heat showed he had any amount of speed. While making the great time of 1.10, could have done much better had it been necessary.

Central Boy, b g	1	2	1	1
Frank B. g g	2	1	2	2

Time, 1.17, 1.14, 1.12, 1.10

In the bicycle race (half mile dash-best 3 in 5) there were three contestants. It was an easy victory for Rosacrans.

C. H. Hay, Brooklyn,	2	2	2
Wm. Wallace, Tecumseh,	3	3	3

Time, 1.17. 1.32. 1.14.

The 100 yard foot race was very close and was won by Guy J. Davidson in 11 1-4 seconds, R. Mead a close second and Lavern Smith 3rd.

Starter—R. J. Wheeler, Toledo, O.

Timers—P. W. A. Fitzsimmons and J. A. Boyd.

DOWN IN A COAL MINE.

BY R. T. MINTURN.

John Barton and Hiram Adams lived in the small village of Kingston. They were inseparable friends, having been schoolmates together for some years, and when, a few months before my story opens, they were both made orphans on the same day by a terrible accident in the mines, each found a family depending on him for support.

Neither shirked this burden of responsibility. Manfully and well, during the long summer months, they worked side by side in the gloomy caverns of the earth.

One bright day in the latter part of April, an incident occurred which neither of the two friends will be likely to forget, though they live to be centenarians.

A new shaft, some 70 feet in depth, had been sunk during the preceding summer, and a great many miners—John Barton and Hiram Adams among the number—were still employed in making excavations.

Blasting by powder is by no means unusual in mines; or, in fact, in any work requiring the speedy removal of masses of earth and rock.

On this particular occasion a blast of more than ordinary proportions had been prepared, only a few yards from the bottom of the shaft.

To the barrels of powder was attached a fuse, by means of which it would be fired when the proper time arrived.

The miners in the groups were drawn up to the sunlight above, until only a few remained in the dusky, half-illumined recesses underground.

John Barton had been the first to volunteer, and, therefore, was appointed as the person whose duty it would be to ignite the slow match.

"Let me take your place," Hiram pleaded. "Think of your mother and sister, if any accident should happen, John, you know it is dangerous."

"Yes; and I think that a very good reason why I should not let you take my place."

"Then let me stay with you," Hiram urged, an expression of anxiety on his countenance, as he thought of his friend's peril.

"A very sensible idea!" John exclaimed, laughingly. "If you stay with me, the danger will be increased, because the bucket will go up more slowly with two than with one. Now, no more arguments. You know how obstinate I am, and— Hello! That's the signal! Good-by, old fellow! I'll be with you up above in a few moments."

"Remember, John; be careful," were Hiram's last words, as he and the few remaining miners ascended in the bucket, leaving John Barton far below, every instant growing more indistinct, until only the light in his hat could be distinguished glimmering faintly in the darkness.

Soon even that disappeared, and Hiram Adams, looking very anxious and discontented, found himself in the glaring sunshine, and stepped out of the bucket on terra firma.

He was bewildered by the sudden transition from gloom to light. Then his eyes rested on the pale, agitated face of pretty Annie Barton, who had brought her brother's midday lunch, as usual.

He went over to her and spoke reassuringly, and tried to convince her that there was no cause for alarm.

"They have lowered the bucket," he said, presently. "Watch, and you will see the rope jerk twice, the signal from John that it is ready to be drawn up."

The girl endeavored to be calm, but she trembled violently.

An indefinite fear, a strange feeling of apprehension, weighed on Hiram's heart.

The group of swarthy-visaged miners, who were chatting with wives and sweethearts around the opening of the shaft, suddenly grew silent.

It was a moment of suspense, for the boy in the gloomy caverns, 70 feet under ground, was then engaged in lighting the slow match.

The men who were to turn the crank grasped the handles firmly, and no one spoke.

"Ah!"

It was with a sigh of relief that Annie Barton, Hiram Adams and every person in the crowd saw the rope jerked twice.

The match had been applied. John would be with them in a few moments, and all would hear the muffled, rumbling sound of the great explosion in the depths of the earth.

A flush of color rose to Annie Barton's cheek and Hiram Adams felt his heart beating rapidly and his breath coming in short gasps.

The men at the crank worked with a will, when they heard a dull, muffled sound, the rope slackened, and—

"Oh, heavens!"

Annie Barton started forward, her face blanched and a look of horror glazing her wide-open eyes.

Hiram Adams staggered as though shot. Then a man spoke:

"The bucket has capsized—struck the partition. The boy has fallen out!"

Women fainted, strong men grew weak and shuddered, as they thought of the explosion that was now expected every moment.

The suspense was terrible. A boy, perhaps mangled and helpless, was lying at the bottom of the shaft, and the fuse was burning slowly toward the mass of powder.

"Courage, Annie! I'll save him!"

It was Hiram Adams who spoke. In a second he had regained his presence of mind, and now, running his arm through the loop of a lantern, he leaped over the box which surrounded the opening of the shaft, crying to the terror-stricken miners:

"Hold tight till I reach the bucket, then lower me like lightning to the bottom!"

He grasped the rope, twined his legs around it, then slid downward. The rough rope cut his hands, but he did not feel the pain.

Down, down, like a flash he descended through the darkness—down to his helpless friend and to the match which was slowly but surely burning its way toward the powder.

Thank heaven! He has reached the bucket! Another instant he has reached the bottom of the shaft! Is he too late? It is time for the explosion—hush!

A cold perspiration broke out on every brow. There was an awful silence down below and silence up above. Annie Barton tried to pray.

The agony of suspense was terrible. Men could hear each other's hearts beat in the awful stillness. Would the end never come?

How was it with Hiram Adams?

As he reached the bottom, one glance told him all. His friend was stunned and senseless.

He leaped from the bucket, and the light of the lantern showed him the place where the fusee had been laid.

The glimmering little line of fire was within an inch of the train of powder!

Another second and there would be a flash, an explosion louder than thunder, and then the walls round about would be shattered into a thousand fragments.

One little inch of the fusee stood between two human beings and a frightful death.

With a cry the boy sprang forward. He pressed his smarting hands upon the last particle of the burning match, and he lay there for a moment with clenched teeth and suspended breath. Then he arose.

Huzza! The fusee was extinguished, anud he and his friend were safe.

He lifted the insensible form of John Barton into the bucket and gave the signal to be drawn up.

What a thrill of joy ran through every heart when the watchers in the sunlight saw that welcome sign. How the men worked at the crank! How long the seconds seemed, while the buckets ascended up, up, up! until a cheer such as men never before uttered burst from the assembled miners, when they saw, rising out of the earth, the figure of Hiram Adams supporting his insensible friend.

"He is not dead—only stunned," were the young hero's first words, when gentle hands relieved him of his burden and men crowded around him with loud congratulations and women kissed him in the exuberance of their joy.

But when Hiram saw the glad light leap into Annie Barton's eyes, and the warm, red flush suffuse her cheeks—when he marked the silent look of speechless gratitude she gave him—he felt more than rewarded for his act of heroism in rescuing a friend from death.

The sequel to my story is a simple one.

Besides a broken arm and a few ugly bruises, John Barton sustained no serious injuries, and in a few days he was once more himself.

Both he and his friend received lucrative clerkships in the office of the company, and a few years later, pretty Annie Barton became the wife of Hiram Adams, the preserver of her brother's life.

And so it happened that neither of the two friends had reason to regret the fearful peril they encountered when, on one memorable April day, they were brought face to face with death down in a coal mine.—Golden Days

THE METRIC SYSTEM.

Its Introduction Would Simplify All Farm Transactions.

A time-honored absurdity is found in the British corn (grain) markets, says Texas Farm and Ranch. All kinds of grain are sold in quarters. If the quarter meant any particular quantity, the same at all times and with all substances, we could learn to realize what the term meant. But the weight of the quarter depends upon what kind of grain is intended. If it is of wheat from California 500 pounds is one quarter; if the wheat is English grown 504 pounds make a quarter; if it should be Russian barley, 420 pounds are one quarter; Russian oats are sold in quarters of 594 pounds. Oats from elsewhere, 320 pounds make one quarter; English and Scotch oats go 330 pounds per quarter. Schoolboys are taught that 112 pounds make one hundredweight, 20 hundredweight one ton, and that four quarters equal one ton. Hence the quarter should be 560 pounds. Much confusion results in this country from reading the English corn markets, and no wonder. And yet we have a similar custom: For instance, a bushel of corn is 56 pounds, a bushel of oats is 32 pounds and a bushel of wheat is 60. The English paradox is easily explained on the same principle; the quarter varies with the specific gravity of the substance weighed. Let us get the beam out of our own eyes before we make too much ado about the mote in that of our neighbor, John Bull.

Cheap Railroading.

It is quite true, says the Engineering and Mining Journal, that the kingdom of Denmark does not possess a very extended area, but the government, by building railroads and buying those built by private enterprise has now succeeded in giving to its inhabitants a very cheap means of locomotion, and at the same time owns a valuable asset for a large amount of its national debt. The freight rates are already the lowest known. A bill introduced by the government proposes to abolish return tickets and only to issue direct tickets between all stations. One will be able to travel the whole length and breadth of Denmark third-class for a sum not exceeding $1.50, and the distance covered is about 300 by 200 miles. This is a reduction of 50 per cent.

Roses discovered in tombs containing Egyptian mummies often have their colors perfect, even though some of those found must be over 3,000 years old.

Lennox Marvin.

BY JENNY [illegible]EN.

"A CHARMING tableau—do I interrupt?" questioned Lennox Marvin, as he stopped for a moment on the threshold of the pretty morning room, where two girls sat sewing. The picture thus presented to him was indeed one no artist eye could idly scan. The sun shed its rays here, not with its usual dazzling brilliance, but through cunning device of blind and curtain, with a shaded softness, playing at light and shadow with the tinted wall and the moss-green carpet. Birds in gilded cages caroled sweetly, here and there hung some gem of art, flowers, color everywhere, but color so exquisitely blended that it seemed one perfect whole. And fitting the setting were those within. To Lennox Marvin's question both heads were raised. Over the fair, sweet cheek of one crept a rosy flush; the little hands which held the work trembled, then the blond head bent lower, and the long lashes, with their dark fringe in such contrast to the pure skin, hid the violet eyes from intrusive gaze. One swift glance of the man rested on that bowed head, then he advanced to take the hand the other extended him.

"What welcome shall we offer to reward you for showing us the light of your countenance at this hour? I thought you eschewed early rising."

"On the contrary, I am fond of it, but I did not dream Miss Merle ever favored those who presented themselves before her at so unseasonable a time. What say you, Miss Gore? Can you not put to blush this slur upon my habits?"

"I am too much in ignorance of Mr. Marvin's habits to venture an opinion."

A quick shade of annoyance crossed the handsome face, as Lennox turned to devote himself with all the empressement he could so well assume to his fair hostess, and in a moment a light footfall announced that Helen Gore had left the room. Alone, his manner changed; the empressement fled, and an indifference barely veiled by politeness took its place

"How long has Miss Gore been with you?" he questioned.

"Three years. You know she lost her parents in the same year my father died? I had known her since we were children, and when she was left dependent I offered her a home with me as a companion. I have never had reason to repent the offer. Had you ever met her before this winter, Mr. Marvin?"

"Some four years ago, during the summer, we spent several weeks together at a fashionable watering place. She was very young then, an idol with both father and mother, and as joyous-hearted as the birds. It must have been a sad blow to her, stricken of parents and fortune at one fell swoop."

The next afternoon Helen Gore, slowly sauntering up the broad avenue leading to Miss Merle's spacious grounds, heard a quick step behind her. As it came nearer and nearer, and finally side by side fell in with her own slow tread, the same scarlet flush mantled her cheek, but she took no other notice.

"Miss Helen, why so cruel?" Lennox Marvin earnestly asked. "Are you never going to give me one word of welcome?"

"Never!" broke from the girl's lips. "For you I have no welcome."

"And why not for me? Why do you single me out? Have you so entirely forgotten the past?"

"Pardon me, Mr. Marvin. When you asked me if I had no welcome for you, I forgot you were no longer addressing Miss Gore, who leaned upon a father's arm for protection, who sobbed her grief away upon a mother's tender bosom, whose wealth brought friends and lovers to her feet—but only Miss Gore, the dependent, who has none to shield her from whatever cruel winds fate ordains should blow upon her. A different thing, is it not? With that past time she has naught to do. It has gone out of her life. Allow me, then, to bid you welcome," and one white hand was extended under the shade of the elms.

The man waved it back. "Not thus can I take it. True, you have lost your fortune and parents. Take care lest with them you have lost your own generous heart. Is it possible the girl who has just said such bitter words is she who, under the pale light of a young moon, looked into my eyes with trust and confidence only four years ago? Can time have wrought such change? Helen, I suffered then!"

"You suffered!" the girl interrupted, her seeming calm all gone. "What do you know of suffering? It is an idle word—an empty breath—to such as you. I am contented in my new life, Lennox Marvin. Leave me in peace. Miss Merle, the heiress, awaits your coming."

And, with flying feet, she sped past him, eluding his detaining grasp, into the friendly shelter of the house. He followed slowly and reluctantly, with a face white as her own, on which was written a vague wonderment as to what it all could mean.

In vain Miss Merle lavished her sweetest smiles that night. True, Lennox Marvin was beside her, and she it was whom he addressed, but his eyes ever wandered to the slender little figure on the other side of the room, of which he could see nothing but the glimmer of the golden hair and the little hand as it rose and fell with each stitch she placed in her embroidery. But of all this, Helen knew nothing. She caught only the tender murmur of the tones, heard the low, rippling laugh in answer, and on her work there fell one large, scalding tear, which blurred the present from her sight, but brought into vivid reality the past. She saw it all herself as she stood one night upon the piazza, with Lennox Marvin by her side. He was going away the next morning. She was not to see him again until their return home, but as he said good-by and whispered: "When we meet again, Helen, I shall have a story to tell you," she had looked her willingness to listen when he should be ready to tell, and gone to her rest with the wild, sweet dreams of him. Then came the sudden crash in the commercial world, followed by the loss of both parents, and when, alone and unprotected, she turned to look for the strong arm which should be her shield, it had failed her. One cousin, adopted by her father and almost a brother to her, had been her only stay, and he was powerless to aid her; and so, with her young heart full of desolate bitterness, she turned to face the world. Then came Lina Merle's offer, gladly, eagerly accepted, and in the quiet of her life she was learning to forget, until he crossed her path again, when there swept over her the humiliating conviction that, spite of treachery and deceit, she loved him still, and that she must leave this house ere her secret broke its bounds, ere he reaped his last full triumph.

In vain when she told Miss Merle of her resolution, for which she would assign no reason, did she seek to alter it. "I must go," had been her answer. "I have so much to be thankful for. Do not ask me to lessen the obligation by trying to oppose me."

When from Miss Merle's lips the following morning Lennox Marvin heard this decision, he turned to her with fierce inquiry:

"How happens it that young and beautiful Miss Gore stands thus alone? Let me tell you a story, Miss Merle, and ask your womanly sympathy. Four years ago I loved this girl madly, desperately. Heaven help me, I love her yet." In his eagerness the speaker failed to note how deathly white his listener's face had grown at these words from the lips of the man who once had said he hoped she might be spared the knowledge suffering brings; had fallen the cruel truth which had taught her sorrow's first lesson, but, with woman's pride and the strength given in her need, she gave no further sign, as he continued: "One night, the last time I saw her ere we met under your roof, I had almost told my secret. I thought my face had left me naught to put in words. I thought she had been glad to read therein the story. After she left me and I still paced up and down, thinking of the eyes which had last looked into mine, and whose wonderful violet depths I dreamed I had penetrated, her father joined me. Whether he, too, had read my secret and wished to spare me further I know not, but he told me his daughter's hand was promised to her cousin; that the dearest wish of his life was to see them united. I asked him if it were with her consent. 'She is but a child,' he answered, 'but she has always loved him, and has never opposed my desire.' The next week I sailed for Europe. Of all that followed I heard nothing for months. Of her absolute marriage I dreaded to learn the certainty, but you may imagine my surprise when I found her under your roof on my return—found her regarding me with aversion and hatred—even driven from the home she had found with you, because at times desecrated by my presence. Tell her from me it shall not be so, but that once again the wide sea shall roll between us, if she will but remain under your protection. Good-by, Miss Merle. Heaven bless you. I leave her in your care."

Ere she could find words to answer he had gone out into the clear, fresh air with hasty strides; he put, as he hoped, the past forever behind him, until a sound reached his ear—a sound which made him stop as if turned to stone. Only a horse's hoofs, dashing madly down the avenue! Only a riderless horse flying past him! Miss Merle had told him Helen had gone to ride. He had determined never to look on the face which had caused him such agony again, yet, with a great anguish at his heart, he now hastened onward, praying only that once more he might behold her, free from scar or stain. On and on, until by the roadside his quick eye noted a something which made him, strong man though he was, reel as if intoxicated—a form which lay as it had been thrown, in a disordered heap. Gently, tenderly he lifted it in his arms and looked at the fair, sweet face, with its perfect beauty unmarred, but the eyes veiled by lids which quivered not, the mouth half apart, from which issued no breath. A great dread rose in Lennox Marvin's heart. True, he clasped the one woman he had loved to his breast, but it was only her lifeless form. He rained mad kisses upon cheek, lip and brow, called her the thousand names his heart had so often silently uttered, implored for but one little sign in answer, chafed the cold hands, breathed his breath into the parted mouth, until at last a fluttering sigh escaped the lips; the eyes, looking like violets wet with dew, opened softly and met the gaze of the man who held her. "Yes, Helen, you are lying powerless in his arms whom you so hate. Spurn me, scorn me if you will; only let me feel you live; only let me know your sweet form is somewhere on this wide earth, and I will not grieve you by my presence. Why, oh, my darling—why could you not love me?—I, who have loved you all these years—who would so willingly lay down my life to win one answering word of love."

The words burst from the man's white lips almost unconsciously. Was she dreaming? Was it death's waking? In the eyes which met hers she read only truth, and when stronger she heard all the explanation of the past, the mistake of a father who had not known his child's heart, and her own after error. She looked into Lennox Marvin's face with the sweet confidence of a child shining through unbidden tears, and the next moment her head was drawn down to the heart which was to be her shelter forevermore.

JULIUS HOBBS, M. D.

Our fellow townsman, C. A. Wright the Druggist did not expect so soon to get favorable reports from them who procured from him free samples of Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills. The tests made so far by the users of the free samples, show that these remarkable pills produce favorable results with a degree of quickness heretofore unknown in the treatment of Kidney, Bladder and Blood diseases, and allied ailments. Those who have used them have been encouraged to persevere with the treatment, knowing that they could not expect the five days treatment contained in the sample box, notwithstanding the remarkable results obtained so far, would effect a complete cure. Kidney disease is of imperceptible and insidious growth: it takes months to develop even the symtoms. Reason and experience suggest that it takes more than a few days to cure. Fortunately, Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills begin the good work of cure with the first dose. The results are evident from the beginning. The delightful effects of these Pills induce the patient to continue their use until cured. They are easy to take, easy to get, and bountiful in good results.

THE CLAIRVOYANT OPERATOR.

She Buys or Sells Wheat with a Twist of the Wrist.

An odd sight is to be witnessed daily on the Consolidated exchange. Visitors for some time have noted a little group of women who stand all day long in the gallery at the Broadway end of the building, says the New York Mail and Express. They also notice one particular broker on the floor who is continually craning his neck and glancing at one of the women in that group. Every once in awhile, after a glance, he jumps into the wheat pit, which is just under the edge of the gallery, and makes a transaction.

Only the observing will notice, however, any connection between his operations and the woman whom he watches. From 10:30 o'clock till three o'clock she stands there, with one hand resting over the railing. With slight movements of this hand she gives orders to buy and sell wheat to the broker. The number of fingers extended indicates the number of thousands of bushels to be done, and a twist up or down of the whole hand tells the broker whether to buy or sell.

But that is not the queer part of it. A stranger asked one of the brokers, a friend of his, who the woman was.

"Why," was the reply, "that's the clairvoyant operator. She's a real clairvoyant all right and she reads the future turns in the market and buys or sells accordingly. Or at least she thinks she reads the future, and maybe she does, for she has lasted longer than the ordinary woman speculator. She has been at it for months."

LORD SALISBURY'S ROUTINE.

In Spite of His Arduous Work He Keeps in Good Health.

It is a marvel that one who does so much mental work and takes so little exercise as Lord Salisbury should be so seldom ill, says the London Sketch. "I never meet a well-known blue brougham," remarked Earl Granville some ten years ago, "but I say: 'See, he has got time to walk even from Arlington street to Downing street.'" The blue brougham was Lord Salisbury's. It has been steadily in use this year. Lord Salisbury enjoys a saunter in St. James' Park or along the embankment, but for pleasures of this sort he has not had much time during the Cretan crisis. Nor at any time does he care for sport or sports. To these he is as indifferent as Mr. Chamberlain. He has played a few strokes at golf to humor Mr. Balfour, but if he entered the parliamentary tournament he would require a specially high handicap. It is only in his chemical laboratory that he finds any congenial recreation. During his visit to the south of France the prime minister will fortunately escape the domestic worries of Downing street, but the burden of foreign affairs will always be with him at such a critical time as the present.

Brewery Syndicate Planned.

Detroit, July 7—Proprietors of the 26 breweries in Detroit are planning to sell out to a syndicate composed chiefly of English capitalists. The considerations are to be cash and stock and bonds of the new corporation. Nearly all the breweries have signed an agreement for the above purpose. A result of the consolidation will be a rise in the price of beer from four and five dollars per barrels to six dollars.

New Fruit Pest.

Galesburg, July 3. — A pest, new to this locality, is attacking fruit trees in this vicinity. The damage is inflicted by a small worm, representing one stage in its development. Young pear trees seem to have a peculiar attraction for it, although it is to be found on all fruit producing vegetation. Unless speedily checked the potato bug will be harmless in comparison.

Master of pharmacy, Morrice A. Miner, of Chicago; master of science, Eben S. Wheeler, of Sault Ste. Marie; master of arts, Lawrence C. Hull, of Lawrenceville, N. J.; doctor of science, Charles L. Doolittle, professor of astronomy in the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; doctor of laws, Daniel Putnam, principal of the Michigan state normal at Ypsilanti; Edward Wolfin, of the University of Munich; Henry F. Severance, United States judge of the Western district of Michigan, and Very Rev. Robert H. Story, of the University of Glasgow.

Great interest attached itself to the annual commencement oration by President Andrew S. Draper, of the University of Illinois, and it was everywhere conceded to be one of the ablest delivered here in many years. Dr. Draper was introduced by President Angell in a highly complimentary manner. The subject of President Draper's address was "The Recovery of the Law."

WIPED OUT BY FIRE.

Flames Destroy the Best Part of the Village of Lake Ann.

Manistee, July 4. — Lake Ann, a village of nearly 1,000 inhabitants, is almost desolate, as the result of a disastrous fire that swept through the town. The fire started in Habbler's stave mill, swept across the track to the south, taking the depot and hotel. The business portion suffered, and most of the residences are destroyed. The heat was terrible and the inhabitants had to flee for their lives. Thirty-one families are utterly destitute and in need of food and clothing. The loss of property is estimated at $75,000.

Death of Mrs. Austin Blair.

Jackson, July 5. — Mrs. Austin Blair, widow of Michigan's "war governor," is dead from nervous prostration, aged 63. During 1861 and 1862 Mrs. Blair visited the soldiers of the Twentieth and Twenty-sixth regiments encamped here and gave them a mother's attention. Her death was sudden. The governor died three years ago.

Hotel Normandie, Detroit, Reduces Rates.

Determined to continue catering to the popular demand for good hotel accommodations at low prices, we have decided to reduce the rates on fifty (50) rooms from $2 50 to $2 00 per day, and rooms with bath from $3 50 to $3 per day.

The popular rate of 50 cents per meal, established when the Normandie was first opened, will be continued.

The change of rates will in no way affect the quality, and we assure the traveling public that our constant aim in the future will be, as in the past, namely: To furnish the BEST accommodations for the rates charged.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

Order by Mail.

No greater aid to the shopping community has ever been devised than the Mail Order System. Ladies living at a distance and occupied with the various duties of life cannot always find time to visit the city to purchase the various articles they may desire. To them the system is invaluable. They may be a thousand miles away, but still can purchase their goods as easily and satisfactorily as if they were to visit our store in person. A postal card directed to us will bring you a price list of goods or any samples you may desire to see. You can then sit quietly at home and make your selections without the bother of going to market, and thus escape all the crowding and jostling that is incidental to the large dry goods houses. Our Mail Order Department is well equipped. The most experienced salespeople attend to your wants. They are alive to the swift-changing fashions; their experience in the business teaches them which are the most serviceable and stylish goods. The customer at a distance has sometimes a decided advantage over those who purchase in person. When we receive an order it is placed in the hands of a salesman who knows all about the goods to be selected. He will not make any mistake, and he selects articles that he knows will give the best satisfaction; whereas there are cases when you would not make such judicious purchases yourself.

YOU WANT THE BEST FOR THE PRICE.

This we Guarantee. Send to us for anything in Dry Goods, Carpets, Draperies, Cloaks, Millinery, Parasols, Boys' Clothing, Shoes (Ladies' and Children's), Books, Corsets, or Small Wares, and we will give you our best service, guaranteeing everything to be satisfactory or money refunded.

LOVE'S SHELTERING WAY.

BY MATTY C. NASH.

MARY WINSLOW hurried a little as she climbed into the ten-thirty accommodation train from New Rochelle to New York. The accommodation trains were always crowded; and she wanted very much to get a seat on the side of the car from which she could catch a glimpse of her house, where her babies were. She had almost missed the train lingering over good-by kisses and baby love-making.

She was doing a very bold thing. For the first time in the four years of her married life, she was undertaking something without consulting her husband about it. But it was for his sake—to save him from terrible anxiety; and to do that she would dare anything.

The tears stood in her eyes at the thought of his shoulders, already stooped under their burden of care, and his face so crossed with lines that told as plainly as did the scantily covered crown from which the curly, boyish crop of brown hair had slipped how hard had been, and was, his fight up the stream of fortune.

And his shabby coat and frayed linen! David rarely got any new clothes, and when he did he went to a cheap tailor who did not fit him very well. He was a little man. Mary used to think if he had been a few inches taller he would have cared more for dress. But she was wrong about that. He was very modest and not vainly clever; but he knew it was to be a coat as beautiful as tailor's skill could make it to make him more respected at his office or more loved at home. All beyond those two places was nothing to him.

But Mary loved him. She more than loved him. She put him on a pedestal and crowned him with glory and honor. She broke the alabaster box of her whole being's adoration at his feet; and she would have died for him gladly.

Mary was a large, fair woman, who, richly and fashionably dressed, would have looked like a duchess. As it was, in her simple, home-made gowns and modest bonnet, she only looked like a very beautiful mother, which is more than some duchesses do.

A conventional looking young curate and a handsome, large-featured man of 50, with a deep mourning band on his hat, sat in the seat directly in front of Mary. The elder man had his little daughter, dressed in mourning, on his knee, and he and the curate laughed and chatted with the little girl to amuse her.

"There is a newly made widower," thought Mary; "and he doesn't seem to mind much. I wonder if David would (she had almost said "will") care so little."

Suddenly the older man turned to the curate, and Mary saw his face drawn in an agony of grief.

"Did you ever bury anyone you loved desperately?" he asked.

The curate answered with appropriate courtesy: "No, I have been very fortunate. I have always thought, however, that the only wise way to face such a grief would be philosophically, knowing it was God's will that it should come to all."

"You have never buried anyone you loved desperately. When you come to it I trust that you will not be thinking of philosophy," said the other.

Then they spoke of other things. Mary pulled down her vail to hide her wet cheeks.

"Poor David! He will mind; he will not forget right away," she thought.

A half-hour later, Mary stood in a clean, bare little room high up on the top floor of a quiet boarding-house on a side street. A young doctor with wide-awake, intelligent face was talking to her.

"Yes, Mrs. Robinson," he said, gravely, "the operation is imperative; it is the only way to save your life. If it succeeds, you will become a perfectly strong woman; if it fails, you'll be spared the pain of a lingering death, for you'll not survive the operation more than a half hour at the most. I put the case plainly to you. You must know all the circumstances, all the risks, that you may decide wisely."

"I have decided," she answered, steadily.

"Very well, I will have the nurses here in a little while, and the other doctors will meet me here at a quarter before two. I have spoken to them about it. I was only waiting for a final word from you to complete all the arrangements."

He bade Mary "Good morning," and left her alone.

Mary was naturally rather a coward, especially about little things. Spiders, worms and snakes, even very small ones, made her almost faint; and she was afraid to travel alone, or to sleep in a room by herself. But her pulse was very steady now. It seemed to her to say "David, David, David," as it beat.

She walked over to the window and looked down at the people coming and going in the street. It seemed to her that she had entirely lost her personality. She had really become this Mrs. Robinson she had told the doctor and the boarding-house keeper she was. She was of vital importance to nobody about her. To the doctor and nurses she was a "case," and there were many "cases" like her in the city. The hospitals were full of people who were going to die soon, were dying even now. As she thought of it the black pall of death seemed to settle over her and all she saw, and smother her.

"My husband—my husband!" she gasped; "can I bear it without you?"

Presently she sat down at a little table, and wrote a letter to him. She put his full address with careful clearness on the envelope. Then she wrote a note to the doctor, inclosing her husband's letter in it.

She had never thought of dying

In the fleeting thoughts she had had of death, David had always been there to hold her hand. But now she was liable, even likely, to die alone. Poor Mary! "Alone" meant to her "without David."

"Mrs. Robinson," said Dr. Ellis, when the assistant surgeons and nurses had come, "I feel it due to myself to ask that you repeat before these gentlemen what you said in regard to your understanding of the risk you run in undergoing this operation."

"I know that I may die, but I wish to undergo the operation."

She spoke slowly, with quiet dignity.

"There is no one whom you wish to see, no one who should be consulted?"

"No one."

She drew from under her pillow the letter she had written, and handed it to Dr. Ellis. "When the issue of the operation is quite clear, I wish you to open and read this," she said.

She lay quietly while they put the ether mask over her white face, not struggling against it as some people do. Only once she sat up suddenly and looked about her with wide open eyes, stretching out her arms and saying:

"Oh, if you will only let me lie in my husband's arms I will bear anything!" And then she lost consciousness.

It was half-past three when a breathless messenger, rushing into Mr. Winslow's down-town office, handed him a note from Dr. Ellis:

"Dear Sir: Your wife has just undergone an operation. I have every reason to hope it will be a successful one. The inclosed note from Mrs. Winslow will explain to you why I have but now made you aware of what has been done. Very sincerely yours, J. HOWE ELLIS."

The other note read thus:

"Dear Dr. Ellis: I have not told you my real name, for I did not wish my husband to have the pain and anxiety of anticipating this operation nor the suffering of seeing me suffer it; and I thought that if you knew I had a husband you would be likely to object to taking so much responsibility without having him to share it. If all goes well you need only send him the inclosed note. If I should die—tell him gently. MARY WINSLOW."

"My Darling Husband: You have been so good, so tender, so true to me, and you have made me so happy always, that I have wanted some way to show you how grateful I am. There has never been any way before, but now there is a way. Thank the dear Father you have taught me to love and have helped me to try to serve, I have been strong enough to save you a great deal of pain.

"When you get this, my love, my heart's dear, dear love, I shall be quite through with a very bad operation, which has been hanging over me for months. I knew I must undergo it or die, and yet it was so sweet at home I could not come in here before; but the doctor said I could not wait any longer, so I came in to-day.

"Jane is a good nurse, she will take care of the children while I am away. Aren't they beautiful?

"God bless you, my husband, my love.

"MARY."

The three doctors stood wiping their gleaming instruments, talking in half-whispers of the operation. A white-capped nurse was unpinning the sheets and padding from the operating table.

At the side of the bed where Mary lay, another doctor and another white-capped nurse stood watching for the first signs of her returning consciousness. She lay heavily and with muscles relaxed, with closed eyes, breathing laboriously, and white as the linen on her bed.

David pushed open the door with unsteady hand, and came across the room to the bed. Without a word he dropped on his knees in a grief-stricken heap at the bedside.

Dr. Ellis put his hand on his shoulder, and he looked up, with anguish-laden eyes, that pitifully pleaded for a word of hope.

"She will do well," said the doctor, in a cheery whisper. "The operation was a success far beyond our expectations. But it is important for her to come out of the ether quietly. Don't you think, Mr. Winslow, it would be a good plan for you to stand here at the foot of the bed, where she can see you when she first opens her eyes? Then she will forget entirely all the pain of her separation from you, and everything will be quite nice and comfortable."

David rose, dumbly obedient, and stood where the doctor directed, devouring with his eyes the pale, beautiful face lying amid the thick brown braids.

"Now, Mrs. Winslow, is the pillow right?" asked Dr. Ellis, trying to rouse her. "Won't you let me try to raise you up a little?"

It seemed hours to David before Mary, with a deep sigh, lifted her heavy white lids. A moment her half-conscious eyes rested on the doctor, who was speaking to her, and then she looked at David. She tried to make the nerveless lips move—failed once, and then slowly, painfully, she said: "Darling, I love you!"

"She's all right now," said Dr. Ellis, in a tone of relief.

In a few moments all the doctors had gone, leaving David and a nurse to watch Mary.

"She's doing splendidly now, sir," said the nurse, moved by the trouble in David's face to speak to him. "There is not a bit more danger."

But David did not believe that. The shadow of the terrible possibility of his wife's dying had fallen across his heart, and it would take more than words to lift it.

As the doctors went down the steps of the boarding house one said:

"And yet we are taught that women are not brave."

"Oh, yes, they are brave, or the world would soon be depopulated," said the newly-fledged doctor who had administered the ether. "But—er—Dr. Ellis, now what do you think of that scheme of mine for removing the vermiform appendix in infants, and doing away forever with chances of appendicitis?"

"A great scheme and a great schemer, doctor," answered Ellis, laughing good-naturedly. "When you find a mother with a subject to try, consider me at your service gratis for the operation."

And the doctors went their several ways.—N. Y. Independent.

REWARDED A FRIEND.

Governor of Missouri Remembers the Man Who Once Saved His Life.

"I have appointed Jerome S. Barman coal oil inspector of Springfield for a term of two years," was the simple announcement made by Gov. Stephens, of Missouri, a few days since to a number of newspaper reporters. Back of this, however, is a story.

The new inspector of the "Queen City of the Ozarks" saved the governor's life once and is now rewarded by appointment to a good office. It was 25 years ago, and the future governor and Barman were boys in the quiet, staid old town of Boonville, Mo. They were like other boys the world over, and one warm afternoon in June they played "hookey" and went to bathe in the cool waters of a deep creek that flowed into the Missouri river back of the Kemper school. Stephens couldn't "swim a lick," and venturing into the water over his head was in a fair way to drown, when young Barman swam to his rescue. After much difficulty he got his unconscious burden to shore and revived him.

Following the usual course of human events, the ways of the two boys diverged. One prospered in business and politics, the other became a citizen of Springfield, where he, too, was fairly prosperous. When the time came that there was a vacancy in the office to which he was recently appointed, Barman applied for it, and the governor without hesitation gave it to him.

"It is the only thing that he has ever asked at my hands," said the governor, "and he is in every way worthy of it."

HUSBAND AND WIFE IN RUSSIA.

Their Relations Marked by Every Evidence of Mutual Courtesy.

"This is a curious custom you Americans have of referring to your wives by their husbands' names," observed Glanvock Kaplon, an intelligent Russian traveler, says the St. Louis Republic. "I suppose the American holds his wife in as high esteem as the Russian holds his, but if at home I should speak of my better half as Mrs. Kaplon my friends would at once conclude that my domestic relations were not as pleasant as they should be, and that I was thinking of a legal separation. When I first heard an American speak of his wife as Mrs. Jones, for example, I felt almost like presuming on my acquaintance by intruding into his private affairs and asking him what the trouble was at home. Yet I soon learned that the custom was universal over here, but still I cannot get used to it. 'My wife' is the plain, blunt way I speak in Russia of the lady who, I suppose, I would have to call Mrs. Kaplon in polite society in America. In some of the more fashionable circles of St. Petersburg this American social custom has been adopted, though I was told by a prominent government official not long ago that the czar disapproved of it."

NEW TARIFF BILL.

It Passes the Senate by a Vote of 38 to 28.

The Main Points of Difference with the House Measure—Goes to Conference—Other Washington News.

Washington, July 8. — By the decisive vote of 38 to 28 the tariff bill was passed in the senate yesterday. A resolution was agreed to asking the house for a conference, and Senators Allison, Aldrich, Platt (Conn.), Burrows, Jones (Nev.), Vest, Jones (Ark.) and White were named as conferees on the part of the senate. The bill as it goes back to the house reenacts the anti-trust section of the Wilson act, while the reciprocity and retaliatory provisions are substituted for those of the house. One of the most important new provisions added by the senate is that placing a stamp tax on bonds, debentures and certificates of stock. Aside from these more important changes, the bill as it goes back to the house has 874 amendments, of various degrees of importance, which must be reconciled between the two branches of congress.

Washington, July 9.—The session of the senate yesterday was devoted to considering the deficiency appropriation bill.

Washington, July 10. — In the senate yesterday the death of Senator Harris, of Tennessee, was announced, and as a mark of respect an adjournment was taken.

Washington, July 12.—No work was done in the senate on Saturday, the senators adjourning to attend the funeral of the late Senator Harris, of Tennessee.

Washington, July 13.—The deficiency appropriation bill occupied the time of the senate yesterday, but was not completed.

Washington, July 14.—The general deficiency appropriation bill was passed in the senate yesterday after an amendment had been adopted limiting the price to be paid for armor plate to $300 per ton and providing for the establishment of a government plant for the manufacture of armor plate in the event of failure to obtain bids within the limit fixed.

The House.

Washington, July 8. — In the house yesterday no business was transacted.

Washington, July 9. — In the house yesterday a message was received from the senate announcing the passage of the tariff bill and requesting a conference. The house adopted a special order sending the tariff bill to conference at once.

Washington, July 10. — In the house yesterday no business was transacted.

Washington, July 12.—The house was not in session on Saturday.

Washington, July 13.—On account of the death of Senator Harris, as soon as the journal had been read yesterday the house, on motion of Mr. Moon (dem., Tenn.), as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased senator, adjourned.

Washington, July 14.—In the house yesterday a bill was introduced making the salary of the postmaster at Chicago $8,000 a year after July 1, 1898.

May Be Reinstated.

Washington, July 10.—The commissioner of pensions has before him the cases of about 100 veterans dismissed from the pension office during the last administration and who seek reinstatement. They are being carefully considered.

President's Vacation.

Washington, July 10.—President McKinley will spend most of his summer vacation on the shores of Lake Champlain. He will leave Washington on August 1 and go direct to Lake Champlain. Plattsburg, N. Y., will be his nearest town.

Will Be Revoked.

Washington, July 12.—The order of President Cleveland, issued last February, and which has not gone into effect, reducing the number of pension agencies in the United States from 18 to nine, will be revoked by President McKinley within a few days.

A Grip on Hawaii.

Washington, July 13.—The administration has taken steps to keep its grip on Hawaii. Any aggressive interference on the part of Japan will result in the landing of marines and the hoisting of the American flag, with or without the ratification of the pending annexation treaty.

Coinage of Silver Dollars.

Washington, July 14.—A statement prepared at the mint bureau shows the number of silver dollars coined at the United States mints during the last fiscal year was 21,203,701 on which the seigniorage or profits to the government amounted to $6,336,104. The profits have been turned into the treasury from time to time as the coinage progressed.

Dropped Dead at Play.

Rockford, Ill., July 14.—While at play in the yard in front of her home in Rockton, near this city, the little three-year-old daughter of Harry Douglas dropped dead. Her mother saw her fall, but the child had ceased to breathe when the mother reached her.

Frozen to Death.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 14.—Word received here says that three men named Blackstone, Bottcher and Mollique were frozen to death in Alaska while endeavoring to carry mail from Sunrise City across the glacier to Prince William Sound.

REPUBLICAN CLUBS.

National League Holds Its Convention in Detroit.

Detroit, July 14.—The National Republican league convention opened Tuesday with a fair attendance of delegates for an "off year" in politics. Nearly all the states are represented, although the quotas of delegates are small in several instances. It was 10:30 o'clock when President Woodmansee rapped for order. Rev. Dr. Service, of the Trumbull Avenue Presbyterian church, offered prayer. President Woodmansee then introduced Gov. Pingree, who delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the state of Michigan. Col. Henry M. Duffield, of this city, welcomed the delegates on behalf of Detroit. E. N. Dingley, Jr., of Kalamazoo, was the next speaker. As president of the Michigan League of Republican Clubs he welcomed the visiting delegates. The president of the National league, D. D. Woodmansee, of Cincinnati, then delivered his annual address. A resolution was adopted directing that a telegram of greeting be sent President McKinley, congratulating him upon the success of the republican administration, and asserting that the promised era of prosperity is now near of fulfillment. Later a reply was received from the president expressing best wishes for the increased usefulness and prosperity of the organization. No announcement of the list of committees was made, as many states had not settled upon their selection. All resolutions were referred to the committee on resolutions, which met at night. The convention then adjourned until ten o'clock Wednesday morning. In the afternoon a trolley ride about the city was taken by the delegates, 30 cars being employed. At night a mass meeting was held in the convention hall. The speakers were Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia; Webster Davis, of Kansas City, and ex-United States Senator Brown, of Utah.

CANNOT COLLECT TOLLS.

Important Case Decided by the Michigan Supreme Court.

Lansing, July 14.—A decision of interest to wheelmen was made by the supreme court Tuesday. James O Murfin recovered damages against the Detroit & Erie Plank Road company for preventing him from riding a bicycle upon its road without the payment of toll. The supreme court holds that there is nothing in the statute to authorize the company to charge toll against pedestrians, or persons propelling wheelbarrows, carts or baby carriages. The court thinks that a distinction may be made between vehicles propelled by men and those depending upon animals or motor power for propulsion. The former class, it is held, cannot be required to pay toll upon plank and toll roads of this state.

The Crops.

Chicago, Ill., July 14.—The weekly report of the weather and crop bureau has the following with reference to Michigan: Good weather for hay harvest, corn and ripening of wheat, but too dry for oats, potatoes, beans, berries and pastures. Wheat in good condition; has filled well and harvest begun. Oats of good color, heading fast, but rather short. Rye fine and being out. Corn made great progress, looks good and beginning to tassel.

Peppermint Crop Short.

Decatur, July 14.—The cutting of the Michigan peppermint crop has begun in some localities, and the mint harvest will be well under way next week. The yield of oil per acre will be considerably less than last season, but the total output of the district will nearly reach last year's figures by reason of the largely increased acreage devoted to the culture of the herb.

Money for the Militia.

Washington, D. C., July 9.—The secretary of war has approved the apportionment of $400,000 appropriated in the last sundry civil bill to provide arms and equipment for the militia of the various states. The sum named is divided on the basis of each state's total representation in both branches of congress. The Michigan militia has been allowed $12,076.

Will Make Strawberry Wine.

Galesburg, July 11.—A strawberry surplus, which has been a matter of solicitude upon the part of growers, bids fair to be utilized. J. E. Gault, one of the most extensive growers of them near here, is turning them into wine and the results promise to be such as to make a future "glut" of the fruit an impossibility.

Novel Experience of Two Women.

Alpena, July 14.—Capt. and Mrs. Persons, of Thunder Bay Island, and Mr. and Mrs. Case, of Alpena, went down to the Pewabic wreck in the Smith diving bell, remaining an hour and a half. These are probably the only two women who ever went down in 160 feet of water and came up alive.

THE MINERS' STRIKE.

Forces Engaged in the Struggle Determined as Ever.

Efforts Made to Secure Arbitration—Coal Advances in Price—Ironclad Contracts Quickly Swept Away.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 12.—The week closed with the forces engaged in the miners' strike determined as ever and on the alert to secure the slightest advantage. No openly aggressive work was done Saturday by either side, but the miners' officials held a secret meeting at which it is believed a vigorous campaign against the New York and Cleveland gas coal miners to be inaugurated at once was decided upon. The operators apparently are doing little and are saying less. However, their confidence in defeating the miners has not abated in the least. The expected trouble in the Wheeling division of the Baltimore & Ohio did not come to the surface Saturday. The miners were paid off as announced, but no trouble whatever followed.

Efforts for Arbitration.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 13.—The miners' strike is causing the price of coal to still advance and it is selling at $1.80, an increase of 150 per cent. since the commencement of the struggle. The feature Monday in matters pertaining to the strike was the presence in the city of the joint arbitration board, who are endeavoring by every means possible to bring to a peaceable conclusion the strife now in progress. The board held informal sessions and in the intervals interviewed quite a number of operators, the big majority of whom are in favor of arbitration, provided all of the operators will abide by the decision rendered. One of the dissenters is W. P. Dearmit, president of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company. He declares he has nothing to arbitrate and says the strike is the result of the machinations of politicians.

Ironclad Contracts Swept Away.

Beyond the strengthening of the miners along the rivers there was little change in the strike situation Monday. The ironclad contracts which were in force at several mines in the Monongahela valley were swept out of existence and the strike was made general in the fourth pool. The Chamouni, Apollo, Jack Jones and O'Neil's Fayette City mines, which had been running with a light force of men and under ironclads, are idle. The men at the Chamouni mine were the last to lay down their tools. The miners along the river are rejoicing over this victory. The only mine reported in operation in the region is the Quitable, at Webster. The men in the Stickel Hollow mines of the Washington Coal company also came out Monday, making the suspension complete in this district except at the mines of the New York & Cleveland Gas Coal company, where about 1,200 men are working.

Situation in Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., July 13.—President J. M. Carson, of the Illinois United Mine Workers, arrived here Monday night from Danville. The 1,500 miners in the Vermillion field, he stated, were out and the miners in every shaft in Illinois north of and including Pana were out or had voted to come out. In the Springfield district every shaft will be idle after to-night. "By Saturday," President Carson stated, "every miner in Illinois, we believe, will have joined the strike." President Carson stated that if left to Illinois and Indiana operators a settlement would be effected with the men at once. He predicts that a general settlement will be brought about within the next two weeks.

Rioting Begins.

Danville, Ill., July 14.—Strife between the miners commenced in this district Tuesday night. About 400 or 500 Belgian strikers and other foreigners gathered at the Pawnee mine, and when a cage full of colored miners who had been at work reached the top of the shaft they were assaulted with different kinds of weapons, some using knives and others staves. Reed, one of the colored miners, secured a bar of iron and a revolver and defended his life. Shots were fired, wounding several strikers. This infuriated the striking miners and they retaliated by an exchange of shots, at the same time retreating to the woods. The strikers plied ties on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois tracks, also tried to break a switch and so wreck the train carrying the working miners to the city. They demolished the car windows with rocks and bricks. Then the miners inside the coaches opened fire on them. About 50 shots were exchanged. It is reported that one miner was killed.

Death of a Prominent Chicagoan.

Chicago, July 13.—Columbus R. Cummings, one of the most prominent capitalists of Chicago, died at his residence, 1641 Indiana avenue, at nine o'clock Monday evening, after a lingering illness which had incapacitated him for business for many years. He was 63 years of age and leaves an estate approximated at $10,000,000, mostly in gas, bank and street railway securities.

New York, July 12.—The First Methodist church at New Rochelle was destroyed by fire Sunday night. It was more than 100 years old and the oldest church in Westchester county.

Lodi, Wis., July 12.—Albert Lamont, a farmer and noted horseman, died from injuries received by his team running away.

THE CROP REPORT.

Rye and Barley Harvesting Begun—Corn Growing Rapidly.

Chicago, July 14.—The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country, and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same, were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Michigan—Good weather for hay harvest, corn and ripening of wheat but too dry for oats, potatoes, beans, berries and pastures. Wheat in good condition, has filled well and harvest begun. Oats of good color, heading fast, but rather short. Rye fine and being cut. Corn made great progress, looks good and beginning to tassel.

Indiana—Very hot until Saturday and Sunday when heavy local rains fell with much lower temperature. Corn grew rapidly and is laid by. Good crops of rye and barley being threshed. Wheat threshing commenced. Crop better than expected. Oats ripening fast; a very heavy hay crop secured.

Illinois—Week of excessive heat, many horses and some men overcome in fields; corn continues rapid growth and tasselling in early fields; oats cutting well begun south half, fair yield, short straw; winter wheat generally in shock, some threshing done, good yield, fine berry. Rye and barley cutting under way in northern section; spring wheat mostly plowed up; timothy haying general with fair yield.

Iowa—Five days excessively hot followed by well distributed showers. Corn growing vigorously and mostly laid by in variable condition. Spring wheat and oats doing fairly well with some reports of damage by rust. Good progress harvesting barley, rye and clover.

Wisconsin—Continued warm weather and good local rains made fine growing weather for all crops. Corn strong, of good color and improving rapidly; considerable laid by. Spring wheat in excellent condition. Oats and barley well filled, but straw short. Rye fair crop, harvest begun. Haying well under way, crop fair.

TWO CITIES UNITED.

The Big Bridge Between Superior and Duluth Is Opened.

West Superior, Wis., July 14.—The Superior-Duluth drawbridge, which is the only structure for general use between the two cities, was formally opened for traffic Tuesday with appropriate ceremonies. Representatives from both cities and from St. Paul joined to make the exercises complete. Addresses were made by Mayor Truelson, of Duluth, Mayor Starkweather, of Superior, and ex-Gov. W. R. Merriam, of St. Paul.

The dimensions of the structure are such as to make it rank among the foremost in the country. The big center draw span is 491 feet long and weighs 2,200 tons, and is so delicately balanced upon its pivot that three men can turn it by hand. The bridge is operated by electricity. The draw of this bridge is exceeded by but three others in the country. The location is over "the Narrows," the narrowest part of the bay. It was designed by Alfred P. Boller, of New York. The cost of the bridge complete is about $1,000,000. It is built for foot passengers, vehicles and street cars.

TEACHERS IN SESSION.

Annual Meeting of the National Educational Association.

Milwaukee, July 10.—The National Educational association closed its meeting yesterday after electing James M. Greenwood, of Kansas City, Mo., president, and adopting the following resolutions:

It proclaims the unswerving allegiance of the association to the highest ideals of our public educational system; stands for sound training, thorough discipline and good citizenship. It emphasizes in particular at this time the duty of the school to the community that it represents; demands that school administration in all its departments shall be wholly free from political influence and dictation of every sort; appeals to educated public opinion and to the press of the country to enforce this demand. It believes that the public schools are increasing in efficiency as the tenure of teachers is made longer and more secure; believes it to be the duty, as well as the opportunity of the American college to open its doors to the largest number of students possible. The report urges more attention to the study of the history and principles of education in colleges and universities; asks the attention of the executive and legislative departments of the government to the valuable work of the bureau of education and to the pressing need of adequate appropriations for its support.

Death of an Iowa Pioneer.

Young and Mrs. Augusta Ware. He was born in Ticonderoga, N. Y., and located in Clinton in 1857, when he engaged in the manufacture of lumber. He leaves an immense fortune.

Women Must Break Stone.

Kansas City, Mo., July 13.—The police department will begin Tuesday morning working women prisoners at breaking stone, the same as the male prisoners. The police commissioners have adopted the rule upon recommendation of Chief Quarles, who argued that women prisoners kept in idleness were not sufficiently punished.

HORTICULTURE

A PERMANENT ARBOR.

How to Build One That Will Easily Last a Lifetime.

The lumber required for the construction of the arbor shown in the accompanying sketch consists of posts 4x4 inches and 8 feet long; 2x4-inch scantling 16 feet long, to be cut into 8-foot length for top crosspieces, and into lengths of about 4 feet for the braces at the upper corners, and strips 1x2½ inches, also 16 feet long. All the lumber used should be dressed, for the structure, to be durable, must be painted, and undressed lumber requires more than double the amount of paint and twice the labor to apply it.

Make a mortise in each post with the lower edge about one foot from the end, of such dimensions as to receive the scantling snugly. Dome this end of each post by sawing off the corners, as shown in the illustration. This will leave about eight inches to extend above the arbor. About 20 inches below the lower edge of the first mortise and on the opposite side, make a second mortise, running diagonally across the post at an angle of 45 degrees, and of such width and depth as to receive the scantling snugly and flush with the post. This diagonal mortise must be cut in the opposite direction in half of the posts, as will be seen by observing the position of the braces. Into the lower end of each post bore a hole five inches deep of proper diameter to receive a piece of three-quarters-inch gaspipe so that it fits tightly when hammered in. The piece of pipe should be about a foot long, thus leaving about 7 inches to extend from the post.

Now procure tiling or sewer pipe in two-foot lengths and three inches in interior diameter. Set these eight feet apart each way, measuring from the center of the tiles in the direction of the arbor, and from their outer edges across the arbor, if structure is to be eight feet wide, as it should be. Place them in perfect line, with their tops about four inches above ground, and tamp in the earth firmly about them. Then saw the scantling into eight-foot lengths for the top crosspieces, and make the braces, cutting these at an angle of 45 degrees. Lay two of the posts parallel on level ground and nail the top crosspieces in place, keeping all parts square. Then fasten a temporary strip across the lower ends of the posts and nail the upper corner braces in place.

When all the posts have thus been fastened together in pairs, mix up thoroughly one-part of Portland cement with two and-one-half parts of good sharp sand and moisten with just sufficient water to make a stiff mortar, avoiding an excess of water. Having filled two of the opposite tiles with the cement, erect one of the sections and allow the irons at the base of the post to settle into the cement until the posts rest upon the tiles. Get the section plumb and brace firmly in that position. This is important, for the cement will begin to set almost immediately and it is well to have as little motion of the irons as possible after they are once in the tiles. The first section can be easily braced to posts or stakes driven in the ground and the others, which are to be erected in a like manner, can then be braced to this. It is well not to moisten more than enough of the mixed cement at one time than will fill two of the tiles, as it sets so readily. When all the sections are up, nail on the narrow strips which are to support the vines. Finally, apply three good coats of paint, and you will have an arbor that will never rot off at the base and one which the wind can never overturn so long as it leaves anything else standing.—Orange Judd Farmer.

A List of State Flowers.

The following "state flowers" have been adopted by public school vote in the respective states: Alabama, Nebraska and Oregon, golden rod; Colorado, the columbine; Delaware, the peach blossom; Idaho, the syringa; Iowa and New York, the rose; Maine, the pine cone and tassel; Minnesota, the cypripodium or moccasin flower; Montana, the bitter root; North Dakota, the wild rose; Utah, the sago lily; Vermont, the red clover. In addition Rhode Island and Wisconsin have adopted a state tree, the maple being selected by both.

Gooseberries on the Farm.

The gooseberry deserves more general cultivation than it has received, and should find a place in every farmer's garden. It will grow well on a great variety of soils and in climates too severe and seasons too short for grapes; it has no enemies that cannot be easily avoided or combated; many varieties give excellent yields, and the fruit can be used or marketed either green or ripe, is easily handled and is of a characteristic, pleasant tartness which makes it, green, ripe or preserved, a very desirable addition to the housewife's list of relishes.

FAILURE TO FRUIT.

It Is an Indication That a Tree Is Not in Good Health.

The fruiting of an orchard is the end of its culture, and everything should tend to this end. A failure to fruit at proper age and in the right season is a sure indication that something is wrong and that something ought to be done. There are a number of causes for a full-grown tree not fruiting, and it will be a good plan to investigate, ascertain the cause, if possible, and apply the remedy.

In some cases trees may have too much head and will exhaust themselves, nourishing their foliage at the expense of the first buds, but this is the exception. Generally a tree lacks plant food rather than an over-supply, and the application of well-rotted manure will remedy this. Sometimes there is a lack of lime or potash in the soil. Bone dust or wood ashes make a good fertilizer when mineral elements are lacking, as there may be an excess of moisture in the soil and drainage may be the necessary remedy. Pruning and thinning out may be necessary when there is an excessive growth of top. The soil may have become packed and hard, so that the tree cannot make as thrifty a growth as it should, and cultivating or digging about the roots may be necessary. With proper care the tree can be made to bear good fruit, quality being of more importance than quantity, and if, after proper remedies have been tried, the trees fail to yield good fruit, the quicker it is cut down and another one is planted in its place the better. Allowing a tree to overbear one year will be the cause of its not bearing the next. The tree so exhausts itself in maturing the excessive yield that a rest is required in which to recuperate. Thinning in good season is the remedy for this, while a better grade of fruit is secured.—N. J. Shepherd, in Farmers' Voice.

ABOUT EARTHWORMS.

How they Maintain the Living Layer of Vegetable Mold.

A discussion on the subject of earthworms and vegetable mold appeared in a recent issue of Longman's Magazine. The writer, Grant Allen, states that it was Gilbert White, of Selborne, who first of all pointed out the importance of earthworms as producers and maintainers of living layers of vegetable mold. It was the patient investigations of Darwin, however, which fully established the fact, and raised it to the rank of a scientific discovery, his first writing on the subject appearing in the Gardeners' Chronicle. Later he issued an entire book on this interesting matter. Darwin showed that earthworms act upon the soil in three ways. In the first place they open up and loosen the ground for the roots to penetrate, more perfect aeration of the soil being thus obtained. The acids they secrete also act chemically upon the layer of rocks beneath in a way that assists the disintegration of the latter. In the second place they crush in their gizzards small fragments of stone and liberate their component elements. In the third place they drag down into their burrows countless numbers of leaves, which they eat, and carry up the refuse to the surface. It is computed that no fewer than 53,000 worms inhabit an acre of garden soil. These worms pass through their bodies ten tons of material in a year, and throw it up as mold at the rate of one inch in depth every five years. The greater part of the mold is composed of a refuse of vegetable matter, and is teeming with myriads of bacteria. Even after allowing for other cooperating causes, earthworms are responsible for the formation and renewal of this layer of vegetable mold.

GARDEN TOOLCHEST.

It Saves Hundreds of Steps in Doing the Work.

Where it is possible a little garden house, to hold tools, wheelbarrow, fertilizer, etc., should be built on the edge of the garden, to save steps in hunting for tools. But many think this out of the question. In such a case the garden tool chest may prove serviceable. It is made to stand the weather, and long enough to hold any garden tool that is ordinarily used, such as rakes, hoes, forks, shovels, etc. It will also hold the garden seeds at planting time. Everything is thus right at hand, and hundreds of steps are saved in doing the work. The same chest will also prove serviceable to take to the field in case of the general farmer, thus saving long trips back to the farm buildings for some tool or other. Such devices are in the line of economy of labor, and it is often economy of labor that makes the balance come on the right side of the ledger in these days of low prices.—N. Y. Tribune.

Value of the Sunflower.

The value of the sunflower as a field crop is unknown in this country, and yet there are few plants which, in proportion to the attention required, make larger returns. Almost every portion is useful. The seeds are valued as a food for cattle and poultry, and from them may be obtained an oil not inferior to that of olive. They have also their uses in medicine, making soothing emulsions like flaxseed. In Russia they are eaten like nuts, and in many parts of South America are ground to meal, of which bread is made.

The French say "it is the impossible that happens." This has proved to be the case with the Mount Lebanon Shakers. The whole scientific world has been laboring to cure dyspepsia, but every effort seemed to meet with defeat. The suffering from stomach troubles has become almost universal. Multitudes have no desire for food and that which they do eat causes them pain and distress. Sleepless nights are the rule and not the exception, and thousands of sufferers have become discouraged. The Shakers of Mount Lebanon recently came to the front with their new Digestive Cordial, which contains not only a food already digested, but a digester of food. It promptly relieves nearly all forms of indigestion. Ask your druggist for one of their books.

The Armeria.

The United States owns one vessel that stands by herself, that has no counterpart in American waters. She is the Armeria, the lighthouse supply ship. All the year she is busy carrying oil to lighthouses on our coast, and not only oil, but towels, wicks, brushes, soap, brooms, cutlery, stationery—all the things that the government supplies to lighthouses and their keepers. The Armeria is a big white steamer with yellow funnel and uniformed officers, so that you can tell from afar that she is a government vessel, but she does not belong to the navy; she is one of the great fleet controlled by the treasury department and devoted to services that have nothing to do with war. There are about 150 light stations on the Pacific coast and about 265 on the great lakes. Oil is purchased in the west for the lake stations, but all the rest are supplied from the government depot on Staten Island. The oil for the Pacific coast is sent around the horn in sailing vessels, and the Armeria carries all they need to all the rest of the United States lighthouses.

THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

An Interesting Letter from Rev. W. R. Blachford.

Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.
July 7, '97.

EDITOR HERALD:

Perhaps it will be interesting to your readers if I give a short account of the country through which I have passed so far on my journey to the coast. The western country is so entirely different from anything we see in the east, and the scenery so varied, that one cannot but be pleased with a visit be it short or long.

After visiting Toronto and Hamilton, I came by way of Owen Sound on Lake Huron to Fort William on Lake Superior. The two days' trip by water was enjoyable except for a few hours the second night when the rough sea made everyone keep the security of the cabin, or wish one had never left home at all. Passing through the Canadian canal at the Sault gave one a chance of seeing what magnificent mason work can be accomplished, and how natural difficulties of land and water can be overcome. The canals on both sides of the river seem to be used as convenience permits. There being five boats in line ready to pass through the U. S. locks, we went over to the other side. I timed the emptying and filling of the lock and found it takes only 5 1-2 minutes to empty and 7 minutes to fill, a wonderfully short time considering the vast quantity of water capable of floating two or three large lake boats. This lock appears to have a false bottom with valves by which the water enters as well as through the small gates at the base of the large ones.

We left Ft. William at night so I cannot say what kind of country there is in that part, but near the Lake of the Woods, the largest body of water between Superior and the coast, the scenery is grand. This lake contains 14,000 islands, some of them not more than two or three yards square, yet large enough to show shallow water and numerous enough to make a veritable range. At Portage la Prairie I remained one day to visit Mrs. Blachford's sister. This is a very pretty little place, and reminds me very much of a Southern Michigan town. It is well kept, nicely laid out, and contains plenty of trees, not large but pretty. At Regina I made another day's stop, while here it rained a little, just sufficient to show me the sticking quality of the fearful mud. In one minutes walk a person's feet are heavily weighted with mud that requires a good knife to cut off. The country from Regina to Calgary, nineteen hours ride on the railway, is where one gets the first idea of what the real prairie is like. Absolutely nothing is seen as far as the horizon on all sides. Broad expanse with hardly any grass meets the eye in every direction, and this for hundreds of miles. Our eastern idea of long waving grass covering the vast prairies, proves a disappointment out here, for the grass grows abundantly only in wet and marshy places. Occasionally in our journey across this country, the train would stop at one house, you would wonder why, for there seems no sign of life. Upon inquiry you learn the railway section men live here. A sight of these desolate and solitary looking habitations miles apart, with no duplicates near by, a person easily gives credit to the western story that a woman living on a prairie ranch, soon becomes a subject for the insane asylum.

Calgary is a nice little town west of the country just described, from which a two hundred mile branch railway runs north to Edmonton. At this place I got my first view of the gigantic rocky mountains. They loom up in the distance a rugged whiteness, being at this season of the year covered with snow. One would think an early morning's walk before breakfast would afford a visit to these mountains, yet they are sixty miles away, to the top the nearest point. Calgary is in the prairie district, consequently it is difficult to grow trees. The town people are trying hard to produce pretty shade, and will succeed I think, but at present I am about as tall as half the trees.

Edmonton is a town of about 1800 inhabitants and is very prettily situated on the high banks of the Saskatcheman river. The country is well wooded, not with large trees but with the small poplar kind. In fact the town is amidst a poplar grove. South Edmonton is a new town across the river and is reached by a primitive kind of ferry run by the natural force of the river's current. Edmonton is the site of one of the old Hudson Bay Company's forts. In the early days it was strongly protected against the Indians. Two of the old cannon and the powder magazine are still here. At present the buildings are used for receiving and packing furs which come in large quantities from the north during the winter. There are thousands of dollars worth of furs shipped by the company every year to England. I have seen even at this time of the year about 50 bales of small skins, containing 1200 apiece. The old boat, the Northwest, which did such good service during the Louis Reil rebellion in 1885, belongs to the H. B. Company and makes two or three trips each summer down the river from here. I had a ride on her July 1st when the Presbyterians chartered her for an excursion. Strange as it may seem this boat can only run in the spring of the year and during the hot weather for in the autumn the water is very low. The river is fed almost entirely from the mountains where the snow melts in spring and summer. The snow being gone by the end of July or the 15th of August, there is not sufficient water to float a large boat. This year the floods on the river have been somewhat destructive, carrying away houses, gold scows, etc., the floods being caused by torrents of rain in the mountains. No damage has been done here because the water would have to rise 100 feet higher still to reach us.

A great interest is now had in the gold mining at Edmonton. Up to the present year the gold has been obtained by the slow process of the hard grizleys, but this spring several scows have been built with machinery and steam shovels. Several Americans are engaged in this work, as well as Canadians. The gold is taken from the river bed and washed from the sand. A material called black-sand is also obtained and this has been found to contain gold, but it is necessary to send it to a smelter to make the separation. Specimens of the gold and black sand I am taking home with me. Later I will send you a description of how the fine particles of this precious metal are taken from the large quantities of sand and gravel containing it.

I am quite happy in my temporary work here, taking the duties of All Saints parish while the rector, Rev. H. B. Gray, is spending three months in England. The congregation is a little larger than St. Peter's, for which I have two services every Sunday and one on Wednesday evenings. On the 27th I had the pleasure of preaching to the Masonic lodge which came to church 60 strong, headed by the Edmonton band. I have not yet visited the lodge but will do so at the next meeting.

I send my best greetings to the editor of the HERALD and all my friends and parishioners in Tecumseh and Clinton and wish to say to them that after my work here and visit farther west, I will be quite ready to take up my work amongst them again.

Yours very sincerely,
W. R. BLACHFORD.

Rev. L. P. Davis.

The daily papers of Tuesday announced the death of Mr. Davis and caused a pang of regret in the heart of every communicant of the M. E. church in this vicinity where he was well known and beloved by all. Following is a very good sketch of his life:

Rev. Lewis P. Davis, 70 Hendrie avenue, Detroit, presiding elder of the Adrian district of Detroit conference, M. E. church, died suddenly at 4:40 o'clock Monday morning in Bay View, where he had been conducting a camp meeting. The cause of his death is supposed to be from apoplexy, he having suffered a slight stroke at Sault St. Marie some weeks ago. He recovered from this, and was in very good health up to Sunday night. The remains were taken to Detroit for interment Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Mr. Davis was well known all over the district, and in Detroit, where he had lived for the past 10 years. He was pastor of the Lincoln avenue M. E church for five years, and held the position of presiding elder of the Adrian district for the last five years. He was born in Macomb county, December 31, 1839, and was a graduate of the Northwestern university and the Garret Biblical institute, of Chicago.

Mr. Davis had been preaching for 25 years, and all his work had been in this state. Before coming to Detroit, he was pastor of churches in West Bay City, Dexter and Plymouth, and was also presiding elder of the Alpena district. Mr. Davis was in the United States army three years during the civil war, entering as a private and leaving as lieutenant of the 22d Michigan volunteer infantry. He leaves a wife and two grown children.

The deepest regrets are felt here over Mr. Davis' demise, and his family will have the sympathy of all friends in and out of the M. E. church.

Lines Written on the Death of Little Mabel Moore.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon His love had given,
And, though the body moulders here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

Jesus, while our hearts are bleeding
O'er the spoils that Death has won,
We would, at this solemn meeting,
Calmly say, "Thy will be done."

Call not back the dear departed,
Anchored safe where storms are o'er,
On the border land we left them
Soon to meet and part no more.

When we leave this world of changes,
When we leave the world of care,
We shall find our missing loved ones
In our Father's mansion fair.

Ball Game.

The second game of the series between Clinton and Tecumseh, played at Clinton last Saturday, was a disappointment to all friends of our team for, instead of continuing their good work, they, with few exceptions, played loose ball. Notwithstanding several of the regular players were absent, had those who were there played as did Lowe and Rixom, it would have been more to their credit. Harris' work in the box was the poorest of the season. Fully half of the hits Clinton made off him were apparently presented to them. It is a wonder, all things considered, that Clinton did not make more runs and they would had their playing been what it might have been. Clinton had Jacobs, of Albion, in the box. His work, as compared with Uphaus, was not any marked improvement.

W. H. Dix, son of Auditor General Dix, and Miss Gertrude Haynes, of Dundee, were quietly married at Mason, after a ten days' acquaintance. The bride has numerous friends in Adrian. The bride is a daughter of Dr. Haynes, of Monroe county. The case was one of love at first sight.—Adrian Times. Mrs. Bills is one of the most accomplished musicians in Michigan and has been offered a number of fine positions, none of which she could accept on account of her family and home in Tecumseh. Adrian college would be fortunate indeed should she conclude to take this position.

Manager Kyle has decided on the events as follows: 3:00 trot or pace, 2:40 trot or pace, and free-for-all. Should there be a large field in the three minutes race which appears certain, it will be divided into two sections, this making four races. There will also be a foot race, bicycle race, and a tandem race.

Tuesday at high twelve there was considerable excitement on Union street caused by Rich. Mead's colt running away. The colt, which is a fine and spirited animal, was hitched in front of John Heesen's and Richard was talking with the Heesen boys. A bicyclist passing frightened the colt which made a lunge, breaking the bridle and away he went. After crossing Chicago street he made for the trees on the west side of the street. In and out among them he went until he got in front of J. H. Smith's residence where the carriage was turned bottom side up and the colt freed himself from it, but was caught by Joe. The animal was not materially injured though badly frightened but the carriage was a wreck. The whip even was broken. Pedestrians and those in conveyances scattered in every direction and the frightened steed had everything its own way till caught by Smith.

The Tecumseh Telephone Co.

Last Saturday night the council gave to Jas. S. Brailey, R. W. A. Fitzsimmons and Fred B. Wood the franchise to organize and maintain a local telephone exchange in this village, and these gentlemen have gone diligently about the matter, having already secured over thirty subscribers for telephones. As soon as enough interest has been awakened to insure success (and that is now apparent) our citizens will have an opportunity to take some of the stock and the company will then be chartered and known as the Tecumseh Telephone Company and will be a home institution from the start. The switch board, 'phones and equipments will all be of the latest improvements, long distance 'phones and line, and we believe will be heartily welcomed by our citizens.

The Bell people have pursued a policy which, while undoubtedly good business policy from their standpoint, has not been such as to encourage the people in giving their home circle the benefit of this later day device. The new company put their improved instruments in residences at one dollar per month which will be more than saved in the shoe leather of the good wife heretofore lost between home and down town, to say nothing of the emancipation of those thoughtful gentlemen who have had to wear a string on their finger for, lo, these many years, only to wonder in the end what that other thing was that the wife had told them to send home. Now if the Telephone Co. will get up a device to make the husband remember to deliver his wife's letters, it will indeed become a public benefactor, but if Col. Kyle will put a 'phone in the postoffice much may be accomplished yet.

CAP'N DICKEY'S CAPTIVES.

How His Crew of Cripples Recovered in a Night.

One Day Late the Schooner Hester Sailed Into Bristol Harbor with Rum, Molasses, Sundries and "Cinq Hommes."

The only words that Capt. John Dickey, of the Bristol schooner Hester, had understood were "cinq hommes."

"Five on 'em," he muttered. "That's odds for the frog-eaters."

And in the depths of his gloom he fell to cutting off a pipeful of tobacco.

Truly, Capt. John couldn't be very sanguine. He had sailed from Boston several days before, bound for Bristol town, or ancient Pemaquid, with a general cargo for the storekeepers of the settlement, and alas! a French privateersman had overhauled him away off the mouth of the Kennebec. The Hester had fled, but her flight was about as nimble as the scuttling away of an old hen floundering through a barnyard to escape a tormenting dog. The Hester was all right for conveying rum, molasses, and other necessaries—broad of beam and tight of seam. But she couldn't run away. Her blunt nose bumped against the waves, her heavy sides smashed clumsily down upon the brimming swell. The tough old bird spread all sail and bowled along, like a Brahma scudding before the wind with tail spread, but up came the privateersman, his frisky nose dipping, his clean sides flashing back the glint of the wave, and the spume whizzing through the lee braces.

"Schoonaire, ahoi!" shouted a little man from over the taffrail, his knurly, red nose gleaming from under his cap. The purser had edged up on the Hester's quarter, and Capt. Dickey and his men were surlily eying the small craft.

"What do you want?" roared back the captain, hoarsely, just as though he didn't know all too well.

The man with the knurly red nose screamed back:

"Heaf' to; stand by for bot'!"

Capt. Dickey didn't haul around at once, however. He turned to Mate Constant Judkins.

"S'pose we've got to, Jud?" he remarked, gloomily. "Course you know what it means. We're gobbled."

"Yes, and it's jest as well to be gobbled whole as piecemeal," remarked Mate Judkins, carefully throwing his quid to lee.

This was wisdom. So in a moment or so the Hester came slapping and clanging and foaming around into the wind. Not a moment too soon, for the privateersman's long Tom had taken a rather determined squint at the mainmast of the schooner.

Then Capt. Dickey, listening attentively and with saturnine face, heard a gobble of French, in which he distinguished "cinq hommes," and that alone, for he wasn't a linguist.

"Sank 'om," he growled; "wal, come along and sank 'om more if you want to."

Constant Judkins listened to the soliloquy with puzzled face.

"If I may be so questioniferous, cap'n," he asked, "who's this 'ere Sank Orm who is coming aboard?"

The captain didn't smile. "I heard 'em say in We-we lingo," he explained, "that they're going to put five prize men aboard us, and the Lord only knows where they'll take us!"

The crew of the Hester were four—the skipper, the mate—Ozarias Hodson, A. B., able-bodied seaman, and Berual Joquith, cook and before the mast.

Now, as the captain strode forward front of the house to see about throwing over the stern ladder, he saw Ozarias Hodson sitting on a rope coil in the waist, with head tied up.

"What ails you?" snapped the skipper.

"Toot'ache, sir, and dum'd bad, too!"

Ozarias evidently was more distracted by toothache than by a privateersman. Berual Joquith, who had had the lively suspicion that the privateersman would pop a few shots at them by way of exercise and practice, dodged out of sight into his sanctuary.

Just as Capt. Dickey threw over the stern ladder a thought struck him.

"By ginger!" said he, and he jumped as though he had suddenly taken in a mouthful of that condiment.

He threw a hasty look over the side. The privateersman was just getting its long boat in the water with the "sank'oms" and their sea chests.

"Jud," he called back to the mate, "make fast the wheel and dodge down here into the waist under the lee of the bulwark."

Judkins looked surprised, but he did so.

"Come along below," commanded the skipper, and both men followed him Down in his bunk they found the cook.

"Boys," said the captain, "there ain't time to go into long explanations, but I want you to know right now that you're all in awful bad shape, and I'm the only man about ship who can keep on his pegs."

The amazement on the faces of the three gradually grew into shrewd intelligence as they stared into the twinkling eyes of the "old man."

"Tell us what the trouble is with us," requested Berual, "and we'll be the sickest fellows you ever seed in about two flips of the flyin' jib."

"Wall," said the captain, "I ain't as good a liar as I wish I was, but I guess it'll be likely enough if a truck fell and smashed your jaw, Ozarias, fractured your collar-bone and broke Berual's leg, eh?" And the skipper extended a grin from his wrinkles.

"Hain't that putting consid'able responsibility on one truck, cap'n?"

"Thet ain't no telling what a truck will do on a rampage," cheerfully replied the captain.

Forthwith he bundled the toothachy Ozarias into his bunk and made him wrap more elaborate bandages about his head and shoulders.

Then he obliged Berual to remove his trousers, and hastily but neatly he strapped a bit of board upon the cook's leg, bandaging it with strips from his dishcloths.

"I'd kind of like to know the nature of my complaint," broke in Constant Judkins, "so that I can be practicin'."

The captain pondered. "I suppose I might have your arm broken," he said, dubiously. "But one block couldn't very well knock out the whole crew. We've got to have a little variety, for them frog-eaters are suspicious cusses. Ever have yaller janders?" he asked of Judkins.

"No."

"Well, all you've got to do is to lay still and haul your mouth down. I'll daub on a little slush," and the captain skillfully rubbed some of the yellow oil over the mate's face.

"Now look sick, all of you," said the captain as he prepared to go on deck and receive the prize crew. "It'll help you to look sicker if you recollect that the frog eaters have a way of slitting wizens when they suspicion shenanigan."

Of the Frenchmen who came over the rail none could talk English, and the captain couldn't talk French. Yes, he could—he could say "Bong shur," but he loftily forebore.

However, when the new arrivals looked around suspiciously for the crew, and unslung their carbines and appeared to apprehend ambush, the captain, with many waves of his hands and much "we-ing," led two of the five below with an air like a rooster gallantly conducting pullets to a worm banquet. In pantomime he explained the sad plight he was in, and his crew groaned dolefully at the proper times. He tried to explain to the Frenchmen how glad he was they had come and taken the Hester at this time of danger. The men didn't seem to grasp that part of the story, however. But the captain didn't care. The prize men were evidently thoroughly convinced that below decks was just the hospital it claimed to be, and after much ineffectual jargon and much gesturing they made the captain understand that he was to stay down and nurse his men. The captain was a good nurse. He must have worked the faith cure on his devoted crew, for in the deep gloom of the dog watch three very determined-looking convalescents sneaked barefooted at his heels as he wormed aft in the shadow of the Hester's bulwark.

The night was made for the enterprise. 'Twas clouded, and from the murk of the west a humming breeze sung in the shrouds and murmured down out of the hollows of the sails. One Frenchman was at the wheel and one pendulumed back and forward at the head of the companionway. Another was doubled up on a coil of rope in the lee of the house and the other two were presumably below. All the men on deck were unarmed, for it wasn't to be supposed that they would lug about an arsenal to protect themselves against a nautical invalids' home. So Capt. Dickey's miraculously healed bodyguard had little trouble in downing and tying all three before their surprise was over.

The only casualty was when a squirming Frenchman trod upon Bernal's bare foot. In his anguish the cook let out a howl that started the two men below on a rush for the deck. They bobbed out of the companion-hatch like two jacks-in-the-box, saw the situation and as quickly jerked themselves back.

They stayed barricaded in the cabin till the schooner came up into Bristol harbor, 24 hours later, with a bone in her mouth and the foam bells tinkling off her rudder. Capt. Dickey would, in the kindness of his heart, have fed the garrison in his cabin on plum duff and salt horse; but every time he tried to explain his wishes through the cabin window they poked their gunbarrels at him. The poor chaps evidently thought their companions had been made way with, and that the bluff-faced old skipper was cajoling them to a similar fate.

"What's your cargo, John, this trip?" roared Job Brismon, from the wharf as he waited to catch the line and fling it over a spliing.

"Rum, molasses, sundries, and Frenchmen," shouted back the captain; "and if you'll bear a hand with a plank we'll unload the Frenchmen fust."

And all Bristol flocked down to fling a sarcastic "polly voo" at Capt. John Dickey's unhappy captives.—Lewiston Journal.

Makes Queen Shed Tears.

According to an "absolutely unimpeachable authority," a writer in the Westminster Gazette relates how the Irish song: "The Wearing of the Green" was recently sung in Windsor castle. The queen, it appears, requested a young Irish lady who was visiting the castle to sing an Irish song. She went to the piano and sang "The Wearing of the Green" and, according to the story told, her majesty was touched by the pathos of the song and burst into tears. The writer continues: "'Ah!' said my eminent informant, 'you little know the depth of the queen's sympathy for the Irish and the tenderness of her heart.'"

Nice Girls.

Of Matthew Arnold as a school-examiner the author of "Pages from a Private Diary" has this to say: "Arnold's reports are very good reading, but his methods of examination were sometimes highly poetical. I remember a tale told by a fellow-inspector of a class of girl-pupil teachers that he asked Arnold to examine for him. Arnold gave them all the 'excellent' mark. 'But,' said the other inspector, 'surely they are not all as good as they can be; some must be better than others.' 'Perhaps that is so,' replied Arnold, 'but then, you see, they are all such very nice girls.'"

CHASED BY A COUGAR.

The only indigenous, long-tailed cat in America, north of the thirtieth parallel of latitude, is the cougar. The wildcats, so-called, are lynxes with short tails, and of these there are three distinct species. But there is only one true representative of the genus Felis; and that is the animal first above mentioned. It has received many trivial appellations. Among the early American trappers and hunters east of the Mississippi river, it is called the panther, or, in their patois, "painter;" in the Rocky mountains and California, the "California lion."

There are few wild animals, says the St. Louis Republic, so regular in their color as the cougar; very little variety has been observed among many specimens. The cougar of mature age is of a tawny red color, almost uniform over the whole body, although somewhat paler about the face and the parts underneath. Though considered the representative of the lion in America, his resemblance to the royal beast is but slight. His color alone entitles him to such an honor.

He is a tree climber. He can mount a tree with the agility of a cat, and, although so large an animal, he climbs by means of his claws—not by hugging, after the manner of bears and opossums.

While climbing a tree his claws can be heard cracking along the bark as he mounts upward. He sometimes lies squat along a horizontal branch—a lower one—for the purpose of springing upon a deer, or such other animal as he wishes to feed upon. The ledge of a cliff is also a favorite haunt, and such are known among old hunters as "panther ledges."

The Cascade range, and every tributary chain of mountains on the vast Pacific slope, was the habitat of the cougar, or mountain lion, as everybody out there called the ferocious beast. The cougar rarely ventured out of the great forests, however, the deer and mountain sheep furnishing them their general food.

In 1867 I was stationed at Fort Sincoe, in the valley of the same name, in Washington territory, as it was then called. One afternoon in June of the year mentioned, I started for Fort Dallas, 65 miles from Fort Sincoe, on the Columbia river.

There were no wagon roads in those early days. Everything had to be carried on pack mules, because of the rough, rocky and precipitous character of the country. The majority of the mule trails were what are called "zigzags;" that is, angling from right to left up the steep sides of the mountains, it being impossible to make the ascent by going straight up their scarped faces.

I mounted my beautiful coal-black mare, Petaluma, one of those strong Indian ponies famous for their endurance and ability to climb the fearful, narrow pathways, only by which communication between points was made possible.

I left the post without carrying any arms—not even a revolver—a careless habit of mine, for which I was reprimanded more than once by my commanding officer; but one becomes indifferent to constant danger in a wild country, and I was never cured of the fault. I reached the foot of the first "zig-zag," at the west side of the valley, where it juts against the range of mountains about sundown, and, before essaying the ascent, dismounted and cinched my saddle.

In a little more than three hours I reached the summit, making frequent halts to wind my animal, for she had labored heavily in struggling up the grade.

When I started on again, after resting 20 or 30 minutes, the moon, which was at its full, now appeared at the verge of the horizon, way below me at the lower end of the valley, and began to light up the trail on the summit of the range, so that in the clear, cloudless sky objects were as distinctly visible as at noonday, though the atmosphere and all nature seemed tinged with a silver sheen.

The trail on the summit of the range ran over a narrow tableland for several miles, and then entered the deep pine and cedar forest at the other extremity of the chain of great hills over which I was going. A ride of 12 miles further and I arrived at a lonely spot, entirely denuded of timber excepting a group of blasted cedars about an acre in extent.

I reached the place just as my watch indicated midnight. Seating myself on one of the granite bowlders scattered over the ground, I lighted my pipe and was about to enjoy the delicious fragrance of some tobacco which had been given me the day before by an officer lately arrived from the states, when my mare, which I was holding by the rein, gave a convulsive shudder and nearly broke away from me. I could not for a moment divine what had caused her trepidation, for when with me, although a most highly-mettled animal, she was usually as docile as a kitten.

The moon was nearly over my head, and I gazed around in wonder for some minutes to learn the cause of my pet animal's strange action. Presently, on looking at the very center of the cluster of blasted cedars, I saw two great green eyes staring at me with a steadiness that was appalling. For a moment I was seemingly fascinated by the uncanny vision, but in another instant all sense of possible superstition vanished, as I saw the bushes move and heard dead twigs lying on the ground crack as if under the foot of some heavy animal treading on them. With bated breath, I saw a monstrous cougar stealthily crawl out of the tangled mass of brushwood in a crouching attitude, its tail slowly oscillating, as does that of the domestic cat when watching a mousehole.

The beast evidently then saw me for the first time, and, as is natural with the species, instinctively drew back, as if to fly from the presence of man. It was my handsome mare the cougar coveted, but, seeing me, it deferred the fatal spring it had contemplated at the moment its eyes first met mine.

I soothed Petaluma as best I could, but her trembling was not in the least abated, though she rubbed her nose against my coat sleeve, as was her wont when I caressed her. She seemed a little more passive—that is, she did not attempt those frantic jumps in her efforts to get away that at first characterized her terrible fright when she smelled the cougar, or by some instinct became aware of its proximity.

What I had to do, and do quickly, was to get away from there as soon as possible, for I did not know how soon the ferocious brute, nearly famished with hunger, maybe, might make an effort to fasten its horrid claws into the flanks of my mare, ignoring my presence entirely. So I hurriedly knocked the tobacco from my pipe, and, stroking Petaluma on the shoulder, mounted her as rapidly as I ever had before in my life, and was no sooner seated firmly in my saddle than, without a word or other impulse from me, she made a bolt down the trail that nearly threw me over her head, at the same instant seeming to shrink convulsively in a frantic effort to look behind her.

I sympathetically turned my head around and gazed at the bare hilltop this side of the blasted cedars, and, to my horror, saw those great green eyes but a few rods behind me, following my trail with a sort of crouching, crawling motion, all ready, evidently, to spring the moment it had covered the right distance.

When I noticed that the cougar was crawling in its crouching attitude behind me I had presence of mind enough to think that if I reined my horse and made her walk, it would impress the cougar with the fact that I was there as well as the animal it wanted to devour for its late supper. I could thwart its designs, as I felt confident that where I had first seen the cougar, in a narrow valley, surrounded by lofty mountains, heavily timbered, the government had erected a blockhouse and a corral, in which were herded a number of horses and mules, to be used as relays between the military posts.

I hoped that I should be able to make that point in about two hours from the cluster of cedars, but now that the cougar had entered as a factor in my calculations, I did not know whether I should reach the blockhouse at all, or maybe only on foot, with my beautiful mare's bones left on the trail, picked clean by the vicious beast that was following me.

True to its instincts, it was really afraid of me. I succeeded with great difficulty, however, in coaxing my mare into a slow walk, the effect of which resulted as I surmised it would. The cougar ceased, at once its fearful bounds, and settled down into a shambling sort of gait, dropping further behind me at the moment.

Desirous of knowing for a certainty whether my tactics were the sudden cause of the creature's abrupt change of movement, I allowed Petaluma to break into a quick lope, and the instant the huge cat noticed the mare's renewed effort to get away, it commenced its former action. I then slackened my gait, and to my intense satisfaction the cougar once more lagged behind, renewing its slow movements, and seemed to be now watching the rider closer than it did the mare.

I did not again dare to let Petaluma go any faster than a walk, and during the whole 12 miles to the blockhouse, as long as I maintained that slow gait, the cougar did not try to spring toward us.

After continuing in that tiresome manner for about four hours, I at last entered the little valley, and just as I rode out of the heavy timber into the bright moonlight, the terrible beast gave one awful roar and turned back into the forest, a sad and disappointed cougar.

I changed animals at the blockhouse and rode on to the river without further adventure, happy in having saved my beautiful Petaluma, and possibly myself, from the jaws of the hungry beast, which had been my unwelcome companion for so many weary miles.

A SHOT AT THE SENATE.

A Kentucky Orator Who Found the Senate Too Deliberative.

A lot of Kentuckians were talking the other evening about the great men of their state, says the Washington Star.

"One of the finest old gentlemen on earth," said a distinguished man in the group, "is Gen. John S. Williams, or 'Cerro Gordo,' as he is popularly known, and when I was in the senate gallery the other day, listening to the solemnity of things, I was reminded of the time when Gen. Williams was a Kentucky representative in that distinguished body. The general, as we all know in Kentucky, is a spellbinder, and when he turns his voice and his brilliant oratory loose on the blue grass air it stirs things up 40 feet below the ground and clean up to the canopy of the heavens.

"When the general came to the senate he had an idea that what was good in Kentucky was good anywhere, so he was ready at any time to let loose any quantity of eloquence. He had opportunity in plenty, as it happened, but the result of his efforts was not satisfactory. He kept on trying, but still it wouldn't work, and one day the general gave way in the cloakroom before a dozen or more listeners.

"'Be gad, suh,' he said, hotly, 'I think it is a shame, suh, that the galleries of this senate chamber are not allowed to applaud, suh. Why, suh, when I make a speech in Kentucky, suh, the applause is such, suh, that if the same privileges were allowed in these galleries, suh, I would be able, suh, to lift the roof right off of this magnificent marble structure, suh. But as it is, suh, the stupidity, the dignity and the frigidity of this senate absolutely paralyzes my intellect, suh.'"

A COUNTRY OF SURPRISES.

Coal, Lead, Silver and Tin in South Africa.

While there is little doubt that with proper development of its agricultural and pastoral resources South Africa could be made practically self-supporting, the successful development of these industries depends nevertheless upon the creation of local markets through the stimulus given by mining operations, says the North American Review.

With the exception of mining of gold, diamonds and coal there have been no considerable exploitations of its mineral resources. Coal fortunately exists in many parts of the country, and it has been estimated that the known coal fields represent an area of 56,000 square miles, which is equal in extent to the state of Iowa. There exist in some parts of the country large deposits of iron contiguous to the coal fields. But as yet the economic conditions have not favored the development of that industry. Lead, silver, cinnabar, tin and other metals are also found in many parts of the country, but have not been remuneratively worked. Among the mining countries of South Africa the Transvaal is facile princeps, and is in all probability destined to maintain its paramount position, though, as is well known, South Africa is "a country of surprises," and it is possible, of course, though not probable, that within its great extent other equally important districts may be discovered.

BLAINE'S GENEROSITY.

How the Plumed Knight Aided President Taylor's Daughter.

A good story of James G. Blaine is told by a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The incident related was a magnanimous and clever act of the Maine statesman, when, as speaker of the house, he got through a resolution appropriating $12,000 to the needy widowed daughter of President Zachary Taylor. This lady got as far as Washington on her way to Paris to see a sick daughter, and, being destitute of money, appealed to her only friend at the capital, Gen. Sherman. His purse was always open to the distressed, but he had no funds at all adequate to relieve her necessities. In this emergency he thought of Blaine. The man from Maine entered into the spirit of the occasion as soon as he heard Gen. Sherman's statement. He called another to the chair, made a five-minutes' speech that fairly electrified the house, which passed the resolution which Blaine had penned only a moment before. He took the resolution in person to the senate, where it was also immediately passed, had the president to sign it the next day, and on the following day the beneficiary got the money. Gen. Sherman always insisted that Blaine would have made the grandest actor that ever lived, and in adapting his career to politics, he robbed the stage of a born star.

The Sand-Ladened Missouri.

Mr. Frank H. Spearman writes in St. Nicholas of the freaks of the Missouri river, his article being entitled "A Shifting Boundary." Mr. Spearman says: You must know that the real business of the Missouri is to carry the mountain waters east and south into the Gulf of Mexico. But in bounding from side to side of its valley through the tedious centuries, it has twisted and turned so many times that no doubt its head is confused. Carrying the quantity of mud it does, you would hardly expect it to be clear-headed. There is actually so much sand in the water that the fish all have sore eyes; some are totally blind—the saddest-looking creatures you ever caught. A really fastidious trout or bass dropped into the Missouri would hang himself in despair—on a fishhook.

Infectious Maladies in Italy.

According to an eminent Italian hygienic expert, official medical returns show that in Italy 200,000 persons die every year from infectious—that is, from preventable—maladies, most of them being young, "the hope of families."

BACKACHE

makes the young feel old, and the old feel that life is not worth the living. It's a danger signal of Kidney Disease—the unerring evidence of weak, inactive and sore Kidneys. Any person cured of Kidney weakness will tell you that when the back ceased to ache, all troubles ended. Neither liniments, nor plasters, nor electricity can cure it. The seat of the trouble is not in the skin, flesh or muscles. It's in the Kidneys.

It can be CURED

To whom this may concern. I have been troubled with kidney and lame back for more than a year, and have never received any benefit until I saw your Sparagus Kidney Pills advertised about the first of January, when I got a box and took them, and can truly say they are the best medicine I ever used. I have not had a lame back for two months, and I cheerfully recommend them to anybody suffering with lame back. J. A. PRATT, 88 Broad st., Adrian, Mich.

TO THE POINT.

Boss's Remark After the Accident Had Happened.

One of the men employed in a certain Yorkshire stone quarry is a man of few words. Indeed, his popularity with his mates has been attributed to the fact that Dick could never spare enough words to get up a decent quarrel with anyone, says Clips.

The other day a huge block of stone, weighing several tons, was being raised by the chains of a steam crane. When near the top the chain suddenly gave way. Dick was at work 60 feet below when the accident occurred. Fortunately he realized his danger, though only just in time, and sprang from the ledge on which he stood to another at some distance.

A second later and the huge block was thrown into a thousand pieces on the bare bed of stone.

Trembling in every limb, the owner of the quarry, who had witnessed the scene, hurried to where Dick was standing and seized him by the hand.

"Whatever would have happened if you had delayed your leap a second, Dick?" he gasped.

The workman glanced back at the mass of debris on the ledge.

"It 'ud 'a' been a funeral," he replied, coolly, seizing his pick and preparing to resume work.

WHILE YOU WAIT.

Some Minor Indications of the Hustling Spirit of the Age.

"Block your hat while you wait," was the first of the "while you wait" signs; it was once familiar, it is now not so often seen. Then came the sign "Your shoes repaired while you wait." The first of these signs, says the New York Sun, appeared in the Bowery. Two expert workmen sat in the window of the shoemaker's shop, working busily. More men at work were seen inside. There were comfortable chairs for waiting customers, and newspapers for them to read. The shop filled a long-felt want. There is now a considerable number of places in the city where shoes are mended while you wait. On the signs of some of them a schedule of time required is given; so many minutes for heeling and so many for soling.

In some tailor shops nowadays clothes are pressed while you wait, and there are dentists' offices in which you may have your artificial teeth repaired while you wait.

In summer there are to be found nowadays establishments where they clean and press your straw hat while you wait. They are usually set up in some vacant store on a busy street.

In some of these places one may see half a dozen men sitting hatless, waiting, reading newspapers or looking on at the men at work, who have, in the different stages, three hats in hand at once.

The modern "while you wait" signs show enterprise that is all the time on the lookout for new ways of making money, and they show also the modern tendency to do things and get them out of the way.

WORE HIS ARMY CLOTHES.

Angelica's Small Brother Suffered Because of an Extra Syllable.

Angelica invited her young man to the evening meal, states New York Chips. Everything passed off harmoniously until Angelica's seven-year-old brother broke the blissful silence by exclaiming:

"Oh, ma, yer oughter seen Mr. Lighted the other night, when he called to take Angelica to the drill. He looked so nice, sittin' 'long side of her with his arm—"

"Fred!" screamed the maiden, whose face began to assume the color of a well-done crab, quickly placing her hand over the boy's mouth.

"Yer oughter seen him," continued the persistent informant, after gaining his breath and the embarrassed girl's hand was removed; "he had his arm—"

"Freddie!" shouted the mother, as, in her frantic attempt to reach the boy's auricular appendage, she upset the contents of the teapot in Mr. Lighted's lap, making numerous Prussian war maps over his new lavender trousers.

"I was just going to say," the half-frightened boy pleaded, between a cry and an injured whine, "he had his arm—"

"You boy!" thundered the father, "get out!"

And the boy did so, exclaiming as he waltzed: "I was only going to say Mr. Lighted had his army clothes on; and I leave it to him if he didn't."

COUNTESS VON LINDEN.

The Only Woman Lecturer at the German Universities.

While the battle for the social and political position of woman is still raging and remains undecided theoretically, women have practically approached their goal during the last decade in several points, particularly by invading the field of science, which formerly was looked upon as a privilege of man only, says an exchange. The number of female students at the universities of Germany as well as elsewhere is steadily increasing. Women in the study of literary and medical branches are numerous, but the natural sciences, mathematics and astronomy were not looked upon with favor by the weaker sex. The first woman in Germany to devote herself to natural sciences is Countess Maria von Linden. Born July 18, 1869, she received an excellent education at Stuttgart, and graduating from the high school in 1891 she entered the Tubingen university, where she devoted herself to the study of natural sciences, graduating with the highest honors in the fall of 1895. She was then promoted to the degree of doctor rerum naturalibus and was the pioneer of her sex in this branch. She is now teaching zoology in the University of Halle with much success, and is the only woman allowed to lecture at any German university.

Cannibalism in Africa.

It appears from an account of his observations by Capt. Sidney Hinde in the Congo Free State that the cannibalistic practices of the natives throughout that region are not fairly understood by the civilized world. Capt. Hinde went to Africa in 1891 in the service of the king of Belgium. He had no conception before going there of the extent to which human flesh is used for food by the natives. It seems that a considerable portion of the slave traffic is to provide meat for those who purchase the prisoners. Every battle is followed by a horrible feast, and the parts unconsumed are smoked and salted for future use. Even in times of peace the practice is observed, and Capt. Hinde says it was not unusual for prisoners or slaves to come to him and beg the privilege of slaughtering some companion to be used for food.

Grasses.

According to Dr. W. J. Peal, the native grasses of North America number about 1,275 species, included in about 140 genera; while in Europe there are only 47 genera and 570 species.

Agriculture in Paraguay.

Agriculture has been about the sole industry of Paraguay since the establishment of the Jesuit missions in 1557. All the field work is done by women.

THIRTY-TWO CHILDREN.

A Vienna Woman Holds the Maternity Record for Austria.

If any woman ever deserved well of her country, the lady in question is a Viennese who has just been described by Dr. Alois Valenta in the Wiener Medicinische Wochenscrift. Her merits consist in having given many more subjects and soldiers to the emperor than any of his female subjects. Of course she is poor. As a matter of fact, she is the wife of a needy linen weaver of Neuerchenfeld, in Vienna, and, if she did not give her husband a big marriage portion, she presented him with no less than 32 children, and she is still comparatively young, being only in her fortieth year. She has been the mother of 26 boys and 6 girls.

The birth of the 32 children occurred in this wise, and in the following order: At the first birth were born four; at the second, three; at the third, four; at the fourth, two; at the fifth, three; at the sixth, two; at the seventh, three; at the eighth, three; at the ninth, two; at the tenth, three, and at the eleventh three. The mother nursed all her children herself. Another strange feature of the case is that the mother suffered from her fifteenth year weekly, and sometimes daily, from epileptic fits, which so far have not been inherited by the children. She herself was one of four at a birth, and her mategnal parent in her time succeeded in presenting her spouse with no less than 38 children.

A FISH'S MEMORY.

German Professor Wants Information on the Subject.

We have to live such busy, cyclopaedic lives nowadays that it is very delightful sometimes to turn aside into some quiet corner and watch a specialist at work, says the Westminster Gazette. It may be only the eye of a fly or the digestive apparatus of a caterpillar, but he devotes his life to it and thinks nothing of all the noise and human struggles going on outside. A German professor, Ludwig Edinger, is absorbed at present in the question: "Have fish a memory?" and he has written to the Lancet to invite information on the subject. It may seem a trivial question and the brain of a fish may be a very small quantity, but a great many little thing in nature are worth studying, and even if the problem cannot be solved it will give a good opening for fish stories. Every disciple of Izaak Walton will have something to say and anecdotes to tell to back his opinions. There are no fish in the neighborhood of Fleet street, and, therefore, we cannot try experiments, and the only contribution we can make to the discussion is to ask why anglers have to be so particular about the make and color of their artificial flies if fish have no memory. If fish have vision without a sense of memory surely they would never discriminate between a May fly and a red spinner and anglers would be saved a lot of trouble.

ON THE WANE.

Bull Fighting No Longer Popular Among the Spaniards.

Bull fighting is on the wane in Spain, and its popularity is rapidly declining. This, says the New York Tribune, is shown by the fact that the Madrid chamber of commerce has just presented a petition based on the unanimous vote of its members to the governor of Madrid, requesting him to put a stop to week-day corridos, save on exceptional occasions. It is urged therein that bull fights on working days injure trade and industry, are detrimental to the dispatch of business in the government offices and favor idleness with all its accompanying evils. The governor has promised to accede to the petition, and his decision is approved by a large and influential portion of the public, while the remainder of the people view the matter with indifference. Yet 20 years ago the bare idea of any restriction of the number of bull fights by the authorities would have raised a storm of indignation, possibly developing into a revolution. The altered condition of public sentiment with regard to this national sport is mainly attributable to the excellent influence of the queen regent, who has always set her face against bull fighting, resolutely declining to countenance the corridos by her presence.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

Order by Mail.

No greater aid to the shopping community has ever been devised than the Mail Order System. Ladies living at a distance and occupied with the various duties of life cannot always find time to visit the city to purchase the various articles they may desire. To them the system is invaluable. They may be a thousand miles away, but still can purchase their goods as easily and satisfactorily as if they were to visit our store in person. A postal card directed to us will bring you a price list of goods or any samples you may desire to see. You can then sit quietly at home and make your selections without the bother of going to market, and thus escape all the crowding and jostling that is incidental to the large dry goods houses. Our Mail Order Department is well equipped. The most experienced salespeople attend to your wants. They are alive to the swift-changing fashions; their experience in the business teaches them which are the most serviceable and stylish goods. The customer at a distance has sometimes a decided advantage over those who purchase in person. When we receive an order it is placed in the hands of a salesman who knows all about the goods to be selected. He will not make any mistake, and he selects articles that he knows will give the best satisfaction; whereas there are cases when you would not make such judicious purchases yourself.

June 26, L. Whitney Watkins, acting under instructions for the state game and fish warden, went to Bridgewater and served warrants on Wm. Westphal, jr., Gottlob Benzler, Henry Brass, Adam Hoerning and Insego Arnold for illegal fishing. They will be examined in Justice Pond's court in this city on Wednesday, July 28.—Ann Arbor Argus.

Mrs. J. W. Showalter, sister of J. W. Marshal, salesman for H. Lang, is conceded to be the best lady chess player in the world. She is at present taking part in an international chess tournament at London in which lady chess players of all the world are contestants. Her husband, J. W. Showalter, was defeated for the world's chess championship contest by H. M. Pillsbury. Mrs. Showalter is as shrewd a player as her husband.

One day last week three men from abroad invaded Reading, and carried off three of the best young ladies of the village, all of them being school teachers. Of course it was necessary to fee the preachers who were parties in the deal, but as they needed the money, there is no adverse criticism. Two of the newly made husbands are also teachers, so that the affairs might well be called a wholesale uniting of educational interests.—Hudson Post.

Rev. C. I. Deyo, of Britton, Lenawee county, delivered a sermon to the Masons in which he said: "I have been told that the Masons killed Morgan. I don't believe it, but will give you the benefit of the doubt. The Catholics and Protestants have killed thousands, while the whole Masonic fraternity is accused of killing one man." There are a great many others who think as Mr. Deyo does. The sermon has caused considerable discussion.—Ann Arbor Argus.

There was quite a young cyclone at Wamplers Lake last Friday afternoon. It tore up several of the largest oak and elm trees by the roots, drove the boats up in a pile on the shore and blew a large pane of glass out of a window in one of the Fitzgerald cottages. The occupants of the cottages think that it was as close to a cyclone as they wish to get. Miss Alice Ladd took some kodak views of the scene after the storm to remind her of how close she came to blowing away.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Some parties living in Clinton have a sail boat called the little Devil, on Sand Lake, which on account of its name is very popular with Adrian people. Last Sunday some from the county seat were sailing, when the boat capsized, and one gentleman lost $40 in money that was in a pocket book. Had the country been on either a gold or silver basis exclusively, he would have been compelled to dive for it, but the good old paper money floated at par, and was rescued without any trouble.—Hudson Post.

Two young men from Blissfield who were rusticating at Devil's lake Wednesday, rented bathing suits with a view of taking a bath, but it seems they did not confine their "taxing" to the bath alone, but carried off the suits. They came to Hudson on their wheels and Marshal Richards was notified, who succeeded in recovering the stolen property. The young men said they paid 25c apiece to the man who gave them the suits and thought of course they had purchased the abbreviated garments.—Hudson Gazette.

Prof. Carlos, who says he is an Egyptian hypnotist, proposes to give some exhibitions in the store under Workingmen's hall. Among the things he proposes to do is the Hindoo burial test, putting a man under ground for 24 or 36 hours. He wants a local subject. Mayor Kirk states that if he attempts anything of this kind a stop will be put to it immediately, and Marshal Honig has been notified to watch the professor. Mayor Kirk says if he knew before Griffith came here, what he knows now about hypnotists, he would have put a stop to his window performance.

Deputy sheriff Shipman last Monday received word from the sheriff of Shiawassee county to detain one Harry Chapman, a boy 13 years of age, who had ran away from his home at Corunna, and supposed to be in this vicinity. The boy was found, at his aunt's home, Mrs. El. Miller, where he had been clothed and taken care of. He said he left home on account of ill-treatment received from his step-mother. Mr. Shipman telegraphed for instructions but received no answer and left the lad with his aunt who is pleased to keep and take care of him.—Dundee Reporter.

The Adrian Press says: "The TELEGRAM shies its castor into the ring to fight Capt. Miller's appointment as judge." But there is where our neighbor is off. This paper hasn't said a word against Capt. Miller. It simply called attention to a beautiful little trap the old Republican machine had set for Ping, and it pointed out that Ping would be more of a fool than even Sterns thinks he is, if he walks into the trap and appoints Miller. This paper is not fighting the appointment of anybody nor advocating the appointment of anybody. It is simply recording history as it is.

For people to pay
High prices for drugs as of yore,
And yet you will wonder why
That drugs are so high,
When everything the farmer has is lower.
The problem is easily solved
If you so resolve
And go about to find the ifs and ands.
Perhaps some one has thoughtlessly
With new goods filled, as formerly,
The bottle and left the old mark stand.
Now, if you wish a remedy
And will tell the family,
We will point you out the place to go,
Where all has been revised,

And you will get your money's worth, we know.

A TERRIBLE WRECK.

Two Trains Crash Together Near Logan, Ia.

Thirty-One Persons Are Killed—The Injured Number Thirty-Nine—Engineer's Mistake of Orders the Cause—Wreck Near Chicago.

Omaha, Neb., July 13.—An appalling accident to an excursion train occurred early Saturday evening at Logan, Ia., 35 miles east of this city, on the line of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, in which 31 persons living in this city, Council Bluffs, Missouri Valley and intervening points, were killed and 39 injured. Many of the injured will, in all probability, die.

A Fatal Error.

The wreck occurred as a result of Engineer Montgomery, of the excursion train, mistaking orders. He was ordered to wait at Logan until the fast mail and the east-bound passenger train had passed. He waited for the passenger and then started out, having forgotten about the mail. The trains were going 50 miles an hour, when they met three miles west of Logan.

An Awful Scene.

The scene which followed the crash is indescribable. Both engines and the first passenger coach were demolished. The shrieks of women, the yells of men and the wails of the injured and dying in the gathering gloom rose above the crash of the heavy machinery and the screeching of steam escaping from the wrecked locomotives.

The Union Pacific Pioneer's association is composed of the employes of the Union Pacific system. The larger portion of them work in Union Pacific shops in this city, and as rule have large families dependent on them.

The Dead.

A complete list of the dead is as follows:

A. M. Gerard, 1839 Seventh avenue, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Owen Cavanaugh, Eighteenth and Charles streets, Omaha, aged 18; Willie Cosgrove, 1622 Nicholas street, Omaha; E. G. Winegar, a brakeman, Boone, Ia.; Fred Neilson, Omaha; Lawrence Peterson, engineer waterworks, Council Bluffs; Mrs. Carroll, 1219 North Seventeenth street, Omaha; infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll; Mrs. Bradley, wife of moulder, Union Pacific shops, Omaha; infant of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley; Dudson, son of Sam Dudson, Omaha; William Rummit, Missouri Valley; Mrs Neilson, 22 North Thirty-third street, Omaha; John Perkins, 1442 North Nineteenth street; Pierson, son of Andrew Pierson, machinist, 13 years old; John Larson, 16 years old, 1118 North Eighteenth street, World-Herald carrier; Patrick Scully, stationary engineer, Union Pacific shops, 2524 Center street; Miss Maggie Cosgrove, Eighteenth and Nicholas streets, Omaha; Charles Helman, Missouri Valley, Ia.; William Wilson, Ninth avenue and Fifteenth street, Council Bluffs; Claire, son of Robert Claire, boilermaker, Omaha, head off and body identified by shoes; John Cosgrove, Eighteenth and Nicholas streets, Omaha; James E. Lawrence, tinsmith, Omaha; Walter Jennings, Missouri Valley, Ia.; John McDermott, machinist, 1612 Nicholas street, Omaha; Mary Tracy, 1107 North Eighteenth street; Mrs. John Kahler, identified in Council Bluffs, where she lived; infant of Mr. and Mrs. John Kahler, three months old; Phillip Carroll, boy, 1425 North Seventeenth street, Omaha; John Kinzle, Forty-sixth and Cuming streets, Omaha.

DISASTER NEAR CHICAGO.

Picnic Train Wrecked and Five Persons Are Killed.

Chicago, July 13.—An excursion train on the Wisconsin Central ran into an open switch at Altenheim, a suburb ten miles west of this city, Sunday evening, killing five people and injuring about 20. The names of the dead are: Charles Samuels, Chicago; Frederick Keitel, Chicago, Fred Koch, Chicago; Miss Mary Arnold and Miss Mary Hubert.

It is not known who is guilty of leaving the switch open, but pending an investigation the police arrested Conductor Heater, James Grant and William Dolan, the crew of the excursion train, and the crew of the side-tracked passenger train.

HE CONFESSES.

Chicago's Famous "Short" Man Acknowledges His Crimes.

Chicago, July 14.—William, alias "Red," Sullivan, the "short man" in the robbery of the New York Biscuit company, has confessed. He sat silent for more than 17 hours in the "sweat box" with Chief Badenoch and other police officials interrogating him, but at last the strain was too much for him and he broke down. Not only has he confessed to participation in the New York Biscuit company hold-up, but he also admits that he was the "short man" who figured in 15 or 16 other robberies.

Says He Stole $36,000.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 14.—Maj. W. C. Moreland, ex-city attorney, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of embezzlement of $36,000 of city funds. His assistant, W. H. House, pleaded not guilty and was placed on trial. The auditor's report last week shows a discrepancy of $300,000 in the accounts of Morgland and House.

Three Drowned.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 13.—A sail boat containing three young men capsized on the Niagara river near the foot of Austin street Sunday afternoon. The current in the river at this point is very strong and before assistance could reach them they were drowned.

Baltimore, Md., July 13.—Mrs. Thomas Woolford, aged 64, and her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Siemaker, aged 65, were burned to death by the explosion of a lamp at their home in this city.

THE CROP REPORT.

Influence of the Weather of Past Week on Growing Grains.

Chicago, July 15.—The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country, and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same, were made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Ohio—The stormy weather of the 8th and 9th blew down some corn, oats and wheat in shock. The 9th was cool, and the week closed very warm. Wheat is being threshed in southern section, yield poor. Oats are being cut in southern half, prospects good, yield excellent in quality. Haying and harvest retarded slightly by showers, hay fair. Tobacco is clean and is being topped. Gardens are fine, fruit is promising, pastures are good; corn is growing finely, but hurt some by chinch bugs.

Michigan—Weather very favorable for wheat and rye harvest and haying, which are nearing completion. Threshing has commenced. Oats are in fine condition, are ripening, and in a few cases cutting has begun. Corn continues in excellent condition and is beginning to tassel. Potatoes, beans and garden truck are doing well. Everything needs more rain, especially pasturage, which is brown and short.

Indiana—Excellent weather prevailed for harvesting and growing crops. Corn is in silk and tassels; potatoes, tomatoes, melons and vegetables in good condition; tobacco looks well; wheat and rye threshing most done; oats harvest commenced; haying continues.

Illinois—Favorable week for work, which has been pushed; oats harvest and haying practically finished, timothy saved in fine condition. Some threshing of oats, rye and wheat done; wheat is poor to fair, rye and oats fair to good; oats somewhat damaged by rust. Corn growing finely, early earing well and late being laid by.

Iowa—Ideal harvest weather, bright, cool and generally rainless. Harvest of oats and spring wheat in progress, and both crops much hurt by rust. Oats have suffered more from rust than wheat. Corn has made good advancement. Rain is needed for immature crops.

Wisconsin—Week very warm with practically no rain, except light showers in northern section. Haying is about completed, with a fair crop of good quality. Rye mostly cut in southern and middle counties, excellent crops. Oats very heavy and beginning to ripen. Corn and pasture badly in need of rain.

Minnesota—Week dry and hot; the droughty conditions rapidly spreading and intensifying. Wheat in north short, thin and late, in south better, but below average; other crops doing fairly well; fair crop of rye harvested; large amount of hay well secured.

M'KINLEY'S CAMPAIGN.

Mark Hanna Chooses a Force of Assistant Managers.

Cleveland, O., July 14.—After weighing in the balance the names of 20 prominent republicans for a month, Chairman M. A. Hanna has named the executive committee who will be his coinborers and advisers in managing McKinley's campaign. The list of executive committeemen was furnished to the press Monday morning. The official list contains the names of M. A. Hanna, of Ohio, chairman; M. S. Quay, of Pennsylvania; Joseph H. Manley, of Maine; H. C. Payne, of Wisconsin; Cyrus Leland, of Kansas; Powell Clayton, of Arkansas; C. G. Dawes, of Illinois; W. T. Durbin, of Indiana, and N. B. Scott, of West Virginia. The republican executive committee will meet in this city Wednesday. W. M. Osborne, of Boston, is made secretary of the committee and J. A. Dick, of this city, assistant secretary.

HEAVY ROBBERY.

Money and Jewels Amounting to $30,000 Stolen at a Hospital.

Philadelphia, July 15.—An extensive robbery was reported to the police late Tuesday afternoon. At the St. Joseph's hospital Tuesday $30,000 in money and jewels were stolen from Mr. and Mrs. Moore, patients at the institution. The valuables were taken from a trunk. William H. Thompson, a professional nurse at the hospital, is suspected as the robber. He has disappeared and the police are looking for him.

MURDERER CONFESSES.

Slayer of Minnie Keil Implicates Her Brother in the Crime.

Bellevue, Ia., July 13.—Christian Eckelebe, who was arrested on suspicion for the murder of Minnie Keil on July 4, and now confined at Andrew awaiting his preliminary examination, has made a confession implicating a brother of the murdered girl as his companion and the instigator of the crime. Miss Keil was shortly intending having a final settlement of her father's estate, whereby the farm would be divided.

Fell Dead.

Kokomo, Ind., July 11.—John Wallace, wealthy farmer near town, fell dead from his horse while out riding. The faithful horse, one he had been riding for 20 years, was standing guard over his master's body when found. Wallace was 60 years old.

Was Fatally Injured.

Wichita, Kan., July 11.—"Oklahoma" Harry Hill, a well-known frontiersman whose life has been a romance interwoven with the early history of Kansas and Oklahoma, died in this city from the effects of being thrown from a buggy in a runaway.

Refuse the Money.

Havana, July 15.—The merchants of this city have refused the last issue of paper money. A decree has been issued by Gen. Weyler obliging all foreigners to inscribe their nationality on a special register to be reported by the general government.

Ducat & Grantham's livery barn at St. Joseph, Mo., was burned, and 60 horses, many of them valuable blooded animals, were cremated.

The Christian Endeavor Convention Is Largely Attended.

The Capital City Resounds with Songs of Praise—A Remarkable Demonstration—The Closing Day.

Washington, July 11.—The one topic in the four great meetings of the Christian Endeavor convention yesterday was "saved to serve," and attention was devoted to the junior workers' societies.

One of the features of the meeting was the unrolling of the missionary roll of honor, being lists of names on continuous sheets of paper rolled up on hose reels after the manner of petitions, etc., when prepared for impressive effect. Upon it were the names of 5,660 young people's societies, 2,331 junior societies, representing 35 states, seven territories, seven provinces and four foreign lands, and showing contributions of $154,022.68 to home and foreign mission boards, and $206,150.21 to other denominational uses, a total of $360,172.89. Of this the Clarendon street Baptist society, Boston, and the Calvary Presbyterian society, Buffalo, each gave in excess of $1,000.

The Third Day.

Washington, July 13.—The most remarkable religious demonstration ever concentrated at one spot and probably the greatest this country has ever seen was that of the open-air patriotic song service at the east front of the United States capitol Saturday evening, which has proved a popular public feature of the big Christian Endeavor convention. Fully 25,000 people were within the shadow of the great dome of the capitol to listen to the great 4,000-voice chorus, and the sight was more inspiring than the inauguration ceremonies.

The Fourth Day.

Washington, July 13.—A list of 30 meetings arranged to be held in the tents and churches yesterday afternoon offered varying attractions to the 40,000 Christian Endeavor delegates in attendance upon the fifteenth international convention. These were mostly denominational rallies, and they drew crowds according to the numerical strength of each particular denomination.

The Last Day.

Washington, July 14.—The last day's session of the fifteenth international Christian Endeavor convention yesterday was reserved for missionaries, and Margaret W. Leitch, of Ceylon, and Rebecca Kirkorian, of Turkey, just returned from the scene of the atrocities, spoke to an immense crowd. The appearance of Miss Kirkorian, in Armenian costume, her sad face and her broken and pathetic story of her people's woes moved the great audience to frequent and audible expressions of sympathy and sorrow.

Evangelist Mills took up the appeal and assailed the governments of Europe, England and the United States for their indifference toward the Armenian slaughter. In conclusion he said: "Our government has stirred the passions of the American people to anger against England on one-thousandth part of the pretext that would have sufficed for a destructive war with Turkey. The administration officers have turned a deaf and almost scornful ear to the entreaties and representations of some of our best citizens, missionaries, churches and moral societies, and I denounce their conduct as unpatriotic, uncivil, undemocratic, unrepublican, un-American, un-Christian, selfish, weak, barbaric and criminal in the eyes of the American people, and of God and all men."

A Remarkable Demonstration.

Every word almost of these last sentences of Mr. Mills was greeted by loud cheers. Men and women on the platform behind him and in the benches before him rose and shouted their hearty approval of denunciation of President Cleveland. In the midst of the solemn charge of cowardice and disloyalty leveled at the chief executive, the secretary of state and the American minister, the whole audience arose spontaneously, waving flags and banners and crying aloud their approval.

End of the Convention.

The convention closed its sessions Monday night. There were meetings in the three tents, in the Calvary, First Congregational, Foundry and New York Avenue churches and in Central hall. Today will be devoted to sight seeing and to-night there will be a bicycle parade in honor of the Endeavorers.

Indorse the Gold Standard.

Dover, Del., July 15.—The republicans, under the leadership of J. Edward Addicks, met in convention here yesterday and nominated a state ticket headed by John H. Hoffeker, of Smyrna, for governor. Jonathan S. Willis was named for congressman. The platform indorses McKinley and Hobart and the maintenance of the gold standard.

Wheat and Corn.

Washington, July 11.—The government report makes the winter wheat condition 75.6, indicating a yield of 270,564,000 bushels, and the spring wheat condition 93.3, indicating a yield of 173,294,000 bushels—a total spring and winter wheat yield of 443,858,000 bushels. The average condition of corn is 92.4, against 99.3 in July last year.

To Protect the Birds.

Washington, July 14.—An appeal for the observance of a "bird day" in the schools throughout the country, to protect them from wanton destruction, has been made by the agricultural department.

The big, hearty, healthy man is a continual irritation to his dyspeptic friend. Constipation is the root of nine-tenths of the sickness of men, and of a large proportion of the sickness of women. It can be cured easily, naturally and quickly. Nature is continually working as hard as she can to throw off impurities, and to force out poisonous refuse matter. When there is an impediment, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets set the wheels working again without any trouble. They assist nature in a gentle, healthful, efficient, way. There is nothing violent about their action, and yet it is just as certain as if it were twice as violent. "You do not become a slave to their use." They are different and better than any other pill for the cure of constipation, headache, and kindred derangements. Almost all druggists understand this, and are conscientious enough to tell you so. The druggist who tries to sell you a substitute is not a safe man from whom to buy medicine. Send 21 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

The Company Known Throughout the World as the California Fig Syrup Company, having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of the most excellent liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, it has become important to all to have knowledge of the Company and its product. The great value of the remedy, as a medicinal agent, and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually, and by the high approval of most eminent physicians.

The California Fig Syrup Co. was organized more than twelve years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in its effects than any other known. In the process of manufacturing, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste and healthful in their tendency; but the medicinal properties of the remedy are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

As the true and genuine remedy named Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, a knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the California Fig Syrup Co. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guarantee of the excellence of its remedy.

Died, July 12, Lynn Hendershot the 7-year-old son of Robert and Mary Hendershot. Four weeks ago the child stepped on something, which made a slight cut in his foot; the wound never really healed, and severe bleeding spells followed. Last Saturday the little fellow was taken much worse and continued to suffer more and more until Sunday night, when death ended the pain. Their friends extend the family their warmest sympathy in this great bereavement.

OBITUARY.

Sarah J. Langan, who has been failing in health for some time, passed away June 24th, aged 57 years. The funeral was conducted Friday by Rev. DeSpelder, at the Reformed church, of which she was a consistent member. Death had no terrors, no sting to her, she was ready for her departure. Thoughts of her will ever be pleasant, but tinged by sadness as her death comes to mind. Remembrance of her life and words will ever cheer and inspire, though such remembrance may cause tears to flow and cast a shadow of pensiveness and gloom around us. Her literary tastes were more than ordinary, being well read and well informed on the subjects of today. Four brothers and one sister are left to mourn her loss.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite, and gives refreshing sleep.

Unfounded rumors led to a run on the First National Bank of Kenosha, Wis., but the prompt payment of $300,000 restored confidence.

Think It Over.

Have you ever heard of a medicine with such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla? Don't you know that Hood's Sarsaparilla, the One True Blood Purifier, has proved, over and over again, that it has power to cure, even after all other remedies fail? If you have impure blood you may take Hood's Sarsaparilla with the utmost confidence that it will do you good.

VERY CHOICE CIGARS.

A Correspondent Tells How They Are Made for Cheap Sale.

"I am informed that a large trade in the manufacture of English cigars is carried on, principally in the east end of London. All the ends of cigars and cigarettes, 'dottels,' chewed 'quids,' etc., are bought at so much per pound from public houses, music halls, etc., besides those picked up in the street. These savory morsels are put into a large bath, where a kind of tobacco broth is made.

"In the early autumn, when the chestnut leaves are beginning to turn a golden color, parties are organized who go to wherever they can get a good supply of these leaves, which are then put on long wires and immersed in this filth, for either a long or short time, according to the requirements of a strong or mild cigar. These leaves are then rolled into English cigars."

The above correspondent's statement tallies, says the London Standard, with an incident which occurred some years ago, when a certain person was charged with illegally manufacturing cigars. His defense was that the cigars he manufactured did not contain a particle of tobacco. And, what is more, he proved his case. His cigars were made of brown paper, embossed to look like leaves, and steeped in tobacco juice.

ONE MAN'S SUFFERING.

The Trials and Tribulations of a Battle Creek Citizen—How He Comes to Tell This Story

(From the Battle Creek Moon.)

Among the moulders at the works of the Michigan foundry company can be found Mr. Amos Maynard; he has lived in Battle Creek for over ten years, is honored and respected by all who know him; such is the man who makes the statement, he says: "I have had kidney trouble for years, and it has made my life miserable. The heavy lifting, necessary in my business, made me worse. I have been compelled to lie in bed in a helpless condition for as long as nine days at a time; the greatest pain was from my back, which sometimes felt as though a bayonet was being run through me in the region of my kidneys; many citizens of Battle Creek knew how bad I was. I could not move without the greatest caution, for as soon as I attempted to stoop over, bend to one side, or even turn in bed, the pain was simply unbearable. I wore porous plasters constantly for the little temporary relief they brought me. Whenever I caught the slightest cold it went straight to my kidneys and made me worse. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got some. I have taken in all four boxes of them, and I now feel as active as ever. A few months ago I would have ridiculed the idea of being cured so quickly, and being able to work as I can now. All the long-standing pains are gone, and the former traces of kidney disorders found in my urine have disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends who were troubled as I was, and in every case I have learned they proved as beneficial as with me. Doan's Kidney Pills would be cheap to me at almost any price."

s community barely escaped a e Monday afternoon; as it was, damage was done, especially to ng crops. The clouds, by their larhue, first attracted the people's tion. Next a sound similar to the of an approaching train was heard came the wind, which struck the east end of the village, uprooting trees, demolishing out-buildings, scattering wheat in shocks all over the fields and laying flat oats and corn. After a course covering a mile or more in extent, it seemed to rise and no further damage was done in this vicinity. Our people do not care for any more of it. Large, sound and perfect trees were twisted off like straws and apple trees were either uprooted or shorn of their fruit.

Saturday being pleasant the trip contemplated by Will Clark and party, consisting of two sisters with their husbands besides his wife, to Monroe Co., was made, and it proved not only enjoyable but of special interest to them. They called at, and went over, the house in Raisinville, where they were born, visited many places made dear to them by early associations, met many friends and acquaintances of long ago and stood by the graves of loved ones long departed. The two day thus spent will ever remain bright spots in their memories.

OBITUARY.

Rhoda Williams was born at Allenburgh, Ont., Nov. 29, 1814. She was married to Robt. Loree Nov. 11, 1830. Syrup of Figs

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

Mrs. Henry Ingham, of Laporte, Ind., has passed the 140th day of her long fast and has entered upon a prolonged sleep.

A True Saying.

It has been said that habitual constipation is the cause of fully one-half the diseases that flesh is heir to. Keep your bowels regulated by Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and your system will be in proper condition to keep off diseases of all kinds. The strength which comes to us from eating nourishing food is better than stimulation, because it is new strength. The health which belongs to a strong body, well nourished by proper food (properly digested), is the only health that is lasting.

The difference between Shaker Digestive Cordial and other medicines is simply that it helps nature to make strength. It does not profess to cure sickness, except as that sickness is a result of weakness caused by food not properly digested.

Shaker Digestive Cordial will relieve the pangs of indigestion, and make thin, sick, weak people as well as if their stomachs had never been out o order.

It is a gentle aid to the digestion of nature's strength-maker, food.

Fate Brooks, of Liberty, Ky., killed a man last Tuesday, was arrested the next day and on Friday was sentenced to be hanged.

Mrs. J. F. Bell, Ossawatomie, Kan. wife of the editor of The Graphic, the leading local paper of Miami county, writes "I was troubled with heart disease for six years, severe palpitations, shortness of breath, together with such extreme nervousness, that, at times I would walk the floor nearly all night. We consulted the best medical talent. They said there was no help for me, that I had organic disease of the heart for which there was no remedy. I had read your advertisement in The Graphic and a year ago, as a last resort, tried one bottle of Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart, which convinced me that there was true merit in it. I took three bottles each of the Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine and It completely cured me. I sleep well at night, my heart beats regularly and I have no more smothering spells. I wish to say to all who are suffering as I did; there's relief untold for them if they will only give your remedies just one trial."

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 17, 1896.

"Even exchange is no robbery." Free Press is now for single standard, hence aiding McKinley, and the Tribune for Bryan and free silver, out and out.

The Herald made a prediction four weeks since that if the other candidates did not watch out Pingree would receive the republican nomination for Governor. And the carrying of the Lenawee County convention last Saturday for him shows that his strength cannot be over-estimated.

The Tecumseh Herald of last week was the first newspaper to announce the nomination of Bryan at the Chicago convention, received here, and contained a full account of the convention from the opening. The Herald prints the gist of all the news each week and has the reputation of being the best local and county paper in Lenawee.

The nomination at Chicago last week of Wm. Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, for President and Arthur Sewall, of Maine, for Vice President, was taking all things into consideration, a novel proceeding. Bryan is a clean, trustworthy young man, in theory fully in accord with the platform of the convention, having been a free silver and free trade advocate since his public career began. He is clean morally and mentally and is indeed quite the proper opponent for McKinley on the issues of this campaign. Sewall is a Maine shipbuilder and if past record counts for anything, is entirely out of place standing on such a platform. He is a monopolist, railroad magnate and bank president, is president of the tariff league of New England and has been sent to Washington time and time again as special representative to raise the tariff on everything that would assist shipbuilders or the carrying trade. He is worth six millions and it takes money to run a campaign. To sum up the situation the candidates are well enough, but honest men will take much thought before following in the footsteps of such men as Altgeld and Tillman, than whom there are not more dangerous persons on earth. The free and unlimited coinage of silver is an honest issue and they who desire have perfect right to the thought that the enaction of such an issue would help out the present depression, but neither Altgeld or Tillman care a rap for free silver or any other theory aside from their own advancement. Both evil by nature, both able in their way, both ambitious to lead and both covetous of notoriety, their methods are only regulated by the necessities to obtain desired results. Without the leadership of these two anarchists the last democratic convention could have been termed a democratic convention indeed, for with the issues at stake, the coming fight would be democracy vs plutocracy. The platform needs no criticism for it contains nothing of any account but free silver 16 to 1. The other clauses sound more like the idle ravings of Anarchist Altgeld or the petty petulances of Pitchfork Tillman. The results of the two conventions are as they should be. The issue is free silver or single gold standard and the personal of the two tickets such that the fight must be for principle not men.

THIRD MATINEE

Good Weather—Fair Attendance—Interesting Races.

The Matinee Wednesday afternoon, at Bills Driving Park, the third in the series, proved a success. Had it not been for the heavy rain the night before and uncertain weather in the forenoon the attendance would have been much larger and many more horses would have been on the grounds. As it was the 2:40 and free-for-all, trot or pace had but three starters each. Central Boy, the promising young pacer, whom many hoped to see, was at Dundee, but on account of the roads was unable to get here. The weather proved to be fine, the track in good shape and the races, though of the one, two, three order, proved interesting. Some close and exciting finishes were made as well as fast time. Prairie Lill proved she was a stayer, being in both the 3:00 and 2:40 classes. She trotted six consecutive heats without being unharnessed or taken from the sulky. Frank B being in the 2:40 class and free-for-all (the latter mile heats) had plenty of work but it did not worry him in the least. Molly W, the pacer owned by J. E. Woodward, of Clinton, is a gamy side wheeler and with proper handling would score a low mark. Startle again demonstrated himself a race horse and turned the track in 1:12. Robert Elliott should place him in the hands of a good driver for development. Green Goods did well also, Clinton Girl and Leopard Rose did not work as well as usual. In the free-for-all, Frankie B R hustled the gamy Ohio Stallion, Red Flame, Jr., and in the last heat made him tie his record 2:23 3-4.

The bicycle race was exciting, Rosacrans crowding Davidson closer than he has been accustomed to be.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last for hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Didcovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Baker & Hall's drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. 1

In referring to the show the Salt Lake News has the following to say: "The gigantic tent Saturday Park could not contain half the people who sought admittance to the Great Syndicate Shows last night. Hundreds thousands were turned away. The streets were packed with people. Everywhere were the sidewalks crowded, the roadway was almost impassable and the street cars had difficulty in forcing a passage. It did not require hard times to see the struggling crowds scrambling for the ticket office when the bell finally rang announcing the entrance of the equestrian tournament. There was tier upon tier of spectators, each as many more satisfied with the room. The spectators were constantly entertained from the beginning to the end of the programme. Everyone wore a broad grin for two hours and then went home still smiling.

The itinerant sign writers with their decrepit father and portable house, turned their backs, so to speak, on Tecumseh Wednesday. They journeyed eastward.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hause, at St. Paul, Minn., was made complete, July 10, by the advent of an 8 1-2 lb. daughter. Their friends rejoice in their good fortune.

The disappointment of "Farmer" Bland in not receiving the Democratic nomination, will not compare with your discontent if you fail to take in everything on Derby Day, next week Thursday.

Mrs. John Hughes has been in Ypsilanti this week caring for her son, Roy, who was taken seriously ill Sunday night, with some heart trouble. We are pleased to say he is now considered out of danger.

Joseph Wilson and grandson, Fred, of Owosso, who had been visiting in Toledo, stopped over here Wednesday and Thursday on their return home. The time, though limited, was utilized to the best advantage.

Don't forget that half mile which Sid Black will ride backwards in less than two minutes. If you think it an easy trick, try it yourself and take two weeks instead of two minutes to complete the circuit of the track.

Forewarned is forearmed. When you see "Forty Rods" and his posse of doughty policemen, next Thursday, prepare to stand back, lest one of "Fortie's" straight grained axe helves descends upon your devoted cranium and produces apoplexy.

Ever since the erection of the new judge's stand at the track, Beech Garlinghouse (the off twin) has camped in the upper story. Some say it is to protect the structure from the ever present vandal, but others hint that Beech climbs out on the roof every morning so that he may see the sun rise safely over Blissfield.

Does it pay to advertise? A. W. Slayton has been sending his lumber circulars to all of the saw mill men in Wisconsin, Michigan and Ontario. It took 6,500 circulars, they weighed 203 lbs, and would reach placed end to end 2 2-3 miles, and cost $65,000 to stamp them, yet A. W. says it pays to send them. He will send this amount twice this year.

Alex. Richard was over to Adrian Saturday and happened in on the republican county convention then in session. This week the story is floating around that many democrats were in the "suburbs" helping out the "Pingree Movement." When asked about these reports Alex. said, "Just as I expected, a man who keeps bad company deserves to be talked about."

Company C will go into camp next month in fine shape. At their meeting last Tuesday evening they elected their former captain, Will H. Hayden, to that position again and Harry U. Kies, a late graduate from Orchard Lake, orderly sergeant. With these skilled and popular officers added to their other faithful ones they will make rapid advancement in all that goes to make up an efficient company.

Last Monday Elliott Gray was assisting to unload hay being on the load to handle the horse fork. After the fork was hitched the team started suddenly and Mr. Gray had either to grab the block or be thrown to the ground. He choose the former, lost the fore-finger of the left hand and injured all the others. With his usual good nature he is now kicking more about not being able to drive his Banker filly with his new buggy and harness than anything else.

Tuesday, Geo. and Elmer Blessing and Alva Spayde went to Hoxsie's lake fishing. They got a great catch, in fact so great that, while the boat did not sink, one wheel of their conveyance did —collapsed completely. The boys took an inventory of their stock of wheels (in their heads) which were varied and by no means limited in number, but none would fill the bill, so they had to apply to some farmer to help them out. They reached home about midnight. All they had to steady their nerves was cold coffee bottled.

There was considerable excitement on the streets last evening, caused by the report being circulated that Mrs. Wm. Fielder had been run into, over in Brownville by some Clinton wheelmen and seriously injured. Upon investigation it was found the report was far from true, as she was not badly hurt, and while the boys had no business on the walk, she was not wholly blameless. What the outcome will be remains to be seen. Most of the riders are in the habit of taking the walk in that part of town as the hill is so full of small stone, but the limits extend nearly to the Macon road and consequently covered by the ordinance and, riders are expected to keep in the road or they will be liable to get pulled.

The Jackson Wheelman Meet.

Great interest is being manifested in the coming bicycle meet which the Jackson Wheelmen's Club give Tuesday, July 21st. Entries are coming in fast from all parts of the state, and this race meet will positively be the largest ever held in central Michigan. The track is being put in the best possible condition, the recent rains helping materially. A force of workmen are busy scraping, rolling, and when ready to turn over to the committee it will be as hard as a board. At 10 o'clock in the morning the big road race will be run. $500 in prizes will be given to the fellows in the lead, headed by three $100 bicycles—Rambler, Ben Hur and Derby racers. There will be nine track events in the afternoon, and there will be tandems and triplets for pace-making. Fast time is looked for and records broken. F. W. Holmes, of Kalamazoo, will try and lower the state half-mile record which he now holds. Michigan's best trick rider, F. R. Giddings, of Kalamazoo, will be at this meet. In the evening a grand band concert will be given by Boos' First Infantry band of 22 pieces. Everything is being done by the race meet promoters for the comfort of riders and spectators at Jackson July 21st.

BIG DAY AT DETROIT.

Evacuation of the City by the British Celebrated in Stirring Fashion.

Detroit, July 13.—Evacuation day was celebrated here Saturday with a burst of patriotism that is seldom witnessed on any national occasion It was the hundredth anniversary of the evacuation of Detroit and of the United States after the war of the American revolution. Detroit was the last city held at the close of the war, and it was not evacuated at once, although the treaty of peace was concluded in 1783. For 13 years Great Britain held Detroit as an outpost, keeping her regular militia in old Fort Lernoult. It was a happy coincidence that the celebration of Saturday was held on the very spot whence the British regulars marched out of America forever, on July 11, 1796. It is the site of the new Detroit post office and federal building and the old site of Fort Lernoult, later named Fort Shelby.

The exercises began with a public mass-meeting at 10.30 o'clock in the new federal building, which is still incomplete. It was packed to the doors and windows with an eager people, while the platform was filled with patriotic societies, such as the Loyal Legion, the G. A. R., Daughters of the American Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution, at whose suggestion the celebration of the day took place. Distinguished guests from throughout the state, and several from other states occupied places of prominence on the platform. Gen. R. A. Alger presided as chairman, and delivered an address fervid with patriotic sentiments. He was applauded at every sentence.

The orator of the day was Senator Julius Caesar Burrows, of Michigan, who spoke on the significance of the occasion and of the celebration. He paid his respects to the British people and said they left Detroit 100 years ago never to return as rulers of the nation.

Col. Henry M. Duffield, of this city, gave a historical address on the facts relative to the evacuation of Detroit. At the close of the programme President Angell, of the University of Michigan, was called upon for a speech, and he spoke eloquently. Dr. Angell picked up and held to view the old spyglass of Commodore Perry, the hero of the Lake Erie naval engagement, and declared that as a native of Rhode Island, the state which Perry hailed from, he could not refuse to add tribute to the American heroes of those early days. He alluded to the slowness which England had shown in recognizing American independence and the institutions of the republic, but referred also to the several institutions, legal and otherwise, which the United States had inherited from the mother country and which did not leave us when the British evacuated Detroit.

During the exercises a brass tablet erected on one side of the entrance of the federal building was unveiled by Gen. Alger before thousands of people while a new American flag was unfurled to the breeze and the revenue cutter Fessenden fired a salute of 20 guns from its place on the Detroit river.

The feature of the afternoon was a gigantic military parade, such as the city has rarely seen. It was participated in by United States regulars, by a regiment of state troops, several cadet companies and other organizations. It took two hours for the vast procession to complete its comparatively short line of march and required 45 minutes to pass the reviewing stand, where sat Gen. Alger and the high functionaries Gov. Rich and his military staff participated in the parade.

The parade drew out a vast concourse of people; 20,000 were packed in front of the city hall when the parade moved by, and the crowd was so dense that street car traffic was blockaded and the parade stopped for several minutes. It was a patriotic crowd, and as the procession passed cheer after cheer rent the air, and the national colors were waved aloft by people on the roofs of buildings.

The programme of the day concluded at night with fireworks and illuminations from the municipal buildings, while several private receptions were being held in honor of the distinguished guests. Gov. O'Ferrall, of Virginia, was to have been orator of the day, but was unavoidably detained.

FAMOUS UNION SPY DEAD.

James H. Sherman, One of McDowell's Guides, Passes Away.

Charlotte, July 15.—James Hervey Sherman, who was a spy in the union army, died at his home in this city several days ago. He was a New Yorker by birth, but, attaining manhood, he removed to Virginia, where he accumulated a large fortune, which was afterwards entirely swept away by the war. Mr. Sherman was loyal to the union cause, and on account of his accurate knowledge of the country he became a guide to McDowell's division of the Army of the Potomac, and afterward entered the secret service under Gen. Baker, of whom he was a trusted lieutenant in many expeditions and became his friend. During one of these trips near his old home his presence was betrayed by an old neighbor, and Sherman was captured by Mosby's men and was reported hanged Instead of being executed he was taken to Richmond. He was confined ten months in Castle Thunder, and after 11 months more at the Salisbury (N. C.) prison he effected his escape and reported to his chief for duty, continuing in that service until the close of the war. He was 76 years old, and leaves a widow and four children.

THE CROPS.

Encouraging Reports of Their Condition in This State.

Lansing, July 10.—Wheat, according to the Michigan crop report issued by the secretary of state Wednesday, shows a marked increase both in acreage and condition over a year ago. The average yield per acre is estimated at 12.44 bushels, an increase of 2.56 bushels. The increased acreage is nearly 15 per cent. Corn is estimated to yield 98 per cent. of an average crop, oats 100 per cent. and potatoes 94 per cent. Compared with average years, the area planted to beans is 94 per cent. The condition of meadows and pastures ranges from 75 to 80 per cent. of the average. Apples promise slightly more and peaches slightly less than an average crop.

Decatur, July 10.—The threshing of the wheat crop of southern Michigan is now well under way, and some of the new grain is coming into market. The berry is plump and hard, and averages nearly 61 pounds to the measured bushel. The damage done by rust is fully as much as first estimated, the yield of heavy soil suffering the larger percentage of loss. In many localities grasshoppers caused considerable injury, but the best wheat-growing districts were little affected. Threshers report they yield from 12 to 16 bushels per acre, the latter figure being slightly exceeded in some instances.

Niles, July 10.—Farmers throughout southwestern Michigan have about completed threshing their wheat. This work is at least two weeks ahead of time. The crop is only about one-seventh what it should have been. Many fields of wheat that usually averaged 30 to 35 bushels to the acre this year only yielded five to six bushels. Many shocks of wheat were unfit to thresh.

LANSING BANK FAILS.

After a Long Run the People's Savings Concern Closes Its Doors.

Lansing, July 14.—The closing of the People's savings bank Monday marks the second bank failure in this city since the beginning of 1893. To the general public the failure of the bank to open its doors Monday morning was a great surprise, but to business men who had been aware of the condition of the institution for some months the result was not unexpected. Application was at once made for the appointment of a receiver, and Seymour Foster, of this city, was selected by Judge Person. The failure of the Barns institution and the Central Michigan savings bank in 1893 weakened the People's bank and left it an easy prey to its creditors, who have steadily been making heavy demands upon it for nearly a year. It has been the depository of the city's funds and subject to large drafts recently upon that account. The total amount due depositors has dwindled to less than $130,000 and less than $40,000 of this amount are savings deposits. The bank's liabilities and assets have not been determined by the state banking commissioner, but as the capital stock of the institution is $150,000 and the stockholders are personally responsible to that amount it is thought that the depositors will realize the full amount of their certificates.

Big Sale of Scrap Iron.

The lot includes much valuable machinery, costing upwards of $1,000,000 when new, and considerable of which has never been used at all. The lot will fill ten large lake vessels when sent to Buffalo.

Quits the Party.

Detroit, July 13.—The Detroit Free Press, which has always been a stalwart, leading journal of the democracy, has bolted the Chicago convention's platform and candidates and declares independence of all party organizations, although it will in the future give preference to candidates of democratic antecedents and democratic views.

Fate of Two Women.

Traverse City, July 15.—Mrs. William Foster and Mrs. George Thompson, prominent residents of Manton, were thrown from a carriage and instantly killed in a runaway Tuesday.

GOOD RACES.

Events Witnessed by Big Crowds at the Battle Creek Bicycle Meet.

Battle Creek, July 14.—The particular feature of Monday's national circuit bicycle racing meeting was the coming together of Eddie Bald and Tom Cooper, the Michigan favorite. Cooper was badly beaten by Bald. There were three trial heats, and the following qualified: Cooper, Scherin, Ernie Johnson, Bald, Longhead. The candidates were Conn Baker, Bliss, Lutie Johnson and Sanger, the "big un." Bald and Cooper rode well in the bunch until the stretch was reached, when both sprinted. Bald passed Cooper like a shot and won by four open lengths. Bliss was third. The attendance was nearly 10,000. Summaries:

One mile, novice, amateur: Frank Ruray, Goshen, won; Hal Legg, Coldwater, second; A. C. Thorpe, Kalamazoo, third. Time—2:35 2-5.

One-half mile, open, professionals: E. C. Bald, Buffalo, won; Tom Cooper, Detroit, second; J. P. Bliss, third. Time—1:04.

Battle Creek, July 15.—Tuesday was Tom Cooper's day, and he again demonstrated that he is entitled to the title "Monarch" by beating Eddie Bald in the mile open, in a hot finish and fast time considering the dirt track on which the race was run. The one mile professional race was, of course, the feature of the day. On account of the large field of entries there were three preliminary heats with seven men to qualify for the final. Cooper, Con Baker, Kennedy, Bald, Loughead, Eaton and Bliss qualified, Sanger being shut out of the final, which was paced by Dr. Parker. The men kept in a bunch until the stretch, when Cooper, Bald and Loughead lit out and they finished in the order given with Bliss in fourth position. The attendance was a very large one, about 12,000 people paying admission at the gate. Loughead, the Canadian champion, went a half for a state professional record, making the distance in 57 seconds. The summaries:

One-half mile, open, amateur—Harry Marsh, Ann Arbor, won; John Wilder, Battle Creek, second; Sleepy Burhans, Ionia, third. Time, 1:02 4-5.

One mile, open, professional—Tom Cooper, Detroit, won; Ed Bald, Buffalo, second; Fred Loughead, Sarnia, Ont., third Time, 2:13 4-5.

BUYS A 3-CENT LINE.

R. T. Wilson, of New York, Purchases Detroit Street Car Property.

Detroit, July 14.—The original three-cent street car line in this city, the one which Mayor Pingree fought for so long, has been sold to R. T. Wilson, of New York, who owns the major portion of the stock in the Citizens' line. H. A. Everett, of Cleveland, vice president and general manager of the Detroit railway, the three-cent line, admitted that Mr. Wilson had bought the major portion of the stock in the new line, and that the old board of directors would retire, although they held and would hold the bonds of the company. General Manager Everett, who intends to take a two years' rest from active work, said the sale could not affect the three-cent fares, as that was a portion of the franchise, and that it was probable that Wilson would continue the three-cent fare on his Citizens' lines, and give universal transfers. This will give Wilson and his coadjutors a monopoly on Detroit's car business, except the Fort Wayne & Elmwood line, and this line has already accepted a franchise for three-cent fares during the day, and universal transfers.

STORM AT GRAND HAVEN.

Great Damage Is Done by Wind and Flood in the Town.

Grand Haven, July 15.—A storm that struck this city Tuesday night was by far the worst ever known in this section. In this city alone it did $25,000 damage. The storm came up from the northwest, gradually veered around to the west, and then swooped over the city with terrific force. The wind blew 90 miles an hour. The big glass beveling plant of the American Mirror and Glass Beveling company was partly wrecked. The roof of the city waterworks was carried off a distance of 100 feet. In the fishing district thousands of dollars' worth of nets and reels were blown into the river. The river rose three feet in half an hour and carried away several fishing shanties. The upper floor of the electric plant was blown completely out of sheer. The government warehouse on the pier was badly damaged. Kilbourn's factory suffered the loss of roof, and several freight cars were blown off the tracks.

Detroit, July 13.—The Grand Rapids Democrat, the leading democratic newspaper of western Michigan, which favored gold before the convention, declares that the Chicago platform is the accepted creed of the party for this campaign, and says democrats who don't like it can find comfort and company on the republican side of the fence.

Dynamite in the Grain.

Decatur, July 15.—When Henry Glass, of Pipestone, Berrien county, was about to commence threshing his grain he discovered three sticks of dynamite in one of the bundles. Had the presence of the dynamite escaped observation, all the men around the machine would have been killed or injured.

Weak

Worn out, nervous women, receive criticism where they should have sympathy. They cannot help being nervous, if their blood is impure.

When the blood fails to feed the nerves upon proper nourishment what can you expect but nervous prostration, debility and nervous headaches?

If the cause is found in impure blood, the cure must be in making the blood pure. This is just what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, and it has proved the true nerve tonic because it is the true blood purifier, and the solace, comfort and defender of thousands of housewives, teachers, clerks and other sufferers of of both sexes. Just read this letter:

Nervous

"I think it is my duty to tell what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me and my family. Two years ago I was in a weak, nervous condition and had dreadful palpitations or jumping of my heart, followed by sinking spells, which would last for several minutes. Sometimes it would seem as though I would never come out of them. I was treated by the best physicians, but only for a little time did they help me. I seemed to be growing worse instead of better. I would often seem hungry, but when I ate, no matter how little, it would cause me such misery that I was often wicked enough to wish myself dead. I had that languid, all-gone feeling and suffered awful distress in my stomach. I had given up all hopes of ever being well, when my mother wished me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I consented, to please her, and before I had taken the whole of one bottle I could see I was improving, and soon was indeed very much better. Its effects have been truly wonderful and I hope this letter may be the means of helping other suffering men and to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and be benefited by it. We have used Hood's Pills in our family and find them very excellent, especially for constipation. We give Hood's medicines great praise, and if anyone complains of feeling badly, I say 'You should take Hood's and only Hood's.'" MRS. KITTIE SMITH, 326 Dane Street, Waterloo, Iowa. Remember that catarrh by the use of so-called blood remedies means the expenditure of many dollars and derangement of the stomach. That catarrh is not caused by blood troubles is self-evident when you reflect that attacks are always due to sudden climatic changes or exposure to cold, and occur most frequently during the winter and spring, though the blood is as pure then as in summer or fall. A remedy which quickly relieves and by thorough treatment cures the catarrhal attacks has been found in Ely's Cream Balm. 12

What a great quantity of work a "good housekeeper" finds to do! There are so many little time-and-strength-taking chores that have no name. And it must all be done whether the housekeeper feels like it or not. This is true of men's work too, but men's manual labor is never so complicated as housekeeping. In some way or other "the world's work must be done." This iron-clad rule is harder on women than it is on men. A

BRACING END POSTS.

How to Do It, So That They Will Not Give the Least Bit.

In fence building, one can very easily spend plenty of money, and if not careful in selecting the kind of fence, and building it, one will be disappointed in a year or two, to find his fence all sagged and out of shape. For cheapness, durability and neatness, there is nothing better than either the smooth wire fence, or woven picket. The end posts are the secret of sucess. These must be solid, as the strain all comes on them.

I will try to illustrate my way of bracing an end post, that holds them perfectly solid. The plan is original with me, and I am glad to say that there is no patent on it. The end post should not be less than six inches square, and eight feet long, four feet in the ground. About six inches from the end that goes into the ground, cut two notches, two by four inches, on opposite sides of the post; spike into these notches two two by four pieces, about six or seven feet long, and let about six inches project past on one side, the remainder on the other side. Dig the hole four feet deep, and long enough (parallel with the fence) to admit of the scantling, with the long ends of the scantings from the fence. Get a large bowlder, the larger the better, and place on these scantlings, fill up with dirt, and tamp well. I also put in a brace parallel from the first to the second post.

The cut will show what I mean: a designates the scantling, b the bowlder, c the brace, d the ratchets on the post to hold the wires. End posts braced in this manner cannot give the least bit.—Rural New Yorker.

INTELLIGENT EFFORT.

Upon It Depends the Success of Every Farmer in America.

A farmer's success surely depends upon effort, but in reckoning the value of his effort, the quality is of greater importance than the other amount. A little intelligent effort goes much farther than a great deal of misdirected effort. There are here and there rugged sons of toil who, having wrested wealth from the forest and field by the might of their brawny arms, are inclined to belittle other methods than those which they employed, and to pooh-pooh at what they call "new-fangled notions," but times and conditions change, and we must change with them. The lawyer, the doctor, the preacher, the mechanic in every line, if he would achieve the greatest success, studies constantly and never fails to adopt every good new thing he finds; would the farmer belittle his vocation by saying it is so purely the work of drudgery that there can be no improvement? Certainly not; in hardly any other occupation of man is there such a broad field for the application of scientific knowledge, such great opportunities for constant and important improvements, and it is upon his ability to make these improvements his own, that the farmer's success depends.—Farm News.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

To a very considerable extent people make for themselves the conditions of life.

Even with the most carefully prepared food the greater portion digested goes to supply heat and energy.

Because poor sheep have light fleeces is not proof that fat sheep have heavy ones.

Good stock, crops, fertility and industry are essential items in good farming.

When animals are allowed to run down there is a weakening of vitality, and especially of the digestive organs.

As an animal grows fat it consumes less in proportion to size, digests less that is consumed and gives a less return.

Confining any farm animal in dark quarters is injurious to it and, therefore, more or less damaging to the owner.

One of the reasons why many fail to make farming as profitable as they might is because of lack of attention to details.

In nearly all cases it is unwise to discard all of the old sows at one time and supply their places with young untried ones.

The cow which will profitably convert the largest amount of food into rich milk or cream is the most profitable to keep.—Farmers' Union.

Keep the Straw on the Farm.

A traveling man recently stated in our presence that he once heard a farmer say he would as soon think of selling the corner stone of his barn as to sell a load of straw. The corner stone of the barn supports the barn; the straw is the supporter of the fertility of the farm, from which arises the force of comparison. In the part of the state where the man heard this, he failed to see a straw stack. All of it had been put into large barns and carefully preserved. The same farmer justly remarked that a cold bed of ice was not conducive to the happiness of a calf.—Dakota Field and Farm.

EUPHONIOUS NAMES.

Every Well-Kept Farm Should Have an Appropriate Title.

One of the evidences of enterprise and improved methods among farmers is the fact that many of them are giving beautiful and significant names to their farms, and then seeking by increased efforts to make the farm worthy of its name, and one of which the proprietor may be justly proud.

In front of every farmhouse there should be an artistically painted board bearing the name of the farm, also the name of its proprietor, or manager. It might also point the direction, and give the distance, of the proprietor's post office town, and other near-by towns, if desired, and thus become, also, a "friendly guide-post" to strangers in the vicinity.

Thousands of pretty names, from which any farmer may select an appropriate one for his own home, may be formed by a combination of words. If located in a timbered country, the name may be based on a favorite kind of tree, or the kind prevailing in the locality, as Oakdale farm, Elmgrove, Cedardale, etc. Or the name may be selected with regard to the location of the farm relative to some near-by object. If near a river, lake, mountain, etc., as Riverside farm, River View, Mountain View, Lake View, Hillside, Hilltop, etc. Or the name may be based on the proprietor's favorite plant, or the one principally grown on his farm; as Cloverdale farm, Clover Leaf, Blue Grass, etc. Beautiful and suggestive farm names may be selected from a thousand words or from a combination of words, and each one can select one to his own liking.

The farmer who puts up his name and that of his farm in front of his home proclaims thereby that he is not ashamed of the farm of which he is proprietor. It is a guarantee that his efforts shall be so directed that the appearance of his home shall, as rapidly as he can do it, be made to consist with its beautiful name.

In addition to naming the farm, the residence, out buildings, lawns, etc., should be put into repair, if needed, and a good photograph of the home taken. Letter heads bearing the name of the farm, and also a cut of the house, should be printed, and used by members of the household in writing to friends, or on business. All these things would stimulate a pride of home and farm, and would surely result in an improvement of farm methods, and in an increase of farm pleasures.—Journal of Agriculture.

FARM FLOOD GATE.

It Is Simple and Serviceable and Does Not Cost Much.

The best and cheapest flood gate I have ever used or seen is represented in the illustration. It is my own invention and is constructed as follows: Twist four, six or eight strands of good, smooth No. 12 wire together to form a cable, the size of the cable depending upon the width of the stream or ditch, and fasten the ends securely at each side, the last post of the fence answering very well if properly braced at top and bottom. Then take branches of osage orange or other hard wood and tie on the cable, using a sufficient number to make a good fence. As the water rises the branches will float, and when it goes down they will return to their proper place. If hedge is not available, bore holes in any kind of poles and string them to the wire cable. If heavy material is carried down by the flood, light poles or boards are liable to be broken, but hedge poles will stand almost any treatment and are consequently the best.—A. A. Berry, in Orange Judd Farmer.

SIMPLE, BUT SERVICEABLE FLOOD GATE.

Buckwheat as a Catch Crop.

Buckwheat is not raised extensively in many sections. It can, however, be successfully grown as a catch crop. Sow in June or July at the rate of two to five pecks per acre broadcast. It will grow on very poor soil. If wheat ripens early this year, which is probable, buckwheat can be sown on the wheat field. It is cut with a self binder and shocked and thrashed like other small grains. If bees are kept, the buckwheat blossoms furnish excellent honey, and by sowing at several different dates quite an extended honey period is obtained. During seasons when clovers, etc., are not abundant, buckwheat as a bee pasture is important.—New England Homestead.

Economy That Doesn't Pay.

Use plenty of seed for farm and garden crops. It is not safe to be too economical with seed unless there are indications at the time of planting which insure germination. The loss of one or two weeks' time early in the spring, by being compelled to replant, is not only an expenditure of labor, but is also costing time that cannot be regained. Some crops require a long season during which to mature, and the best growth is made early in the year. When a large portion of the seed fails to germinate the crop may be either a total loss or fail to pay its cost.

Save Every Ounce of Fertility.

Do not let an ounce of fertility on the farm go to waste. Utilize everything that has in it any elements that will enrich the soil, and take such care of your manures that the best part of them is not lost before they reach your fields. Every farm should have a compost heap, where all sorts of refuse from the house, barn and yards can be thrown. A good many tons of the most valuable fertilizers can be saved in this manner, fertilizers that now go you know not where.—Rural World.

Increase in Shipbuilding.

Washington, July 15.—The report of the navigation bureau shows that during the year ended June 30, 1896, 700 vessels of 204,000 gross tons were built in the United States, against 682 vessels of 133,000 tons for last year.

Newspapers Revolt.

Chicago, July 14.—The Tribune publishes a list of 87 democratic newspapers which refuse to support the Chicago platform and ticket. Of these 18 are published in New England, 24 in the middle states; 14 in western states and 31 in the south.

Death of Frank Hurd.

Toledo, O., July 11.—Frank H. Hurd, one of the most prominent democrats in Ohio, and a member of congress in 1874, 1878 and 1882, died at his home in this city yesterday, aged 56 years.

NOT A SICK DAY

For Over Thirty Years!

RESULT OF USING

AYER'S PILLS

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills for over thirty years have kept me in good health, never having had a sick day in all that time. Before I was twenty I suffered almost continually—as a result of constipation—from dyspepsia, headaches, neuralgia, or boils and other eruptive diseases. When I became convinced that nine-tenths of my troubles were caused by constipation, I began the use of Ayer's Pills, with the most satisfactory results, never having a single attack that did not readily yield to this remedy. My wife, who had been an invalid for years, also began to use Ayer's Pills, and her health was quickly restored. With my children I had noticed that nearly all their ailments were preceded by constipation, and I soon had the pleasure of knowing that with children as with parents, Ayer's Pills, if taken in season, avert all danger of sickness."—H. WETTSTEIN, Byron, Ill.

Calumet Baking Powder

has turned the tables on high price baking powders. The directions on High Price cans are the same as on Calumet cans, viz.: 2 teaspoonfuls to a quart of flour, but they say that one can of High Price will go three times as far as any other. Can any claim be more ridiculous? The frantic cry of adulteration, danger and poison made by the high price baking powder people is a blind to intimidate the public and induce them to pay fancy prices for their goods—also to divert attention from this defect in their own goods.

Calumet Baking Powder is safe. Food baked with Calumet is absolutely free from Rochelle Salts, Alum, Lime, Ammonia or any injurious substance.

Monopoly must yield to moderation—Impurity must improve or go under. Calumet is the standard.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

It is stated that a hole was nearly worn through a door in the rear of one of the Hudson saloons by the persistent knocking of thirsty mortals, who "wanted in" on the fourth. The curtain in every saloon in the city were pinned back, permitting a full and unobstructable view of the interior. The frantic efforts of the celebrators to obtain internal exhileration were pitiful in the extreme.—Hudson Gazette.

One of the cows at the State school in Coldwater showed signs of decline, and gradually grew weaker and weaker till death came. A post mortem showed heart disease. A big darning needle was found in her heart. An old maid in charge of one of the cottages has been missing for some time, and it is now surmised that the cow gobbled her while she was mending stockings, and swallowed the whole outfit. Too darned bad.—Adrian Times.

A new candidate for probate judge has shied his castor in the Republican ring, and with numerous friends will put up a plucky battle for the nomination. The gentleman is Geo. W. Ayers, always a loyal republican, but never a bitter unreasonable partisan. George is widely and favorably known, is a young man of integrity and ability, and will rank well with the other Republican aspirants for the place.—Adrian Telegram.

The fiend who throws tacks on the pavements has not yet visited Monroe, but a person more contemptible is here doing business. Saturday Leo Abraham left his bicycle in front of Sloan's cigar store, and while he was inside making some purchases a passer-by deliberately stuck a knife into the tire of his wheel and cut a gash into it about an inch long. A good reward is offered for the person who did it, and should he be found he should be severely dealt with.—Monroe Democrat.

There came very near being a serious fire yesterday at the home of Festus R. Metcalf on West Maumee street. Mr. Metcalf was sitting in a bay window when the curtains caught fire presumably from the explosion of a parlor match. The blaze was communicated to the carpet and woodwork and before it was extinguished considerable damage was done. While attempting to pull down the curtains Mr. Metcalf's left hand was severely burned. The loss is insured in J. R. Gilkey's agency.—Adrian Telegram.

There is one blemish on "beautiful Brooklyn," and that is its third of July celebration. For years now it has been the custom to pass a subscription paper to get money to buy powder etc. for the occasion. This paper is always liberally subscribed to. It is not the powder but the etc. that is the objectionable feature. The etc. is whiskey and beer and much more of the money raised is devoted to that than powder. The abominable stuff is hid in alleys and behind warehouses and is free to all. Little boys from ten years up were in a bad state of intoxication, as also were some of the men participating in the proceedings. This thing has been going on for years and grows worse each year. It is time a halt was called. There is no patriotism about it and the drunken maudlin crowd on the public square between one and two o'clock was a disgrace to Brooklyn. If there must be a celebration let it be conducted in some kind of decency and confined to proper hours.—Brooklyn Exponent.

No one as yet seems to know where the Lima Northern railroad is going. The track is laid to the Wabash one and one-half miles east of Seneca and a frog has been placed in the swail there, but no arrangement has been made, so far as known to run cars over the Wabash. It is also stated that no arrangement of this kind can be made with the Wabash. The gangs of men have been given a vacation of 60 days while the surveyors complete their work, until the right of way is secured to some point. Of course it is not a sure guess, but it is said the road will now either go to Hudson, Adrian or Addison with inclinations favoring the latter place, where terminal facilities can be had with the C., J. & M. One of the stockholders of the road recently went over the new route to Seneca and expressed himself as greatly displeased that no towns had been touched since leaving Wauseon. Time only can tell anything definite about where the Lima Northern is going—it is going somewhere, however, for it keeps angling along.—Adrian Telegram.

It begins to look as if a Republican who desires to secure the recognition of his party in this county had best be antagonized by the Adrian Times and the other republican papers. The day before the spring county convention, when the members of the county committee were selected, the Times came out strong in favor of the re-election of Harry L. Larwill for chairman. But Mr. Larwill was not elected. Indeed the new committee was antagonistic to him from the day it was named. Then there is the Pingree movement. The Times was virulent in its attacks on Pingree. It was aided and abetted by the Hudson Republican, and indeed all the papers in the county with Republican tendencies. The McMillan machine was solid against Pingree. The republican leaders, the men who have carried things their own way for years, were solid against Pingree. The Pingree forces were marshalled in this county largely by T. M. Joslin, who has been laughed at, sneered at, called a novice in politics and a blankety blanked fool of the first water, times without number. Some of the older heads in the party have even gone to him and advised him that he should desist his efforts against the will of the party machine. He would kill himself without accomplishing anything. But results are what tell the story. Joslin and his followers may be novices but they played a deep game all the while, and judging from the overwhelming victory they won Saturday over the machine forces in this county, what will the old line fellows do when they get to be grown up politicians? The novices turned them horsdecombat, and they are standing around today trying to find out where that Pingree club has been hidden the last two months.' The Times' opposition made Pingree friends.—Adrian Telegram.

The fun has begun. The national nominations are made and now the Adrian papers will spend the rest of the season throwing mud at each other.

The following "Early recollections of Ypsilanti" is also of interest in Lenawee County: On Sunday the 3rd of July 1831, being then a boy on my way to Tecumseh from Detroit, with my father's family, I first saw and stopped over at Ypsilanti.

I do not remember much of the place, nor if there were many houses in it, but was told when taking tea with Mrs. Mary Jansen, at the old Buckbee residence, last Saturday evening, that I was in one of the first two frame houses ever raised in Ypsilanti.

The Rev. Ira M. Weed, brother of Miss Julia Weed, now stopping at the old Buckbee residence, was the minister or pastor of the Embryo Presbyterian church, and I well remember how that when the time of service came, on that pleasant Sabbath morning, men, women and children came in on foot, horse-back or on lumber wagons drawn by oxen, through the woods and bushes all around until quite a respectable little audience was gathered together to sing and pray and listen to the expounding of the inspired Word by that then youthful preacher, which greatly pleased my mother, who being the grandchild of a minister and daughter of a deacon and herself a goodly women, had greatly feared that in coming to Michigan, she was depriving herself of these regularly adminstered means of grace. But to her dismay about 200 Indians, then on their way to Malden, Canada, to receive their annual British pensions, proved too much for the educated reverance for the Sabbath of her boys, who in the afternoon, mingled freely with the Indian men and women, girls and boys, clad, or rather unclad in their peculiar garb, and busied themselves in keeping the young Indians knocking pennies out of split sticks with their rude bows and arrows.

We finally arrived at our Tecumseh home on July 4, 1831. I could easily relate many amusing incidents on our way from Detroit to Tecumseh, but time and space will not permit.

B. L. BAXTER.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1 per bottle at Baker & Hall's drug store. 1

BEGIN HARVESTING.

Farmers Cutting and Threshing Their Winter Wheat.

Chicago, July 21.—The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Michigan—Wheat harvest progressing rapidly under generally favorable weather conditions and threshers beginning work report yield of good quality. Much rye cut and that cut standing is in fine condition. Corn making splendid growth. Oats heading fast, but thin and short. Showers very beneficial, but unevenly distributed. Northern section still too dry for oats, potatoes and pastures.

Indiana—Cooler weather with local showers was favorable for crops and farm work. Corn grew very rapidly and is tasseling. Wheat, rye and barley all in shock. Threshing progresses. The oats harvest begun and the haying continued. Tobacco in good condition.

Illinois—Cool week, very favorable for farm work. Oats harvest well along with fair yield generally. Haying mostly done with fair to good crop well saved. Rye and barley in the stack. Winter wheat being threshed with good yield. Corn continues rapid growth and is tasseling and silking in early fields. Fruits very plentiful.

Iowa — Cooler and dryer than usual, checking damage by rust and favoring normal ripening of spring wheat. Harvest of hay, rye and barley about completed under excellent conditions and oats harvest fairly begun. Corn making substantial growth where it had been well cultivated. Rain generally needed for all unmatured crops.

Wisconsin—Fine weather with local rains caused material development of all crops. Corn tasseling, but weedy and good crop. Rye harvest begun with good yield. Oats ripening fast and indicate good yield. Barley nearly ripened with crop slightly below average. Spring wheat strong and well filled with some rust, but crop promises well. Haying about completed with crop better than expected.

JEAN INGELOW DEAD.

Distinguished Poet and Novelist Expired at London.

London, July 21.—Jean Ingelow, the distinguished poet and novelist, died in London Monday night. She was in her seventy-seventh year.

[Jean Ingelow was the daughter of William Ingelow, and was born at Boston, Lincolnshire, England, in 1830. Her father was a banker, and her mother was of Covenanter descent. She was 33 years old before her first book appeared, and it made such an impression that she was hailed as one of the greatest poets of the country. The Ingelow home at Boston was quiet, unemotional and well disciplined, although there were 11 children. Jean was the last child, and a brother a year older was her chum. He remained a bachelor, and they lived together in a quaint little cottage in Kensington. She was surrounded by birds and flowers. The poet was not precocious as a child, but she had a retentive memory. She was timid and would retire to corners to write down her fancies and treasure them in a box. She spent many lonely hours on the beach watching the billows of the sea and the passing of the ships. There is a sad note in many of her songs, and it has been surmised she was disappointed in love in her youth, but the world has never learned whether she was ever in love. When her first book came out it was thought she was writing under a pen name. She was ranked as the peer of Mrs. Browning, and it is difficult for the present generation to realize that she created so great a furore in her early career.]

PEARY IS OFF.

Arctic Explorer Leaves to Prepare for His Journey to the Pole.

Boston, July 20.—The steamer sealing bark Hope, with Lieut. R. E. Peary and party on board, bound for northern Greenland, left this port at 9 a. m. on Monday, fully equipped for the voyage. The work of provisioning the vessel was completed only a short time before she sailed.

The object of the voyage is to establish a settlement at a remote northern point in Greenland, which shall be used as a base of supplies for an expedition in search of the north pole under Lieut. Peary in 1898. To this end a party of Esquimaux will be established at the new settlement and will, during the next year, be engaged in making preparations for Lieut. Peary's expedition.

Will Reign While She Lives.

London, July 19.—The queen's message to her people from Windsor castle, published in the Gazette, in which she says that she intends to reign as long as life lasts, effectually disposes of the stale old story published in the United States asserting that she contemplates abdication in favor of the prince of Wales.

Heavy Snowstorm.

Denver, Col., July 20.—A severe snowstorm is reported from all the higher portions in the mountain district. Three inches of snow is reported at Cripple Creek, Aspen and other points, and one inch at Leadville. The weather is uncomfortably cool even in Denver.

New York, July 12.—The First Methodist church at New Rochelle was destroyed by fire Sunday night. It was more than 100 years old and the oldest church in Westchester county.

MINERS STILL IDLE.

Prospect of a Settlement of the Great Wage Struggle.

The Situation as Reviewed by Labor Leaders—Efforts of the Arbitration Commissioners Will Probably Succeed.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 17.—True uniformity may eventually win in the Pittsburgh mining district through the efforts of the peace commissioners, but it will take time.

It is expected that it will require several weeks, perhaps a month, to secure the signatures of the operators to the proposition, and Gen. Little has advised that no time limit be put on the movement, as at the former attempt. In the meantime the miners' officials say no efforts will be spared to force the strike to a successful issue. The lines along which the arbitrators expect to work is to get the 13 lake shippers interested first. These will be banded together to force the smaller operators into line by well-known business methods. Every wire will be pulled to bring firms and men into line.

Holds the Key.

Fairmont, W. Va., July 19.—West Virginia holds the key to the great coal strike, and the next 48 hours will show its attitude. It is freely predicted that the miners will throw down their picks en masse, with the exception of a few isolated cases. Leaders of the strike are confident that this will be done, and say the result cannot be otherwise than beneficial to their cause. In the Norfolk and Western region Sunday the strikers made gains in some sections and losses in others. Big mass meetings were held in Flat Top, and it looks as if four more of the largest mines would be idle this morning, though the men dislike to give up the good pay they are now making, and are vacillating between desire and what they feel to be a duty.

President Ratchford Talks.

Columbus, O., July 19.—President Ratchford sums up the strike situation in an interview to the State Journal as follows:

"The manner in which the miners are conducting themselves commends itself to the country and gives their officers renewed encouragement, and strengthens the belief that victory will ultimately crown their efforts. We have started into this movement realizing fully the importance of the work before us and the responsibility resting upon us, and after two weeks of suspension, involving more than 150,000 miners, we are well satisfied with the results. Only those who are best acquainted with the condition of the miners have any idea of the extent of this suspension and its paralyzing effects upon the labor and business of the country. It has not yet reached its full proportions. The coming week will add 20,000 men to the idle column. The week following will bring greater accessions to our ranks. The movement will continue to grow, not only from the point of number involved, but public opinion will become crystallized more fully and through the press of the country will demand a solution of this great difficulty. The organized trades of the country are to-day in closer touch than ever before. Never in the history of labor troubles have they been found so closely allied. Our demand for living wages and the determination of our miners to secure it have brought expressions of sympathy and moral and material support from almost every branch of organized labor, whose efforts in our behalf will endear them to all lovers of fairness and establish for the miners, with their own efforts, a living rate of wages."

Meet with Little Success.

Elkhorn, W. Va., July 21.—Of the 700 miners in the Flat Top field who were out Monday about one-fourth of this number returned to work Tuesday morning. The meetings of agitation availed naught for their cause, and the indications are that unless something very extraordinary develops the agitators will leave the field in this section this morning.

Go Back to Work.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 21.—The attention of the miners of the Pittsburgh district is now riveted on the Allison, Boone and Enterprise mines, near Canonsburg. The Boone and Allison mines, which were closed Monday by the owners to prevent trouble between their men and the marching strikers, resumed Tuesday with nearly a full force.

NEW ELDORADO.

Great Gold Discoveries Said to Have Been Made in Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., July 19.—The reports of great gold discoveries in Alaska have caused intense excitement here. Policemen are resigning from the force; every street car man that can raise a stake has given notice to his company. In fact, all classes of society are represented in the feverish rush to get north. Men neglect their business and congregate in groups on the streets in excited discussions. People are telegraphing friends and relatives in the east to come and join them in the new Eldorado.

Ten Eyck Wins.

Henley-on-Thames, July 17.—E. H. Ten Eyck, the American oarsman, won the finals in the great diamond sculls Friday. His opponent was R. T. Blackstaff, of the Vesta Rowing club. The Englishman had previously won his semi-final heat in record time from Dr. McDowell, the Delaware Boat club man. Ten Eyck represents the Wauchusetts club, of Massachusetts.

Epworth League Convention Ends.

Toronto, Ont., July 19.—Five monster farewell rallies Sunday night closed the greatest convention the Epworth league has ever held. All five meetings were marked by great outbursts of religious fervor, and the delegates separated with many solemn vows to remain steadfast and devote their lives to the service of Christ.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Work of Our Lawmakers in the Fifty-Fifth Congress.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in the Senate and House — Other News from the Nation's Capital.

Washington, July 15.—A resolution was reported in the senate yesterday for the ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty and another asking the president to interfere in the case of the schooner Competitor prisoners who are imprisoned in Cuba. A resolution to prevent the disposal of the government lien on the Union Pacific railway under the terms of an alleged agreement caused a long discussion.

Washington, July 16. — Pacific railway affairs occupied the attention of the senate yesterday. A joint resolution was passed accepting the invitation of France to participate in the Paris exposition of 1900.

Washington, July 17.—The session of the senate yesterday was brief and uneventful. A bill was passed to give the consent of congress to a compact entered into between South Dakota and Nebraska respecting the boundary between said states.

Washington, July 19.—Senator Morgan (Ala.) occupied most of the time in the senate on Saturday in support of a resolution relating to the Union Pacific railway. In executive session a number of nominations were confirmed and the nomination of Terrence V. Powderly, of Pennsylvania, to be commissioner-general of immigration was received from the president.

Washington, July 20.—Union Pacific railway affairs occupied the time in the senate yesterday.

The tariff conference report was presented to the United States senate on the 20th, but little progress was made on it beyond the formal reading of about two-thirds of the report. There were indications the final report vote would be reached in a short time. A joint resolution empowering the president to take steps for the release of Ona Melton and other Competitor prisoners held by Spain was passed.

The House.

Washington, July 15.—The house yesterday nonconcurred in the senate amendment to the general deficiency bill, and conferees were appointed. Mr. Simpson (Kan.) introduced a resolution directing the speaker to appoint a committee of five to investigate the sugar trust.

Washington, July 16.—In the house yesterday Mr. Lorimer (Ill.) introduced a bill to appropriate $500,000 for a monument to Lincoln in the city of Washington.

Washington, July 17. — The house yesterday agreed to the partial conference report on the general deficiency bill and concurred in the senate amendment fixing the limit of cost for armor plate at $300 per ton.

Washington, July 19.—In the house on Saturday no business was transacted.

Washington, July 20.—In the house yesterday the conference report on the tariff bill was adopted by a vote of 183 to 118, five democrats voting in favor of the measure. The house took a recess until Wednesday.

Export Records Broken.

Washington, July 16.—The monthly statement of the exports and imports of the United States, issued by the bureau of statistics, makes the remarkable showing that never before in the history of the country have the exports of merchandise, which include practically all the exports except gold and silver, reached so high a figure as during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1897, nor has the excess of exports over imports ever been so large. The only time these figures were approached was in 1892, when the United States was making heavy shipments of grain to feed Europe after a series of deficient harvests. The statement for 1897, with comparisons, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $1,032,998,880; increase over 1896, about $170,000,000; total exports of domestic and foreign merchandise, $1,051,687.91, as compared with $882,606,938 for 1896. The total imports of merchandise during the fiscal year just closed amounted to $764,373,906, of which $381,932,606 was free of duty. The total imports were about $15,350,000 less than last year, and the excess of exports over imports for the year was $287,613,186. This is an excess of about $185,000,000 over last year and an excess of about $23,000,000 over any previous year.

Don't Believe It.

Washington, July 17.—At the Japanese legation here no credence is given to the report that the Spanish and Japanese governments have entered into an alliance against the United States.

The Currency Message.

Washington, July 21. — It is announced that President McKinley will withhold his currency message until after the conference report on the tariff bill has been adopted by the senate.

England's Gravest Question.

London, July 20.—In the house of commons in the course of the debate on the foreign office vote, Sir Charles Dilke, radical, said: "The gravest foreign question at the present moment grows out of our relations with the United States and if the matter is not dwelt upon it is because the government is conscious that in these difficult matters it cannot count upon the support of the entire house."

A HOTEL IN TWO TOWNS.

If One Town Goes Dry the Bar Can Be Moved Into the Other Town.

In selecting the site for the Grand hotel in the Catskills, on the top of Pine Hill mountain, the owners evidently had in mind the vagaries of the excise vote. It is not generally known that the Grand hotel stands on the boundary line of Ulster and Delaware counties, the boundary line passing almost through the middle of the hotel building. The hotel therefore is in the township of Shandaken, Ulster county, and in the township of Middletown, Delaware county. Should Shandaken go dry, the hotel bar could be moved to Middletown, and vice versa. Advantage has been taken of this fact by the hotel owners to keep down the assessment, says the New York Sun.

The assessors of Shandaken placed a valuation on the property of $50,000, but agreed to assess it for only $25,000 if the hotel would remain in that township. This year they have raised the hotel assessment to $30,000, and the owners have notified them that they intend to remove the hotel to Delaware county, where the assessment will be made much lower by the town of Middletown. The assessors of Shandaken township are going to try to have a bill passed by the next legislature creating this hotel property into a special district, and giving to the stockholders the privilege of voting as to where they shall be assessed or whether they shall be assessed at all.

SUBMARINE RIVERS.

That Strangely Break Through the Ocean's Bottom.

A break in the cable laid between the Senegal coast of Africa and Pernambuco, in Brazil, five years ago, has led to an extraordinary discovery, related recently by Mr. Benest to the Institution of Electrical Engineers. The cable was as fine a one as modern methods could devise, yet after three months it broke about 150 miles from the African coast; it was repaired and broke again. It was then found that at the place where the break occurred there was a great deal of vegetable growth resembling river weed; that the color of the sea was a dirty brownish green, indicating the presence of fresh water, and birds' feathers, pieces of orange peel, scraps of carpet and bits of driftwood were taken from the bottom of the ocean. The phenomenon was purely local, as the nearest river was 75 miles away, and discharged its waters in a different direction. It was surmised that it meant the sudden breaking through of a submarine river, and the cable was moved to a distance; after two years it broke again, and was moved once more, and engineers are waiting to see what will happen. Submarine rivers are known to exist in other parts of the ocean, off the mouth of the Congo and in the Gulf of Carpentaria, for instance. This explanation, however, does not account for the carpet and orange peel.

FINAL "A" BAD FOR SHIPS.

Some Recent Wrecks Were Guilty of That Lack of Foresight.

Insurance underwriters look askance at vessels which have a final "a" in their names. The first letter of the alphabet is considered a hoodoo when it ends the name of a deep sea ship. Many of the most serious wrecks of the last year have been of vessels carrying the hoodoo letter.

One day lately, says the San Francisco Examiner, the telegraph announced that the British ship Androsa, from that port for Liverpool with one of the most valuable cargoes that was ever carried out of that harbor, was lost within a few leagues of her destination. The next day word was received that the Orealla, bound from Victoria for Liverpool, had been swept by heavy seas and badly damaged. Her mate and one sailor were drowned. The wires told on the same day of the total loss of the British ship Villanta and the drowning of her master near Freemantle, and a few days later the papers gave the news of the loss of the steamer Wallapa and of the beaching of the Dora in Alaska waters.

During the last two or three years the most serious wrecks on the coast were of vessels whose names ended with the hoodoo letter. The wreck of the Colima was the most horrifying of all. Then came the loss of the steamer Columbia, and a few weeks later the passenger steamer Umatilla ran ashore and narrowly escaped destruction.

Another Champion.

"Who is that lank party with the medals?" asked the drummer.

"That is our town champion," the rural grocer explained. "He has got his picture in the papers more times fer bein' cured of more different diseases than any man in the United States."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A MIDNIGHT SURPRISE.

By Elvira Floyd Frocnecke.

LIFE in our family has always been agitated by unexpected happenings. Proper, well-regulated superstitions have a way of reversing results which is humiliating and depressing. When Algernon bought a new tan-colored coat under the impression that it would please his sweetheart and give him a smart, fashionable air he found that tan was unbecoming, that his sweetheart preferred gray and that the latest hue for spring coats was a striking shade of plum.

Clarisse, too, had the same well-developed propensity; for on presenting a young lawyer (of tender heart and intellectual tendencies) with a book by Mr. Hall Caine she found that he had read all that gifted man's works and was eager to learn something of the brighter light, Zangwill.

Poor Aunt Polly fell ill with grippe. She suffered long and recovered slowly. It left a legacy in the shape of a nasty cough that refused to be quieted. One fine day she took courage and went to call upon some dear friends. The old ladies were in. They were delighted to see her, but were very much distressed about her cold. During the shifting conversation, which covered the broad field that lay between oratorios and home soapmaking, they recommended numberless cures. Towards five o'clock Aunt Polly rose to go. There was a flashing eye signal between the kind old hostess and importunate "Oh, don't go's!" from both.

Aunt Polly sank gracefully in her chair as one of the ladies disappeared. Throughout the period of waiting most pleasant thoughts were borne in her mind. How kind they were! How delightful to again visit old friends! What would the coming refection be? Probably tea; maybe coffee. No! More likely cocoa, and possibly elderberry wine or bouillon. She finally arranged the probabilities between elderberry wine and cocoa, while apparently deeply engaged in conversation with her entertainer.

A slight bustle at the door. A click of a spoon. She turned her head to see the apparition of a female figure advancing, which held in one hand a large bottle of cod liver oil, in the other the hugest silver tablespoon ever made.

A spoonful was poured out slowly and handed to the unfortunate guest. She gulped down the dreadful dose and hastily made her escape. Aunt Polly is a Christian, and nothing transpired that was disastrous to friendship or good breeding. But, oh, how she did think!

We were all a bit chary of superstitions, because of our peculiar experiences. There is that one of a black cat bringing good luck; but when Eloise scratched her dainty hand on wearing a black-cat pin for the first time, and when Cousin Belle's story was sent flying back as "unavailable" by the editor of the Black Cat magazine, we were not eager to welcome the tremendous black-coated, yellow-eyed pussy, that Gerald assured us would make happiness for all the family.

Still she was a lady, and had some pretensions to beauty, so we adopted her, and baptized her "Devil." She certainly acted as if about to change conditions, for nothing serious occurred, and beyond a propensity for lying on the most comfortable bed she could find, or dipping her dainty paw in an ink bottle—imitating the writer—she was most exemplary.

Sometimes it annoyed us that we had not a good terrier in Devil's place. She could kill rats, of course, but could give no alarm in case thieves entered the house. We tried adding a bright little black-and-tan terrier to our family. This would not do at all. Devil must reign supreme, and the dog was banished.

Burglaries began to be frequent in the neighborhood. The pater and mater were going abroad, and we home guard were on our mettle. We were taught and retaught pistol practice until we were sure of our man, did he dare offer his body as target.

The gunsmith had never sold so many pistols, nor such quantities of ammunition, since he had taken his shop. He was a queer little man with a bent back and a deep-set eye. His grimy hands, greasy knee-caps and odor of gunpowder were his trademarks. He looked as harmless as a pearl-handled revolver; but the way his prices rose to meet this demand, and the fables he concocted about his antique stock, showed his capability for improving opportunities.

Still with paternal solicitude the household head was loth to leave us without further precautions for our safety.

A burglar alarm was added to the household attachments. It was of an electric construction; and there were numerous dynamos and endless electric wires flying around the house for a week or more.

Finally all was complete. Each bed had a formidable row of wires and batteries; while within easy touch of the hand was a small crank that set bells ringing in furious clamor.

We were alone at last. Each morning Charles Augustus, the colored gentleman who arranges our destinies and receives our guests, set the alarms, to which all the bells responded merrily. Each night Algernon and I examined our weapons and laid plans to meet the marauder.

After several nights of broken slumber, when each heard noises and met in corridor, pistol laden and in light attire, we concluded that it was absurd to meet trouble two-thirds of the way. So we settled down to peaceful sleep and long nights of rest.

We had had a delightful holiday. For two days friends had visited us. We had been in town, sight-seeing and wonder-gazing, ending with a dance one night, a trip to the theater the next. Again we had settled down to get rid of our Saturday night's tire with really pleasant anticipation.

I dreamed of Christmas; then, that we were waiting to see the old year out, when I awakened, and the bells were all ringing! Every electric alarm twanging a mighty burr-r-r-r, added to which were the gongs of the front and back doors, while sounds of voices from excited men outside added to the noisy blare.

I rushed to the hall, forgetting my pistol, and met Algernon, clad in pistols and night shirt, hurrying to the front door.

"Have you killed him?" I cried, supposing at least one burly corpse must be lying somewhere near.

"Killed her, you mean," sneered Algernon, rushing downstairs. "No! I haven't, but, by Jove I will."

I thought he had gone mad and was almost frantic with terror. Still I did lean over the baluster and saw the captain of police, the sergeant, six big policemen and eight sympathizing neighbors forming a line that was like an interrogation point.

Algernon looked dignified, though the circumstances were trying. He kept the throng quiet and explained quickly, answering the shower of questions that assailed him with:

"I am very sorry, gentlemen. Our alarm was set and we were sleeping soundly. The bells were set in motion by our cat who took a notion to play with the crank."

Not a smile came to those expectant faces. Poor men! It was a cold morning—two a. m.—and they intended to capture at least one man after their trying ordeal. Slowly they filed out and Algernon reclimbed the stairs. Disgust and gloom were written over his dejected face and manner. I looked up to say: "Oh, Algernon! I am mortified to death."

Suddenly the lad burst into an uncontrollable fit of laughter. "Not a burglar! Confound the alarm! I believe there never was one that went off at the right time. And where is that cat! She must be abolished. This is not the first time the devil raised a neighborhood, but it will be the last time here;" and he went in search of the imp, whose sagacity saved her neck, as she had broken our peace.—New England Grocer.

TOOK THEIR ADVICE.

Lieut. Tyler Took a Ferry, But It Did Not Take Him to Capt. Sicard.

When Rear Admiral Sicard, who took command of the North Atlantic squadron the other day, was a captain he was stationed for a time on the old receiving ship Vermont in the Brooklyn navy yard. To him Lieut. Hanson R. Tyler, now retired, was ordered to report for duty on the Vermont.

Tyler was a big, round, good-natured Vermonter, with a long, nasal, down-east drawl, and all the navy had nicknamed him "Horse." It happened this time that "Horse" reported four days late, and Capt. Sicard was annoyed. The captain was not a martinet, but he was a believer in strict discipline and in the fullest performance of duty. When he was in command of a vessel it was always shipshape. When he was in command of a navy yard things moved off as it was intended they should move. So, when Tyler came aboard the Vermont Capt. Sicard was displeased because of his tardiness.

"Good morning, Capt. Sicard," drawled Tyler. "I am ordered to the Vermont, and I am here to report to you for duty."

"Good morning, Mr. Tyler," answered Capt. Sicard. "Will you have the goodness to explain why you are four days late?"

"Certainly, captain," said Tyler, with just the suspicion of a grin and an extra attenuation in his drawl. "You see, my orders were to report aboard the Vermont at Boston. I went to Boston and found that the Vermont was at Brooklyn. I didn't know whether to bring Boston down to the Vermont or the Vermont up to Boston. While I was debating the matter I got a telegram from the department (he pulled it out and showed it to Capt. (Sicard) that said 'For Boston. In your orders read Brooklyn,' so I came down to New York yesterday. I'd never been in Brooklyn, so I asked a man how to get the Brooklyn navy yard, and he said I'd better take a ferry, so I took a ferry, and when I got off I asked a man how to get to the Brooklyn navy yard, and he said: 'Take a ferry.' I asked him what that place was, and he said: 'Staten Island.' So I took a ferry, and when it stopped it was in a place a man said was Communipaw. I asked him how to get to the Brooklyn navy yard, and he said: 'Take a ferry.' I thought it wasn't a good place for me to be around loose in at night, so I got a hotel and went to bed, and this morning I hired a boy for 50 cents to pilot me to the Brooklyn navy yard; and, by the way, captain, have you got that sum in your clothes?"

And they say "Horse" Tyler got off.—N. Y. Sun.

Dancing in Paraguay.

The women of Paraguay have but one pastime, that of dancing. They wear white robes, but leave their shapely shoulders and tapering arms all bare. A gold comb of enormous size is the only ornament. Parties are gotten up on the slightest pretext. The dances are in quaint, original figures, but nearly always very graceful. Sometimes the festivities will be kept up through the entire night, after which the participants will gayly return to their occupations of whatever nature, always contented, always happy. Sometimes there will be a grand contribution picnic at some distant point, where the dancing will be kept up through the round of a whole 24 hours. For these people live to be happy through the livelong day.—

Indigestion is often taken for consumption. The word consumption means wasting away, and dyspeptics often waste away as badly as consumptives. The reason people waste away is because either they dont get enough to eat, or they dont digest what they do eat. If the latter is your trouble, take Shaker Digestive Cordial. This will help you to digest your food and stop your loss of flesh. Shaker Digestive Cordial is made from herbs, barks and the juices of fruit, by the well-known Shakers at Mount Lebanon. It possesses great tonic and digestive powers. Shaker Digestive Cordial has cured many supposed consumptives (who were really dyspeptics), by simply helping their stomachs to digest their food, thus giving them nourishment and new strength. JURORS MAY ATTEND CHURCH.

Religious Observances No Disqualification in Murder Trials.

The court of appeals, in its recent decision affirming judgment convicting Giuseppe Constantine of murder in the first degree in killing Pietro Galiotti at Utica, held, among other things, that the fact that during the trial the jury, in charge of officers, attended church, where the sermon was upon the prevalence of crime, was insufficient to justify a new trial, when it was shown that the officers, as soon as they discovered that anything might be said which could prejudice the jury, at once left the church with them, and that the trial judge thereupon stated to the jury, and at the close of the trial charged them, that no opinion uttered by the preacher should have the slightest weight upon their minds in forming their verdict. The evidence, says the New York Times, showed that the murder was committed in an affray, and that there was an interval of from half a minute to two minutes for deliberation while the defendant was threatening the fatal act. The court held it was not an error for the judge, in charging the jury upon the question whether there was sufficient time for such a degree of deliberation and premeditation as would constitute the crime, to illustrate a minute of time by his watch. The power conferred on the court of appeals by sections 528 and 542 of the code of criminal procedure to order a new trial in capital cases was not to be exercised upon the mere appearance of some error to which no exception was taken, unless the substantial rights of the accused could be seen to have been affected by it.

THE CLAIRVOYANT OPERATOR.

She Buys or Sells Wheat with a Twist of the Wrist.

An odd sight is to be witnessed daily on the Consolidated exchange. Visitors for some time have noted a little group of women who stand all day long in the gallery at the Broadway end of the building, says the New York Mail and Express. They also notice one particular broker on the floor who is continually craning his neck and glancing at one of the women in that group. Every once in awhile, after a glance, he jumps into the wheat pit, which is just under the edge of the gallery, and makes a transaction.

Only the observing will notice, however, any connection between his operations and the woman whom he watches. From 10:30 o'clock till three o'clock she stands there, with one hand resting over the railing. With slight movements of this hand she gives orders to buy and sell wheat to the broker. The number of fingers extended indicates the number of thousands of bushels to be done, and a twist up or down of the whole hand tells the broker whether to buy or sell.

But that is not the queer part of it. A stranger asked one of the brokers, a friend of his, who the woman was.

"Why," was the reply, "that's the clairvoyant operator. She's a real clairvoyant all right and she reads the future turns in the market and buys or sells accordingly. Or at least she thinks she reads the future, and maybe she does, for she has lasted longer than the ordinary woman speculator. She has been at it for months."

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 23, 1897.

The HERALD is under obligations to its many patrons who pay so promptly, but at this season of the year printer's ink evaporates so quickly that it requires constant replenishing to keep any color on the paper. All the prompt subscribers have long since paid, and if all who have not paid would pay right now the ink would flow better and the "Ghost" would walk with more becoming regularity. If something does not happen soon half the paper may come blank some week simply for want of cash to buy the ink to make the type show up. To sum the matter up, all who owe for the HERALD will confer the greatest favor by paying at once. The amount is small to the subscriber, but is needed very much by the publisher.

How easily and quickly people forget! In 1888, '89 and '90 the treasury of the U. S. was jammed so full of dollars that many would roll out, the rich men were growing richer and poor men poorer and there was a great clamor for a relief from this awful burden of taxation. Wm. McKinley stepped up and said, "I will stop this trouble. We will put a tariff on foreign goods so high that none will come in. This will help our laborers who manufacture American goods, raise their wages and give them a chance to catch up with the rich fellows, and with this prohibitory tariff the gold in Uncle Sam's vaults will decrease till the people will stop bowling about so much surplus." The "Dingley" bill is even more protective than was the McKinley act and yet it was framed with the especial idea of raising more revenue. The "McKinley" bill defeated the republican party because it was too radical and, although it will be a great relief to the country to have the tariff settled for four years, still the final effect will be the same and the result of high protection will make the rich man richer and the poor man poorer. It seems a pity some non-political measure could not have been passed that would stand the test of years and benefit all classes of people alike.

For a number of years village readers of the NEWS have had the privilege of reading the council proceedings in its columns, the sum of $75 per annum being divided between the two village newspapers. On last Monday evening the council decided to have the proceedings printed in but one paper. There was no kick coming from the taxpayers over the amount paid for printing, and while "economy" should be the watchword of our village fathers, it is also a fact that many taxpayers will be deprived of the privilege of knowing what the council is doing because they cannot read the report in the NEWS. We believe the board will think as we do and order the proceedings also published in these columns. The small sum additional for that purpose will make but a trifle difference in the aggregate.—TECUMSEH NEWS.

For several years the NEWS has received $40.00 and the HERALD $35.00 for printing the proceedings, the NEWS setting the type, as that paper is printed first in the week, and turning it over to the HERALD next day. The editor of the NEWS is alone to blame that the old contract was not renewed as, without conference in the matter, he choose to put in a separate bid much in excess of what either paper received last year and as the bid of the HERALD was same as last year, the council very properly thought to serve the larger number of people for the least price and patronize the HERALD. Still the old way was much more satisfactory to all parties and it is a pity the editor of the NEWS would not have thought best to continue.

Many proprietors of grain threshing machines have fixed the price per bushel at two cents this year. When prices of grain were high many received four and five cents per bushel for threshing it.—Addison Courier.

The funeral of Mr. Charles M. Tobias was largely attended by friends and neighbors Friday afternoon, at his home in Cadmus. Rev. Mr. McAllister paid a tribute to the worth and integrity of the man who for twenty-nine years had lived in that neighborhood and in the same house in which he died. He spoke of the help and encouragement he had been to both old and young, and that his presence would be sadly missed in the church to which he was ever faithful. Mr. Tobias was born in Danby, Tompkins county, N. Y., in 1827. He came to Michigan in 1851, being 24 years of age. For twenty years he was engaged in railroad business, after which he took up farming, which he continued till his death. His three sons and a brother acted as pall-bearers. The interment was in the Dover cemetery.—Adrian Times.

It is understood there is a movement on foot to build a bicycle path from Tecumseh to Tipton, and that farmers have promised to continue the path from Tipton to Sand lake. If this is done Adrian cyclists could get a path to the lake by building from here to Tipton. President E. N. Smith, of the Adrian bicycle club, will call a meeting of the directors to consider the matter.—Adrian Times.

Editors Stacy, of Tecumseh, Grandon, of Adrian, and Schermerhorn, of Hudson, each left the devil in charge last Monday and fled away to Devils Lake for a few hours of uninterrupted comfort—not a horrid Republican in the galaxy. A royal good time is reported but it was hard on the fish, and the wampum gatherers of the resort of the evil name say the times are just as hard as ever.—Addison Courier.

Hudson, Mich., July 14. The Vibrator has, after a number of sensational maneuvers been consigned to the journalistic cemetery. Friday George F. Parish made a formal surrender of his ownership and interest in the concern to the former owner of the plant, Dr. Eaton, and the genial doctor will not thank anybody for singing in his presence, "The cat came back." The office will be continued as a job office by Mr. McDonald, the foreman, but no paper will be issued.—Adrian Telegram.

During the recent hot spell a Hudson lady, according to the Post, told her husband how she had read that if a tub of cold water were placed in a sleeping room it would cool the air. He did not believe it, but as neither could sleep on account of the heat, he finally arose and procured the water, but placed the tub where it would be convenient for a bath when his wife arose. In a little while she wanted to raise a window, but as she left the bed she stepped backward and went into the tub with a vim. The man was awakened by a series of screams, and went to her relief, but he says if one wants a better performance than a circus, try the experiment of cooling off the room with a tub of water.—Adrian Times.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning All Roads Running Through Tecumseh.

The Michigan division of the C. J. & M. was taken out of the hands of the court Tuesday and formally turned over to the new company. There was no change in the officers, but Receiver F. B. Drake became general manager of the Toledo & Milwaukee railroad. The Ohio division of the C. J. & M. has not been reorganized yet. It will be operated by a separate company and will be probably known as the Cincinnati Northern. Both companies will have the same officers but their accounts will be kept separate. The real purpose of separating the divisions, it is thought, is to put the Michigan division into condition to be annexed to the Detroit & Lima Northern. This seems to be the most natural way of executing the deal.

The Cincinnati express bound north on L. S. & M. S., and due at Monroe at 5:54 a. m., struck and instantly killed two men Saturday morning who were walking on the track about two miles south of Monroe. Papers found by Coroner Mulholland on the person of one of the men identified him as one John Kilday, of Chicago, Ill., a cigar-maker by trade and a deaf mute. The other man had nothing on his person by which he could be identified. They were perhaps 25 years old. Both were horribly mangled.
